THE WAR ABOUT OVER.

But Ten Days More of Warm Work —Age is Will Decide Whether or Not Bum Shall Longer Rule in Charlevoix County.

In the fight which is now just over the trenches, the SENTINEL, being convinced of the righteousness of its cause, has done the best it could, under very painful circumstances. How well it has done we leave for our readers to decide. Our conscience, for the course followed, justifies it, the SENTINEL really enjoys a good fight. When the war is over, it will, like Saladin, send its physician and a charger to King Richard.

From war to peace should succeed from acrimony to song; and so, we shall sing of the days when we dismissed the weather and the doctor. If ever domestic infidelity will emerge from hiding, it is when peace reunites is compelled to bring its groaning house. We have been a smoker for more than thirty years, ten years of that time being concentrated into the last two months. A pipe is a great solace to a sufferer. We have smoked so much smoke that they have scraped the layers from the wall paper, and the smell of a foul pipe does not remind one of the aroma of attar of roses. When the day for cleaning the pipe came around we were, as the saying is, caught by our good wife in the act of slipping the pipe-cleaner on the towel. There was a tremendous hullaba. We argued that, under the circumstances, it was quite natural to expect kind words and comfort, but the remainder of the day was devoted to more or less gentle reminders of the eternal fitness of things.

When the next pipe cleaning day came around we passed the towel and appropriated the dish cloth. Under the system of vigilant watchfulness that prevailed, this, too, was discovered, and the kick that followed broke a pane of glass.

The next resource was the clothes-lines, where we tried the baby's—pants. When apprehended we tried to prove that the stain was from natural causes, but the evidence did not serve to satisfy the jury. We took to bed and covered our head with the blanket. From the night we brought up on the covering, and a truce was declared.

And all this reminds us of the mistaken idea of kickers that some people entertain. In a like manner it reminds us of Joan's frisky under trying circumstances. Well, well, after all, there is no place like home when the devil gets a ball-bitch on your intercostal nerve and carries it to the captain.

Death of Mrs. Alexander M. Ross.

Mrs. Mary O. Ross, wife of Alexander M. Ross, of Charlevoix, peacefully departed this life at her home on Sunday last. Mary O. Cunningham was the daughter of the late Thomas Cunningham, of Marmora, Hastings county, and was born in Rawdon, Ont., July 15th, 1839. She was married to Alex. M. Ross at Smithsonion, Ont., May 10th, 1856, coming to this country in 1864, locating a homestead in Marion.

About twenty years ago they moved to Charlevoix, where they have since resided. She leaves a husband and six living children—Mrs. Frank Reed, Mrs. William Cooper, Hugh and George all of Charlevoix, Alexander of Kalamazoo and Andrew of Clarion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross were among the earliest of Charlevoix county pioneers, and suffered all the privations incident to those early days. Deceased was well known and everywhere respected.

Benzie County is witnessing one of the most strenuous fights along the local option movement that was ever witnessed by the people of that section, and it now looks as if after May 1st Benzie county will be numbered among the dry counties of this state. Nearly all the business men are taking a great interest in the campaign and are extending their influence throughout the county.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT ECONOMIC ISSUE

There is no doubt that many people in the county, engrossed as they are, in a great moral as well as economic question, do not give much attention to the good roads question, submitted to the people for their action at the spring elections, and involving county supervision of all road building and improvement.

It is a question that lies very close to the general development and prosperity of the county, and is of vital interest to every citizen, especially to the farmer;—to the farmer because of the resultant increase in the value of the product of his labor, and to the average citizen in the ratio of his interest in the secondary benefits to accrue from improved means of transit and most economical, with judicious and permanent road improvement.

To the abstract question of good or bad roads there is but one side; it is the question of the most economical and effective method that is now before us. That good roads add value to the farm is a manifest truth, for the reasons that require no elucidation.

The evidence is that wherever the county system has been thoroughly tried out the result has been absolutely satisfactory. Charlevoix county has reached that stage of agricultural development when that all important and great element of our prosperity must take a better step in its own interest.

We therefore believe that every citizen of the county should vote for the proposition.

THE LOCAL OPTION MEETING.

The Most Enthusiastic Meeting Ever Held in Charlevoix—Plain Facts Stated—The Public Aroused.

One of the most largely attended and enthusiastic mass meetings ever held in Charlevoix occurred at the Charlevoix Theater Sunday afternoon. Mayor Rose called the meeting to order and presided.

The principal speaker was Hon. J. M. Harris of Boyne City, who was followed by several leading citizens of Charlevoix. The Theater was packed.

The ayes was more intent manifested in any public question than characterized this meeting. The trend of every word spoken was that the saloon must go in Charlevoix county.

Advices from all parts of the county indicate that the county will go dry by from 1,000 up.

—There has been no mail communication between Charlevoix and Beaver Island yet this winter. Not since 1878 has this occurred. During the winters of 1877 and 1878 there were no steamer runs. It is hoped that the mail bag will get across this week. A strong south west wind will clear the passage.

—Traverse City Record: Being interested in the matter of good roads, George J. Culp, county commissioner of Leelanau county, and Mr. Leighton, Manistee county commissioner, in regard to the matter. Mr. Leighton was chosen as Manistee is a neighboring county working under the county road system and conditions there are almost identical with those in Grand Traverse county. Commissioner Culp asked for an honest consideration of the matter and the reply is such as overwhelming indorsement of the county system, that the correspondence is given in these columns that the people of Grand Traverse may have an opportunity of seeing how the system works out when it is given a practical trial.

CHAPTER XIII.

Next day Jack Phillimore made his way to Rowall Hingwood's chambers in the temple. He found that light of the law at house. Jack's name, of course, was quite sufficient an introduction. Hingwood asked him heartily by the hand, put him into an easy chair, proffered him tobacco in all shapes, and then said:

"Now you shall tell me what there is to tell about dear old Bob. I hope you have done that. Mind I hope you will feel that I am no longer a stranger."

Jack Phillimore heartily responded to his host's cordial welcome, and briefly told the little there was to tell about Bob Hingwood.

"By the way," he continued, "that was a very curious bit of news that you sent me in your last letter to Bob. I never heard my cousin make the slightest allusion to being engaged in any such big love affair as your letter hints at. I understand that it is only a chance, but if it did come off it would be a remarkable windfall for him. I should think it would result in a title at least."

"Well, of course, I cannot say, having no concurrent of the extent of his fortune. I may clear matters up by saying that the lady in question is a very lovely and very sweet young girl, and that I believe she is quite as much in love with your cousin as he is with her."

"Why, what a romantic way you have of putting it!" cried Jack Phillimore, laughing.

"Well, I suppose I have heard that your cousin, the Honorable Miss Beatrice, is a lovely creature."

"Yes, to a fellow called Pegram, I am told. And why on earth do you call her a romantic way? I mean, I suppose, that I ought to be delighted to hear that my cousin is engaged to such a lady as Miss Lyrne Wraggle, but I don't feel implicit confidence. There was a lawyer, and the old man especially has the reputation of being a hard, cold man, very unscrupulous in driving a bargain, and altogether a good deal of speculation and money-lending. I intend to investigate the matter, and find out the young lady of the member of Miss Clarke's school, and, if possible, find out who is her guardian. Now this ought to suit you as well as it does me. If Pegram was concerned in a fraud, his marriage will, of course, fall through—we may succeed in finding such strong presumption that he finding such strong presumption that he has "one so as to justify a postponement of the marriage. That would suit you; while, on my side, I should get rid of one of Miss Chesham's adversaries perhaps."

"That is a splendid idea. I will go in with you heart and soul."

"Very good; then the first thing we have got to do is to ascertain, if possible, who is likely to be on Pegram's side. Has he a friend who, I think, will give us a reliable hint on that point if we may be convinced that this marriage is against Mlle Phillimore's inclination?"

"He has the letter that Hingwood proffered, he read it carefully, and as he concluded, said:

"Well, the writer speaks her mind pretty plainly. She is the young lady's grandmother, is she not? It does seem a little throwing herself away," continued the manager, "a beautiful girl like Miss Phillimore marrying such a nonchalant looking concern as that Pegram. Still, though concern as that Pegram. Still, though we don't match fish in a pool-tempered fellow; they will have plenty of gold here, and I have no doubt will run together pretty comfortably."

"But still," said Jack, a bit heckled, "Jack Phillimore, 'you are an old friend of Lord Lallingham's; you could surely see his daughter made miserable for life by being married to a man she cannot care about—a man like Pegram, whose account of himself, after all, is extremely doubtful."

"Excuse me, Mr. Phillimore," replied the manager. "That from Pegram is what he represents himself to be. I can vouch for it; but you are a relation, and so have a claim to interfere; to say nothing," he concluded slowly, and with a slight twinkle of his eye, "of a rather personal interest in the matter if I mistake not."

"Be quiet, Phillimore," suddenly exclaimed Hingwood. "Look here, Hermingly, you know just as well as we do that this marriage is simply the consolidation of the two last shareholders, as they suppose themselves, in the Great Tontine. I believe I think, under the circumstances, that somebody ought to see that old Pegram's claim is all right. If Lord Lakington is too indolent to take the trouble, I really think that Jack Phillimore, as Miss Beatrice's next relation, is justified in seeing that Miss Beatrice's wedding settlements, after the legal crush, are involved in the Tontine, are all right and genuine."

"I think, replied the manager, "that, as I said before, what here I to do with all this?"

"Nothing and nothing," replied Hingwood. "We will investigate the Pegram affair, and what we want you to do for us, is just to give us a hint where to begin."

"Well," said, as he pondered it to himself, "you will find that will prove a difficult matter. I know, of course, that there may be no suspicion of its having been written for Mr. Hingwood's perusal. Drop it into the pillar box."

"Thank you very much," said Jack, as he took the missive, "it shall be posted as you wish. Already with this, I'll have any lock, I shall beat that beast Pegram out of the field. I'm not actually in love with a sweet young lady, I'm not actually in love with a sweet young lady, I'm not actually in love with a sweet young lady,

What Turks May Not Say.

As for the fate of his subjects, the dead, sick of Turkey, the future of the country—what does Abdul Hamid care about that? The emperor is his private property by the right of birth. It is the patrimony which he has inherited and which he bequeaths like a piece of silver. Turkey—it is himself! And so he has forbidden in his cabinet words such as "country," "nation," "people," "liberty," "revolution," to be spoken or printed, more especially "liberty" and "revolution."

A Turkish friend of mine, an old scholar of the Mudlis school, which is a kind of political science school, says a writer in the American Magazine, told me the 5,000-strong little vocabulary in the French lesson, the professor is for a Turk, they were translating a piece of some French anthology. The other day a message where it was said that "the butterfly flies with river." The professor was perplexed. Problems he was afraid of being dismissed by spies who were planted in the schools for allowing the use of so gritty a word as "freedom."

"Stop," said he to the scholar who was reading aloud, and as the pupil he had addressed stopped the lesson, instead to translate himself, "The butterfly flies with cause."

Hygiene and Aeroplanes.

Top floors are fashionable. Up the smoke pipes to meet the birds among the trees is a usual practice legitimately and one that is indulged in every summer by princesses Marie of Roumania, who owns an airy bathroom that was erected for her by the King. This consists of a small tiny removal chapel wooden structure, with a window, and has for its support four big or three. The idea is a novel one, and it is a guess one that considerable of our aeroplanes will be used in the process of bathing. Thus a man could step out of his dining room into the air, a possibility of the near future for the association treatment of hydrotherapy. Instead of rendezvous in a health resort a doctor will prescribe some bath room away in a balloon at an altitude selected to the case in hand. In this respect there has all ready been considered a perfected system of business one with liberty a necessity and a profitable liberty company.—Harper's.

Putting by For the Rainy.

The flight of victory in his eye, counted for the defense rose in his feet and willingly surveyed the sweet and twenty dimpled who was suing for breach of promise of marriage.

"Who made you?" said he sourfully, "about honorable dealings. Well, gentlemen I say as her lock to herself. My client tells me that she gave him her soul as positive to turn every letter she received from him as soon as she had read it. What have you to reply to this, madam?"

"My attractive damsel was in tearless disorder.

"It is quite true," she answered calmly, "but, as I thought the letters might be useful some day or other, and I didn't want to break my word, I never read them!"

Painless Punctuation.

Massachusetts has a law, known as the "semicolon law," under which a school committee regulates the labor traffic in the city of Boston. But this is not a circumstance to an unofficial comma, as instanced by the following act of the last legislature of Massachusetts: "Whoever operates an automobile or a motor cycle on any public way or private way laid out under the authority of law to exceed, or with intent to exceed, twenty miles an hour, or so as to endanger the lives or safety of the public, etc. It is now asserted that the reckless motorist can go as he pleases on highways which have not been "laid out under the influence of liquor."—Albany Argus.

Count the Cost Correctly.

Talk about dollars!

While you are making a debit and credit exhibit of the liquor traffic, put down on the debit side:

The cost of the courts, and their necessary adjuncts.

The poor houses, asylums and jails.

Domestic unhappiness and suffering.

Cruelty to animals, and moral degeneracy.

Poverty and destitution.

Diversion and cruelty.

Murder, rape and arson.

Heart burnings, remorse and finally suicide.

Is this overdrawn? Ask the judges and look up the record.

If you are a good statistician, compute the cost and put it down in nine figures on the debit side of the ledger.

Then bring down the balance and see on which side of the book it will be.

Dollars are but infinitesimal fractions of mills in comparison.

The people are not so ignorant as to be deceived by the talk of sellers.

If you vote on the cost exhibit, get in all the cost.

What It Costs in Dollars.

(Correspondence)

A detailed statement of the minimum expense of operating the military saloons in Bogue City for one year and of the public revenues derived therefrom.

Saloon licenses ... 100.00 each	$1,500.00
Court business ... 25.00	25.00
Bonds ... 40.00	1,200.00
Bail bond losses ... 200.00 each	1,000.00
Dead beat bailees ... 500.00	2,500.00
Total of saloon expenses	$2,025.00
Estimated cost of courts, based on 10 per cent profit	$22,025.00
Total amount of profit necessary for expense	$37,500.00

This allows an average of $64.10 to per each saloon.

Assuming that the expense of the other houses in the county are approximately the same, then

Bear Junction's 9 saloons cost	$576.90
Pine River's 7 saloons cost	448.70
Bear Lake's 4 saloons cost	256.40
St. James' 7 saloons cost	448.70
Total	$1,730.70

Making a total cost for the county of $24,755.70 which shows that the people of Charlevoix county contribute each year to maintain the county institutions each year to maintain the county institutions and pay expenses for the saloon keeper of another county, amounting to $12,769.30 more than they receive as a saloon license, and they receive no other revenue, or why their taxes should be so high.

Now, what do we get for this? The saloon keeper pays his license, and the rest of the money goes to the lawyers. This is how Cheboygan County pays $7,700 and upwards for $1,500 in revenue; Presque Isle County pays $7,000 for $1,000; Charlevoix ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Emmet ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Otsego ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Montmorency ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Alpena ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Oscoda ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Alcona ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Ogemaw ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Roscommon ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Crawford ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Kalkaska ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Grand Traverse ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Leelanau ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Benzie ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Manistee ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Wexford ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Missaukee ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Lake ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Mason ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Oceana ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Newaygo ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Mecosta ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Osceola ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Clare ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Gladwin ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Arenac ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Ottawa ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Ottawa ... 1,500 ... 27,000; Ottawa

OIL TRUST WINS CASE; $29,000,000 FINE VOID

Judge Anderson Decides That Evidence Against Standard Company Is Insufficient.

ORDERS "NOT GUILTY" VERDICT.

Decides Nearly All Technical Points Against Prosecution—Government Gives Up Fight.

The famous $29,240,000 rebate case against the Standard Oil Company was ended Saturday, government attorneys abandoned the prosecution, declaring that under the court's rulings they could not continue the case against the corporation. By the direction of Judge Anderson the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Judge Anderson ruled that the government had not produced sufficient evidence against the oil company to establish the points upon which they were basing the prosecution. In his instruction to the jury the judge dwelt on the theory that the government had established no case against the oil company.

This end of the famous case leaves Judge K. M. Landis, who imposed the enormous fine on the corporation, alone in his judicial attitude. His rulings are declined and his attitude in the first trial was not taken into consideration.

Judge Anderson, who has thus set at nought the rulings of Judge Landis, is a born companion of the latter jurist. Both men are "classics" coming from the same part of Indiana. They were boys together and throughout their lives their careers have run parallel. As boys they frequented the same "swimmin' hole," and when they grew to manhood both became Democrats and Republicans in politics and both were made federal judges by ex-President Roosevelt. Their philosophies have been much the same, and both have been noted for their inclusive grasp of the cases on trial before them.

Judge Anderson directed the double act of the case because there is no proof. He in instructing the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, said he dismissed the counts in the indictment covering the shipments from Chanipelle because there was a fatal variance between the indictment and the evidence.

The Elkins Law, he said, provided that offenses could be committed in only two ways, one way by violating the law as shipments carried by a common carrier over its own line, and the other by violating the law as shipments carried over its own and other lines.

The indictment charged, he said, that the Chanpelle shipments were carried by the Santa Fe road over its own line, whereas the evidence showed that they had been carried over its own and other lines.

Judge Anderson, in the first ruling of the court, ordered that a new verdict be drawn when the Standard Oil company asked objection to the first point assumed only three Chanpelle shipments were involved. The court then ruled that the government in prosecuting its case should confine itself to the thirty-six offenses, thus voiding the highest possible fine against the oil company, should it be found guilty on every count, but $720,000, while Judge Landis assessed the company a $29,240,000 fine.

GOMPERS DEFEATED AGAIN.

Court of Appeals Affirms Blow at Boycott List.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia has modified and affirmed the opinion of justice Wright of the Supreme Court of the district, enjoining the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers and other officials from publishing in the "We don't patronize" list the name of Buck's Stove and Range Company of St. Louis.

The opinion, which was handed down by Justice Riddi, holds that the decree of Judge Gould should be modified to the extent that there should be eliminated the order against the labor organization and the other defendants prohibiting "continuing, writing or referring" to the business of Buck's Stove and Range Company or its customers. Otherwise the decree is affirmed.

The court holds that the "combination" and the boycott in furtherance thereof, and the publication in the "We don't patronize" list in aid of the boycott are illegal.

SENDS MESSAGE 4,240 MILES.

Japanese Steamer Accomplishes Wonder in Wireless Telegraphy.

The steamer Kaiju Maru, of the Yokohama Kaisha fleet of Japanese steamships, sent a message by wireless from Yokohama, Japan, to Puget Sound, a distance of 4,240 miles, which is the longest distance ever made with the stations on either the Japanese or American coasts. The accomplishment was made possible by relaying messages through wireless equipment on ships, which they had signed on between the Ali Maru and other vessels.

SAVED BY JULIA MARLOWE.

Secretary's Dress in Flames—Actress Smothers Blaze with Blanket.

Miss Julia Marlowe saved her secretary, Miss Elizabeth McCracken, from being burned to death at the Plaza Hotel, New York. Miss McCracken was lying on a sofa of lounge to seal a number of letters and the dame set fire to her sheer, she tried to smother the blaze with a pillow, but the pillow caught fire also. Miss Marlowe seized the blazing pillow and threw it down upon the floor, Miss McCracken was severely burned.

THE AMERICAN EAGLE GETS A JOLT.

MISSOURI OUSTS STANDARD OIL

Waters-Pierce Company Continues to Do Business in State.

The motion by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Republic Oil Company of Ohio for a rehearing of the ouster suit recently decided against them, and for a modification of the judgment, were overruled by the Missouri Supreme Court Tuesday.

Upon payment of the assessed fine by the motion of the Attorney General for an absolute ouster of the Missouri company was denied, the compliance with the court order recently filed by the company was approved and the judgment of ouster against it was suspended.

The effect of these decisions is to expel the Indian, and Ohio companies from Missouri and to restore to the Waters-Pierce Company, 90 per cent of whose stock is held by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the right to do business within the State.

The decision is considered a great victory for the Waters-Pierce Company and incidentally for the minority interests of that concern who claim to have been making unavailing efforts to free the company from control by the New Jersey corporation. With this object in view they declined to approve the proposition made by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana that the company be allowed to continue business in the State under a receivership composed of representatives of the court and the company.

This proposition carried the Standard interest in that it would have given to the State a measure of direct control of a corporation's affairs, but it been adopted by the court. But it was ignored in the announcement by the chief justice.

With the judgment of ouster made absolute against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Republic Oil Company, these concerns must now pay their fines of $20,000 each and cease business in the State. The $25,000 assessed against the Waters-Pierce Company has been paid.

SAYS JAPAN SEIZED ISLANDS.

Chinese Commander Forces Sikoku's Men to Haul Down Flag.

Chinese Soldiers engaged at Pratas Islands, having sent an urgent appeal to the Viceroy of Canton, alleging that the Japanese were occupying the islands, the Chinese cruiser Fooying and two destroyers were dispatched to investigate. The squadron spent four days at Lei-ho-shan and reported. Commander Woo, who seized the Japanese steamship Tatsu Maru in 1907, reports that he found the Japanese flag flying on the islands and more than a hundred Japanese established on permanent settlement, actively engaged in removing phosphate, pearl shell and tortoise shell without permission from the Chinese government. The Japanese claimed they discovered the islands eighteen months ago. They had destroyed by old Chinese trends driven off many fishermen, burned six junks, the owners of which refused to leave, and continued to threatened others with death if they resisted in landing. Commander Woo compelled the Japanese to haul down their flag and destroy the post which announced the alleged discovery of the islands. He ordered that the Japanese record five million yen worth of guano. Shipments have been forbidden.

FIGURES SHOW ACTIVITY.

Renewed activity in the country's manufactures is shown in figures prepared by the bureau of statistics, comparing imports of manufacturers' materials in January with those of the two preceding months. In practically all cases the importations of manufacturers' raw materials in January, 1909, show a large advance over those one year ago, and in only a few cases the figures are actually larger than those of January, 1907, when all the industries of the country were running to their full capacity of production. The figures show that it was in January, 1908, that the decline in imports began. The comparisons with it is forced, prevent the identification of the turning point, which was a long half out on the book, face down in the table, and the conclusion is drawn near the thread, as if she had tried to conceal it. Nothing, however, is found alive in Dayton tonight.

DAYTON WOMAN AGAIN VICTIM.

Seventh Murder Mystery Appears in Discovery of Body in Canal.

Another mystery confronts the police of Dayton, Ohio, in the discovery of the dismembered body of an unknown white woman in the canal below the Apple street bridge. In the opinion of the 6th, there is must have lain in the water about a month. The woman apparently was 30 years old and well dressed. She was attired in black. She wore slippers, but over these she had a pair of new rubber shoes. The woman's under garments were of good quality. The corset was somewhat worn. It is feared, prevent the identification of the murder victim. The head is lying half out on the bank, face down in the water. The arms crossed and are near her throat, as if she had tried to protect herself. This is the seventh unsolved slain in Dayton recently. Four of the murders have never been solved.

MINERS' DEMANDS REJECTED.

Operators Ask That Present Agreement Be Extended Three Years.

The anthracite coal operators have flatly denied all of the eight demands officials of the union had made for changes in the agreement, which will expire on March 31. The operators have proposed that the present agreement be renewed for a period of three years. The conference was held in Philadelphia.

This decision was not unexpected by the workers. President Lewis has his plans laid and is conferring with other leaders to perfect the details of the next move. Those who have followed the trend of affairs in the anthracite region believe it will be useless for the miners to insist further upon any material change in the agreement, and it is expected the miners' committee will call a convention from three districts to take up the operators' decision and counter proposition.

What the outcome will be is a matter of conjecture. So far as could be learned from the miners, a majority of the workers are opposed to a strike, because they feel that they are not strongly enough intrenched to carry on a campaign of the magnitude of that of 1900 and 1902.

The present agreement, made in New York three years ago, when John Mitchell led the miners in the negotiations, is identical with the award of the Roosevelt strike commission, made in 1903, after the strike of 1902. Three years ago the miners made no demands, but all were rejected, and they accepted the renewal of the strike commission award, which is the present proposition again made by the operators.

The demands of the mine workers, drafted in Scranton last October and ratified by the national executive board in Indianapolis in January, ask an advance under which all disputes shall be settled by a board of three, with a chairman to a party to negotiations in wage matters, and also a reduction of hours sufficient to may adopt for the collection of revenue.

The other demands were for an eight hour day with no reduction in wages, for a contract by which all coal shall be weighed and paid for by the ton of 2,000 pounds, and a definite and more uniform scale of wages for miners, laborers and other employes.

The anthracite coal operators have filed a petition in bankruptcy against the firm of Schwartzwald & Schlesberg, and have asked for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the affairs of the brother business in the area of hard coal mining, the Schwartzwald & Schlesberg Coal Company, of New York.

SPEAKER CANNON.

in the entire membership by States. The various groups of members marched down the aisles and, standing in the well in front of the rostrum, took the oath of office. The President's proclamation was read to the assembled throng, which quickly disposed of the other business, after which business proceeded.

A few contests came in the House not Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois was re-elected Speaker. The vote on Speaker was: Cannon, 204; Champ Clark, Missouri, 192; Cooper, Wisconsin, 1; Lenroot, Wisconsin, 1; Murdock, Kansas, 2; Hepburn, Iowa, 1.

The Speaker's question of what would be done with rules, the greatest solicitude upon the part of members felt concerning the outcome of the bitterness of the session. Those having desirable jobs in the chamber were loath to give them up, but they had to take their chances with the rest. This is always an interesting proceeding. To Cure British Poverty.

The report of the British Royal Commission on the poor law, the result of investigation of the whole question of the poverty and misery of the poor, is in two very forty volumes. It contains more than 250 recommendations, of which the most important are the abolition of general workhouses, the wardens shall be made to be a thing of the past, workhouses unnecessary and before, the compulsory attendance of children at school, the compulsory attendance of children at school after the age of 14, the institution of labor exchanges and the compulsory school labor. As applied for the increase of the pensions, the report is good example. It is held that extravagance, waste and uneconomic methods are responsible for much pauperism and distress. But the proposed remedies are populous degrounds, and that a majority of the unemployed are city men. The work of the reform proposed are drastically revolutionary.

HELPS FISHERMEN.

Bill Provides Catch From Legal Nets May be Sold.

Lansing, March 18.—Not in compliance with the ideas of the game warden's department is the bill introduced by Representative Warner, of Frankfort, which provides that all fish caught in nets of legal mesh may be sold.

It is common knowledge among commercial fishermen at least that many undersized fish are caught and brought up in nets which comply exactly with the law. The game warden's department has fought against any such provision as it contained in the Warner bill on the ground that it leaves all opening through which the commercial fish may escape consequences of the sale of illegal size fish. This was one of the questions over which Representative Agnew who is dying at his Lansing home, wrestled with four days in framing the general fish bill which is pending in the house.

The Bird bill, providing appeals from the equalization decision of board of supervisors between townships and cities to the state board of assessors, presents a question of more than ordinary importance. Representative Ogg's bill simply makes state wide the provision of his bill of the previous day which affected only counties of 200,000 inhabitants. The Green measure is to correct a flaw in the existing law which directs the township treasurer to hold all tax moneys. It makes it mandatory upon him to have and hold all the tax money of his township, making no allowance for delinquencies.

The amendment provides that he shall hold all moneys "paid in." This is a bill suggested by the Oakland county board of supervisors. The Monroe bill is in the interest of a more secret ballot.

The Senior Play.

The Senior Class are much pleased to present a play of such merit as "Esmeralda" under the able direction of Miss Corley. Nothing seems to please a Charlevoix audience more than a good play presented by home talent. We think they will be glad to greet the Senior Class in their play.

"Esmeralda" is one of Mrs. Burnett's shorter, classical productions and represents a Carolina family who have suddenly become possessors of great wealth through the discovery of rich mines in their farm. The worldly, ambitious mother wishes to enter fashionable life, and causes much misery to the father and daughter, the Esmeralda, whom she has taken to Paris. When about to accomplish her purpose of marrying her to an adventurer a supposed nobleman, her schemes are frustrated by the arrival of Dave Hardy the boy, who had followed them from the old home.

After "Esmeralda" "The Sleeping Car" will be given. This will be the best farce ever put on in Charlevoix. Special orchestra music is being prepared and will be directed by Miss Gregory, at the Charlevoix Theater, Friday, April 2nd.

Traverse City Eagle: With analysis but a few weeks off there are all kinds of unusual spring rumors being talked about on the streets of late. The best service on the big lots is to be this year, but no one seems to want to vouch for the authenticity of the same. It is reported that a small boat line to pick up trails will be run on the two bays this summer which will pick up trains along the shores and take them to some central point. According to the story this boat, which is to be a different one from any yet on the bay and be run by a different firm, will in the main be in competition with the Pauline M. Hone. As far as is known at this time the Chippewa gap will be on her regular run this summer, but if some of the other rumors which are heard on the streets are true it promises to be beneficial to this boat in the freight way. It is true that the regular schedule of the big boats do not appear before May and until they do appear the stories in circulation cannot be backed upon. The demand in this regard which is in circulation is to the effect that none of the big boats will touch this port this summer, that arrangements are to be made to have the freight brought to Traverse City, or some other port, and then taken on the big boats directly for Chicago. The rumors say that too much time is lost by the big boats in coming down the bay for the available quantities of freight.

By Word of Mouth.

There is a certain youth who recently became married to a very sweet young girl, who, for all her reverence, is well supplied with spirit. This youth evidently thought he had the entire game neatly primed in a book, and he continued to hand off the usual "Anything girl?" etc., question, for, taking her in his arms, he said, gently but firmly:

"Now, sweetheart, I might as well tell you at the start—you are the only girl I have ever kissed."

"Well, maybe not," she retorted, "but you still have quite a lot to learn about it."—Harper's Weekly.

Monthly Report of Baxter W. R. C. Ending March 18th.

On February 25th the ladies were entertained by Mrs. Geo. Cook at her home on the north terrace. Each lady was asked to embroider her name in the friendship quilt, and the afternoon passed very pleasantly. At five o'clock dinner was served.

March 5th a tea cent tea was given at the home of Mrs. John Miller on the south terrace. About fifty friends turned out to give the ladies the glad hand by aiding the Corps financially.

March 11th was our regular Corps meeting and we had a full attendance, office being filled. Our new badges were passed around and admired; two new members were initiated and six applications for membership read and passed on. The president reported having received a cheerful letter from Mrs. Whitmoyer, from California, saying that she was glad to say, by the papers that Hunter W. R. C. was coming to the front. She also enclosed $3 as a present to our flower fund, but she being a charter member we tendered her a vote of thanks and re initiated her name on our books.

March 18th we were invited to Mr. N. Simons on the north terrace and a very sociable afternoon was enjoyed by all of the members and many of their friends who were invited. It was understood that they who wished might place any amount from 10c to $1.00 on the plate furnished for the purpose, and a sum of about $2.00 for the flower fund was the result.

Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the board of supervisors of said county held on the 24th day of October, 1908, the following resolution was adopted.

Resolved, that the question of adopting the county road system be submitted to a vote of the electors of the County of Charlevoix at the next general election to be held on the first Monday in April, A. D. 1909.

Notice is further given that said query will be stated on the ballots to be used at said election as follows:

Yes.
Shall the county road system be adopted in the County of Charlevoix?
No.

Dated March 13, 1909.

DANIEL S. PAYTON,
County Clerk.

PUTTING paint on costs three times as much as the paint; the property is probably worth fifty times more. It doesn't pay to "skimp" the job; get the best painters you can find; tell him to use Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint. It tells you he can use a better paint himself, he isn't the best painter you can find; get another.

Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint is better than hand mixing can make.

—Mrs. H. P. Parmele, who is always willing to be recorded on the right side of every question, will we are sure, justify our publishing the following extract from a letter to the editor of the SENTINEL: "I want to congratulate you upon the noble stand you have taken on the temperance question, and to say to you that you absolutely do more for Beer than any I have read in any other paper, and I use them wherever I have an opportunity." Mrs. Parmelee is the lady of big birth.—Woodstock, Ont.

—If you should read in a poster that Satan is not the enemy of mankind, and that the picture of idolatry is really a philanthropist, would you believe it? If you should read a statistical exhibit showing that half will have a deficit in its revenues for the next fiscal year, and that you must help make it up, would you fall into the trap? In the name of reason, think this matter over. If you seek the truth you need not go far afield; look about you.

A BOOMERANG WELL THROWN.

Local Lie Well Rounded—A Sample of the Recklessness of the Opponents of Law and Order.

As is well known by about every citizen of Charlevoix, the "well-heeled" and public spirited Geo. H. Van Pelt has planned to erect one or more buildings on Bridge street this summer. With a recklessness that is surprising, people favoring saloon interests have been telling that, if local option was carried in Charlevoix he would abandon these plans. Mr. Van Pelt was asked about it and following is his answer by telegram:

CHICAGO, ILLS., MAR. 27, '09.

R. W. KANE,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Local option pro or con, will cut no figure with my putting up buildings. Do away with the saloons, then my buildings will more quickly materialize. I endorse Willard Smith's article of March eleventh, "Only one Side of the Question." You bet, use this freely.

GEO. H. VAN PELT.

Fellow citizens, what do you think of the honesty of these methods, to say nothing of the morality displayed? That anybody can stoop to such foolish recklessness is beyond our understanding. We have also received the following:

CHICAGO, ILLS., MAR. 27, '09

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL,
Charlevoix, Mich.

If the weis say I won't put up a building if it goes dry they lie, for I will communicate this and my dispatch to Kane, at my expense to all papers interested.

GEO. H. VAN PELT.

The Final Reminder.

The SENTINEL closes its local option work with but one or two reminders. We think we have fully covered the ground, and do not think that anything more need be said.

We recognize the fact that very many people, who have for many years seen the results of the evil of intemperance, have grown to take them as a matter of fact and unpreventable. While lamentable, this is doubtless true of many people of really good intentions.

If such people, will but throw upon the abstract facts the light of reason, and dip into the heart and conscience, they cannot fail in the duty that will confront them next Monday.

Throwing aside, finally, all partisan appeals, we can only say:—Vote your conscience and reject all mercenary arguments and you will make a mistake.

—Mr. W. H. Miller, who is at the Battle Creek sanitarium, is already very much improved in health.

—Capt. and Mrs. A. G. Aldrich are back home again from Cadillac, where they have been spending the winter.

—We made an error last week in announcing Mrs. Emery's millinery opening. It is to be Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

POST-MORTEM TRIBUTES.

The Flowers That Cover the Casket Valueless to the Dead—Actions Speaking But a Kindly Spoken Word or a Friendly Remove is a Violet.

The flowers that come from the pocket-book on the day of the funeral often pass around the bier in their journey to the grave. Their beauty and fragrance moisten the eye and putrify the thoughts of the living, but the dead which lies below knows nothing of their beauty or meaning.

"A cheap bouquet which you send
With your love to your friend today,
Is hardly more than a bunch of roses white and red,
Which you hang on his coffin when he is dead."

A word of kindness and commendation to a living friend or a single word of reproof are both flowers, and one is as sweet to a true soul as the other. Neither costs a penny. These symbolic flowers brighten the life and cheer the soul. A word on the casket will not call back a harshly spoken word or force the demon remorse from its throne. But a gentle word of kindness from your lips will live in your memory while the canker-worm of a miss-spent word knows at your heart strings. A good friend hands us the following beautiful thoughts:

"Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them; the kind things you mean to say, when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes hid away, full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary and troubled hours, when I need them most. I would rather have a plain coffin without a flower, a funeral without music, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy. Let us learn to anoint our friends before hand for their burial. Your Mission Kindness does not cheer the troubled spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over life's weary way."

Local Option Straws.

The saloon men at Petoskey have rented the Petoskey opera house every night up to election day and intend to use it, to prevent the local option people from using it.

The Boyne City Journal says that some of the saloon men in that city have given up the fight against local option and listed their property for sale.

Mrs Minnie White, of Boyne City, has filed suit for damages against three saloon firms of Boyne City and the Petoskey Brewery Company, for selling liquor to her son, a minor, repeatedly created for intoxication.

All those who have circled Petoskey in the interests of the saloon have been either saloon keepers, stockholders in the Petoskey brewery or men in the employ of the liquor interests. This fact alone should have an influence with the party who is on the fence in this election.

Mr. Metheany, mayor of Cadillac, says that there is a decrease of 80 per cent in liquor shipments into Cadillac, and he knows because he is agent of the G. T. & A. A. railroad company. That means that 80 per cent of the conservatively estimated $150,000 that is yearly paid into Kismet county saloons would be saved to the people. Eighty per cent of $150,000 is $120,000 saved each year for the people.

—J. Leany, the optician, will again be at the Baker's Inn, April 9th, and will remain until Sunday evening. He makes a specialty of fitting children eyes.

FERGUSON KILLS MAN.

Fred Newman Soon to Joine Murderer—Both Will Known Here.

A Traverse City special states that Isaac Fuller, 45 years old, a patient at the Northern Michigan insane asylum, was killed shortly after 4 o'clock Friday afternoon by Alex. Ferguson, a fellow-patient, in the yards of the institution. Ferguson used a piece of a limb from a tree in the asylum orchard to carry out his deed.

Ferguson and Fuller entered the institution several months ago and were believed to have entirely recovered from their mental derangement. They had been great chums, it being said by attaches that where you would find one you would find the other. Friday afternoon they were assigned to work in the orchard trimming trees. Thirty men, all "inmates," including Ferguson and Fuller, were placed in charge of Newman, an attendant.

The inmates had been working about two hours when Ferguson, crept up to Fuller, whose back was turned, and dealt him a terrific blow over the head with a part of a limb which he had cut in two with his ax. Fuller dropped to the ground. Newman, seeing what his charge had done, rushed to his side but was too late to prevent another blow being struck. An examination revealed that the first one had been fatal.

Fuller was carried to the asylum morgue and Ferguson locked up in one of the institution cells. An inquest was held Saturday morning.

"He had about me, so I killed him. I had to do it to defend myself," muttered Ferguson after being confined. "He told lies and the only thing I could do was to get rid of him. No, I'm not a bit sorry; I'm glad," he continued.

Dr. Munson, head of the asylum, made an examinatn of Ferguson's mental condition after the crime, and states that the man was suffering from acute mania.

Fuller's home was in Oceana county and Ferguson's in East Jordan. Both had entered of their own accord. The former had suffered from melancholia, while Ferguson had been addicted to the excessive use of whiskey. Ferguson was released Feb. 20, the asylum authorities pronouncing him cured. He was unable to find work in his home county and returned to Traverse City this week, and was given a home at the institution for the remainder of the winter. At that time he was detained of certain member jacks teasing him for having been an asylum inmate. This is believed to have been partially the cause for the second attack of insanity.

Both men had once been married but divorced their wives.

Ferguson, the authorities declare, will not be tried for his crime, but will be kept in solitary confinement and under guard for the remainder of his life.

CHAPTER XV.

Jack Pullimore, most artistically attired as a smart young sailor, which he appeared, visited, Jack said, his apparel, now in Holland, and, getting up at a second class inn, had deferred inquiries about clothes for the morrow, and, after dull lounging, had retired to his bedroom. The sight of the tackle he had undertaken to begin upon, he attracted considerable attention in the quiet little country town. Holland had nothing to do with sailors and the shipping interest; it was a purely agricultural market town; and a Dutchman Jack far such as Pullimore was a sight to rarely witnessed. Jack was used to the most tumult of its class, had plenty of spare time on his hands and could not help being amused at the curiosity that Holland had for him. The consequence was that Hogg had some difficulty generally in the early morning in getting the medicine author who came to look after the patient inquiring for Mr. Kraiko. Jack was quite equal to the emergency, however, and, with a little assistance from the landlady, who was a good deal, on the other hand, interested in the young man, he contrived to get the medicine administered, and, in the afternoon, he was able to leave the patient for a short while in charge of the landlady, and, with a little curiosity the appearance of the old man, of whom he had heard so much during the last few days, and, if possible, to see the house in question, he had not long to wait. The door opened, and suggested to a stout elder, upon which he contrived a good deal, on the other, there appeared a well appointed of senile old age. The old man dropped his shuffle and came to a dead stop when he saw Jack.

"What, he piped out in a shrill treble voice approaching to a falsetto, "is he doing here?"

"He came to call upon you," shouted the nurse into his ear, "and inquire how you are."

"Much he knows about it," piped the old man. "I'm as well as I very old day."

"You are quite right," bawled Jack. "It is early, very early."

"Cold," yes, I said cold," continued the old man in his shrill treble. "What did he want to say it was not cold for? Cold, indeed! I am contented and cheerful, and having thus relieved his mind, he shuffled towards an armchair by the fire, in which, with the nurse's assistance, he was soon ensconced.

"It doubt think you will be able to make much of him," said the nurse to Jack, "and if you really have anything you wish to ask him, it will be a good thing to do it at getting an answer."

Jack Pullimore had already recognized the impossibility of making anything out of the old Kraiko. He had seen, at first, a feeble attempt at a smile on his face, but, at the sight of it, from the moment he had entered, he had decided that it was not intended for him, but was simply the result of a fit of senile vanity, and, as the nurse had said, the old man was in a state of nervous apathy, which, if he had, he was not, by any means, the first, he was not, by any means, the last, who had to deal with, and, in the case of the present, it

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Antrim according to statistics, leads all the counties of northern Michigan in fertility of soil. Of 21 counties in the lower peninsula, while Antrim is second with 20.20 per cent. of its area under cultivation in 1905, 83 per cent of its territory is adapted to farming purposes. The nearest any county comes to Antrim in this latter regard is Leelanaw with 70 and Emmet with 66 per cent. Antrim county's soil is nearly all hardwood timber land and is well adapted to farming.

A saloon at Hayes Falls went raf'ronmidation last week in a hurry. It caught on fire and burned to the ground in a very few moments and nearly took the lives of three men with it. The saloon was owned by a man named Hymel and was a two story brick veneered building. In addition to a saloon it was a boarding or rooming house. The fire started, so it is claimed, from gasoline which had leaked out of a gasoline stove and ran over the floor.

The County Road System.

The following clipped from an exchange, will be of general interest to our readers in view of the fact that the adoption or rejection of the county roads system will be submitted to the voters at the coming spring election.

"After a county has adopted the system the board of supervisors 2c-chlin upon a county road commission of one to three members. These commissioners may be appointed by the board, or elected at a general or special election, to hold office only until the next following April election, when the commissioners shall be elected by the voters. His term of office is two years, one being elected each year of the regular session of the legislature. If the board consists of more than one person the law contemplates a change of but one at election, the others holding over, which would make their terms of office four years in case of two members or six years in case of three members, which another cannot be extended.

"The board of county commissioners lays out such county roads as they deem necessary. They must take over any existing roads as a county road, including streets of cities and villages through which it passes, by notice to proper authorities and specified publication of their determination. In case of adjoining counties, they go jointly with each other. Such roads are to be named, and thereafter their care and up keep becomes the duty of the county board. The board may sue and be sued.

"At the October meeting of the board of supervisors the amount of money deemed necessary for their purposes during the ensuing year, together with a statement of where and how it is to be used, and the amount for each road is submitted by the board county road commissioners. The supervisors have absolute veto power in the premises and may decide the amount of and the expenditure thereof, rejecting any or all of the recommendations of the road commissioners. The finding of the board of supervisors, and their action is final. Taxes as vetted by the supervisors, not exceeding two mills on one per cent are collected as other taxes. Propositions to issue indebtedness or issue bonds must be submitted to the people.

"Roads other than county roads shall be operated exactly as before.

"Here is one feature of the county road law which should allay any lurking fear that some other township will be benefited more than our. Any organized township in which the county does not build any road within any year, may raise funds and issue a note of two mills, not more, of state reward road. Then it may draw from the county in addition to the state reward, but not to exceed the amount paid by that township to the county for county road tax.

"And further, if such township shall bond more than two mills they may draw from the county, each year that such road is maintained in as good condition as when approved by the state commissioner, a sum equal to the amount of state reward drawn the first year, but not to exceed the amount of tax paid to the county as county road tax for that year.

"If the township shall decide to build a mile more of state reward road the county shall furnish an engineer or surveyor to establish the grade, and layout the road.

"Moreover the county system may, after trial, be at any time rejected as it can be adopted."

Near Death in the Fund.

It was a thrilling experience to Mrs. Ida Soper to face death. "For years I suffered from trouble gave me intense suffering," she writes, "and several times nearly caused my death. All remedies failed and doctors said I was incurable. Then Dr. King's New Discovery brought quick relief and a cure so permanent that I have not been troubled in twelve years." Mrs. Soper lives in Big Foot Prairie. It works wonders in Coughs and Colds, Sore Lungs, Hemorrhages, Lagrippe, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. The "No-Breakfast" Habit.

The no-breakfast habit is harmless enough, provided a hearty meal follows, not before going to bed, but early in the evening. Late diners have no need of "breakfast" nutritiment. The French and other continental people discovered this ages ago, and have thrived upon it. Having the cup of coffee or chocolate, the late dining Frenchman wants nothing to eat until luncheon. But the habit of swilling early food and drink in this alimentary climate where the physical energies must be taxed during the morning hours is one of the most silly and thoughtless of all the silly and thoughtless practices which have ever prevailed to the undermining of the constitution of those devoted to it.—Boston Herald.

Principle of Education.

At the foundation of the art of education must be the following principle, which then makes it advance the plans for such education must understand. It is necessary to be able to distinguish that their education shall be adaptable not to the present, but to the future, perhaps better, condition of the human race—that is, it should be adapted to the idea of mankind and to its entire destination. This principle is important to the highest degree. Unwise parents bring up their children so that they shall be fit only for the present world, even when it is depraved, that they should educate their children better in order to create thus a future better state of mankind.—Kant.

IN THE DAYS OF THE DUEL

Reminder of Times When Gentlemen Met on "Field of Honor."

The years which separate us American from duelling are fewer than most of us realize. The late Prof. Baker's Autobiography, in the Atlantic, has this amusing reminiscence:

"The first occasion was when, a silly youth of nine with too much wine in him challenged a well-known medical student, James Jackson, who was a great fell of Perrycitte. Fortunately, I knew Jackson well as a man, and I knew a man of twice my years. I made my plan to him to give my kinsman no easy way out. At first he was indignant, saying that he would have this fool kicked, meaning to be relaxed—but in the end he told his second to fix it up with me. My good, cool friend, Dr. Ingalls, called, and we agreed that the boys had been drinking too much wine, and that we would take no further notice of the affair. Then we had to go to Jackson's room and assure him that we had agreed to his terms, and that the boys had agreed to fix it up with us

RIVAL TO STEEL TRUST.

Combine with $800,000,000 Capital Will Be Formed by Independents.

The greatest steel trust in the world, a rival, plus a trust, a giant with assets of approximately $800,000,000, is now in the combination of interests John W. Gates is reported to be forming. Gates, self-made steel magnate, has formed a consolidated steel concern that are now, combined, of importance, thus to the finish of the so-called billion-dollar steel trust, known corporately as the United States Steel Corporation. Other plans will come into the opposition, but the dominant concern, under the man as it stands at present, will be three and one other still more important; Jones and Laughlin Steel Company, Ltd., Lackawanna Steel Company, Cambridge Steel Company, Pennsylvania Steel Company, Pittsburg Steel Company, Midvale Steel Company, Maryland Steel Company, Republic Iron and Steel Company, Belgoshen Steel Company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

The fulfillment of the arrangement for the new combine appears to depend upon whether W. P. Snyder, head of the big Sheffield Furnaces Company, the man who controls the independent iron and steel concerns of the country, joins the movement. Mr. Snyder is said to be more than agreeable to the creation of a combination to battle for supremacy in the steel world, but on the hold back, he are so great in the iron ore territory his demands in the partnership agreement in Pittsburg cannot the orbs are to hesitate. It is not yet that they can be present at this time.

The Independents are on the eve of acquiring extensive holdings in the iron ore territory, but the trust is working to prevent the acquisition of the new concerns of all kind. If the independents obtain the proposed iron ore, Mr. Snyder may not be in the combination, but, nevertheless, it may important seller of ore to.

The proposed plan is that Mr. Snyder shall be the president of the independent concern, which will be the distinguished all overtures to go into the United States Steel Corporation.

ANTHRACITE MINES MAY CLOSE.

Officer Says Operators Have Supply and Will Strike First.

Rumors are taking definite form that the anthracite operators will shut down their collieries until I unless the miners come to an agreement with them before that time. A suggestion, a strike or a continuance of the present working agreement for two years is the alternative, according to prominent operators. George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, did not come to New York the other day, it is his habit, to confer with people in the coal business. Whether any significance may be attached to this or not, an officer of a big federal coal firm, who speaks with authority, expressed up the situation in these words: "I know positively that there will be a strike if there is not a new agreement. I believe there is a settlement in no measure time. There is so much cool on the demand the operators are and going to allow the miners to take its way, time to strike a time, but will strike a-a."

FLOOD SWEEPS TOWN.

Two Killed and Several Hurt by Bursting of Reservoirs.

Three persons were killed, three others probably fatally injured and many more slightly hurt, while ten or more buildings were completely wrecked and forty more badly damaged when the two large water tanks supplying the city of Parkersburg, W. Va., with water burst early Friday. As two storage tanks were burst just before the collapse of the large water tanks, it is believed they were filled to overflowing by nature by some miscreant.

The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wiggle and said child. The bodies were found in the ruins of their home. The seriously injured are: Mrs. John Mahoney, both legs broken, hurt internally; probably will die. Mrs. Mike Karnes, internal, badly bruised and shocked; may die. Clara Jones, colored, hurt internally; probably will die.

The towers burst at 5:30 a. m. and the immense stream of water rushed down Prospect hill, sweeping everything before it. Houses were swept into the street and the foundations were knocked from their beds. All the members of one family, living in the path of an upstairs room, were carried down a street several five yards, their bodies being quite dead when found. Not all escaped injury except one girl, whose other home was broken. The two huge tanks contained the entire city supply of water and a water famine is now imminent.

The damage will amount to between $250,000 and $300,000. St. John's Lutheran Church was almost complete, it demolished, but the pastor, Rev. Henry Mauer, escaped unscathed and suffered more damage prevented, as it was discovered in the nick of time.

LUMAN MANN IS FREED.

Lamar C. Mann Acquitted Stranger, Then Is Released.

Lamar C. Mann was acquitted Thursday afternoon after the jury in a Chicago court had deliberated but one a little more than two hours. The verdict clears his father, Leo Mann, who had been held, bound and strangled to death Mrs. Fannie Gilbert Thompson at a boarding house at 1242 Michigan avenue. The scene in Judge McSurgity's court room after the verdict was given night have long stayed for a melodrama. As the clerk read the words "not guilty" Mann sprang to his feet, flung his hands over his head and cried out: "God is just!"

In spite of the solemn admonition of the court delivered a few minutes before that no demonstration would be tolerated women screamed, men clapped and their hands and several of the witnesses for the prosecution blessed.

ENGLAND TO BUY WAR SHIPS?

Will Get Three Dreadnoughts from Brazil, Says Revived Rumor.

The old story in England has been revived by rumors that the British government is considering the purchase of three war ships of the Dreadnought type, now being built in England for Brazil. The House of Commons the opposition speakers made a strong plea to force the government into giving a guarantee that four "conditional dreadnoughts" be built in the next Dreadnought allotted to premier supporters. Mr. Bonar Law said he would be built if Germany continued her active preparations for war. Mr. Asquith said that question of Dreadnoughts had not been raised in the government of a two-power standard. It is believed that the opposition renewed agitation on the part of the press and the public.

FATHER PAYS $10,000 AND BOY IS RETURNED

Willie Whitla Is Returned to Father in Cleveland Hotel When Abductors Are Paid Ransom.

WOMAN IS AGENT OF KIDNAPERS

William Whitla is now safe with his father, and the hunt is which people deprived of detectives and police. Safely rescued scores of miles from the little boy was kidnaped from his school in Sharon, Pa., on Tuesday, is ended.

The father turned over to a woman the agent of the kidnapers the $10,000 ransom they demanded. He then returned to the Hollenden Hotel, in Cleveland, and awaited the arrival of the boy, according to instructions delivered by the woman. Willie, several hours later, walked in. He had been sent in from the edge of town on a street car.

Mr. Whitla not only had given the ransom demanded, but he had placed in her hands all the letters he had received from the gang and promised to do everything in his power that could lead to her identification.

The police, however, are determined not to let the case drop with the recovery of the boy. Detectives are working on clues to capture the kidnapers, and the first step was taken when a woman was arrested in Youngstown of Joseph Weiss, proprietor of an amusement park. Weiss has been under suspicion, it is said, by the janitor of the Sharon school as the man who called on his wife from time to time.

The Cleveland police also are making every effort to trail the kidnapers, their first move being to get the woman who received the money from Mr. Whitla. She is described as an Italian. The news of the boy being found was announced from the stage in all the Cleveland theaters, creating so much excitement that the plays had to be temporarily stopped.

The boy's mother, anxiously waiting at her home in Williamsport, Pa., for the return. Her neighbors also learned the news, and the whole town greeted Mr. Whitla and the boy when they arrived home.

Willie is in perfect health. He says that he has been well treated and ever since his capture has been constantly in tears. He believe he was taken from Sharon to Warren and thence to Newcastle, Pa. It is his opinion, expressed in a happy schoolboy way, that he was in Ashtabula or Erie. He said at the time his father was to leave his $10,000 in Finlayson Park. The boy was taken to a place which resembled a hospital and that his captors squeezed to be doctors.

GOV. CURRY QUITS POST.

Executive Who Thrashed an Editor Resigns Office.

Governor George Curry has tendered to President Taft his resignation from as Governor of New Mexico. Governor Curry said that although he had contemplated taking this action for several months he hesitated because of his resignation was that he had requested a leave of absence to go to Washington to talk with President Taft and the Secretary of the Interior on matters of great importance to New Mexico, not opportunities to statehood, but that Secretary of the Interior Fisher had not answered that he should take up the business by letter.

Governor Curry on Saturday beat A. J. Loomis, editor of the Eagle, a democratic weekly, with a horse whip. The territorial capital building for printing in last week's issue of that paper of a letter from Governor Curry the statehood lobby, which the editor construed as a reflection upon his integrity.

Loomis and his friends immediately started a movement to have Governor Curry removed, resigned, or, failing, to have impeachment proceedings filed against him with both President Taft and Secretary Ballinger.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

Trade reports reflect the impetus of wider preparations for the spring activity. Bank clearings continue to show liberal gains, and the commercial mentality includes a decreased number of large failures. Tariff revision may cause some temporary hesitation among manufacturers, but proposed changes are not regarded as severely drastic, and an early disposal of the bill is desirable. Larger forces now find employment in iron production, and the starting up of outdoor work has greatly reduced ranks of the idle. Notable improvement in current decisions appear in steel, raw materials and general merchandise.

Building operations make seasonable progress, and there is stronger demand for lumber, plaster, lath, cement and quarry products. Contracts for structural steel is said to the accompaniment of work at the mills and furnaces, but the rate for future delivery yet sells slowly at weak prices.

The money market continues favorable and there is indications of new enterprises being financed. Detrimental operations have been advanced in the leading wholesale markets, but prices for certain lines are unusually attractive, and near-by buyers are in satisfactory numbers in the markets for prompt forwarding of dry goods, footwear, clothing and food. Collections are fairly all one, winter staples show increase, and exchanges are in good volume, but weather and general agricultural prospects generally.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 19, against eighteen last week, thirty-two in 1909 and twenty-six in 1908. These with liabilities over $5,000 number six, against six last week, ten in 1909 and six in 1908.—Dun's Review of Trade.

NEW YORK

The introduction of the new tariff in Congress and the advance of the spring jobbing season forward its close have made for a rather quieter tone to the trade in this city. A fair business is doing in nearly all lines, and the turnover is in excess of a year ago at this time, but conservatism rules.

Spring jobbing activity has passed the zenith, having to early to cover immediate necessities, the results of lesser trade at retail are awaited with interest, collections are only fair, and the volume of business does this spring not lead in any respects, disappointing.

Jobbing trade seems to have quieted down at a number of markets East and West: Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City in the West, and New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston, in the East, reporting some reduction in demand, partly explainable by the advance of the season and the return of buyers to their homes.

Price reductions in iron and steel have brought about some new business, but unsettlement still rules. Pig iron sales are unsatisfactory and prices are weak. The same is largely true of other metals. Additional reports of wage reductions come from iron and steel interests. In the cotton goods line the spring rush is over.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending March 17, are reported at 224 against 254 last week, in the like week of 1909, 187 in 1907, 176 in 1908 and 183 in 1906.

Business failures in Canada for the week number thirty-two, which compares with forty last week and thirty-nine in the same week last year.—Bradstreet's.

FATHER AND SON HELD.

Arrest of Counterfeiters Is Caused by Young Woman Clerk.

Six counterfeiters, men and dames from Gotty, Ind., a counterfeiters' den has been uncovered by secret service operatives. The raid resulted in the seizure of a complete outfit of fake dollars, and the arrest of Ford Predom and his son, James Predom, who are under arrest in Gotty. The home is a short distance from the home of Adam Backe, who is known to be a counterfeiter and is the "wizard of the counterfeiters."

Although two molds were found in the cellar of Backe's house, and it was reported that he had bought the twenty-five dollars, he was not arrested. He is 68 years old, and has served five years terms for counterfeiting. His home is in Hoosier's Park, and he is the uncrowned neighbor of the Predoms.

In spite of Backe's past record and his many terms behind prison bars Captain Thomas I. Porter, head of the Federal secret service at Chicago, expressed implicit faith in the innocence of the "wizard."

The arrest of Ford and James Predom was due to Miss Mary O'Brien, cashier at the Tutrey-fifth street station of the South Side Elevated Railroad, Chicago. It is asserted that they tried to pass a counterfeit half-dollar at her station. She refused to accept it, informed the Stanton arrest police, and the Predoms were then sent out to find the two men and arrested them. The secret service operatives were detailed to make a raid on the home of the Predoms in Hoosier Park, and resulted in the discovery and seizure of molds and a lathe, which is believed to have been used in minting the spurious coins.

TRAIN CRASHES INTO ROOM.

Six Persons Are Killed in Windsor Station, Montreal.

Six persons were killed and several were injured when a locomotive attached to a Canadian Pacific passenger ran through the walls of the women's waiting room at the Windsor station, Montreal. The train, which was made up of sleepers, coaches and one or more baggage cars, carried few passengers, as the accident happened early in the morning. When passing Highland station, a few miles from the city, the fireman left the engine, and the engineer was thrown from his cab. The fireman tried to stop the train, but found the brakes inoperative. The train ran at high speed through several stations, and when it came down into the Windsor station it crashed through the depot and killed. A man at Outremont, who saw the wrecking crew work in the room, said the wounded were all dead. A teacher crevice was a little girl who was sitting in the station waiting for a train.

GEORGE T. ANGELL IS DEAD.

Leader in Anti-Cruelty Crusades Succumbs at Boston Home.

George Thorndike Angell, founder of dumb animals" and the leader in the humane educational movement in the United States, died in Boston early Tuesday, aged 86 years. He had been in failing health for years. Mr. Angell was the president and one of the founders of the Massachusetts society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. For twenty years he was president of the American Humane Educational Association. He was prominent in the Peace Society, advocating universal peace, and the reducing two horses can to death in a race, and was a member of the Massachusetts Anti-Vivisection Association. He was a Universalist and a Republican. Angell was the author of many pamphlets.

Duty on Refined Sugar Cut.

The duty on refined sugar is reduced .05 of a cent a pound and that on dextrin half a cent a pound to make also the duty on starch, with the exception of potato starch, which is assessed 1 cent a pound for the size contained. Duty on starch is reduced from 1 cent to $2.50 a ton. The principal increases are made in stilbene or benzene and substitutes for coffee, coal tar dyes, gloves, coated papers and lithographic prints. The inheritance tax paragraph places a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances over $500 and are collateral inheritances or in which strangers by the law are treated as the lineal inheritance the taxes prescribed are: On $10,000 to $100,000, 1 per cent, and $100,000 to $500,000, 2 per cent, and on more than $500,000, 3 per cent. It is estimated that this provision will yield $50,000,000 a year.

Pulitzer Importations.

The $10,000,000 worth of chemical free trade with the Philippine Islands on all articles the growth or product can be imported free of duty to 200,000 tons; wrapper tobacco to 300,000 pounds and 3,000,000 pounds of filler tobacco and 150,000,000 cigars in any one fiscal year. Cigarettes made of tobacco and cigars are to pay full tariff rates. This exemption from duty is confined to the growth or product of the islands, however, and does not admit articles produced into the Philippine islands from a foreign country without payment of full rates of duty on such importations.

The are reciprocity provisions in the paragraphs assessing duties on intoxicating and coke and agricultural implements, by which Germany and are given entry free of duty when imported from countries which permit the free importation of these articles from America.

The maximum and minimum provisions contain the necessity of continuing foreign trade agreements. The Payne bill applies the maximum and minimum rates on all the country of the allies. The minimum privileges are extended and the method of valuation of articles upon which the tariff imposes an ad valorem duty is broadened to prevent undervaluation.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says that Germany will show rabbit hunting in Alsace.

The Building Trades Council of Washington has issued a notice because it is alleged the grand stand for the Taft inauguration was built by nonunion men.

The detachment of six officers and twenty-five men of the Twenty-second Infantry were injured as being overwhelmed in an avalanche near La Paste, while they were on a snow shoveling detail.

Twenty-five persons were injured in a stampede at the Majestic Theater in Chicago. A window or door are believed to have received serious injuries. The panic was started by a fall of plaster from the roof, by which struck several men sitting in the orchestra circle. Boys in the gallery thought the ceiling in a moment the rush for the exits was on. In the bloody fire escapes were crowded down and trampled upon and several fainted.

MICHIGAN SOLONS.

Have Contests Work for State.

Governor Warner sent a message to the senate and house of representatives urging that the system of permitting the contests in the three prisons of the state be discontinued by private contractors be abolished and that instead they be employed in the manufacture of products that can be sold by the State.

He objects to the "State use" plan advocated by the labor unions and claims that the convicts can be employed in manufacturing articles that will interfere very little with free labor. He advocates extending the binder or twine plant and engaging in the manufacture of grain bags.

The message refers at length to the success of the Detroit House of Correction, which is perhaps the foremost institution of its kind in the country for the reason that it has been run on business principles and not as a political adjunct to any administration. That institution has turned over to the city of Detroit, close to $500,000, earning on an average more than $33,000 a year.

Pure Drug Bill.

The House committee on State affairs has reported out a so-called pure drug bill which would give the State food and dairy commissioner five more inspectors and another assistant at a salary of $1,200 and appropriate of $10,000 a year, but the plan is to get the bill through and leave the appropriation blank until 1911. There is another bill along the same line putting a tax of $100 a month on Illinois drug peddlers, but this would be considered prohibitive and will be cut down when the bill is considered in committee of the whole. The same committee has agreed on a bill giving the State fair an appropriation of $25,000 for two years and the West Michigan fair at Grand Rapids $15,000.

To Bond Judges' Pay.

The House by a vote of 48 to 31 passed a bill providing for the pay of circuit judges of Michigan a salary of $4,000 a year. The original bill called for a salary stipend of $5,000, and there was an effort made to reduce the salary to $3,000. The judges now draw $2,500 from the State.

Stir Over Tax Law.

Governor Warner has approved the Highlight act, investing the State Tax Commission with authority to review the assessment roll and compare above not meet the approval of mine owners in the upper peninsula, and the Ferris bill, providing for the payment of $4,000 a year. The original bill called for a salary stipend of $5,000, and there was an effort made to reduce the salary to $3,000. The judges now draw $2,500 from the State.

To Aid Agricultural School.

Representative Hurtis has introduced a bill the size of which is to secure State aid for the county school of agriculture at Menominee. In Wisconsin after such a school has been founded in a county the State pays two-thirds of the expenses, not to exceed $5,000 a year. Mr. Harris wants Michigan to fall in line.

More Power for Board of Health.

The House passed an important bill giving the State board of Health supervision over all organizations, partnerships or associations engaged in the work or furnishing water to any municipality. It gives the board authority to inspect such organizations as any deemed necessary. Heretofore the board has had no authority.

Conference on Trust Season.

The Senate asked for a conference committee on Representative Agent bill, which passed unanimously last week. The original bill fixed the closed season from May 1 to Sept. 15, but the House amended it to Sept. 1, and now the effort will be made to get together on the proposition.

Two Fishing Bills.

Two fish bills were introduced in the House. One provides for a close season for pickerel, and for catching minnows and somewhat the varieties of sale of fish. The other is a bill to be voted on shortly a general fish bill is to be introduced to fix the fishing regulations for the entire State.

Closing in on Druggists.

Representative Huntley introduced a bill to establish druggists selling liquor in local option counties. One bill amends the general liquor law and applies the local option act, making the provisions relative to the sale of liquor by druggists similar in character to both measures.

Michigan Thanks Dr. Angell.

Both houses adopted resolutions expressing the appreciation and thanks of the State of Michigan to President James H. Angell of the State University at Ann Arbor for his notable public service as head of the university since 1871.

Way Made Clear for Bill.

As a result of a conference an agreement has been reached and amendments will be made to the Merrice reforestation bill and the conservation bill introduced at further opposition to the bill.

Prohibits Sales of Cocaine.

The House passed a bill which prohibits the sale of cocaine except on prescriptions.

Many Bill Will Be Reported Out.

Local problems who have been featuring of it's public lands are nearing the end of the progress of the Mayer bill which provides for withdrawing the state homestead lands from the market so that they can be classified and action taken to preserve the national resources, besides setting aside certain tracts for reforestry purposes. A hearing was had on the bill in the Senate and it will be reported out, as it is backed by those who have been studying public land conditions.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH EDITOR.

ALWAYS WITH US.

The County Poor and What They Cost Us Annually.

As election is drawing near and voters of Charlevoix County are discussing the proposition of placing Charlevoix county on the dry list, there has come to me, in my official position, many inquiries from the papers and voters of the county, asking the conditions existing in the county poor house, and an superintendent of the poor, I feel it my plain duty to place before the electors of the county a report in answer to their questions.

As superintendents, we deal directly with the poor class, these who have not sufficient food, clothing and that to properly maintain themselves. Every few days I am being called upon throughout the county to visit homes where the wife has not sufficient clothing to be seen on the streets and the children are without shoes, socks or torn rags covering their feet. In a great many instances of this kind, this poor class of people have given support at their home instead of being removed to the poor farm; on the other hand, there are many instances where removal to our county poor farm has been demanded, and in the majority of these cases, I am sorry to report, that the cause for placing the individual in the poor house originates in the use of intoxicating liquors. I am sad to report that 75 percent of all the paupers in our county, both in and out of the poor house, can trace their condition directly to the use of intoxicants.

At present the expense of maintaining the paupers, both in and outside of the poor farm, amounts to about $6,000.00 per year, 75 percent of this expense is incurred as stated above, by the bad influence of the saloons; so we can say that this $6,000 of the tax payer's money of Charlevoix county goes to maintain those who are unfortunate in being subjected to the liquor habit or placed in the county poor house because they were dependent on some one who was a habitual drunkard before they were removed to this county institution.

As I understand it the county receives $250 from each saloon as a compensation for the continuance of their disgraceful business. That being so, 24 saloons are required to be operated in the county in order to refer back in form of license money to the county a sufficient amount of money to overcome this $6,000 loss. It is therefore a fact that the county only receives a small amount of money from the saloons that is not directly consumed by those who are left in distitute circumstances on account of drink.

In looking over the record of the county poor farm, we find for example, that John Dixon has been there since the year 1893, and it will be safe to be ridiculous and estimate the costs of living $2.50 per week, then, he at the present time has cost the tax payers of Charlevoix county, $1,170. Henry Gray has cost the county, $1,040. George Sattle about $900; A. E. McKay $920; Mr. Webster $640; Mrs. Chase about $920; Mrs. Chase never has used intoxicating liquors to my knowledge, but the use of intoxicating liquors in the family was the direct cause for her being compelled to be in her present condition. Mrs. Osborn was placed in the poor house, indirectly by the cause of liquor. Mr. Chase and Mr. and Mrs. Swanson are also suffering their time there at this time and the latter were themselves engaged in the liquor traffic, and then is Henry Lester who became a habitual drunkard and deserted his wife, who therefore became a public charge, and the county assisted her to the amount of $135.

Besides these we have about a dozen others who have cost the county various sums, and large amounts of money have been spent in buying food and clothing for the families of those who have used intoxicating liquors but in cases where the husband was not removed to the poor farm. James Boalsberger, who broke his leg at the camp of the Beaver Island Lumber Co., on account of his previous habits, became a public charge. He was sent to the Mercy Hospital for treatment, and cost the county $270. To use the slang phrase, Mr. Boalsberger was known as a booze fighter. It is not necessary for me to call the attention of those of Boyne City to the sad case of John Anderson and the sad case his family was left in. The story of Oscar Hyde also came to his premature death through drunkenness was told in one of the publications of a Boyne City paper a few weeks ago. This article was written by the cashier of the Boyne Falls bank, and the story was one of the saddest ones ever related in Northern Michigan.

No more harrowing details and no greater sadness was ever expressed in letters than was that which was manifested in the one sent to your correspondence from the family of this Mr. Hyde. He died at the county poor farm after spending 25 years of his life as a habitual drunkard.

No one in the county is placed in a better condition to know about the evil influences of the saloon than is the superintendent of the poor; especially at Boyne Falls, which is the headquarters for camp trade, our attention is continually called to the manner in which the poor lumber jack is robbed, and so far as liquor is concerned, out of a month's payment of from $25 to $30, it is safe to estimate that he seldom drinks more than $2 or $3 worth of liquor. Where the rest of the money goes the reader may judge for himself.

I have made this report for the reason that I think it is the duty of every county official to express his views on a matter of this great importance, and for the further reason, that I wish to answer the inquiries sent me. Believing, therefore, that I am doing my humble duty, I am compelled to say that the above statements are true. I know that the citizens of Charlevoix county will by voting in favor of local option assist me in bringing about a change in the present condition of affairs, so that the future department of the poor will not be compelled to make such a report as I am compelled to make at this time. I hope that every voter, regardless of politics, will vote in favor of local option and assist us in doing away with the harm that comes either direct or the evil influences that are brought about from the liquor traffic. (Signed)

GUSTAVE MEYER,
County Poor Com'r.

Coming Again!

Friday, April 2th is the date when J. Louis, the Optician, will again visit Charlevoix—will remain three days. Office at Baker's Inn. Remember he comes prepared to fit any that come to him. Guaranteed curing headache and all symptoms of eye-strain a specialty. Glasses guaranteed to fit.

WHEN you have putting to do, or to be done, common sense, and the good of your property, says: "Do it well," Economy says: "Do it as cheap as you can."

County Road System—Vote No.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

In regard to this question which is coming before the people this coming election, I wish to state, I lived in Manistee county when they first introduced this system and think it a duty to give my opinion of it to the citizens of Charlevoix county. I can conscientiously say that it was a great tax payers and taking away individual rights. It was strongly opposed in the upper part of the county but was carried by the mill-working men of the city of Manistee, a large percent of them being non taxpayers.

In about two years they had about eleven miles of graded roads, through a rolling country with one from 5 to 10 feet deep and this only in very high the rain storms washed through some of the cuts and swept away some of the fills. The second year they laid off the work during a poor winter road. I wrote to a friend in Manistee county concerning this County Road System at the present time and received the following reply:

DEAR SIR:

"In reply to yours of the 6th inst. I can truly say that in my judgment our County Road System costs us an immense amount of money in the start for a very few miles of road service; in fact it costs more now than it should. For instance, they put two road commissioners $3 each per day, and allow them $5 each for livery rigs, and then they do not get the best men for the position. The politicians generally get the jobs."

In conclusion I would say there is no one more in favor of good roads than I, the only question is how we can obtain them. I for one think our present system is far better than the County Road System. I believe that the people that pay the taxes for road purposes should have the privilege of seeing how that money is expended; I believe that the money raised in a township should be expended in a township where it is raised.

Yours,
A. E. SCHERIBER.

NOTICE!

To the Electors of the County of Charlevoix:

Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors of said county held on the 17th day of October, 1908, the following resolution was adopted.

Resolved, that the question of adopting the county road system be submitted to a vote of the electors of the County of Charlevoix at the next general election to be held on the first Monday in April, A. D. 1909.

Notice is further given that said question will be stated on the ballots to be used at said election as follows:

Yes.
Shall the county road system be adopted in the County of Charlevoix?
No.

Dated March 13, 1909.

DANIEL S. PAYTON,
County Clerk.

Bellaire is making preparations to meet the Union workers' excursion from by the Pere Marquette and show their some of the desirable land along this railroad, near Bellaire, which can be easily improved. The Intermediate valley is declared to be one of the famous fruit growing localities of this county and efforts have recently been put forth to advance this interest by the organization of the Intermediate Valley Fruit Growers' association. Bellaire, Central Lake and Alden are in the heart of this section and are fruit growing centers. It is surprising, however, what a large acreage of of desirable "cut over" lands there is yet left in these townships, and what an opportunity there is here to get good land cheap. The transformation of these lands into tillable farms is greatly fostered with the object of these excursions given by the Pere Marquette system.

Local News.

—The first thunder storm of the season tore Tuesday evening.

—Andrew Dougherty, of Elk Rapids, has returned to his home.

—Alex. and Ike Levinson have returned from Ann Arbor for a short vacation.

—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lenoleur, Wednesday, April 7th, a nine pound girl.

—Miss Mabel Newkirk, of Boyne City, is visiting at the home of County Register, H. A. Emrey, on Clinton street.

—The old Indian Camp grounds on the north shore of Pine Lake have been leased of Mr. Rossnall for the "Hope Club."

—There were 24 births and 22 deaths in Charlevoix county during the past month. None of the deaths were due to violence.

—We understand that E. S. Slacks is making arrangements to assist the "drys" of Antrim county in their local option fight next spring.

—The Historical Society has postponed its meeting one week on account of Judge Brown's lecture at the Opera House Friday night.

—Capt. Pinneau hopes to take up his duties at an early date this spring. He says the Manitou will continue to make Charlevoix one of its regular stopping places.

—Lo, the poor Indian, now wears erect and casts haughty looks about as he mutters "white man brother now." "What was good for Red man cannot hurt white brother."

—W. L. Cartwright has moved his household goods over from Charlevoix, and is having them placed in the Elliott-Smith street property recently purchased by him.—Petoskey News.

—Monday, John L. K. Galster planted 140,000 speckled trout fry in the Boyne River at Boyne Falls, to restock the much fished river. All lovers of the sport only look as much substantial interest to it, fish laws would not be so necessary.

—Ed. Stafford has the contract for moving the house on the Carnegie Library lot to the lot owned by Hon. John Nichols on Park Avenue, and commenced moving last Monday. The day was auspicious and we are sure many people will remember the day for a long time.

—Willard A. Smith, Northern Michigan's Newspaper Dean is at Mt. Clemens this week taking a course of baths. He reports that he already has received considerable relief and expects to return the latter part of the next week's issue. We trust that he will do so and will return with all of his old time health and vigor.

—Mr. Waite, of Oregon, is in Charlevoix looking up the heirs of C. W. Youngs, who died several years ago leaving a large estate. Several wills have been produced for the probating of the estate. The late Mrs. Peters, mother of Sam Peters was the sister of Mr. Youngs. The Youngs estate consisted of Water power plant and valuable short lands in Oregon. A very long legal contest is anticipated.

—Mrs. Sarah Emrey is confined at her home with a very severe cold.

—Harry Howen and wife are visiting Mr. Howen's mother, Mrs. Myrtle Young.

—Samuel A. Marling left Monday night on a business trip. He will be gone several days.

—Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282 F. & A. M., on Tuesday night, April 13, for work in the third degree. By order W. M.

—In several places Sunday night we heard people practicing, "Shall We Gather at the River." We trust that the chorus will be in perfect unison on schedule time.

—Grace E. Fox, stenographer for Zemple & Forsdyl, of Manistique, has been the guest of H. G. Johnston and family for the past two weeks. She returned to her home Tuesday.

—Mrs. Sarah Emrey returned from Muskegon Tuesday where she was called by the illness of her daughter. While there she escaped the services of a prominent law firm in defend an action of replevin brought against her.

—"Hickory Hill" our genial deputy oil inspector Gallagher has maintained a rightly Pre attitude in regard to our issue in the recent election. St James township cast 58 "dry" votes and 56 "wet votes. The "rebels" have not yet broken the silence.

—Charlevoix has established several new cleaning houses for the working man's choice. They will commence operating May 1st, 1909. We heartily approve of the change in policy and our best wishes go out to the retail merchants of Charlevoix County.

—One of the season's prettiest parties was enjoyed by the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong Friday evening, April 2nd, at Baker's Inn. Music, dancing and cards afforded pleasant entertainment. Refreshments were served in the Tea Room.

—Agents along the route have received word that the first boat of the Northern Michigan Trans. Co. will leave Chicago for Northern Michigan ports on Wednesday, April 14, regular sailings on the present will leave Chicago Wednesdays and Saturdays at 7 o'clock p. m.

—Geo. W. Dennis, one of Charlevoix township's prominent and enterprising farmers is making an earnest effort to the fair west. We trust that he has no intentions of making the west his home, as Charlevoix needs good farmers, and would regret exceedingly to lose Mr. Dennis.

—Boyne City elects four new Supervisors this spring, as the entire Labor ticket was elected. We regret very much the defeat of George Bailey and will miss him in the direction of the county affairs. However, we wonder what was the matter at Boyne City. As it was understood that the powers that control the destiny of Boyne City approved of the Chinese ticket. We cannot believe it is due to a waning influence in certain quarters.

—Now that the "Hog City" is assured fact, one could almost forgiven to Hon. Frederick W. Manne for the work he has done in making the "City" possible. However his efforts would have been useless had it not been for the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, and we earnestly urge all of our citizens to give their support to the board of Commerce. We are proud of what they have done and are confident that great good will come to the city in the future through their efforts.

—Remember, Friday of this week is the date when I. Louby, the optician will again be at the Baker's Inn. He will remain until Sunday evening.

—We are informed, that notwithstanding the large "dry" majority, our popular cigar manufacturer, Utica, Novak, has wired for more cigar makers. This looks as though local option hurts the business interests.

—The Baptist church will hold a reception for their Pastor, Rev. E. Jenney Bible, Wednesday evening, April 14th, in the church parlors at 7 o'clock. Everybody is cordially invited to be present whether members of church or not.

—A Boyne City special says: "The new saw mill which is being constructed for the W. H. White company here is now entirely enclosed and the machinery is expected this week. The big plant is to be the most modern in this section of the state.

—The high wind of Tuesday night was the highest wind storm experienced this winter and caused considerable damage by destroying a part of the front of Beatley's Hardware Store. The most serious damage was the blowing down of the smoke stacks of the Charlevoix Lumber Company, causing the mill to cease operations for at least two weeks, which will be felt very keenly by the employes. The loss will reach several hundred dollars, which is partly covered by insurance.

—One of the humorous incidents of the recent election occured after the result of the local option contest was known. The enthusiastic women were parading Bridge street and in other harmless ways showing their satisfaction. An Indian saw the demonstration who had but recently recovered from too much strong water. After looking at the women awhile, he remarked, "Indian squaw gets drunk, white-man arrests her, white man's squaw gets drunk, white man does nothing?"

—The city council at its last meeting refused to provide for a bookkeeper in the city clerk's office. The change would necessitate the reducing of the city clerk's salary as his duties would be merely nominal, so greater, in fact, than those of an alderman. The patrons of the city light and water plant have asked that a book keeper be hired so that the keeping of the books may be removed from political influence. It is always within the city's power to hire a competent book keeper, while on the other hand, an incompetent clerk may be elected. The patrons desire this change as a business proposition, and not as an attack on any of our city officials.

Supt. W. H. Woodley to Leave Charlevoix.

A rumor is being circulated that Supt. W. H. Woodley does not intend to remain in Charlevoix the coming year. We do not know what his future intentions may be, but we regret very much that he should consider it advisable to locate elsewhere.

Supt. Woodley has endeared himself to the people of Charlevoix and has placed our schools upon a better basis and today our schools occupy a higher standard than ever before. In fact our school system is the best in northern Michigan and one of our established institutions.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY DRY

By Their Votes 1,100 Electors Decide the Saloon Must Go.

As a result of Monday's election, it is demonstrated that the people of Michigan are largely in favor of prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Charlevoix county giving a majority of 1100 for local option.

In considering the result by townships we naturally discover two wet places—Boyne and Boyne Valley townships giving wet majorities of 2 and 8 respectively.

The City of Charlevoix gave a dry majority of 179, demonstrating that our people were not influenced by any of the opposition arguments, and were not afraid of the effect local option would have on our summer resorts.

South Arm township (East Jordan) gave a dry majority of 242, while Boyne City, with its large vote, only gave a dry majority of 175.

The result was never in doubt and it is certainly gratifying that the dry majority was so great as it will give our public officials all the assurance they need to enforce the law to the minimum.

Another result of the election Monday showed plainly that local option did not enter into local politics.

Mr. Converse, candidate for Mayor of Boyne City on the Citizens' ticket, and a pronounced "dry" was defeated by a large majority by Dr. Chalmers, candidate on the Labor ticket.

Petoskey elected a democratic Mayor. The results in the city elections are very satisfactory. Capt. Oscar E. Wilbur defeating Mayor Ring by a majority. Capt. Oscar E. Wilbur has been a faithful public servant for many years and has always a position on his mind to the best of his ability. His election was never in doubt—there was no act of his public career that injured him, and his long and faithful service to the Republican party and the people of this city made him the only logical candidate on the Republican ticket and his election stands for all that is sound, safe and conservative in the City of Charlevoix.

Ellsworth Dutton defeated city clerk Lewis by the small majority of 21. The surprise in this contest was in the first ward, which gave a majority of 14 to Dutton, while last year Lewis received a majority.

In the First Ward Rolo, W. Pidduck was elected alderman by 5 majority.

In the Second Ward Charles Zeitler was elected as Supervisor on the Labor ticket, and W. J.

Baptists Secure Pastor.

Rev. F. Dewey Bible began his pastorate at the First Baptist Church April 4th, coming here from Oxford, Mich. He is a Canadian by birth and took his collegiate work at Ottawa and Kalamazoo College. He also graduated from the Greek Course of the Colgate Theological Seminary in 1906.

During his work as pastor Rev. Bible has held successful pastorates at Hillsview, Dresden, Gagford and Oxford, also spending two years as Sociational Missionary work. His family consists of wife and daughter.

A clipping from the Christian Herald, of Detroit, says concerning his call to Charlevoix: "On Feb. 19th the church voted to extend a call to Rev. F. Dewey Bible, of Oxford, to become our pastor. Rev. Bible was not a candidate. The call was extended to him upon his record without even hearing him. The call was accepted March 5th, the pastorate to begin the first of April and we hope to be able to give a better account of ourselves hereafter."

Dixon Avenue to be Paved.

As a result of Monday's election, we are informed that steps will be taken this spring to pave Dixon Avenue. This is a matter that interests the entire city, and we believe the council should give the matter careful attention as Dixon Avenue is one of our most important thoroughfares. Any good work done on our streets will certainly receive the support of the people.

BOY CITY AT CHARLEVOIX.

National Boy City—A Tent City of Fifteen Hundred Boys.

Arrangements have been completed by the Board of Trade which assume the location of the National Boy City at Charlevoix. This enterprise, which, for the past two years, has been conducted at Winona Lake, Indiana is a boys' summer chautauqua and municipality where boys conduct an actual city with all civic departments, elect officers, publish a daily paper, construct a bank, stores, post-office, have entertainments, athletic sports and contests, clergy, etc., in fact, engage in all the activities of a regular "grown up" community under the direction and guidance of experienced men, and at the same time enjoy all the benefits and pleasures of camp life in the deep woods, with an opportunity to see the larger things which uplift and to play square with a crowd which pleases the best of citizenship on a square, fair life. "We play the game square" is the motto of Boy City, and as soon as a cheat is discovered he loses his citizenship.

The population of Boy City is composed of various groups from N. M. C. A's, Sunday Schools, church choirs, boys clubs and bible classes from different towns and cities, each group being in charge of its own adult leader who is directly responsible to the parents and to the management for the welfare and conduct of the boys in his charge.

Last year the Saturday Evening Post sent boys from eighteen different states, and nearly every state in the Union was represented at Boy City. Every precaution is taken by the management for the good health and safety of the boys, and every day the adult leaders hold conferences in the interest of the boys' welfare; these conferences addresses by boy specialists of national reputation are heard and the general discussions on "boy problems" are very helpful to those who participate.

One of the principal objects of Boy City is to give its juvenile citizens a practical training in clean politics—a chance to learn the meaning and methods of municipal good government. Immediately upon arriving at the City the boys register and the campaign begins with its mass meetings, political speeches, conventions, nominations and finally the election at close of first week. Each town or city represented at camp comprises a ward from which is sent one or more aldermen to the common council, meetings of which are held every day, and by which the laws governing the city are passed.

Judge Willis Brown, of Salt Lake City, a man of national reputation as an expert in the understanding, handling and inspiring of boys will have general charge of the moral and social conduct of the city. Dr. J. C. Elsom, Professor of Physical Training of the University of Wisconsin will conduct the physical, athletic and health departments. Every boy in camp will receive a scientific physical examination, a record of which is kept by Dr. Elsom and a marked chart given to the boy showing just what exercise he needs most and what, if any, to avoid.

The political and civic departments will be under the direction and instruction of Judge Frederick W. Mayne, of Charlevoix, and Hon. Arthur A. Gardner of St. Louis, Mo., former editor of the Central Law Journal. Other departments will be in charge of men of equal reputation in their particular lines, in fact, it is the policy of the management to secure the best men in the country to look after the various activities of Boy City.

The following letter from a Y. M. C. A. director who has already spent two seasons with his boys at Boy City will give the reader some idea of what those who are familiar with the enterprise think of it: "The Boy City proposition conducted under the direction of Judge Brown has our heartiest endorse-

by

HAWLEY SMART

Author of "Broken Bonds," "Beset in War," Etc.

The tontarie, with the exception of two or three trifling legacies to servants, bequeathed what little she had to leave, including the furniture of the mansion, to Mary Chichester. This seemed all very natural and just as it would be to the light dragoon soldiers, with the exception of Carbonelle and Ringwood. These latter could not refrain from exchanging a glance of astonishment.

"What on earth has she done with her Tontine shares?" thought Mr. Carbonelle. "She cannot surely have forgotten all about it! If so, and it should be alive, this important document, we have never, there will be a pretty miscarriage of justice. Old Frederick, I know, has not spoken more than monosyllables and grunts, while Mary Chichester has been silent, and naturally all these others would be sorry to benefit."

Here his reflections were interrupted by the attorney, who, addressing Carbonelle, "Tell you what perplexes Mr. Carbonelle is, and, having indeed written them out at the request of the deceased lady, we will read them to you. Mr. Carbonelle's will, dated 1861, contains the following clause: 'Item, I leave the sum of my entire property to my nephew, Frederick Carbonelle, as he and Mary Chichester, my ward, have lived together so much, and I know he has endeared it to me in his usual kind manner, I hope and trust, and I leave to my cousin Mary Chichester, my ward, the sum of £10,000 to her own disposal, in consideration of her having lived so long with me, and I know she will see what she has done with it.' Now, Mr. Carbonelle, I know you are a deep-read lawyer in the affair, that I intend to leave the residue of my property to Mary.

As soon as they were comfortably seated in the drawing-room, Carbonelle and Ringwood drew their seats, and drew two documents from the envelope. The first was a short legal document, by which the share, numbered 1612, in the "Great Tontine," was bequeathed to Mary Chichester, the second was a letter, addressed to Mr. Carbonelle's distraction, in which she told him that she passed this share to his uncle in trust for Mary Chichester, with the express injunction that the girl was to know nothing about it unless the thing should be actually drawing to a close. Ringwood, who in the course of his long and chequered career had seen a good deal of the world, and had mixed in all sorts of company, was the first to speak. He was very sorry, he said, for poor old Mr. Carbonelle, who was evidently much cut up at the loss of his relative, and who had, no doubt, reckoned on the share of the Tontine being left to him. He was very sorry, too, for Miss Chichester, who, he was sure, was a good, kind, and amiable young lady, and who, he was sure, would be very much cut up at the loss of her share of the Tontine. He was very sorry, too, for Mr. Frederick Carbonelle

A Proclamation By The Governor.

To the People of the State of Michigan.

A third of a century ago Governor John J. Bagley, by proclamation called the attention of the people of Michigan to the planting of trees as a duty devolving upon good citizens and urged the setting aside of one day in each springtime for that purpose. The custom has been followed by each executive since that time, and, in accordance with it, I hereby designate Friday, April 30th, 1909 as Arbor Day.

Every year emphasizes the need of such a day and its observance should be state wide. The day should leave its influence and impress upon the minds of those upon whom the burdens of the future will devolve, and, to this end, the exercises in the schools should be of a nature that will bring out and develop a love for the forest, field and flower.

It should be a day when attention is called to what a generous Providence has done for our State. A soil and climate adapted for all that makes a country beautiful and attractive is chief among God's blessings.

The splendid endowment of riches our state was given in its forests no longer exists in its entirety, but it was not to be expected that its resources of timber would not be drawn upon for the needs of our people. We can and should, however, by our efforts now, intelligent and energetic, provide resources for those who come after us that will prove that our mission here was not alone to use and destroy.

"Plant a tree!" should be the watchword on April 30th, 1909, and the trees possible and the schoolgrounds should be an evidence from that date on that it was not simply a precept.

The Commission on County Life appointed by President Roosevelt suggested that the people in the rural communities come together in their schoolhouses on Arbor Day and form an organization with the school as the center and meeting place, for the purpose of developing and making better the general life of the community. It is to be hoped that our State will be among the pioneers in this great movement, and I commend to the consideration of the people the suggestions and the program which has been prepared by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at Lansing, this 29th day of March, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine.

FRED W. WARNER,
Governor.

To Teachers and Patrons of Rural Schools.

Friday, April 30th, 1909, has been designated by the Governor of Michigan as Arbor Day. Little or no interest has been taken in this day which should be one of the most valuable days of the year to the schools and people.

Rural school conditions are not what they should be or what they would be if we could in some manner awaken the people to their importance. School houses and grounds are for some reason neglected and the children are forced to spend the greater part of their childhood days in places that are cheerless and unloveling.

It is certainly time that the present tendency of the brightest of the rural people is towards the cities and when one will compare the often dingy and cheerless school house and grounds of the country with the bright and cheerful well equipped city schools, this tendency toward the city is not surprising.

In many communities where the homes are large and commodious the school house will be small and unloveling. In this place the boy or girl is obliged to spend a great deal of time and it is not surprising that they long to get away from such conditions.

Let us get together on April 30 and talk over ways and means whereby the school house and grounds may be made one of the most inviting places in the whole community. The leaders are urged to take this matter up and prepare programs for the day. Parents are urged to take a hand in the matter and help the teachers. The teachers alone cannot do much in this line, but with the help of the patrons the day may be made a very valuable one and through it we may be able to secure such surroundings for our country children as will lead them away from their longing for the glare of city life.

Help your boy or girl to plant a tree on April 30. Look your school house over and see if you cannot suggest a plan that will make it a more inviting place for your children to spend their time.

Respectfully,
J. H. MILFORD, Com.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chambers, April 1, '09.

At a regular meeting of the Common Council for the City of Charlevoix, held on the above date, the following aldermen were present: Wilbur, Swinton, Glassford and Ward. Mayor Rose presiding.

Moved by Ward that George Smith be given a lease to the foot of Chicago avenue for five years. Carried.

Moved by Ward that the mayor extend an invitation to the Milwaukee business men to visit Charlevoix. Carried.

Mayor Rose appointed John Burns a member of registration committee for third ward, and A. T. Barnett for second ward. Confirmed.

INJURED TO POVERTY AND TOIL.

Natives of Shantung Province Live Lives of Wretchedness.

Of Shantung province, China, a correspondent writes: "A little more than a generation ago one of the greatest famines in the memory of man spread devastation in the great river-watered sections of the west of this province and now famine faces the starved tillers of the land once again. The Shantungese illustrate well the law of the survival of the fittest, for such dire poverty only permits the strong men to live, with the result that we find nearly men of great endurance all over this province. Living on the land, which lately produces a sufficiency for abundant vegetable utilities, the people have become hardy, for they are hardened to all kinds of privations. Their houses are described by a traveler tell me that they are the most miserable habitations of this province in point of cleanliness and comfort. Their clothes are ragged and indescribable lines. Yet, as long as suffering people would have it, they live from year to year in the same way, with westerners that discontent is an absolute condition of wrong. Yet, as I said, in the province the Chinese know there can hardly be a place in the world so contented as they are, considering their lot. This is one of the places of which makes the organization of China such an enormous problem."

Uncle Jerry.

"I shouldn't wonder," said Uncle Jerry Peebles, "if there was something in this idea that the condition of a man's teeth has a whole lot to do with his moral character. The last time I ever knew a man by his wore a full set of false teeth."

And Be a Good Listener.

AN ANCIENT RACE DYING OUT.

Veddahs of Ceylon Regarded as Representing the Stone Age.

The oldest inhabitants of Ceylon are passing away. These are the famous Veddahs.

Fifty years ago it was estimated that 5,000 of them were still living in the forests. Lately Mr. Max Monzkowski, who has recently visited them, says there are only 50 or 60 of them still alive and that a few more years will see the end of their race.

The Veddahs have interested anthropologists because they have been remarked as the best living types of the man of the stone age.

The attitude of the Cingalese toward them is remarkable. They hold the poor creatures in great honor and rank them as belonging to the highest caste in the island. The reason is that they are reputed to have descended from the ancient owners or spirits that were the original possessors of the island.

These sound, hunting people, never leaving their forests, living under trees and in caves, without knowledge of pottery or any other art except that of making bows and arrows, are perishing because of their way of living and of their inability to stand up when stronger folk are pressing closer around them. They are exactly what they were centuries ago when people of India came and conquered their green island.

Conditions as We Make Them.

In a way we are all children, but double is a good mother when we are obedient to the laws of honesty and goodness. We must work for what we get. We can avoid illness by taking care of ourselves. We can avoid heartaches by growing strong and self-sufficient. We can draw friends to us by being a good friend. If destiny blows in over the seas, or trips us up on the journey, it is a little rebuke that is coming to us and which will make us keep our eyes and ears open and watch the way better.

The Chilly Homes of England.

It is largely our own fault if England has earned the reputation of an impossible country to winter in. As a nation we are, I vitily believe, the greatest living amateurs in the science of keeping our houses warm. An Englishman's home is his castle; it is also, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, his refrigerator. The truth is that England is winter time is one of the chilliest spots on earth. After some years in America it took me, I recall, 30 months on my return to London to get warm again.—London Chronicle.

Enrollment of Physicians.

Remuneration of physicians originally consisted in presents, but at the time of Hippocrates payment in money was already customary. Physicians received also public praise, the "crown of honor," the freedom of the city, the privilege of eating at the king's table. Physicians employed by the state received a yearly salary, as high as $2,000 in some instances. Rich people would pay enormous sums for a successful treatment, and a case is recorded in which $20,000 was paid.

For Sore Throat.

The old-fashioned remedy of apply but a cold compress is one of the best that can be used for sore throat. To make it, a bandage, such as a folded handkerchief, is wet in cold water and wrung—not very dry. It is laid around from the throat and over it entirely to cover the wet cloth is placed to security placed to keep it in place. No part should be left exposed or the air, striking the skin through it, will make the cold worse.

"One generally connects the idea of a Greek," moved the melancholy man, "with Marathon sports, bare knees, robes, tomas, large eyes, perfect features, magnificent form, and crumbling marble pillars, but a New York Greek is generally a man who keeps a candy store."

FALLING WALL KILLS FIVE.

Two Victims Are Partners in R. A. Schmidt Mason Contracting Firm.

Caught under a falling five-story wall of the fire-ruined Swift & Co. butterine plant at the Chicago stockyards, two men—one the president of a mason contracting firm—were killed instantly, three others received such injuries that they died within a few hours, while still another, cut and crushed, lies unconscious and at the point of death.

At work in an excavation twelve feet below the street level and close to the base of the tottering wall, the victims practically were cut off from escape when the crash came. A score or more of laborers who were at work in the basement, but some distance from the wall, either by leaping from the hole or running to the farthest ends of it escaped serious harm. Many of these, however, were bruised and cut by flying bricks and debris.

The men were at work at the time in the ruins of the plant of Darling & Co., fertilizers, which adjoins the Swift plant. The Darling plant was destroyed by fire on Jan. 6. Preparatory to rebuilding, debris was being cleared from the site and concrete foundations were being laid to transfer close to the old wall.

The accident brought death to two partners in the R. A. Schmidt Mason Contracting Company. The partners were standing close to the laborers at the base of the wall, supervising the work, when the top tier of brick crashed down on them.

THREE POWERS HARD UP.

Entire States, Great Britain and Germany Wrestling with Deficits.

Three of the great powers, the United States, Great Britain and Germany, are about to wrestle with the deficit question. The British liberals estimate the gap between revenue and expenditures which Parliament must make good by new taxation at $100,000,000, while the conservatives, after the manner of opposition, put it at $150,000,000. German government wants $118,000,000 revenue to meet a deficit of $100,000,000. It will force economies big military and naval appropriations are largely responsible for the excess of expenditures.

CANADA TO GIVE DREADNOUGHT

Dominion Will Help Carry the Naval Burden of Great Britain.

The Canadian government will make an offer of naval assistance to Great Britain. Since the announcement of the British naval budget there has been a feeling in Canada that the dominion should take a share in carrying the naval burden of the British empire. The sentiment among the Canadian ministers is that the dominion should build a Dreadnought or, possibly, two or three and control their movement, probably using them in the training of a naval militia. Should war break out these vessels would be placed at the disposal of the British naval authorities.

KIDNAPERS IN TOILS; $9,790 CASH FOUND

Woman Arrested at Cleveland Confesses She and Man Were Plotters Against Boy.

WILLIE WHITLA AT HOME AGAIN

Confession of Prisoner Hints That Trouble May Be Encountered in City of Sharon.

A woman and a man with $9,790 in currency in their possession were arrested in Cleveland Tuesday night, and the police declare beyond doubt they are the kidnapers of 9-year-old Willie Whitla of Sharon, Pa., who was taken from his father Monday evening.

What is believed a threat against the Whitla family was uttered as a beast by the woman as she was taken into the Central Police Station. Apparently befuddled by liquor, she said in answer to question:

"I am the one who planned the whole thing. There will be trouble for me and it—in Sharon tomorrow."

Beneath the woman's skirt was found the $9,790. All of it but $40 was bound in packages with the original slips placed on the money when Whitla took it from the bank still around it.

Captain Norman Shatruck and Detective Frank Wood made the arrests in the east end of the city. When near the police station the man broke away from Detective Wood and ran toward a alley. Shatruck fired two shots from his revolver into the air and the man stopped.

The woman appears to be well educated and is refined in manners. She says she spent three years of her life in a convent in Pennsylvania, but denies that she has ever been in trouble before. Both the man and the woman deny that they know the name of each other. They admit that they are not man and wife.

According to the police, the two were introduced when placed in custody. Due to their condition they were not questioned closely by the police and were locked in separate cells. The man says they if his boss a resident of Cleveland for seventeen years. He claims to have a mother and a sister there. Captain Shatruck is said to have secured his description of the kidnapers from Willie Whitla, and this description led to the arrest.

Willie Whitla told Captain Shatruck that the woman who kept him a prisoner had auburn scars on her face. The woman in custody has red scars on her cheeks and appears to have had smallpox. She is a tall blonde, probably 25 years old. She was dressed in a black silk skirt, a gray coat and black hat. The man is dark and smooth faced.

Tuesday detectives heard that a man and a woman answering the description of the kidnapers had been seen on the outskirts of the city. They came down town and bought numerous articles of clothing, tendering $5 and $10 bills in payment. It was learned. Later a report came that the two had left a package in a downtown store, which proved to consist of discarded clothing. Captain Shatruck and Detective Wood trailed the man and woman around the business district of the city for several hours during the afternoon, but delayed taking them into custody.

FATAL STORM IN TEXAS.

Seven Men in Many Towns Blown Down—Seven Persons Met Death.

Thirteen persons were killed and a score or more injured in a terrific cyclone which swept the county thirty miles north of Fort Worth, Texas, Wednesday. Fifty houses and scores of Shiloh were completely wrecked, only two buildings being left standing. Bridgeport, Decatur, Crafton and other towns also suffered heavy losses. Many large homes in the path of the storm, which was half a mile wide, were destroyed. The dead included A. H. Price, a farmer, his wife and five children and a farm hand, who were turned to death when their home, three miles south of Shiloh, was wrecked. Two negroes passed Clark were struck by lightning near Sander and killed. The home of C. M. Bailey at Bulivar was destroyed and the members of his family injured. At Greenwood an unknown man was killed in the storm and at Shiloh two men sought safety under a haystack which caught fire and were burned to death. At Cliffy the storm wrecked the Methodist Church. Much other damage has resulted, but rain was badly needed for crops and livestock.

DISMISS FREMONT'S SON.

President Taft Approves Action to Drop Captain from Army.

President Taft has approved the action of Secretary of War Dickinson, who ordered the dismissal of Captain John C. Fremont from the army. Captain Fremont is the son of the famous "Pathfinder" Fremont, and was one of the officers selected by Mr. Taft, when Secretary of War, to go to Cuba with the army of pacification. About three months ago numerous charges were made in Cuba against Captain Fremont to the effect that he had made false statements about his superior officers and that he had made false statements on these charges when he was investigated by the inspector general. The court martial found him guilty on the charges. The case was appealed to the Secretary of War with the best result that the President has disclosed Captain Fremont from the army.

DYNAMITERS ARE HUNTED.

Unknown Miscreants Explode Charge Under House of Wealthy Italian.

Detectives in Chicago hunted for the "Black Hand" which exploded a dynamite bomb before dawn in the vestibule of the home of James Macaluso, 31 Clark street. Macaluso is a wealthy Italian business man. He lives across the street from his steamship office and labor agency. For more than a year, the police say, he has been the recipient of letters threatening violence if he would not yield to the demands of the writers.

INDIANS KILL WHITES.

Sheriff's Posse Ambushed in Oklahoma and Valley Greets Officers.

Two deputies in a sheriff's squad were ambushed and killed by members of the Snake clan of the Creek Indians at the home of Chilli Harjo, chief of the band, near Hickory Grove (that, Saturday and a desperate war with the red men seems under way.

Hundreds of citizens in the vicinity of the killing have taken the field and four companies of State militia have been mobilized. The Indians are well armed, having been purchasing rifles and ammunition for a month in preparation for a clash with the white.

Details of the affair are meager, the only information coming for telephone from Okmulgee, the nearest town to the scene of the encounter. Three killed were: Edward Dunn, Herman Johnson of the sheriff of McIntosh county. Captain Shattuck, Detective Frank Wood, Frank Jones and Lee Bateman, who composed the party that went to arrest Chilli Harjo, whose residence is situated in Sec. southwest of Okmulgee. The Indian was wanted as a result of a fight in which three negroes were killed.

The officers, having heard that the Indians and negroes were again gathering in force at the home of Chilli Harjo, approached the cabin of Harjo without any precaution, as they were acquainted the cabin's yard, twenty guns were leveled upon them from as many men and the fusillade from the Indians Dunn and Dunn fell dead. The others also suffered heavy losses. Many large bonnes in the path of the storm, which was half a mile wide, were destroyed. The dead included A. H. Price, a farmer, his wife and five children and a farm hand, who were turned to death when their home, three miles south of Shiloh, was wrecked. Two negroes passed Clark were struck by lightning near Sander and killed. The home of C. M. Bailey at Bulivar was destroyed and the members of his family injured. At Greenwood an unknown man was killed in the storm and at Shiloh two men sought safety under a haystack which caught fire and were burned to death. At Cliffy the storm wrecked the Methodist Church. Much other damage has resulted, but rain was badly needed for crops and livestock.

100 NEGROES BATTLE DEPUTIES.

Three Killed and Five Wounded in All-Night Fight at Oklahoma.

On the scene of the famous Creek Indian uprising of last year at Hickory Settlement, Okla., three negroes were killed, five wounded and forty captured in a battle between twenty a party sheriff and 100 negroes. The fighting began late Wednesday afternoon and continued until 10 o'clock Thursday. Four deputies went from Henryetta to the negro settlement to arrest one Jones thought to be concealed in the house of one of the negroes. They were met by a party of armed negroes and fired upon, the officers returning the fire. The fight lasted for a large posse reached the settlement. Some one fired a shot and the rioting was on. The fight continued at a series of dash throughout the night. The deputies renewed the attack on the negroes Thursday morning. About 300 shots were fired in the fray. Three negroes were killed and Deputy Sheriff Bennett shot in the foot, the gunshight the negroes were dislodged from their hide and fled. The deputies pursued and captured forty.

During the last ten years the New York Central has expended $285,000,000 for betterments and increased facilities. High railroad officials say that the numerous departments are perfecting arrangements for a celebration of the centennial.

The New York Central is preparing an educational train to run in connection with the New York State Agricultural College.

The Wells-Fargo Express Company is preparing to withdraw from the business of Mexico by absorbing the National Express Company.

It is stated that the Lake Shore will have on a good share of the $8,000,000 worth of equipment to be contracted for by the New York Central line.

The report some time ago that the Pennsylvania had acquired a half interest in the Lake Erie and Pittsburg road building from Youngstown to Lorain, has been confirmed.

E. T. Young, former attorney general, appeared before the national committee of the Minnesota House, and argued in favor of J. N. Johnson's bill, which authorizes the State to regulate the banks of stocks and bonds by railroads.

The accounting department of the Central Electric Railway Association of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois held a two days session in Lima, Ohio. The problem of a uniform system of accounts for roads using its being studied by thirty different lines.

Rush orders have been issued to the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound engineering department to complete the road's terminal in Seattle and Tacoma immediately. Officials have stated that work will be running trains into Seattle. A large force has been put in service on the works.

Attorney General Mayer, of Missouri, says he will appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of Federal Judge McPherson, declaring the 2-cent passenger rate illegal.

It is understood negotiations are well advanced for an interchange of traffic agreements between the Wabash and Illinois Central at Kansas City that will be of great value to each system.

The report of the earnings and expenses of the Omaha road for the month of January and for the seven months ending Jan. 31, 1909, shows that there has been considerable improvement in traffic on the road during the past five months.

ROOSEVELT SAILS AS GREAT CROWD CHEERS

Ex-President Starts in Africa After Fighting His Way Through Thousands.

CROWD BESIEGES THE STEAMER

Journey to Pier an Ovation—Delegations with Bands, Besides Distinguished Diplomats, Present.

Theodore Roosevelt sailed Tuesday from the pier line that for the wide of East Africa in search of big game. From his country house at Oyster Bay to the steamship dock in Hoboken the ex-President's trip resembled a triumphal march. All the feeling of the crowds which had gathered in with him good luck being expressed all along the way by enthusiastic cheers. When he arrived at the Hamburg-American Line pier, where he boarded the steamship Hamburg, the former President found a throng of his fellow-countrymen gathered. He smiled and bowed right and left in acknowledgment of the salutations of the assemblage and evidently was pleased over the warmth and sincerity of the demonstration.

With the departure of Mr. Roosevelt begins perhaps the most interesting journey ever undertaken by an ex-President of the United States. Great circled the globe, but it was the first time that the twelve months' tour of travel, while Mr. Roosevelt is going into a wild and almost unexplored country.

On his arrival at the Hamburg-American line pier at Hoboken Mr. Roosevelt was greeted with bands playing, flags flying and several thousand people assembled to see the distinguished traveler Godspeed. He was beaming with good nature and enthusiasm about the trip. Everything was "fine" and "bully" to Mr. Roosevelt and he acknowledged the cheering by repeatedly raising his hat.

SOCIAL LEADER SLAYS HERSELF

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., Commits Suicide in Her Home.

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., wife of the tobacco magnate, scion of the social whirl, committed suicide at her home in the fashionable Fifth Avenue district, in Washington. She was found by a maid at 8 o'clock Thursday morning lying on the floor of her bedroom. Above her was an open gas jet, from which she had evidently been escaping for several hours.

The Lorillard family is a distinctive figure in Washington society, and the news of her death has given the capital a sensation. It is said that Mrs. Lorillard was a distinctive figure in Washington society, and the news of her death has given the capital a sensation. It is said that Mrs. Lorillard was a distinctive figure in Washington society, and the news of her death has given the capital a shock such as it has not received for years. Her husband is a famous family insist that the cause of Mrs. Lorillard's death is a mystery, though the Coroner's certificate tells a different story.

The circumstances of the suicide, as they become known, are peculiarly tragic. For years Mrs. Lorillard has been facing the prospect of a life of incurable physical suffering, and the specialist having failed to give her either relief or hope. In spite of this, she has maintained a constant round of social activities, giving her friends an intimation of the depression that has overtaken her.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard attended a brilliant dinner given for Lady Paget. Mr. Lorillard saw his wife safely home from the affair and the first to receive news of her death. Her husband was called from his dinner at 2630 Hilltop place she has been husband goodnight with unusual tenderness, and left for his apartments. In the morning Mr. Lorillard found his wife lying in her bedroom, with her head on her boudoir.

Children Die of Poisoning.

Two children of Hiram Webster, a farmer of Dark Island, Md., died from a meal, it is thought, of poisonous potatoes, nearly a dozen other members of the family are in a critical condition.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

Commercial developments are keeping with the seasonable advance the operations usually looked for at this time. The volume of payments through the banks continues a gratifying recovery and the aggregate trading defaults shows an improving condition of credits generally.

Industrial activity exhibits steady, although moderate expansion, some of the larger plants having increased production, particularly in iron, wood and leather working.

Encouraging indications for the future are evidenced by increasing number of new domestic for finished products and additions to the machinery and men employed.

Railroad reports offer testimony to the prevailing trend of business in the Mississippi Valley, the Chicago outlook shows substantial gains over those reported a year ago, there being larger movements of mill and factory outputs, general merchandise and crude supplies. Distributive dealings reflect favorable influences in an improved purchasing power and wider efforts to advance manufacturers and agricultural preparations.

Retail trade in the leading lines does well, larger absorption appearing in apparel, home needs and food products. Wholesale markets for general merchandise disclose a satisfactory presence of buyers, aggregate shipments compare quite favorably with the corresponding time last year in dry goods, furnishings, millinery, clothing and furniture.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 34, against 28 last week, 27 in 1908, and 21 in 1907. There were 13 liabilities over $5,000 number 9, against 8 last week, 10 in 1908, and 8 in 1907.—Dun's Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Weather, crop and industrial reports are still irregular, with more than ordinary quiet noted in most lines. Wholesale trade feels the effect of lateness of discussion and uncertainties, and while a fair business is doing in excess of last year in nearly all lines it is generally expressed at the total volume of trade to the first quarter. Buying from jobbers is conservative, orders are more numerous rather than large and of a between character.

Retail trade has been hampered by stormy weather, but the approach of spring has contributed to some improvement in demand, largely in women's wear fabrics and materials. Western trade is relatively better than that of the east in this line, but cool weather in reets expansion the country over. In industrial lines generally operations are quite full, with the iron and steel trade, where prices are weaker, being the apparently least favorably situated lines.

The coal trade is quiet. East and West, one of the best situated industries in the country is kept up. Industrial reports from the country is building, which is a sign of better times, and with some improvement in demand for leather and materials. Tariff uncertainty, however, affects lumber as well other lines.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with March 25 were 238, against 224 last week, 296 in the like week of 1908, 166 in 1907, 183 in 1906 and 227 in 1905.—Bradstreet's.

EASTER LILIES AT CHRIST'S TOMB.

Long ago, as Easter emblems,
Blossomed the lilies, tall and white,
Cure and sunshine of flowers,
Gleaming with celestial light.

Man, as it silk prayer and fanfare,
Pale with watching by the dead,
Near a garden they listened
Low before it bowed the head.

For the angels' silent fingers,
As they softly waited there,
Touched the waves, the sighing lilies
Lovingly, with tender care.

While the world in solemn stillness
Watched the coming of the day
Of that first, that sacred Easter
When the stone was rolled away,

And when morning dawned resplendent,
And on earth the glory fell,
Sealed the lily bells in triumph,
"Christ is risen from the dead!"
—Christian Work.

EASTER'S DEEP MEANING.

How It May Be Incorporated Into Our Lives Every Day.

It means clear that a pure spirit will arise from out the dust of our body, and living forever in the land of the invisible body. If the body can successfully make the change from the material to the spiritual, it only must be because the spirit has been developed sufficiently that it has thought so evil and has believed all things—can anyone doubt what should come of such a spiritual planting? The natural comes first, and after that the spiritual. Then the natural is made to be the spiritual." It is far more glorious, but, after all, the same.

So we may keep Easter, with its wonderful deep meaning, into the life of every day. We may by living it for ourselves to comprehend the truth that while we live this human life, and develop this natural body, it is not alone the natural body we are creating, but the spirit, and that spirit, which must in time, to come after.

This is not a spiritual doctrine. All those who in this life have attained some knowledge of their spiritual nature will testify to the truth. The change from a natural to a spiritual being is the development of a plant whose seed we have sown. The right plant, slowly grows in a man who has sown the right seed.

If the spiritual nature of a man begins to develop, the power, higher elements in him grow stronger, and one day one the lower sort die. Hate dies, and revenge and anger. Cruelty dies, and all unkindness. Narrowness of mind and selfishness, and the fruits of the others.

The earth that lives and grows strong are in love. Purity and truth and courage are but parts of love, and, as it grows greater, by and by comes the success of knowledge and faith itself is swallowed up in faith.

This is the daily burial of the old man, as Paul called it, and the daily rising of the new, who is the "Lord from Heaven." To such a heart Easter means every day.—Harper's Bazar.

Legend of the Easter Eggs.

There are several legends that explain the Easter egg custom. Is it certain that in the Blue Grass State the ham is as indispensable to an Easter dinner as being to a Christmas

"EXCUSE ME, I THOUGHT IT WAS YOU, EMILY DEAR."

AN EASTER ANTHEM.

this time the song was very sweet and joyful; and then the mother heard the bird, the sent and the beautiful white egg. And the strange story says that ever since that night the eggs of that bird change their color, and instead of being white they are red, yellow and blue, so that people may be reminded of that first Easter day.

The Scala Santa.

"I found the Scala Santa (holy staircase) most interesting, for certainly it is the strangest sight in the world," writes a woman who spent last Easter in Rome. "An enormous crowd of both sexes, all ages and all ranks, was ascending the staircase on their knees, aisling each step. I saw congantly dressed ladies, princesses, her majesty the queen, following humbly, with blind skin clad countrymen with their sunburnt faces almost in contact with the faces of the ladies following. All dressed Friday' the procession, is kept up. La Scala Santa is said to be the staircase down which our Lord was dragged when Pilate had sentenced him to be crucified. St. Helena, in 326, had it brought to the true cross is shown, also, brought by St. Helena from Jerusalem."

Why Not?

At Two Sepulchres.

"He is not here!" he looked at the sealed prison;
He knew the entire world of the sealed prison;
Lo! He hath conquered death!"
For this only the sad path
"He is not here; the Christ is surely risen!"

A soul once dead hath found the Easter day
It heard the angels say:
"He is not here! He lives! this soul is risen!"
—New York Independent.

Easter Hen.

Eggs suggest hens. This gave rise probably to the Easter hen of Kentucky. However this may be, it is certain that in the Blue Grass State the hen is as indispensable to an Easter dinner as being to a Christmas

MICHIGAN LAWMAKERS

Dinner Bill Defeated.

The episodes all revising the grouse of House of the State was defeated in the House Tuesday night, 42 to 36, winding up a lively fight that lasted nearly seven hours.

The result was a great surprise. This action probably means no liquor legislation this session unless a bill comes from the Senate or some amendments are made to the present law, but as the liquor interests are now satisfied, they can back anything attempted by the prohibitionists. After numerous harangues the proposition to refer the bill to the judiciary committee, with instructions to revamp it or pick the best features and amend the present law, which was voted down in the afternoon, was revived by Representative Colby and received from the house a majority of all the members contested. When the proposition was made to the House, Representative Crompton moved as a substitute that all after the enacting clause be stricken out, which carried by the following vote:

Yeas—Barnes, Bell, Bennett, Bishop, Bloomfield, Brown, Bryant, Burke, Cady, Dakin, Dalton, Dawson, Dickinson, Field, Fisher, Fitzsimons, Gray, Grover, Hall, Hamilton, Hartman, Hoffman, Hoyt, Jackson, McNaughton, Miller, Mills, Mitchell, Moore, Morrison, Nelson, Nichols, Nickerson, Nixon, Oakes, Oldfield, Osborne, Osborne, Sayer, Stewart, Straight, Taber, Tarbell, Tarbox, Tarrant, Tuttle, Wallace, Warner, Taylor, Yeo—42.

Nays—Austin, Bailey, Bartlett, Beaver, Bishop, Carton, Colby, Cooper, Crawford, Dagwell, Dawes, Dewing, Dickinson, Dowling, Fairchild, Gaskill, Gilbert, Gillespie, Gladwin, Gorton, Hakes, Hecht, McGuire, McFadden, Mills, Mitchell, Moore, Morrison, Nelson, Nichols, Nickerson, Nixon, Oakes, Oldfield, Osborne, Osborne, Sayer, Stewart, Straight, Taber, Tarbell, Tarbox, Tarrant, Tuttle, Wallace, Warner, Taylor, Yeo, Woodruff, Young—36.

Then the question came on concurring in the amended report, which was carried, 46 to 45.

Makes School Books Cheaper.

If the textbook bill passed, the price of school books which was introduced by Senator Alfred Jennison, is low, the State Board of Education and the president of the Michigan Normal College, who spoke in favor of the bill, the county school commissioners and examiners will select books for their respective counties, except in cities of over 10,000 and in districts organized by special law, in which cases the boards of education will select the books. The bill fixes the maximum prices on the books, namely: For spelling books, 10 cents; first reader, 10; second reader, 17; third reader, 22; fourth reader, 26; fifth reader, 40; mental arithmetic, 20; intermediate arithmetic, 25; complete arithmetic, 35; elementary geography, 50; complete geography, 75; English grammar and language, elementary, 20; complete grammar, 35; physiology and hygiene, 50; history of the United States, 50; history of Michigan, 40; elements of natural philosophy, 50; civil government, 40; elementary algebra, 50; physical geography, 50; elements of agriculture, 40; bookkeeping, 40. The standard of books is listed by the bill.

Change Child Labor Law.

There was an interesting hearing in the Senate on Tuesday night, on a bill to amend the child labor law. At present the law is as follows: "No person under 16 years of age shall be employed in any place of business or work shop in this State, between the hours of 10 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m. of any day." The proposed amendment would provide that the prohibition shall not apply to the employment of children who are sixteen years of age and who are over the age of 14 and 16 years desires to go to work they simply have to go before a notary public, accompanied by one of their parents, who states that the child is over 14 years of age. Instructor Barry of the University of Michigan, and others who are interested in the economic question, framed the bill, which provides that all such children must obtain a certificate from the superintendent of public instruction instead of from the county or local boards of education now collect all information regarding children who are at work and by forcing children to apply to the superintendent at some distance from their homes, it would put the school authorities in closer touch with the children in the means to doing more good.

Must Publish Time Tables.

Presidential Primary Bill in Michigan is interested in the bill introduced by Senator Kinne of the Lenawee-Monroe district. The bill, if passed, will make it compulsory for railroad companies to publish time tables in the papers of cities and towns through which their respective lines pass. Dailies will receive $50 a year per folio and weeklies half the amount. Failing to the county of letters first letter Kline is receiving from the publishers of the State, and especially the dailies, which are anxious to know what the newspapers have already alotted a campaign in line by their respective legislators to vote for the bill which was referred to the railroad committee, of which Senator Bates of Allegan is chairman.

May Alter Fish Law.

Senator Illing of Cheboygan has introduced a bill repealing all the local fish laws and providing radical changes in the same. The bill will cost a good bill not failing in the connecting waters between Lake Superior, Huron and Erie and within half a mile of the mouth of any river or of the mouth of an inland lake. The fishing of fishing shall be in any consignment, would avoid the confusion of the entire consignment.

Platforms on Cabooses.

The Senate passed the bill which bills introduced by Senator Hoffman providing that by January, 1910, all freight caboose must be equipped with rear platforms. Several breakmen who have been working for the bill and another one to keep railroad employes off the top of freight trains claim that the conductors against their promotions and now they are over on the House side trying to stop the extra fare bill which the conductors are anxious to have passed.

REDSKINS ROUTED IN BATTLE.

Posse Surrounds Part of Crazy Snake's Outlaws and Kills One.

A detachment of Crazy Snake's band of belligerent Indians was surrounded by deputy sheriffs and posse Monday afternoon, near Crazy Snake's home, in Oklahoma, and a lively battle followed. More than 200 shots were fired, and one Indian was killed. Eight Indians were captured and the remainder fled, with the deputies and sallibtemen in pursuit.

There were about fifteen Indians in the band which had taken refuge in a house. Advancing from all sides the posse fired a volley. The Indians rushed out, scattered among the trees and made a valiant defense. The posse, firing all the while, steadily advanced, and soon ended the hunt. The house of Crazy Snake was burned during the fight.

Crazy Snake was said to be surrounded in the north Canadian river bottoms near there. Three hundred soldiers, cowboys and deputy sheriffs were closing in upon him. Crazy Snake's band apparently has broken up into numerous small groups, each trying to escape without regard for the grand drama of the chieftain, to rallie's who their were called together by Sunday's signal time. All efforts at organized resistance to the deputies and sallibtemen seem to have vanished.

ROOSEVELT MEETS FIRST PERIL.

Crazed Italian on Board Steamer Seeks to Harm Him.

A dispatch from Horta, Azores Islands, states that an attempt was made to attack President Roosevelt on board the steamer Hamburg by an Italian believed to be demented. The former President was not touched and few on board the liner were aware of the incident until the ship had been safely subdued. All information of the attack was suppressed until the steamer reached that port.

Giuseppi Toeli, a steerage passenger, is the name of the would be assailant of the former President. The incident happened as the steamer was leaving the shelter of Horta. Then Toeli broke from his companions in the steerage and started for the upper deck, where Mr. Roosevelt was standing with his son Kermit.

"He has let them take away my child," Toeli shouted in English. "Now he shall pay for them!"

Sailors seized Toeli, quickly manfered him, carried him below, and, by the captain's orders, put him in irons. Toeli, after his imprisonment, refused for four days to eat, crying: "Roosevelt is trying to poison me." The ship's doctor now says that all food offered to Toeli before he will eat it.

THINKS HE IS CHARLIE ROSS.

Brakeman Believes Self and Famous Kidnaped Boy Are Identical.

William Lindsay, brakeman of McKee's Rocks, a Pittsburg suburb, formerly a boy, is convinced that he is the kidnaped son of the attorney. Lane Rose Rail-road, stated that he was taken from Charlie Ross kidnaped from Germantown, Pa., thirty-five years ago and never recovered. He said he learned early in life that he was not the child of his parents and that many things they did led him to believe that he was Charlie Ross. He said he lives in every respect with the description of Charlie, even to moles on his body. Memories of his early home life, and of the religious of the Ross home. His foster parents, who lived at Chalmsville, are dead and he has no evidence of his identity and is not trying very hard to prove his claim with the families in the case because of the notoriety it would give him.

FALLING WALL KILLS FIVE.

Two Victims Are Partners in R. A. Schmidt Mason Contracting Firm.

Caught under a falling Dewsbury wall of the fire ruined Swift & Co. butterine plant at the Chicago stockyards, two men—one the president of a mason contracting firm—were killed instantly, three others received such injuries that they died within a few hours, while still another, cut and crushed, lies unconscious and at the point of death.

At work in an excavation twelve feet below the street level and close to the base of the tottering wall, the victims practically were cut off from escape when the crash came. A score or more of laborers who were at work in the basement, but some distance from the wall, either by leaping from the hole or running to the farthest ends of it, escaped serious hurts. Many of these, however, were bruised and cut by flying brick and debris.

The fire were at work at the time in the ruins of the plant of Darling & Co., butterine, which adjoins the Swift plant. The burning plant was destroyed by fire on Jan. 6. Preparatory to rebuilding, debris was being cleared from the site and concrete foundations were being laid in trenches close to the old wall.

The accident brought death to two partners in the R. A. Schmidt Mason Contracting Company. The partners were standing close to the laborers at the base of the wall, supervising the work, when the loss of brick crashed down on them.

THREE POWERS HARD UP.

United States, Great Britain and Germany Wrestling with Deficits.

Three of the great powers, United States, Great Britain and Germany, are about to wrestle with the deficit question. The British liberals estimate the gap between revenues and expenditures which Parliament must make good by new taxation as $[illegible], while the conservatives, after the manner of opposition, put it at $[illegible]. The German government admits $125,000,000 gaps, recasts at once, and here is the United States we know that when the books are closed at the end of the current fiscal year there will be a deficit of more than $[illegible]. In all three countries big military and naval appropriations are largely responsible for the excess of expenditures.

KIDNAPERS IN TOILS; $9,780 CASH FOUND

Women Arrested at Cleveland Confesses She and Man Were Plotters Against Boy.

WILLIE WHITLA AT HOME AGAIN

Confession of Prisoner Hints That Trouble May Be Expected in City of Sharon.

A woman and a man with $9,780 in currency in their possession were arrested in Cleveland Monday night, and the police became beyond doubt they are the kidnapers of 5-year-old Willie Whitla of Sharon, Pa., who was returned to his father Monday evening.

What is believed a threat against the Whitla family was uttered as a boast by the woman as she was taken into the Central Police Station. Apparently betrayed by Piper, she sat in sullen silence to questions.

"I am the one who planned the whole thing. There will be trouble for me and I——in Sharon to-morrow."

Beneath the woman's skirt was found the $9,780. All of it but $80 was bound in packages with the original slips placed on the money when Whitla took it from the bank still around it.

Captain Norman Shattuck and Detective Frank Wood made the arrests in the end end of the city. When near the police station the man broke away from the Detective Wood and ran toward an alley. Shattuck fired two shots from his revolver into the air and the man stopped

The woman appears to be well educated and is refined in manners. She says she spent fifteen years of her life in a convent in Pennsylvania, but denies that she has ever been in trouble before. Both the man and the woman deny that they know the name of each other. They admit that they are not man and wife.

According to the police, the two were interrogated when placed in custody. Due to their condition they were not questioned closely by the police and were locked in separate cells. The man says that he has been a resident of Cleveland for seventeen years. He claims to have a mother and a sister there. Captain Shattuck is said to have secured his description of the kidnapers from Willie Whitla, and this description led to the arrest.

Willie Whitla told Captain Shattuck that the woman who kept him a prisoner had smallpox scars on her face. The woman in custody has red spots on her cheeks and appears to have had smallpox. She is a tall blonde, probably 25 years old. She was dressed in a black silk skirt, a gray coat and black hat. The man is dark and smooth faced.

Tuesday detectives heard that a man and a woman answering the description of the kidnapers had been seen on the outskirts of the city. They came down and bought numerous articles of clothing, tendering $5 and $10 bills in payment. It was learned later a report came that the two had left a package in a downtown store, which was the subject of discreet clothing.

Captain Shattuck and Detective Wood trailed the man and woman around the business district of the city for several hours during the afternoon, but delayed taking them into custody.

FATAL STORM IN TEXAS.

Houses in Many Towns Blown Down —Seven Persons Were Killed.

Thirteen persons were killed and a score or more injured in a terrific electrical storm which swept the country for miles north of Fort Worth, Texas, Wednesday. Fifty houses and stores in Mineral Wells were completely wrecked, and two buildings being left standing. Bridges, Decatur, Chillon and other towns also suffered heavy losses. Mineral Wells was in the path of the storm, which was five miles wide, were destroyed. The home of Mr. Mayes, a farmer, his wife and five children and a farm hand, who were burned to death when their house, three miles north of Sibley, was swept. Two negroes named Clark were struck by lightning near Sandor and killed. The home of C. M. Bailey at Bridgeport was destroyed and the home of his family injured. At Greenwood an unknown man was killed in the storm and at Sibley two men sought safety under a haystack which caught fire and both burned to death. At Crisp the storm prevailed the Methodist Church. While much damage has resulted, the storm was badly needed for crops and live stock.

INDIANS KILL WHITES.

Sheriff's Posse Ambushed in Oklahoma and Volley Greets Officers.

Two deputies in a sheriff's squad were ambushed and killed by members of the Snake clan of the Creek Indians on the house of Chitti Harjo, chief of the band, near Hickory Ground, Okla., Saturday and a desperate war with the red men seems under way.

Hundreds of citizens in the vicinity of the killing have taken the field and four companies of State militia have been mobilized. The Indians are well armed, having been purchasing rifles and ammunition for some time in preparation for a clash with the whites.

Details of the affair are meager, the only information coming by telephone from Okmulgee, the nearest town to the scene of the encounter. Those killed were: Edward Dunn, Herman Isbom, both of the sheriff of Okmulgee county. These two, with Frank Smith, William Carr, Frank Jones and Lee Hutsons, composed the party that went to arrest Chitti Harjo, whose residence is situated in the heart of the Creek country. The Indian was wanted as a result of a fight in which three negroes were killed.

The officers, having heard that the Indians were secure enough in peaceable after the battle of Thursday, approached the cabin of Harjo without fear of trouble. As they were entering the yard a volley from rifles poured forth upon them from as many men in the house and around the corners. Dunn and Isbom fell dead at the first volley and Carr was shot through the arm and fell to a clump of bushes. Smith, Jones and Hutsons then they returned to the bodies of their companions. Finding them dead, they hurried to Okmulgee.

Harjo, who has no offing within the last two years expressed his displeasure at the restraints of law and who was often called his men into council to discuss the question of how he should be treated, is a tall, lean Indian of about 60 years. He is said to have been outlaws for years. It required the services of United States officers and the threat of a call for the State militia to quell his band last fall during a session of the council at Hickory Ground.

100 NEGROES BATTLE DEPUTIES.

Three Killed and Five Wounded in Attempt to Free Prisoner.

On the scene of the famous Creek Indian uprising of last year at Hickory Settlement, Okla., three negroes were killed, five wounded and fully captured in a battle between twenty deputy sheriffs and 100 negroes. The fighting began late Wednesday afternoon and continued until 10 o'clock Thursday. The deputies were in charge of a prisoner, Jim Hutsons, a negro, who was being taken to the county seat of Okmulgee county by Sheriff Fowler injured. At the first fusillade the prisoner was fatally wounded. These two, with Frank Smith, William Carr, Frank Jones and Lee Hutsons, composed the party that went to arrest Chitti Harjo, whose residence is situated in the heart of the Creek country. ROOSEVELT SAILS AS GREAT CROWD CHEERS

CROWD BESIEGES THE STEAMER

Journey to Pier an Ovation—Delegation with Bands, Besides Distinguished Diplomats, Present.

Theodore Roosevelt sailed Tuesday from his sojourn land for the wilds of East Africa in search of big game from his country house at Oyster Bay to the steamship dock in Hoboken the ex-President's trip resembled a triumphal march, the feeling of the friends which had gathered to wish him good luck being expressed all along the way in enthusiastic cheers. When he arrived at the Hamburg-American Line pier, where he boarded the steamship Hamburg, the former President found a throng of his fellow countrymen gathered. He smiled and bowed right and left in acknowledgment of the salutations of the assemblage and evidently was pleased over the warmth and sincerity of the demonstration.

With the departure of Mr. Roosevelt begins perhaps the most interesting journey ever undertaken by an ex-President of the United States. General Grant circled the globe, but it was for the most part in the beaten path of travel, while Mr. Roosevelt is going into wild and almost unexplored country.

On his arrival at the Hamburg-American Line pier at Hoboken Mr. Roosevelt was greeted by a throng of ordinary quiet mind in most lines. Wholesale trade feels the effect of tariff discussion and uncertainties, and while a fair business is doing in staples and the strange story says that disappointment is expressed at the volume of trade in other lines of merchandise. Buying from jobbers is conservative and orders are numerous rather than large and of a between-seasons character at best.

Retail trade has been hampered by stormy weather, but the approach of Easter is reflected in some improvement in demand, largely in women's wear fabrics and materials. Western trade is reflected better than that of the East in this line, but cool weather streets expansion the country over. In Chicago the retail dry goods situation is one quiet to dull, with the iron and steel trade, whose prices are weaker, this time the song was very sweet and joyful; and then the angel blessed the bird, the seat and the beautiful white eggs. And the strange story says that ever since that night the eggs of that bird change their color, and instead of being white they are red, yellow and blue, so that people may be reminded of that first Easter day.

The Scala Santa.

"I found the Scala Santa (holy stairs) most interesting, for certainly it is the strangest sight in the world," writes a woman who spent last Easter in Rome. "An enormous crowd of both sexes all ages and all ranks, was ascending the staircase on their knees, kissing each step. I saw elegantly dressed ladies, princesses, her majesty the queen, following humbledmy behind also the real countryman with their sandaled feet almost in contact with the faces of the humble disciples of St. Peter's, from which the fire is taken to light the lamps before all the altars of the Fatherhood of the high altar is holy sit by one of the cardinals; then at a given signal, forward, forward, like a trained troop the legions of St Peter's. Thousands of 400 churches pent out the good news—

"Ring out the darkness of the land!"
"Ring in the Christ that is to be."

The curtains are drawn from the paintings, and the organ bursts forth with the glorious "Jubilate."

A Lasting Easter Gift.

An Easter present that will give real lasting pleasure is a window box filled with growing plants. Cut flowers are ephemeral, and often the potted plant bought and set on an Easter gift box but a little while.

The window boxes are a new departure for this purpose. They are of rustic bark, shingle, square or round, and of any desired size. Sometimes the flower pots are set in boxes lined with lead, so that the boxes can be used as a sunny window sills.

Rolling Eggs at the White House.

The White House egg rolling is the big event of the year in Washington society. Babies, rich and poor, black and white, gather here for their annual picnic in the President's back lot. The youngsters "pick" eggs, roll them up and down the grassy slopes and sing and frolic to the music of a band. Presidents of the United States have not felt it beneath their dignity to join in the fun.

An Easter Lay.

My no one knows quite my fun.
Yet sadly one for the things I've done)
As when I lay on bar the light
My no one thinks it's just right.
And if I pleased I'd stay out later,
Not one cares what I do or where.

EASTER LILIES AT CHRIST'S TOMB.

Long ago, as Easter emblem,
Blooms the lilies, tall and white,
Pure and stainless of flowers,
Gleaming with celestial light.

Man, as if with prayer and footing,
Take with watching by the dead,
Near a garden they lingered,
Low before it bowed the head.

For the angels' silent fingers,
As they softly waited there,
Touched the scent, the mystic lilies
Lovingly, with tender care.

While the world in solemn stillness
Watched the coming of the day
Of that time, that ancient Easter
When the stone was rolled away.

And when morning dawned resplendent,
And on earth its glory shed,
Beside the Holy Sepulchre
"Christ is risen from the dead"
—Christian Work.

EASTER'S DEEP MEANING.

Slow It May Be Incorporated into the Life of Every Person.

It seems clear that a pure spirit will arise from the ashes of a pure body and a lasting spirit from the seed of a lasting body. If the body we sorrowfully put aside has been consecrated to duty, helpful, kindly and eager to speak tender, pitying words of cheer, it has thought no evil and has believed all things—can anyone doubt that should come of such a life and such faithful ministry unto the spirit? Can anyone doubt that such a life is the spirit? It is far more glorious, but, after all, it is the same.

So we may bring Easter, with its wonderful deep meaning, into the life of every day. Here Thy have to ourselves to comprehend the truth that Christ is risen indeed, and that we develop this natural body. It is not alone the natural body we are creating, but the soul is also growing, if the faithful is to come after.

This is a mystical doctrine. All those who in this life have attained some knowledge of their spiritual nature will testify to its truth. The change from a natural to a spiritual living is like the opening of a door whose need we have sown. The right plant surely grows in a man who has sown the right seed.

As the spiritual nature of a man begins to develop, he finds higher ideals in him grow stronger, and one by one the lower self die. Hate dies and revenge and anger. Cruelty dies, and all unkindness. Narrowness of mind dies, and narrow heads for the fraternity of others.

The part that lives and grows strong are love. Purity and truth and courage are but parts of love, and as it grows greater, love and by comes the surcness of knowledge, and faith itself is swallowed up in knowing.

This is the daily burial of the old man who was buried with Christ on the rising of the new, who is the "Lord from Heaven." To such a heart Easter comes every day.—Harvard Bible.

Legend of the Easter Eggs.

There are several legends that explain the custom of coloring eggs at Easter, but perhaps this is one of the prettiest:

After the crucifixion of Christ, Joseph of Arimathea took the body and laid it in a tomb hewn out of a rock. The story goes that a beautiful lily, bearing three blossoms, grew from the tomb. A bird had built its nest in this tree, and in the nest were four pretty white eggs. When the bird saw the blossoms and the feet of the Lord pierced with the nails she began to sing a sorrowful song. All that night through she sang the same song, full of grief and pain.

Not long after, when the angel rolled away the stone from the tomb and the Lord arose, the bird sang again. But this time the song was very sweet and joyful; and then the angel blessed the bird, the seat and the beautiful white eggs. And the strange story says that ever since that night the eggs of that bird change their color, and instead of being white they are red, yellow and blue, so that people may be reminded of that first Easter day.

The Scala Santa.

"I found the Scala Santa (holy stairs) most interesting, for certainly it is the strangest sight in the world," writes a woman who spent last Easter in Rome. Why Not?

At Two Sepulchres.

"He is not here! behold! He is not here!
He broke the narrow bonds in sunlight sealed prison!
Lo! He hath conquered death!"
For this the angel said.
"He is not here! the Christ is surely risen!"

A soul once dead hath found today new life!
A buried heart hath broken Sin's dark prison!
And on this Easter day
It hath the angels say:
"He is not here! He lives! this soul is risen!"

Easter Hare.

Eggs suggest hens. This gave rise probably to the Easter rabbit or Easter hare. However this may be, it is certain that in the Blue Grass State the hare is as indispensable to the Easter dinner as turkey to a Christmas

MICHIGAN LAWMAKERS

Liquor Bill Defeated.

The dispensary bill to bring the entire liquor business of the State under control was defeated in the House Tuesday night, 43 to 46, without a roll call that lasted nearly seven hours.

The result was a great surprise. This action probably seems no longer legislation this session unless a bill comes from the Senate or some amendments are made to the present laws, but as the liquor interests are now all for, they can look anything attempted to be prohibitionists. After numerous harangues the proposition to refer the bill to the judiciary committee, with instructions to report it or pick the best features and amend the present law, which was voted down in the afternoon, was revived by Representative Colby and received 49 some votes, a majority of all the members declared, when this report was made to the House. Representative Crompton moved as a substitute that bill after being amending changes be stricken out, which carried by the following vote:

Yeas—Aldrich, Bat, Beeman, Bergeson, Brant, Chambers, Chandler, Cranston, Cummings, Dalman, Dawson, Dickinson, Dodge, Dunn, Eaton, Ellis, Fairchild, Fox, Hack, Hackett, Hinkley, Jensen, Kessinger, Lee, Lewis, Lyons, Mann, Mapes, McCall, Olin, Merritt, Morrison, Nickels, Odell, Osborne, Pierce, Pierson, Pollock, Prentiss, Sawyer, Shaw, Shepard, Shepherd, Smith, Stevens, Stewart, Tarbell, Wallace, Wheeler, Wood—Wood, Wright, Yeomans, Yost—49.

Then the committee came on conference report, which was adopted, which carried, 46 to 45.

Makes School Books Cheaper.

If the text-book bill failing the privilege of school boards which was introduced by Senator Brown becomes law, the State Board of Education and the president of the Michigan Normal College will select the books. From their top the county school commissioners and trustees will select books for their respective counties, except in cities of over 10,000 and in districts organized by special law, in which cases the boards of education will select the books. The bill fixes the maximum prices on the books, namely: For spelling books, 10 cents; primer, 15; second reader, 17; third reader, 22; fourth reader, 28; fifth reader, 40; intermediate arithmetic, 28; intermediate arithmetic, 25; complete arithmetic, 35; elementary geography, 30; complete geography, 75; English grammar and language, elementary, 30; complete grammar, 35; physiology and hygiene, 40; elementary history of the United States, 50; history of United States, 60; history of Michigan, 40; elementary physics, 50; elementary physics, 50; physical geography, 50; elements of agriculture, 40; bookkeeping, 40. The standard of books is fixed by the bill.

Change Child Labor Law.

There was an interesting hearing in the Senate on Senator Taylor's bill to amend the child labor law. It provides that when a boy or girl between the ages of 14 and 16 years desires to go to work they simply have to go before a notary public, accompanied by one of their parents, and swear that the child is over 14 years of age. Instructor Dairy of the Farmers' Institute of Michigan, and others who are interested in the economic question, framed the bill, which provides that all such children must obtain a certificate from the superintendent of public instruction instead of from a notary public. Boards of education have collect information regarding children of school age who work and by forcing children to apply to the superintendent of public instruction they would be forced to go before a notary public, accompanied by one of their parents, and swear that the child is over 14 years of age. The cars handled by the railroads were so many more that the two months are thought into decided contrast. Building permits increased in numbers and there was a marked alteration for the better in the class of buildings it was proposed to erect. Reports in the lumber trade.

Crude foodstuffs show in December, 1907, 25¼ millions; in December, 1908, 19¾ millions; in December, 1909, 14½ millions, the fall accounting almost exclusively in wheat of which the quantity exported in December, 1907, was but 20¼ millions, but in December 1909 it was but 1¾ millions. CLARK ON WAR PATH.

Government Superintendent Says the Ming Bill Will Stop Spawn Fishing.

A Lansing Special says:

That the United States Fish Commission herein at Washington will close the government hatcheries at Northville, Charlevoix and Alpena and cease their work of propagating fish in Michigan if the Ming bill now before the senate becomes a law was a pretty strong intimation made here this afternoon by Frank M. Clark, the bureau's Michigan superintendent. He made it before the senate committee on fisheries, of which Senator Ming, the introducer of the bill, is chairman.

Mr. Clark has been in the government fish service for many years and is recognized as one of the best authorities on fish culture in the country.

The reason why the government would close the hatcheries is that the Ming bill, if it becomes a law, would greatly decrease the efficiency of the bureau's work in Michigan, although it would, as it is asserted, increase the political power and patronage of the state game warden. The state game warden's department is working hard for the bill. There are reasons for believing that Supt. Clark did not give the information on his own responsibility.

During the committee's hearing Senator Ming and Game Warden Pierce asked various questions of Supt. Clark with the evident purpose of trying to get out something that would reflect on him. There had been gossip fostered by the small commercial fishermen that A. Booth & Co., known as the fish trust, had some sort of an underground connection with either Supt. Clark or the Washington bureau. Senator Ming asked questions bearing on this subject.

Specifically the things hinted at are that the superintendent had been letting chilly fish trust tugs to take white fish and trout during the closed season, the spawn to be delivered to agents of the government hatcheries and the fishermen to keep the fish for their expenses and passage. Supt. Clark denied emphatically that this was true, so far as letting trust tugs, and agreed to furnish a committee with the name of every tug and tug owner and the hailing port that he has employed since the present working arrangement was made with the state four years ago.

Senator Ming said the committee is going to make a thorough investigation into charges which he says have been going for several years and which might involve the work of the Washington bureau. Supt. Clark suggested that if the bureau was going to be dogged in the committee might take the matter up with the authorities at Washington. Senator Ming said they would proceed without asking. In other words, investigation the bureau without the bureau knowing it is being investigated.

By the working arrangement the bureau has in Michigan it employs tugs to take the fish during the spawning season. Government experts on each tug strip the fish of the spawn, which is then hatched in one of the three hatcheries. Seventy-five per cent of the spawn is placed in the big lakes. Some fish stocks are hatched in the state hatcheries and they are planted only in inland waters.

The bill at first proposes that the game wardens shall act as the federal bureau in so far as gathering spawn is concerned. The warden is to issue permits to take fish in the closed season. His employes shall secure the spawn impregnated and after loading up the hatcheries shall plant the surplus in the lakes.

Supt. Clark declared that if the game warden's department did the work the federal bureau would not be able to tell whether the spawn delivered to the hatcheries was good or bad. It might be overripe or underripe. Not knowing the conditions under which it was taken the government expert could not tell in case of the failure to hatch what the cause was.

In a word, if the legislature wants the federal bureau to go into partnership with the state game warden and their employes, the state will have to get along "thout federal aid or fish propagation.

About 200 tons of trout were taken during last year's closed season for government spawn. This amount had a market value of about $20,000, Supt. Clark, replying to the charge that as favored fish trust tugs, declared that if the committee can show a single instance where he discriminated in hiring tugs he would resign his position with the government. In hiring them he said he was always actuated by a desire to get tugs that would turn in the greatest amount of spawn for the amount of money the government had to spend for the work.

As to another charge that the fishermen whose tugs he hired were obliged to sell their chatches to the trust, he said it was positively not so. He called on Rep. Jensen, of Escanaba, who is a competent fisherman, and Jensen said he had caught fish for the government for three spawning seasons and he had never been asked as a condition that he must sell his catches to the trust or to any other particular person. He said there where he got the best price, he said.

Supt. Clark said that the two best places to get whitefish spawn is at Belle Isle and Grassy Island, in the Detroit river. Both of these fishing grounds being owned by the government would be closed if the Ming bill passes. He admitted that the Belle Isle fishery was operated last season by a man hired by his son and Dwight Laydell. The latter is regularly employed by the state commission and during the spawning season works for the government.

Supt. Clark admitted without reserve that the contractor a few days before the fish had to be taken for the spawn said he could not fulfill the contract. Sub-contractors who were competent had to be then employed in a hurry and that is how the son and Laydell came to do the work. They did not, he understood, any more than come out even.

It is alleged that under the present arrangements the federal bureau is fooled, and that more fish, by many tons, are taken by government employed tugs than are needed to produce the necessary spawn. The Ming bill would permit everybody that has the facilities to catch fish during the closed season and turn in all the spawn they get to the state game warden's department.

CHARLEVOIX ELECTION.

In the Third Ward Amos Webster, Labor candidate defeated E. H. Ward by 50 majority.

The results appear to show that it is not popular to be an alderman as all the aldermen who were candidates for re-election were defeated.

Considering the city election as a whole, we believe that the Republican Party is fast rounding and we predict that under the leadership of Capt. Wilbur the City of Charlevoix will be redeemed and returned to the Republican Party, and that next fall we shall be able to look to the City of Charlevoix for a substantial Republican majority in our local city and county elections.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

East Jordan Enterprise—Next Wednesday morning about 70,000 trout will be received from the State Fish Hatchery to be planted in the streams adjacent to this place.

Charlevoix County Herald: W. A. Loveday was among the great number of people who paid their last tribute of love and esteem at the funeral of the late Bishop Gillespie which was held in Grand Rapids recently. He was years ago, one of the throng of infants that have been baptized by the aged bishop.

Petoskey Independent: The church of Wexford county is neither lazy nor backbreaking. He and a deputy drove out in the county near Manton to locate an 80 acre. The man for whom their warrant read was trying to get some wood split for a half mile wide, and looked wistfully at the pile, so both the sheriff and deputy jumped in and split enough to last the woman over for many days, and then took the husband away.

Cheboygan Tribune: Fred C. Hobert, the mail carrier between Cheboygan and Point aux Pins and Walker's Point postoffices, came near being drowned while going back with the mail Monday afternoon, when about a mile out from the Embury-Martin mill dam, he broke through the ice. He was walking behind his team of dogs which were attached to a sleigh containing two mail bags and the generation. When Mr. Hobert fell in the dogs came back, and to doing so also got in. One mail bag for Point aux Pins was lost as was also the other articles. Mr. Hobert after being in the water about twenty minutes, breaking ice in trying to get out, and getting his fingers worn from slipping managed to get out, but was so exhausted he could not help himself. Men on the mill dock saw the struggle in the water and went to his assistance some too soon, as he was a pretty weak man when taken to the Embury-Martin mill office where medical aid was summoned. He was almost again the next day and made the crossing successfully.

Lincoln Club Banquet Postponed.

The officers and committees of the Grand Traverse Lincoln Club have held a meeting and decided to postpone the 1909 banquet indefinitely. This action has been found imperative owing to the fact that on Friday, the 9th, the day set for the banquet, is Good Friday, and also the anniversary of the surrender of Lee, which will be commemorated generally by G. A. R. posts.

Word has also been received of the serious illness of Hon. Lou Wilson, who was selected as toastmaster, which will prevent him being present at the meeting. Word has also come to the committee that three of the speakers will be unavoidably absent owing to important legal and other engagements.

In view of these facts it has been deemed advisable to postpone the banquet and meeting.

A Black Eye for Home.

It is a common fashion to bire a hall and invite your friends, to give dinner parties in a hotel, to be married in a church, to be taken to a hospital when you are sick and carried to an undertaker's as soon as you die, and left there until the funeral. The home is to conduct all public occasions away from home. The home is getting a black eye—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

A Musical Thief.

At Birmingham, England, where tons of musical instruments and jewelry are made every year, a boy has been arrested for stealing 2,000 — one band. As he could play only one at a time, it puzzles the police to know why he should take so many at once. Perhaps he wanted some to lay away for his old age, or maybe he was going to invest a way to work them with his toes.

nent. By many specific incidents it has demonstrated that the spirit of playing the game fair and square that prevails in Boy City appeals to and brings out the best there is in boys. We expect to hold our camp at Boy City again this year.

Boy City is the greatest "citizen factory" in the world. It makes clean christian life popular for a boy. It gives a boy a vision of great deeds, great men, great ideals by seeing, hearing and touching them, and it gives the most whole-some and healthy fun in every way offered a boy.

In addition to this, Boy City with its thousand or fifteen hundred juvenile citizens, its various activities, entertainments, the circus, and one of the best juvenile bands in America, and afford an enterprise of great and unique interest to Charlevoix and to the thousands of visitors who come here every summer.

Boy City will begin about the 25 of July and will last three or four weeks. The business end of the proposition is conducted by a corporation known as the Boy City Association. It is composed of five men of unquestioned integrity and large experience in handling boys and knowing what they want, and has a board of advisors of a dozen or more people of national reputation and influence.

Water Plant For Chicago Club.

Alonzo Powers has closed a contract with the Chicago Club to construct for the Club a fifty foot water tower and to lay three and one half miles of pipe. The contract is probably the largest ever secured by a Charlevoix plumber.

We regret very much that our city plant could not induce the Chicago Club to use city water, and question the advisability of not making terms with them. However, we congratulate Mr. Powers on securing the contract and feel assured that he will complete the contract on time.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOLUME XI, CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1909 NUMBER 15

ENJOINED.

The "Wets" Take Out Injunction Against Canvass of Local Option Vote on Technical Ground.

Notwithstanding the pronounced majority in favor of prohibition the opposition took out a temporary injunction in Judge Mayne's court Saturday, restraining the Board of Supervisors from canvassing the vote, on the grounds that the local option proposition was printed on a separate ballot, whereas the law requires it to be on the same ballot with the good roads proposition. Wednesday, the Board was here Tuesday morning to perform their official duty.

Judge Mayne opened his court Tuesday morning to hear arguments before deciding whether the injunction should be made perpetual. Hon. J. M. Harris appeared for the dry and Mr. Shanahan for the wets. Tl e arguments lasted all day, citing the law involving the question as to whether or not the statute prescribing the form of ballot is mandatory.

At four o'clock the Judge, in a verbal review of the case and the law covering it, dissolved the injunction. The complainants then took the necessary steps for an appeal to the supreme court.

Meanwhile the Board of Supervisors proceeded at once to canvas the vote.

Another Old Timer Gone.

Mack Genette, one of the best known farmers in this part of the county, died suddenly of heart disease, at his home in Norwood township, last Sunday.

Deceased was one of the earliest settlers of Norwood, locating there in the early sixties. His wife survives him. Mr. Genette was a man of sterling integrity.

The First Battle.

The first battle for prohibition in Charlevoix County has been fought and won. But the enemy has rallied to a second line of entrenchments only to renew the manifestly hopeless fight. It is but a dernier resort and a forlorn hope.

The people of Charlevoix County have spoken in no uncertain accents on the question, and their decree is duly recorded in the archives of the county. To contest that decree is but to briefly defer the day of judgment.

If the supreme court's decision runs counter to that of Judge Mayne it can, at most, but give the defendants one year's new lease of life, as the will of the people is supreme, and cannot be nullified, although it may be temporarily frustrated by sinuous technical methods.

One day's profits of the thirty-seven saloons in Charlevoix county will amply pay the cost of an attorney and the printing of a supreme court brief, leaving 364 week days' profits to the good.

But we have no doubt of the result of the appeal. The saloons must go.

—The steamer Knoblock, recently bought here for the Traverse Bay route, left this port Wednesday morning for Old Mission.

—The U. S. local inspectors were here Tuesday and inspected the steamer Beaver and Knoblock and the St. James tug McCann.

—Floyd Blair, who has been in California the past two years, is home for the summer, bringing back the bride that he celebrated from the golden state.

—The SENTINEL wishes to acknowledge valuable editorial services rendered during the recent absence of the editor vendered by Mr. Lute Shanahan.

—There will be a warm sugar social at the Methodist church Orange Hall, Friday, April 16th. Pure maple sugar, biscuits, pickles and coffee. Everybody invited.

—The removal of the Carpenter home from State street to the Nicholls lot on Park Avenue was successfully accomplished this week, and the Organ library site is ready for the builders.

—Leon Miller, a graduate from the literary department of the Michigan University in June, is home on a short vacation. Leon is one of the number of college boys from Charlevoix in whom we all take a lively interest.

—Mason Hose, a student in the Detroit Business University, and for several weeks past confined in the asylum for ward of Harper Hospital of that city, arrived home Monday night. He is obliged to abandon his studies for the remainder of this school year.

—Allie Moore, the world's champion roller skater, writes his relatives here from London that he is booked for a race in Dublin Saturday of this week. He also writes that he will enter the field for running honors, and will run against an English champion in London May 27th. Two to one he wins.

—There will be special meetings at the Salvation Army Hall commencing Monday, April 19th to 25th inclusive. The Jones Sisters, who are famous singers and musicians will be the leaders, and on Friday evening, April 23rd the Mel'herson of Detroit, the V. F. S. will be the speaker. These meetings will be free until further announced.

—Sixty years ago today William H. Vosburg and Cynthia Talcott were united in matrimony in Chemung county, N. Y. In 1862 they came to Northern Michigan and located on the farm where they still happily reside in comparatively good health. "Uncle William and Aunt Cynthia" are still welcome visitors in very many Charlevoix homes when they bring the products of their vegetable gardens, as they have regularly done since Charlevoix had scheme to supply. A golden wedding with ten years on the wind of it is a record that cannot be written of very many, and the fact calls for earnest congratulations from a multitude of old friends.

—Rev. Dr. Wright is in Traverse City this week helping the pastor there in a season of revival work.

—Attorney Shanahan is in Lansing on business connected with the local option injunction appeal case.

—Chas. Baker has the contract to raise the Charlevoix Lumber Co's smoke stacks, and is on the job.

—Regular convocation of Charlevoix Chapter, R. A. M., Monday evening, April 19th. Companions are cordially invited to be present. By order of H. P.

—Joe Pfister, son of Adam Pfister, of this city, and a sailor boy of Rob Evans' "around the horn" fleet, is home with his parents, his term of enlistment having expired.

—An entertainment will be given by the children of St. Mary's school, under the direction of the Sisters, at the school building, on the evening of Friday, April 16th, at 7:30 o'clock.

—Mr. and Mrs. I. M. McLean, formerly of Charlevoix, but now of Flint, are in the city for a week's visit with old friends and neighbors. While here he sold his house and lot to Mrs. John C. Miller.

—J. E Henderson, circuit court stenographer, just to show that he is not afraid, took three dips into Lake Cadillac and means to enjoy the swim. He has been the first spring bather in that part of the country for years.

—The steamship Missouri left Chicago last night, the 14th, on her first trip, and is expected to arrive here Friday evening. This starts the spring schedule of a boat out of Chicago every Wednesday and Friday evening.

—Mrs. John Withers and her daughter Lottie, who have been living in Flint for several years, returned to Charlevoix last week. Mr. Withers will arrive next week, and the family will occupy their old home, which they have retained. They expect to remain here.

—Deputy United States Marshal Crimmell has returned from Manistee, where he tied up the passenger steamer Manitou in connection with a suit for $500 started by James E. Sommerville. It is alleged that the Cassigan sought to cover injuries sustained to a horse last belonging to Sommerville with which the Manitou collided last summer.

—We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. Bert A. Wilbur, written from Chicago, in which he says: "I take pleasure in advising you that I have become identified with the real estate firm of Ballard & Co., and from this on will give my time exclusively to this work." You may be sure he will "give his time exclusively" to the work, or any other work that he undertakes; for Bert Wilbur has not only the ability to do good work, but the energy to do lots of it. There is no doubt whatever about his success.

—Hereafter boats navigating the Grand River, as well as the other inland waters of the country, must carry lights at both stern and bow, and must be provided with whistles of sufficient power to give signals to other craft. This ruling has recently been adopted by the United States department of marine at Washington, and orders have been sent out to that effect. This will mean a lot of expense to the owners of launches, but the accidents which will be averted by the lights and whistles will more than compensate.

Back from the mineral baths, where they soak you in more ways than one, comes the editor, with considerable bodily disfiguration, but still in the ring for another good hot fight if the faces decree it. Back to his first love—the dear old Seventeen—with an ambition a little in excess of all his physical strength. But an abiding confidence in his ability to pull well in the harness as soon as the breast gails can stand the collar.

We are inspired by the thought that friends appreciate the difficulties under which we have labored and are still laboring, and extend their charity that "maketh as the gentle dew from heaven."

TREE PLANTING

You May Take Your Choice of Two Methods Very Unlike.

Now that Arbor Day is almost here, it is not amiss to learn something of the best way in which to get the best returns for the labor and effort expended in planting trees and shrubbery.

An agricultural paper gives some experiences as to the proper plans, and after reading them, the horticulturist is at liberty to take his choice:

Tree planting revolutionizes. It is an article of faith among fruit growers that a fruit tree must be planted in properly prepared soil, a large, wide, shallow hole, the roots carefully spread out in all directions and arranged near the surface with a slight upward bearing at the ends.

Small quantities of the finer soil are first worked in among the roots, hollow places caused by nothing in the stouter roots are filled up, the remainder of the soil is put in, trodden carefully down, and the whole left to the compacting influence of the rain. The tree is supported by stakes until it is firmly established.

But Spencer U. Pickering, with his recent researches, declares that proper tree planting means a small hole, roots doubled up anyhow, the trees stuck in, the soil thrown in and rammed down as for a gate post. With extensive experiments 59 per cent show in favor of the new simple method, 27 show no difference, and 14 per cent show against the new way. By whatever criterion the trees are gauged the new method is said to give better results than the orthodox. Although an unforgiveable cry has been raised against the revolution theory, no practical man has been able to give any reason for the old faith that is in him beyond the fact that it is sanctioned by established custom.

Examination proves that ramming has led to a copious development of fibrous roots. In planting the important thing is to induce fresh root formation, and ramming does this more rapidly than the old way.

THE SUPERVISORS.

Norwood Supervisor Gets the Chairmanship—Standing Committees.

The Board of Supervisors, called together by statute to canvas the vote, performed that duty yesterday, finding the total vote cast on the local option proposition to be 1670, and the majority for prohibition to be 1183. The county road proposition was defeated by 257 majority.

The Board elected John H. Bigelow, of Norwood, chairman for the ensuing year, who appointed the following committees:

Claims—W. J. Gallagher, E. J. Meech, Frank Bennett, A. L. Dotty.
Finance—Chas. Hayes, Geo. E. Gillespie, E. J. Meech, M. A. McDonald, George Taylor.

At Horse Falls Saturday night four business places were burglarized and all the robber wanted for his trouble was about $80. Daniel Hunter, giving his residence as Harrison, was arrested Monday at Eustus by Deputy Sheriff Meeker and is now in jail charged with the crime. The places entered were Hyer Bros., hardware store, Pearson Bros.' hardware store, and the saloons of Loyd Elwood and George Kellar.

Grand Rapids Herald: The sugarcane court has decided that persons residing in a local option county may have beer to their guests. The opinion was returned in the case of Wm. Peterson, of Cadillac, who served some beer to a party of friends who called at his house to celebrate the birthday anniversary of his daughter. Peterson was convicted in the court below and carried the case up to the supreme court.

Northern Michigan.

A Traverse City special to the Grand Rapids Herald says: "Work has already commenced on North Manitou island for the summer season. In addition to the new dock for the big steamers there will be a railroad built for hauling logs to mill and carrying passengers into forests on the island. A fine lake in the center of the island has been stocked with bass and other fish, special attention being paid to getting ready for the opening of the season for resorters.

Traverse City Eagle: Another line was disposed of court today for violation of the fish law. Tony Stangeri of Suttons Bay having been arrested by Deputy Game and Fish Warden G. A. Smith and brought before Judge Noringer for catching with a net perch weighing less than four ounces each in the vicinity. He was fined $25 and costs of $6, or 20 days in jail. Stangeri paid up. The maximum fine for this violation is $100, and as this was the ninth first offense he was given minimum fine $25.

Cheboygan Tribune: There is a project of organizing a stock company among the boys left face for putting in a real class team in the field this year to represent Cheboygan, that will remind the fans of the good old days when we had the goods and delivered them. It will need a nice sum of money to put things in shape as the grounds and fence will need a lot of repairs and a pitcher will have to be engaged to strengthen the club. Now is the time to get together and organize before too late.

Petoskey News: A true pioneer of northern Michigan and Emmet county passed away Sunday morning in the death of Francis Petoskey. He has been sick for a long time with a severe attack of the grip, and at his advanced age his strength was insufficient to withstand the shock of the sickness. He was 76 years of age at the time of his demise, which occurred at his home, in Bear Creek township, about five miles southeast of the city. He was a widower, and leaves six children to mourn his death; Thomas, William and Paul Petoskey, all living in Bear Creek township, Joe Petoskey at Harbor Springs, and two daughters, Mary and Jane Petoskey, who lives in southern Michigan. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning from St. Francis Catholic church, at 10:00 o'clock, the remains to be buried in St. Francis cemetery. The deceased was the oldest son of Chief Ignatius Petoskey, for whom the city of Petoskey was named.

CHAPTER XIX.

At Guildford is a quiet street, comprised principally of small, unassuming cottages. Hather conspicuous amongst these tenements as being a little larger than its fellows, and having a very well-to-do air about it, is a house bearing the tender sonnetonsing, "Mrs. Bulger, Lavendon, Washing done here." and Mrs. Bulger, the tenant, a hale, shrewd, bustling woman, verging on sixty, was reputed to be one of the most prominent gossiphounds of the street.

Mrs. Bulger's front room on the first floor which formed her parlor, was swept and garnished with the neatness and skill from the rather elaborate preparations made for one, it looked as if Mrs. Bulger expected company. There was a knock at the door at 8 o'clock the evening of the room to admit her guest.

Mrs. Maxon was a brown, freckle-faced woman, some ten years younger than her hostess. She had Mrs. Bulger's smiles of good luck, which the smart flowers in her bonnet showed she had, and a brown wrapped cloak in Like Mrs. Bulger, she also had been left a widow, but not having her friend's energy or business capabilities, she determined to rely upon her personal charms, instead of her personal exertions, to furnish her with another husband. This had happened some seven or eight years ago, and though she had not succeeded in her quest, she was anxious to marry the barons Polly thought, that if she could but get well landed in a place by very elderly admirer, and consequently a very feeble one, she might be considerable of your being in old friend and putting me up to it, I was quite prepared to make you a handsome present—say a fourth."

After nearly an hour's wrangling between these two mercenary old women, Mrs. Bulger terms were at last settled, and her guest was then informed that the widow's eye for one less than a fourth.

"And where did you say he was?" inquired Mrs. Bulger.

"I don't remember naming the place," replied Polly, with a sly glance at her hostess; "will you promise, Dorcas, you have driven a terrible hard bargain with me, but I always stick to what I say, believe you instead it should be, and believe it shall be. As for poor old Terence, he is in Portsmouth workhouse."

CHAPTER XX.

Ringwood presented himself in the Victoria Hotel the next morning. He was welcomed by Mary, who, having introduced him to "Mr. Lewis Wright and Bessie, tele, left the room in quest of her cloak and bonnet.

"You must pardon an old woman's curiosity; but seem to see a most extraordinary errand that you are carrying Miss Chichester of mine, for I am her nurse," said Mrs. Lynn Wregis, "that this is an old acquaintance of Miss Bessie's, who have been long in search; but now he is discovered, she has no need to come to her, instead of her having to tear down to Portsmouth to see him?"

"Well, I should, of course, seem odd to you; but then Miss Fimlagh stands in a somewhat peculiar position to Miss Chichester. She has doubtless told you that he was her betrothed while she was in all the terrible hold of Gerlyshaw, and that he has carried her away in time, when a child, to his area. But what she could not tell you is, that Fimlagh is so far from in health, and has so fallen in his mental powers, that ceasing to her is impossible. Further, there is a necessity for proving the old man's identity, as there is a small sum of money coming to Miss Chichester that depends upon this Fimlagh being here alive at a certain date.

"My journey to Portsmouth Miss Chichester found somewhat monotonous. Her companion resolutely refused being anything but strictly the man of business. All the particulars of Fimlagh's discovery she refused to her hold her of the chance of bonds in which she must be prepared to find the old man; how that they were to pack on two old servants of her grandfather's, at Guildford—those who had known Fimlagh well in former days, and quite recollected her father; but who had, of course, never seen her; and also did she explain to her, in purposely cloudy fashion, that she came into a small sum of money on reversion, the interest of which revenues had depended upon Terence Flanigan's outliving somebody else.

At Guildford they picked up Mrs. Bulger and Mrs Maxton. Upon arrival at the female seaport, Mrs. Maxton at once took command of the party. That lady having contrived felt that she was in her own domain, and that her knowledge of the streets was beyond dispute. In a very short time the party arrived at the door of the neatness of Mr. Mary's Head. Miss Chichester could not resist a shudder, as she passed through the threshold of the portals.

"It seems to my idea of a gaol," she whispered to Ringwood. "Dear Terence, I shall feel quite uncomfortable until he is out of this place."

Traversing a long, narrow, stringcourt passage, and glancing occasionally on their way through the half-open doors of wards, where little rows of wizened, decrepit old men cowered in their sad-coloured garments over the fire, they at last reached a door at which Mr. Mattox knocked.

"This is the ward, sir, in which we shall find Fimlagh. Women folk rather prefer to identify him herself, or shall we?" inquiring of the lady.

"Shall be pleased Mary. "I can scarcely have changed, in the short half time that I have been gone, so as not to be readily recognized." [illegible]

"Oh, dear me!" interrupted Polly; "anybody who has seen him of late years would know him at a glance." Mr. Mattox, the Miss Chichester judge for herself. Thus

Mr. Mattox, then ushered, three women into the ward without ceasing a single glance round the room suffered to show Mary her father's quarters, which very still in a wooden armchair by the side of the fire. She was a little, little man, indeed, considering his extreme age, was still wonderfully upright, and his face, which, if a gray hair was this, no doubt, but the light blue eyes were still wonderfully bright, and he was almost look in them, as if for ever peering far beyond the grave, which, indeed, he owner was so rapidly yielding.

"I suppose, sir, I am to leave you," inquired Ringwood, "although he certainly does look like a very harmless old man."

"No, sir; he rarely says anything, and sits in the same way from morning to evening, when round up to his fire-side. Don't shortly he will sink in a wondering way that he must go to London to see Miss Chichester, and then he will be never understood until to-day."

"And I presume," added Ringwood, "that Mr. Mattox knew nothing before he taken no notice of you."

"Not the slightest, sir. He has never seen me before, and I don't think he knows himself where he came, and if I had not that Polly and I had made up our minds, husband, we should not at this present moment be in the place we are in."

"Will you speak to him, Miss Chichester," said Ringwood.

Mary crossed the room quickly, and laying her hand lightly on the old man's shoulder, said:

"How do you do, Terence! Don't you remember Mary Mary?"

The old man turned his head towards her, and some slight signs of surprise at the fair apparition before him might have been exactly read of recognition they was no symptom.

"Sorry, Terence, you have not forgotten the child you used to carry in your arms. I am Mary Chichester, and I come to tell me" you must remember Miss Mary.

The old man's face became slightly troubled; for the first time his lips moved, and he muttered "Miss Mary?" in a low, faraway voice; but it was evident that he in no way connected the lady with the young lady who stood before him.

"Of course you have forgotten, whatever, Miss Chichester, that this is Terence Flanigan" said Ringwood, "it is naturally cut for you to find an old servant, who knows you so well, disappointed apparently satisfactory. In a business point of view his leaving Portsmouth, I see is as far as you are concerned, of no consequence. I think you can see as I write a couple of cheques for three hundred pounds, and that will be quite sufficient for him, and all about the whole rating, then I'll help you."

"Shall I tell you what we mean exactly?" inquired Mrs. Bulger. "Hatbox."

"Well, sir, my cousin, Miss Bessie," explained Polly, "I do think you perfectly reasonable in your demands. I am in possession of this information, and unnecessarily entitled to the whole reward; but, in consideration of your being old friend and putting me up to it, I was quite prepared to make you a handsome present—say a fourth."

After nearly an hour's wrangling between these two mercenary old women, Mrs. Bulger terms were at last settled, and her guest was then informed that the widow's eye for one less than a fourth.

"And where did you say he was?" inquired Mrs. Bulger.

"I don't remember naming the place," replied Polly, with a sly glance at her hostess; "will you promise, Dorcas, you have driven a terrible hard bargain with me, but I always stick to what I say, believe you instead it should be, and believe it shall be. As for poor old Terence, he is in Portsmouth workhouse."

CHAPTER XX.

Ringwood presented himself in the Victoria Hotel the next morning. He was welcomed by Mary, who, having introduced him to "Mr. Lewis Wright and Bessie, tele, left the room in quest of her cloak and bonnet.

"You must pardon an old woman's curiosity; but seem to see a most extraordinary errand that you are carrying Miss Chichester of mine, for I am her nurse," said Mrs. Lynn Wregis, "that this is an old acquaintance of Miss Bessie's, who have been long in search; but now he is discovered, she has no need to come to her, instead of her having to tear down to Portsmouth to see him?"

"Well, I should, of course, seem odd to you; but then Miss Fimlagh stands in a somewhat peculiar position to Miss Chichester. She has doubtless told you that he was her betrothed while she was in all the terrible hold of Gerlyshaw, and that he has carried her away in time, when a child, to his area. But what she could not tell you is, that Fimlagh is so far

THE POPULAR PULPIT

LIVES THAT LEAD.

By Henry F. Cope.

"The path of the just is as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—Prov. 4:18.

Pictures fade; books turn to dust; but lives live on forever. The soul of a single man has such possibilities that it can project itself through all time, touch practically all lives and fill all eternity with its form. Inside the potentialities of one life all other powers sink into insignificance. This is the privilege of the transit of the ages and all the works of our hands are but the dust on its retina.

Few may write books or paint great pictures, but all must live their lives and with as all to be determined whether they shall be great or small, high as heaven in their covering immortal or deep as the grave in their dark warning. This is the great work, just to live and to live so that the ennobling life by living the kind of life that cannot end.

The great books, pictures, sermons, oratorios of all the ages are just human lines; all our settings, conjunctions, and sayings are but reflections of the light of greatness in personality, the greatest of all being the life of some living soul. What you are is always more than what you do, what you can say or sing; the one is intelligible and possible only by the other.

We forget this and we fall of lifting to do great things; we seem to think that our lives are of very little account. That because the great life is a matter of exalted circumstance or Gethsemian opportunities, possibilities, yards about as the Helmsman, but owing to the distance from Jerusalem, the center of Palestinian commerce, they can intelligently tint grapes and make varnish raisins and sell them for exportation.

The vineyards are always surrounded by a dry stone wall and a tower built in it. On the top of this tower stone lies a watchman, who, if he be a proper one, is covered by branches, lines the family lives and from this watch-tower glean the guardian can survey the vineyard, which, though fenced and guarded with thorn bushes laid on the walls, is often visited by foxes, badgers, jackals and sometimes thieves. During the day the men are generally away at other work, and the women are alone. Office they sing among themselves a kind of round; one girl sings the first verse or line and a second sings in a distant vineyard answers and a third may join, and so the singing goes on from morning to night. These merry days are also remembered and the prophet Isaiah alludes to the time when they shall cease and the calamities of Israel.

The fig tree is also universally known, even more than the vine. The fig tree is a little, low, with dried figs in the north of Jerusalem—Bethany, Jericho, there are many kinds of fig trees, bearing early and late fruit, apart from the two kinds which all the people know, the first the figs are ripe at the end of May, in the warmer spots, and the ordinary figs begin in June or July.

No Wonder Children Ever and Cry.

"Thousands of babies die yearly who should grow to be strong and healthy men and women. Walter Weyl, in Success Magazine, says:

"One of the principal causes of this fearful, needless sacrifice is bad milk. We have not yet solved the problem of giving the child its primal food. In so many cases the mother fails, or are feeding to helpless infants, as also to our sick and convalescents, a most indescribable liquid filth—the refuse of the stable and barnyard, the dirty contamination of men and animals, the myriad germs of typhoid, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and tuberculosis. No wonder children fret and cry, languish and die. No wonder that the undertakers are busy, and that pallid infants who survive grow up rachitic, ill-developed, handicapped hopelessly in the struggle for life.

It was not intended by the original plan of nature that the world should be the foster-parent of the human infant. The mother was to continue the life she had given. But some mothers have gone to the factory, others can not, will not, or should not nurse their babies. The patient cow does its best, but cow's milk is not a perfect food for the human infant. Still, our frightful baby mortality could be reduced to a minimum if the cow's milk that came to the city, and above all the cows' milk which sold in the city, were pure and germ free.

He Didn't Care for Melon.

During one of the banquets of the Colonial Congress in London, a certain bishop had as his left-hand companion a clergyman who was conspicuously fond of dessert; the bald-headed clergyman dropped his napkin and stooped to pick it up. At this moment the bishop, who was talking to his right-hand neighbor, felt a slight touch on his left arm. He turned, and beholding the bald pate on a level with his elbow, said, "No, thank you, no melon. I will take some pineapple."—From Success Magazine.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Trying to Frighten Congress.

One set of enemies of the tariff bill are the manufacturers of the industries of the richest nation in asset duties is insisted upon. They are using some of their money to spread the alarm the well known steel mill owner, as a justification of their profiteering. According to these stories strikes are to take place in the Alabama district, and these are to extend to Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois and the rest of the great manufacturing territory. "Mr. Schwab has sent word along the line that if the duty is reduced on the steel, Are you a better man to play the Republican party in the coming election, in this way runs one of the stories. The sequel to these tales is that not just in wages will start the strikes, but these will retard the return of prosperity, and that, as a consequence, the Republican party will be seriously hampered in the congressional campaign of 1910. As the election of candidates for the election of 1910 will begin within a year after the close of the present session, these stories are intended to frighten the Republican Congress, and get it to leave the steel duties as they are in the existing law.

But this is not likely to be effective. A general strike always injures the world more than it injures the government. The Homestead lockout in the spring and early summer of 1892 Republicans took away many votes from the Republicans in that year, which helped to the Democrats at the election. But how can the proposed cut on steel be used against the Republicans in the coming election? The Democrats exhibit the cut, not because that it will cost them votes, but because it does not go far enough, instead of reducing the duties from 50 to 25 cents a ton, they have left them the Democrats, if in control of Congress, would have reduced the duties to three cents per cent. They would put steel on the free list, to keep wages down, and to keep the Steel Trust Payne bill takes away the duty of 40 cents a ton. The Republicans are making threats against the Republicans on account of the slight reduction of steel duties either have not thought of the timidity which a Democratic Congress would give them, or will be imagine that this truth can be kept out of the knowledge of the steel workers when they are trying to dupe Probably Mr. Payne and his Republican associates are not so dull. The Republican newspapers of the country will be called on to aid the attention of steel workers to this outcome.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

As to the Tariff on Lumber.

The lumber schedule in the Payne bill is perhaps the most bad in subject of long contention. It is a subject that materially interests regions which are politically very strong and under the pressure party lines will sent to Congress.

Broadly speaking, the proposed new lumber tariff cuts the present rates in two with respect to importations from countries imposing no export duty. Doubtless people who are to buy lumber hope that this will reduce prices. It may for a time, and so far as the duty has a deterrent effect will be simply to prevent for a time the further rise of prices.

It really seems as if the makers of tariff and the holders of concessionary machinery who have been so energetically pushing forward to meet the silent demand for the fading price of lumber would have more cause to complain of a revised lumber tariff than the lumbermen themselves.

But, aside from all this, there is a question of wholly rational policy involved in the lumber tariff. The time is ripe for a decision that will make a choice whether we will continue to spend money to preserve forests or will stop these efforts and let the forests disappear destruction.

We are spending a great deal of money on forest preservation and are ready to spend a great deal more. We are doing this in the hope that we can slave off a lumber famine, and that we may continue our steamboat, railway commerce and navigation, check the ravages of floods and avert disastrous climatic changes.

To spend money for these purposes on one hand, and, on the other to keep a standing premium on forest destruction, would be simply idiotic. If the present tariff does encourage forest destruction for immediate profit it would be more profitable for any fair-minded man.

Either we must cease putting a premium on forest destruction, and begin attracting forest products from other countries, or we must wipe out abolish the forestry department in Washington and abandon all plans for waterway control and improvement.

It is useless to try to build up with one hand what we are simply foolish on the right. And the choice is before us. Shall we continue to be at cross purposes in our national policy?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Revision of the Tariff.

The tariff bill is before Congress, but it is not the final stage from enactment. The measure is a fetch over which battles will be fought, a debate will take place, a ditch abandoned there. Nothing tourist the people so intensely as the tariff and nothing else is so directing to business and industry as a change in the tariff schedules.

Analysis of the proposals that have been laid before the House would be tedious, since the duties suggested are so more than suggestions. There will be clashes shaking, the influence of sections will be sharply traced. The Washington Cotton Factors Centre from leather. The settlement of Texas declare free leather will be well nigh impossible. Oregon and Washington plead for a protective tariff on lumber. The middle west demands either free trade on lumber or a lowered duty. The Pennsylvania and no doubt every other newspaper, has been asked to support changes both downward and upward. Every day yesterday a traveling press agent was in with a plea that the trade accorded the free entry of a commodity from which the government derives $50,000,000 in annual revenue. No little sympathy is due the members of Congress in the extra session.—Toledo Blade.

Democrats and the Tariff.

There is a good deal of significance in the saying of Representative Lonhead, one Democrat, to the Republican side on the tariff. He is one of the senior members of the Ways and Means committee, and he has joined the Republicans in urging those to use this power to the without any change. The South is coming over to the Republican side on the tariff. This change was predicted by astute business men of that region when the South began to organize effectively in shipping and manufacturing. Democrats as well as Republicans of the North have begun to see that free trade would quickly lose its standing there. The cost of cotton bailing shafts, the furnaces and the steel and iron mills will knocked out business, despite in a section in which it retained its vogue even after it lost caste in other parts of the country.

Brousson's advent as an ally of the Democrats in the tariff matter is a shift away from the old Morrison and Mills idea. Samuel J. Randall, if he were living, would be many miles in his own party. In coalition with the Republicans he was disposed to take his own way to defeat Morrison and Mills more than once when they attempted to force a revision on the free trade basis. It is said that Mills, who was a member of the House, is a fanatical free trade, and that Randall, the Democrat, if in control of Congress, would have reduced the duties more than 100 per cent. They would put steel on the free list, to keep wages down, and to keep the Steel Trust Payne bill takes away the duty of 40 cents a ton. The Republicans are making threats against the Republicans on account of the slight reduction of steel duties either have not thought of the timidity which a Democratic Congress would give them, or will be imagine that this truth can be kept out of the knowledge of the steel workers when they are trying to dupe Probably Mr. Payne and his Republican associates are not so dull. Pretty Touch for the General.

A French general's wife, whose name is withheld, lately asked her husband that he call upon the new servant, who had served with her husband in the Franco-Prussian war.

"Jacques," said the general, "go to your room and put your trunk and leave—depart."

The Frenchman clasped his hands to his heart with dramatic joy.

"Me—I can go?" he exclaimed in a manner so much more like a Frenchman than the Dutch, that the general was completely taken aback.

Work of Congress

What turned out to be the general debate on the tariff was a feature of the Senate proceedings Thursday on amendments to the tariff bill and the consideration of tariff legislation by the full committee on finance turned of to the Republican members of that committee only. Senator Aldrich insisted that the amendments adopted in this issue was similar to that which had been the practice of the senate for the various bill dealing with tariff measures, and he added that the same method was adopted in handling the Wilson tariff bill, for which he said a substitute was framed in a sub-committee composed of Democrats. The Democrats argued that the Republican members had sought to authorize the expenditure of public funds in furtherance of an ex parte consideration of the bill in committee. The resolution was finally referred to the committee on finance. Senator Hale's resolution declaring in favor of a restriction of the business of the present session to a period of one age of a tariff bill and a bill for the taking of the census was adopted. The Senate adjourned until Monday. Dragging feebly along, general debate on the tariff was resumed in the House.

The Senate was not in session Friday. That the Payne bill was filled with imperfections, was a fact which the Senate was ready to cover up the extravagances of the Republican administration, which had piled up a deficit of $100,000,000 in the last two years, and

HOLY GROANING.

The Sin of Worldly Pleasure in the Seventeenth Century.

Hackle gives a graphic picture of the attitude of the sire of Scotland to worldly pleasures during the seventeenth century: cheerfulness, especially when it rose to laughter, was to be guarded against. Dancing might, occasionally be allowed; still, being a carnal pastime, it was a sin to indulge on Sunday. No husband should kiss his wife and no mother her child on the Sabbath day. Jealousy was incompatible with a holy and serious life. The nuisance were given much to weeping, groaning and lamentations. One, the Rev. Alexander Innes, was noted for his "holy groan." To engage in the frivolous art of writing poems was condemned. Men should not disport themselves with mushy damsels, was it "sedulous sin." Impossible even at a christening was a scandal. One should speak and walk with gravity and solemnity; he should not enjoy his dinner; only the ungodly relished food. The great object of life was to be in a state of affliction. Whatever pleased the senses was suspected. Whatever was natural was wrong. The churchgoers grew sour in countenance, harsh in voice. Joy and love disappeared or were forced to hide in obscure corners.

MAN MONEY.

The Old Teutonic Law on Killing or Injuring Others.

The system of atoning for death or bodily injuries inflicted on others by paying a ransom is as old as the earliest Teutonic laws, praised by Tacitus. The ransomer was always required to make peace with the aggrieved family of the victim by "Wer-Geld."

"Wer" is the ancient German for man. "Geld," now, as in the days of Wotan, means money.

Damages were assessed in accordance with the rank and wealth of the injured party, and the money was paid over in the presence of the whole community. In seventeen forestalling feuds. Indeed, the recondition of Wer-Geld (ransom for the man) kindly by law prevented further bloodshed or other forms of revenge.

If the slayer was not rich enough to pay the required sum, he turned over to the injured parties his sons as slaves. If his sons were not sufficient guarantee for the payment of the debt, the slayer himself had to turn bondsman, bath the latter and the spirit of the law requiring that the full amount of damage inflicted be recovered by the aggrieved parties.—New York World.

Fulfilling His Agreement.

Having become tired of living in rented homes, Mr. Gumsoap had built a house of his own. Not having enough money to pay for it outright, he had made a cash payment of $1,000 and given a trust deed on the property for the remainder. One night, not long after he had taken possession of his new home, Mrs. Gumsoap roused him from a deep sleep.

Mr. Gumsoap crawled out of bed and started downstairs.

"What are you going to do?" she asked him.

"I'm going to let him in," he answered, half awake.

"To let him in? Why?"

"The man that holds the trust deed on this property," he mumbled. "The document I signed finds me to admit him to the premises at any hour of the day."—Youth's Companion.

Too Much For His Mind.

"My few linguists," mutter the old man musingly, "are fast dying out. In fact, I think that I may venture without fear of undue exaggeration to say that they are very good. But I never met one that I felt like set on second thoughts. This trait is my character, now, I believe, I have seen, my second thoughts are always bad. In fact, I think I may say without fear of subsequent contention that they're rank."

"Well," said gentle he who was listening, "why don't you wait until third thoughts and set on them?"

Mournfully, decidedly, the old man eyed individual about his friend.

"My dear sir," he at last said, "I never had three successive thoughts about anything in my life."—Exchange.

At His Own Risk.

Caller (to crutches and with a bandage over one eye—I have come, sir, to make application for the insurance on my accident insurance policy. I fell down a long flight of stairs the night evening and sustained damages that will disable me for a month to come.

Manager of Company—Young man, I have taken the trouble to investigate your case, and I find you are not entitled to anything. It could not be called an accident. You certainly knew the young lady's father was at home.

An Old Saw Strikes a Nail.

Mr. Scrimpshire (musingly)—As Lincoln said, a man may fool some of the people all the time and all the people some of the time. Mrs. Scrimpshire (gaily)—But you can't fool me any of the time!—Puck.

Didn't Take the Bait.

Miss Antiquette (musingly)—I dislike my name; it's horrid. Mr. Fly (absently)—Yes, it's a pretty name. Miss Antiquette (coldly)—Mr. Fly, I prefer to be addressed as Miss Antiquette.

Great Expression.

"They tell me, Grinsby, that your daughter sings with great expression."

"Ground expression you ever saw. Her own mother can't recognize her lines when she's singing."—Home Herald.

Insects' Wings.

The wings of the homely cheese fly move a second; those of the bee, 200.

Avoiding Embarrassment.

"Hitson," said his mother, "when you divided those five cupcakes with your good friend, did you give her three?"

"No, ma; I thought they wouldn't come out even, so I ate one from I began to divide."—United Presbyterian.

Not Uncertain.

"Do you believe in metempsychosis?" "I don't know. Is it one of those new mind cures?"

Not Dressed For the Party.

A prominent Southdown (Ct.) boy, who had been invited with a party of attorney, was sent to a party. Shortly before this guests arrived the hostess (Mrs. Wemyss) the house to see that everything was in order. Meeting the young from the grounds on the hall pedestal, she asked the old fellow what he had done with it.

"Why, Mrs. Wemyss, you mean, anyway," he replied.

"Yes, the Venus. Where is it?"

"Well, you, Miss Minerva, you know, I'm not, perhaps, but I jes' thought a company like expected this would fell better on Miss Wemy under the shadow."—Lady's Home Journal.

BIG MILITARY PRISON BURNS.

The military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, was partially destroyed by fire at midnight Wednesday night. The 800 prisoners all were taken from the main building at 10 o'clock as the fire reached it and none was injured.

The convicts were confined in a stockade under the guard of United States troops. None of them, so far as is known, succeeded in gaining his liberty during the transfer to the stockade. At 2 o'clock some of the officers had cooled sufficiently to allow half of the prisoners to return. The others will be taken to the Federal prison, two miles away, at daylight. Two of the School authorities were fighting the fire were injured. The property loss on the building is estimated at $200,000.

The fire was first discovered at 10 o'clock in the tailor shop. It soon spread to the shoe shop and the blacksmith establishment. Lack of water pressure prevented all hope of saving even the main building, and it was decided to move the inmates. Long before this however, the convicts had seen the flames and fearing their wounds be burned to death, they battered on the bars of their cells and screamed with terror.

As soon as a sufficient number of soldiers, including cavalrymen, had gotten under arms a strong cordon was thrown about the prisoners and the delivery of the prisoners began. The sick were removed first, placed in ambulances, and taken to the Fort Leavenworth hospital under guard of cavalry. The records were removed from the administration building. If everything had gone well there is perfect order there doubtless would have been lost. As it was, strict military discipline prevailed.

SERVIA GIVES UP ALL; PEACE IS NOW SECURE

Accepts Terms Arranged by Powers and How the Knee to Austria.

NOTE OF APOLOGY PREPARED

King Peter Has Sons Exchange Names to Keep a George at Head of House.

The formula agreed upon by the powers of Europe and Austria-Hungary for the settlement of the dispute between the dual monarchy and Servia was accepted by the Servian government Tuesday. The formula was presented at the foreign office by the British, French, German, Russian and Italian ministers and Servia on Wednesday, through her ambassador at Vienna, delivered to the Austrian government a note to the following effect:

"1. Servia declares that her rights have not been violated by the annexation by Austria-Hungary of Bosnia and Herzegovina and accepts the powers' decision to annul paragraph 25 of the treaty of Berlin.

"2. Servia will not protest against the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

"3. Servia will maintain peaceful relations with Austria-Hungary.

"4. Servia will return her military forces to normal conditions by discharging the reservists and volunteers and she will not permit the formation of irregular troops or bands."

This note has been prepared at the suggestion of the powers and will be presented to the object of terminating all misunderstandings between Austria-Hungary and Servia. First, however, it together with the former note to Austria, will be submitted to the national assembly for approval.

King Peter has issued a sincere congratulations of his nation. The step is taken to provide the name of George at the head of the house of Karageorgevitch. The former crown prince, George, who has renounced his rights to the throne, will henceforth be known as Alexander, while Alexander, George's younger brother, who has been renounced as crown prince, will be known as George. George the new crown prince, has been made a lieutenant in the army. The local press is voicing the demand that he be sent to European colleges to complete his education.

ADMIRAL CERVERA IS DEAD.

Spanish Commander Passes Away After Long and Painful Illness.

Vice Admiral Pascual Cervera, who commanded the Spanish fleet in the battle of Santiago, Cuba, died at Puerto Real, Spain, Saturday afternoon.

Vice Admiral Cervera was retired from the active list of the Spanish navy on Dec. 14 last, at his own request, on account of failing health. Shortly afterward he proceeded to Puerto Real in the hope of improving his health, but death came to him soon. He was in a feeble condition, being kept alive only by the use of oxygen and hypodermic injections. Delirium set in and he died without fully recognizing his wife.

Pascual Cervera was born on Feb. 18, 1839. He was graduated from the naval academy of San Fernandino, and was commissioned ensign in the navy in 1859. He served in Morocco, and in the Cuban rebellion, 1868-78, and was recalled from Cuba to hold the office of Minister of Marine.

On the outbreak of the war with the United States he called from the Cape Verde islands with four cruisers and three torpedo boat destroyers on April 29, 1898, entered the harbor of Santiago on the same May 19, and lost his entire fleet of that port July 3 in an attempt to force his way through Admiral Sampson's blockading squadron.

TO TURN IMMIGRANTS WEST.

Boring Pictures on Liners Contrast Tenement and Farm Life.

As a means of inducing immigrants to go West and engage in agricultural pursuits rather than settle in the congested cities of the East the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society will provide lecturers with stereopticon views and moving pictures on the big liners plying between New York and European ports. Thus the foreigners on their way to America will be shown the advantages of the West over city life before they land and will have it in mind before being swallowed up in the tenement district of New York. This plan is an addition to the work which has been carried on for some time, largely owned by Jacob H. Schiff, who has devoted a great deal of money to turning the tides of immigration westward.

DIRECTOR DILLEY DEAD.

Otho Lambert Dilley, musical composer and director, who prized fame in his popular songs, among which is "Alabama," died of consumption at his home in Sycamoville, Ohio, at the age of 35. Dilley had directed orchestras in some of the leading theaters of the country and had charge of the Imperial Theater the night of the terrible fire in that Chicago playhouse six years ago. When he broke down in a nervous breakdown he was engaged in the work of selection in the music department of the Chicago Theater.

COUPLE SLAIN; HOME IS BURNED.

Bodies Found Buried in Cellar Near Toledo—One Man is Held.

With only one man in custody for investigation and with no tangible clews on which to work, the Toledo, Ottawa, Point Lookout Township authorities are exerting every effort to discover the murderers of Joshua Kruger and his wife, whose bodies were found buried in the cellar of their burned home, one mile west of Toledo. Michael Sobolesk, a tailor, who had negotiated for the purchase of the Kruger farm, was lodged in the county jail after he had been quizzed for several hours. Sobolesk said that he had paid Mr. Kruger $2,000. No trace of this money has been found. An Italian who omit a week ago was captured by Sobolesk is supposed to be in Canada. Nothing has been found in Sobolesk's home.

LEASE SYSTEM WIPED OUT.

Hundreds of Prisoners in Georgia Are to Work on Roads.

Georgia's convict lease system, ended in sudden Thursday and hundreds of prisoners, taken from mines, brick kilns, and turpentine factories, returned to the service of the State Department of Penitentiary. For years her convicts have been farmed out to the mines, the brick kilns, the factories, where private greed sometimes demanded and enforced the best service of human endurance. The 1,000 prisoners back will work on the public roads. Most of them are under life or long sentences, condemned for every conceivable crime. Though shocked and frightened, the convicts greeted the change with shouts of joy and weird hymns of thanksgiving.

SOME SPRING OPENINGS.

HAROLD MOON IS DEAD.

Body of Lad Searched for All Over the Country in Pond Near Home.

Harold Moon fell through the ice of Thread pond and was drowned.

The lake for his boy, which has been prosecuted in all parts of the country, ended Saturday when his body was found in the pond by Herr Holmes, who had been searching for it there for days. A pair of skates fastened to the little feet have some sentiment to the manner of the lad's death. The small hands were still covered with the mittens which the boy wore when he went through the ice.

It was Harold's 17-year-old sister Marjorie who first learned that the missing boy had not been stolen but was dead. She had gone to the neighborhood store and heard the first report there of the finding of his body. The girl ran to her home and broke the news to her mother, who for five weeks has been enduring the strain of not knowing whether her son was dead or alive.

Harold Moon was last seen on Feb. 27 going in the general direction of the West River and the pond with his skates over his shoulders. When he did not return home for supper the night his parents began a search for him. There was no evidence along the river banks or about the pond that he had fallen through the ice. There seems to be evidence that a tramp had been seen loafing the boy away. The boy's mother stated positively that he is joining either were asked to seek him.

A few days ago the Sons of Angel Home, an organization of boys with branches in all parts of the country, of which Harold was a member, sent word from its New York headquarters an appeal to all of its members to join in the search for the missing lad.

MINE AGREEMENT OR WAGE CUT

President Baer Wants Contract Signed or Conditions of Work.

Four local operators in close touch with President Baer of the Reading Railway and Morris Williams of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, met in Philadelphia with Shamokin, Pa., that unless officials of the United Mine workers of the three anthracite districts signed another three years agreement the same as the one now in force the coal companies would demand a wage reduction April 1, 1910. This would mean the abolition of the sliding scale and a reduction of 27 per cent.

ANTHRACITE COAL STRIKE ON.

Four Hundred Men Quit Work, Charging Cuts in Wages.

The first strike in the anthracite coal regions following the expiration of the agreement between the mine workers and the operators was inaugurated Friday at the Keystone colliery, an independent concern near Pittston. About 400 men quit work. It is alleged by the strikers that the company made repeated cuts in wages, and the strike is said to have the sanction of the national and district officers of the miners' union.

NEW CURAN SENOR IN OFFICE.

Senor Yelva Reaches Washington and Takes Charge of Legation.

Senor Carlos Guerra Yelva, who succeeds Senor Don Manuel Calderon as the United States, has reached Washington from Havana and has taken charge of the Imperial Theater the night of the terrible fire that Chicago playhouse six years ago. When he broke down in a nervous breakdown he was engaged in the work of selection in the music department of the Chicago Theater.

SLAY U. S. SCIENTIST.

Dr. William Jones Is Victim of Cannibal Tribe in Luzon.

Troops have been ordered out to investigate the murder of Dr. William Jones of Chicago, a noted ethnologist, who was killed by the Igorrotes, a savage head hunters in the mountainous district of the Island of Luzon, P. I. A force of Philippine constabulary, under American officers, has been sent to the spot to recover the body and learn, if possible, what tribe killed the scientist. The news of the murder is the town of Bamban, in the backwoods of the Chagan River in Isabella Province, in the extreme north of the island. Dr. Jones had been in Luzon two years studying the customs and religions of the wild tribes for the Field Museum of Chicago. He had been living for several months among the Igorrotes, a friendly tribe, but planned to make them a temporary headquarter of head hunters in the mountains. It is believed he was killed while making this journey.

PRIEST BIG BANKRUPT.

Liabilities of $1,294,140 Scheduled by Rev. W. McMahon.

Rev. William McMahon, pastor of St. Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, shot himself in the temple Wednesday and filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court Wednesday. In the petition his total liabilities are stated to be $1,294,141.01, with assets amounting to $1,294,141.01, of which $71,931 is real estate. The secured claims are scheduled at $1,000 and unsecured at $87,120.91, and commercial paper, $180,000. The chief creditors are the Fidelity Trust Company of New York, founded by P. J. GREAT FIRE IN FORT WORTH.

20 Blocks, with Over 200 Houses Burned, Entailing Loss at $2,000,000.

Six persons are known to have been killed and property estimated in value at $2,000,000 was destroyed by fire which swept over the southern part of Fort Worth, Tex., Saturday afternoon.

The fire started in one of the most fashionable sections in the city, having an area of twenty blocks, was practically swept clean of buildings by the flames. The destruction of even a greater amount of property was prevented only by the use of dynamite.

The Texas and Pacific road lines, combining twenty engines, the rapid stops of the road, the Sawyer electric plant, four churches, two public school buildings, and Walker's sanitarium were among the large buildings destroyed. Besides those over 200 residences were destroyed. The exact losses on these latter are unknown, but it is certain that a great many have suffered scattered seeking shelter wherever they would find it, and it will be a day or two before the full extent of the personal losses are known.

Texas Pacific Railroad officials place their loss at $250,000. The losses to church property include the Episcopal church, the Methodist church, their losses being estimated conservatively at over $200,000.

A patient whose identity has not been learned perished in Walker's sanitarium, and three men were electrocuted and their bodies burned to cinders in the Sawyer electric plant. Herbert Sharp was fatally burned in an endeavor to save his dwelling, and a fireman fell from a housetop and was killed. The Rev. H. O. Cowan, assistant rector of the Episcopal Trinity Church, is missing.

ADMIRAL CONVERSE DEAD AT 75

Chief Who Assembled Globe-Girdling Ships Succumbs at Home.

Rear Admiral George A. Converse, 75 years old, died at his home in Washington, D. C., Wednesday morning, although placed on the retired list several years ago. He had been ill for some time at the time of his death, being prostrated by a nervous breakdown. Death came to him under him as chief of the bureau of navigation, that the battleship fleet of the United States navy recently circled the globe was assembled. His widow, who is a Miss Hoag of Troy, N. Y., and his two numerous daughters, Maud and Olga, were with him when he died. One other daughters survive—Mrs. Dale of Bristol, R. I., and Mrs. Aldrich of Bellingham, Wash. Admiral Converse was born in Norwich, N. Y.

BOY SLAYS FATHER.

Heavens Supper and Professes to Be Surprised When Officers Arrive.

Frank Lee, 18 years old, killed his father, Samuel Law, 65 years old, while the family was seated at the supper table in their house in Niles, Ohio. The boy shot his father through the heart with a hunter's knife. Law, Sr., fell forward with his head on the table and died in his chair. Apparently unconcerned about his father's death, Lee called himself in a chair less than five feet from the body of his father and continued eating. He then commanded the prisoner, Dr. Atwood, sympathetic and gave the officers what reason they did for holding him up.

MINE DISASTER IMMINENT.

Ill. Wilder, head of the Illinois Mine Manufacturing Company, was found guilty of the charge of having built a mine in Atlanta, ill., on a charge of having violated the constitutional provision of the State tax laws, in the matter of taxation.

A strike and lockout has been expected in the anthracite coal trade, and the usual spring reduction in wages is announced. Bituminous coal is still dull and weak. The shoe and leather trades are quiet, with little business yet booked for the fall season in sight.

Business failures for the week ending with April 1 were, in the United States, 204, against 225 last week, 247 in the 1909 week, 187 in 1908, 151 in 1907, 154 in 1906, and 179 in 1905. Canadian failures for the week number 24, which compares with 35 last week and 32 in 1908.—Bradstreet's.

For the first time in fifteen years the Hamburg-American Steamship line has sent out notices to its employes of the dependation in the company's employ, which is one of the largest concerns in the world, and employs more than 20,000 men in all parts of the world. The notices are in the form of a circular, and they refer to the dearth of employes caused on the German line by the two great Boeing strikes, one in the Hamburg-Bremen and Mauritania. They say that the company has no effect that the strike would not cause a reduction in the number of employes.

"I, State Bank of Bellefontaine, Wis., is in the hands of the State banking commissioner. The bank was closed by a run. Its capital is $25,000. Its surplus is $5,000. Its deposits have been limited, it is said, by unfortunate speculations in land in the West and South. The latest report of the bank shows loans and discounts amounting to $275,000, of which $210,000 is deposits, the total deposits being $300,000.

Navigation on Lakes Open.

Navigation on the Great Lakes opened officially at 12 o'clock Wednesday night. As the government lighthouses at Port Huron were extinguished and the crews removed the bodies which they dropped at the beginning of the winter season.

CHICAGO.

Aside from the few labor troubles, which are resulting in conciliatory efforts for settlement, the business conditions generally indicate seasonable advance. Agricultural payments through banks reflect an enlarged use of money and the usual breaking total of clearings for March testifies to substantial recovery in the lending activities, although some branches of production have not yet completely reduced their idle capacity. Much results for seasonably commercial structures and extensions were fifty-three in number and $2,316,200 in aggregate, compared with fifty in number and $347,450 in value for March, 1908. Other investment of capital is seen to be exceptionally large in real estate transactions, bonds and stocks, both securities showing increase in aggregate sales of 150 per cent over the time last year. Local deposits of time at the highest level, but commercial withdrawals are necessarily small, considering the spending of farm work and expenditures for spring planting and improvements throughout the interior.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 21, against 34 last week, 16 in 1907 and 13 in 1906. Those with liabilities of $5,000 number 4, against 9 last week, 3 in 1908 and 3 in 1907.—Dun's Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Trade and crop reports are irregular, and indicative of a mixed trade, but still quiet as a whole. There are, however, evidences of a more cheerful and hopeful feeling, partly due, no doubt, to more spring-like weather conditions. Current demand is generally of a retrospective character and jobbing distributions are confined largely to filling-in orders, but there is reported in several markets a disposition to take more liberal quantities for future.

Experts from leading industries are not materially different from last week. Wage reductions are more numerous, but strikes are not frequent. In iron and steel there is some business reported, but evidently at the expense of prices, which are in doubt and lower.

A strike and lockout has been expected in the anthracite coal trade, and the usual spring reduction in wages is announced. Bituminous coal is still dull and weak. The shoe and leather trades are quiet, with little business yet booked for the fall season in sight.

Civil War Stories

Battle of Bull's Bluff.

Interest in the stirring events of the great conflict between the north and the south over forty years ago is by no means confined to the survivors thereof, but it seems to grow and expand in the hearts of the young generation, who now in read of the thrilling scenes, the historic battles, the stirring scenes, the capture of cities and fortresses, and all the other incidents of the immensous conflict. There have been many contributions to war literature, but I do not remember to have seen in print the incident which follows and which occurred back in 1861. It was so event that rest a profound gloom over the country at that time, not only because of the defeat of the federal forces and the death of a gallant officer, but because of the disappointment which it caused to the people. It was a time when great hopes had the growth and improvement of the army. The story was told to me by an officer who was a prominent participant in the affair, but who is too modest to let his name in print.

It is a plain statement of facts and is as follows:

Bull's Bluff is the name of a part of the bank of the Potomac river on the Virginia side, and it was so called because the bluff and about one hundred yards down in Harrisson's Island, a long tract containing about four acres and about 150 yards broad. Between this and the Virginia shore the river runs with a rapid current. Between the island and the Maryland shore the river is about 200 yards wide and not so rapid. A short distance above the upper end of the island there was then a ferry across the Potomac, called Conrad's ferry, and island and ferry belong, partly due, no doubt, to more spring-like weather conditions. Current demand is generally of a retrospective character and jobbing distributions are confined largely to filling-in orders, but there is reported in several markets a disposition to take more liberal quantities for future.

MICHIGAN LAWMAKERS

Michigan Cannot Pay Bills.

Before June 1 it will be necessary for the state of Michigan to borrow money, as there will be no cash in the general fund, and unless the power of taxation is exercised some action to provide funds the employees of the State institutions may endanger an equal ever similar to the one last fall, when they walked three months for their money. The current expenditures each month in the past have averaged about $200,000 and there is no reason to believe that they will run below this some during the coming summer and fall. This would total enough to exhaust the general fund, with no revenue coming in. Therefore the State officers and taxpayers must face a deficit in the general fund on the first of next year of more than $200,000. It will be impossible for Michigan to borrow more than $200,000 without a violation of the constitution, and it is the opinion of the State officers that this will not be done without authority from the legislature.

Warner for New Phone Tax.

Governor Warner has indicated to the Ball for the passage of a bill to tax telephone and telegraph companies on the gross receipts of the business and urged them either to invest or report favorably on the Washington and Thompson bills. So potent was the argument advanced by the governor that the amendment which was adopted by the Senate committee of Claiborne Ullit Miller, is now sold to be expunged from the measure when it reaches the floor. In his special message to the legislature Governor Warner said: "Of all the taxes that the American executives limit their energies to the straight line of revenue, the telephone, which would not be generated nor remain planted in our age of the country. This brought the treaty of 1832 by which the Indians were sent beyond the Mississippi. It was only reached after several new wars, and after two or three years of suffering, and after the treat with vicious white men, and have condemned the Indians to death by their own tribe. So they remained the Indians—the white men—dis—that if they would just go away, they would be allowed to live in peace. Back to Pontecoal and had the old source of the Indian trouble, the white man. The result was, the third trial of his faith without finding—even—the Indian. Back to the Indian, the unrestrained, the unmolested, the unmolested, the unmolested

Eight thousand bushels of potatoes this morning changed hands, the price being 27 a bushel. This is not only a record price but for this season, but the quantity was the largest ever buried over in a single deal on the local market. The potatoes were owned by L. P. Pickard, and were bought by E. E. Hibbard of the Leonard, Cronse & Riley Co., of Cincinnati. The potatoes will be shipped to Cincinnati just as soon as cars can be obtained. The potatoes are held by Mr. Pickett in the various warehouses.—Traverse City Eagle.

GREAT BUYING WAVE HITS WHEAT BEARS

Patten Scores Triumph as Shorts Force Wheat Values to New High Levels.

KING OF FIT TAKES BIG PROFITS

His Sales Are Reported 2,000,000 a Day—Furious Buying Result of Bad Crop Reports.

A tremendous slave of buying swept over the Chicago wheat pit Wednesday and Thursday, sending the free trade bonded beers and, amid scenes of unbridled excitement, lifting prices for all deliveries to new high levels. May wheat sold at $1.20½, the highest price since the Leiter deal, and the top figure during April is more than twenty years. Trading was of a speculative character all through the session and millions of bushels were bought. Excited shorts paid any price demanded for the May in order to cover their sales, and not for the selling by the bull leaders much higher quotations was had been been established. Bulls took profits on a colossal scale, a veritable cake in the bear camp exhibiting them to cash in at fabulous profits. Even at the high period on Thursday 1,000,000 bushels were dumped into the pit of the Board of Trade.

There was a riot on the floor of the trading room when the May wheat was emailed on the board at $1.20½. Early this price had circuited from $1.20½ to $1.24. Shorts began to buy in the crowd, crop reports, which had sent the price up, had not greatly affected the situation and that prices was selling to fall. Suddenly there was a cessation to the offering of wheat on the market. For a moment no wheat was sold. The shorts began to get anxious again. There was a chance for Wheat.

Then a uniformed messenger climbed to the bulletin board and he wrote on the board the highest price seen in the pit in nine years. There was a wild rush to the trading room. Brokers jumped and cursed madly amid. It was a question of winning or losing a fortune. With the one mark of chalk on the blackboard many lost their all, while others won heavily. Meanwhile boys rushed wildly through the room to find the poor representatives of big brokerage firms. For an hour wheat changed hands in the rapidity of lightning.

It was a day of triumph for James A. Patten. The price he predicted for May last summer was reached and exceeded, and best traders who have been forewarning calamity for the bull wheat deal were thankfully buying the grain he poured into the pit to relieve the stringency. Conditions are now so unusual that pattern maintained they would—foreigners are coming for wheat, other sources of supply are failing, and even with prices for the May at the highest level in years, cash wheat is selling at enormous premiums. Patten added to his profits of $5,000,000 which he has made out of the deal. He still declares that he is not trying to corner the market, but is simply taking advantage of the shortage in the crop.

NEW LAND RULING IS MADE.

Entrymen Henceforth Must Prove Both Residence and Cultivation.

In a decision of importance from the Washington it was held that in order to enable the heirs of a homestead entryman to submit commutation proof of entry, they must show both residence on and cultivation of the land for fourteen months by the entryman, or the heirs, or partly by both. The time which is held, applies in a case where commutation proof was made by the widow of the entryman. The decision is of considerable interest because heretofore it has only been necessary for an entryman or his heirs to show actual residence and cultivation of the land for fourteen months. In a similar ruling it was held that when an entryman sells his improvements on the land and relinquishes his entry in connection therewith, he is not entitled to make a second homestead entry under the act of Congress of Feb. 8, 1908.

ENJOINS 3 CENT FARE ORDER.

Missouri Court Grants Temporary Writ at Instance of Gov. Hadley.

Under a temporary injunction issued in St. Louis by the Circuit Court all railroads operating in Missouri are restrained from putting into effect the 2 cent fare which was to have obtained after midnight Friday. CHOICE MISCELLANY

A Bird Mystery.

A grewsome illustration of the superstitious way in which animals and birds communicate with each other is afforded by the statement from Moscow that large numbers of ravens and crows crossed the Mediterranean from Africa or the thousand district and the inland cities. In the case of vultures, although it is generally known how quickly these carrion birds will come together out of an apparently lifeless sky, it can be explained by the keenness of sight and the fact that one bird at a distance is guided by another bird's movement, and so the news is signaled for immense distance. But is the cause of ravens and crows there found to some other explanation of their gaps gathering. Ther birds do communicate with each other was clearly proved some years ago when a plague of locus in Scotland attracted a large number of small crows across the North sea.

Making Sham Jewels.

Jewelers who have been in business many years often find it difficult to distinguish the difference between real and artificial jewels at first sight, so wonderfully is paste being used. Imitation jewels are now being turned out by the bushel and can be purchased wholesale at from 20 cents upwards, according to the kind of gem it is, also not noting much difference in the price. The material used in the manufacture of paste jewels is known as "strass." Its chief ingredients being potash, oxide of lead, borax and silica. The composition of these chemists vary according to the variety of stone which is to be imitated, such greater proportions of borax and potash being required for diamonds than for rubies, while for imitation emeralds from the profiteers are scarcely needed at all. The utmost care is exercised in making sham jewels, and the grinding, sifting, melting and other operations are matters of the highest importance.—Popular Mechanics.

The King Didn't Count.

The wine joined for twelve "cheers" which accompanies King Edward on nearly all his travels and home entertainments proclaims "I am Caesar; I belong to the king." Joined his majesty's entourage five years ago at the death of his celebrated predecessor, Jack. He had barely been a week in the royal household when he received a drubbing from an irritated and jolly in Paris, where the king was visiting. Caesar while running the Parisian gamins "scent for" the king's French poodle, whose owner promptly menticted with her umbrella. "It is the king's dog!" exclaimed a bystand ecfetal. "The king's dog, is it?" ordered the peppery old lady, flourishing her weapon more ferocious ly than ever. Then so much the worse for the king!"

But Not in Kansas.

Oh, hear ellen Wheler (about his soon to be married—Ed. Herald) is truly ecstatic and strong. He gets mad enough to fill a weeks bind with wow; he gets the pumpkins with cawse; he hits the arrowhead cause to flow, but not in Kansas! Like some grim knight of olden days he tilts and prances, and well one that division's ways am whom he charges. None dare dispute his lyre. He finds the world is with him, chuck and scatter want and odd and ends. Big and big. Dismay! The grass he kicks at her breast but reserves good plumes. She does not kneel at his feet before her for his hand. The sun is shining where she sits and guards her lovely face and locks. Who Wheler still is thinking of, but not in Kansas!—Walt Mason in Emporia Gazette.

The Ameer's Grim Humor.

Although in every way milder than his father, Habib Ullah occasionally manifests a humor as less grim, as was brisk displayed in his chief minister, Ahmed Habibil. This worthy, whose duty it is to take care of the royal wardrobe, was bemoaning accidental when one morning Habib Ullah noticed a black scorpion, whose sting is mortally agonizing, in a boot that he was about to put on. Summoning Ahmed to his side, the ameer complained that this boot pinched his foot and ordered the servant to stretch it by drawing it on his foot. The tortured of the lads was the more readily bequeath from the fact that nothing of comparatively small value to follow it.—London Strand.

Napoleon Pinched His Cheeks.

There is still one man in Paris who can boast of having had his ears pulled and his cheeks pinched as a boy by Napoleon I., and that is Jean Pierre Schanel, an inmate of a poorhouse at Vaux. He is now nearly 102 years of age, and his father held the post of concierge of the chateau of Versailles during the rule of Napoleon. Jean Pierre Schanel remembers often seeing the emperor in his prime. Jean Pierre had a fancy for chopping trees, and one day the emperor caught him and roundly pulled his ears. Whenever Napoleon saw him in the gardens afterward he used to pinch his cheeks and ask him if he had climbed any trees that day.—London Telegraph.

A Military Catastrophe.

A telegram from Munich gives details of what is described as "the first military disaster of the war" which has befallen the Bavarians. It appears that a regiment of the Bavarian army, on the outskirts of her but. Under the weight of a number of men, the floor gave way in the elevator the lady, the telegram says, sank hopelessly to the pavement and only recovered from his swoon after being carried to a shop and partaken of her breakfast.—Boston Transcript.

In Lapland.

A Cleveland man was called that a young girl has a perfect right to sit on her sweetheart's knee. The reason fair enough, but can't a man even ask her to get off from his foot's asleep?—Detroit Free Press.

The Great Tontine

CHAPTER XXI.

It was in a very somber mood that Jack Pulliamore wended his way to the Temple. Lord Lakington had accorded him this week, that his friend Hingwood might go down to Hyfford as the Viscount's representative and see Mr. Krabbe, whom Mr. Pegram cordially avowed to be his successor in the "Great Tontine."

"It is a wild chance," thought Jack, "and I suppose, as such, ought to be tried. But I am afraid it is little more than Harold will discover anything that may prevent this marriage. They will show him Mr. Krabbe, just as they showed me Mr. Krabbe, leaving a strong impression that he is not the real man; but what is the use of that? We cannot move it. He may make any amount of inquiries he likes in Hyfford, and they will all tell him the same story, namely, that Mr. Krabbe lives in that outlandish place, and has done so ever since he left home and became past year since he left home and became past year. Hingwood will feel sure, as he is sure, that all these people have been hoaxed by the Pegrams. But there, again, neither he nor anyone else will have credited agent to accompany you, and see Mr. Krabbe myself. You see, I know the old man for many years; and though I have a strong suspicion that whoever they have got in that cottage is not the real man, yet I am curious to see who it may be, which is so good that it has unhappily deceived many people who have been quite well. I have another reason, which I have never mentioned to you, to see him. When I endeavored to see him, I was very much struck with the manner in which he shut the door, and the idea that I had seen her before, and in a very different capacity. I want to see if I cannot call upon them that afternoon, and arrange to pay your friend a short visit, never trouble about me; I shall turn up as you know at the cottage door. As for you, Mr. Philliamore, you will, of course, follow the instinct that the "Number" is not reduced to a nonlet yet; and, consequently, the chances of your life are good, very probably."

Lord Lakington was not a little disturbed by the announcement the next morning that his Philliamore meant to leave him. He felt quite certain that this interview with his daughter was not all by to be a pleasant one. He was sorry for Jack Philliamore sake. He was sorry that the Viscount hastened to explain: "They sit down, Delighted to see you, of course; but I know of no reason why not come to reopen yesterday's conversation. It is impossible you can have heard anything from Hyfford as yet, for likely indeed that you will find that the problem of youth substantiated. Now, my dear Jack, if you like to come to Ireland, wedding we shall be very pleased to see you; if, on the contrary, you think it to feel aggrieved, very well, stay away; but one for all, be good enough to remember that I decline of further discussion on the subject."

"As far as discussing goes, certainly not," replied the young man, "I have been over that this morning to my cost; in possession of a fact, I was right, and to point out the difference that that fact makes in the aspect of the case." "Let me hear it," said Mr. Pegram. What I have to tell you is this. The business of the late Miss Catherine, who had been so long missing, has been found, is alive, tolerably well, and in no immediate danger of dying. Mr. Hingwood may tell you that she saw I thought alive forty-eight hours ago and either Mr. Rose or Mr. Carbuncle could tell you that the result of his being alive is as I say." "This makes a difference," interrupted the Viscount. "Not false Pegram always assured me Miss Catesham's nonlose was dead. It is most likely that Heaven would marry into that sort of family if there was any doubt about the settlement being all right!"

"Then I suppose you will write by tonight's post to Hyfford to inform them of this discovery, and that, in consequence the engagement must be regarded as completely at an end."

"Certainly, that is, if Heaviffe consents. I must of course consult her, and be guided by her wishes."

"Exactly," replied Jack, falling into the humor of his noble kinsman, and assisting him in the belief that he was a model father, whose free choice was in all wish in talk matters over with Trixie as daughter's happiness. "You no doubt wish in talk matters over with Trixie as soon as possible, so I will get out of the way."

CHAPTER XXII.

Mr. Pegram was slightly disconcerted at not receiving a letter from Lord Lakington by return of post, in answer to that one which he had written detailing the account of Jack Pulliamore's visit to Hyfford and he was made still further uneasy by receiving a visit in the afternoon from Mr. Hingwood, who explained that he came as Lord Lakington's accredited agent to see Mr. Krabbe, and make inquiries concerning him.

"I am sorry to mention, Mr. Pegram," said Hingwood, in the course of conversation, "that Lord Lakington seems very much in earnest in the matter, and has been at great pains to find out and place before me a full and written detailing the account of Jack Pulliamore's visit to Hyfford and he was made still further uneasy by receiving a visit in the afternoon from Mr. Hingwood, who explained that he came as Lord Lakington's accredited agent to see Mr. Krabbe, and make inquiries concerning him."

A FEW POLITICAL NUBBINS

The talk we hear lately about Congress and the tariff bill reminds us of old times. Once upon a time we heard the cry "Lower the tariff" "The tariff enriches the corporations," "The consumer pays the tax," etc. A democratic congress was the result, and the trade destroying Wilson tariff bill followed. From the Atlantic to the Pacific the wheels were silenced, and not until the republicans came into their own again and restored the tariff was industrial activity resumed. To frame a tariff bill that will dovetail into all the diversified interests of the country is impossible. It is like the engagement of the Kilkenny cats; a general howl and plenty of fur in the air Meanwhile congress is charged with legislating for "the interests," and ignoring the good of the common people. We concede that tariff revision is a necessity, and to that policy the party is committed. But history may repeat itself. The historic policy of the republican party is protection to American industry, and when the present bill reaches the president it will be found that it is in line with that policy.

"Good Roads Earl," who has made himself famous all over the country as a champion of scientific highway improvement, and who received 27,000 votes for governor at the primaries last fall, is upon the threshold of his exit from the state service as Highway Commissioner, Earl's commission expires June 30th, and there is a bill pending in the house to make the office elective. Putting these two things together, and being fully alive to the fact that a good Warner man on the Warner road-roller in 1910 would be a good thing for Warner, his excellency the Governor takes time by the forelock and sends to the senate the name of Earl's proposed successor. The House is mad and Earl will continue to be a thorn in the flesh of the governor, along side of a man named Hill, who lives at Saginaw. In the mean time, "stop, look, listen," for the road roller.

Words To Freeze The Soul.

"Your son has consumption. His case is hopeless." These appalling words were spoken to Geo. E Blevens, a leading merchant of Springfield, N. C. by two expert doctors—one a lung specialist. Then was shown the wonderful power of Dr. King's New Discovery. "After three week's use," writes Mr. Blevens, "he was as well as ever. I would not take all the money in the world for what it did for my boy." Infallible for Coughs and Colds, its the safest, surest cure of desperate lung diseases on earth. 50c. and $1.00. F. G. MARINE NOTES.

The U. S. lighthouse tender Sumac laid here over Sunday, loading buoys for the straits, departing Monday for the several stations.

The game warden's steamer Chase S Osborn will go into commission next week with Capt. Sam Rose as master and Harvey Campbell as engineer.

The Steamer Missouri, Capt. Bright arrived here from Chicago on her first trip Friday night, returning south bound Sunday afternoon. The Missouri is cabined the same as last year.

The schooner Oliver Mitchell, lev-laden, lies at the Charlevoix Lumber Co. dock shipping a new fore-top-mast and bowsprit. Capt. Hulme expects to clear for lower lake ports this week.

In our Pen list week concerning the steamer Manitou, we stated that the libel was on account of damages caused by that boat last season. The fact is that the damage was done two years ago, before Capt. Finucan commanded the Manitou.

At Washburn's shipyard the tug J. V. Taylor was launched Friday, after having received quite extensive repairs. The steamer Hum was hauled out and re-caulked this week, and the tug Maggie is expected from Northport to go on the ways.

Capt. Algie Alexander for several years chief mate with Capt. Finucan in the Missouri and Manitou, has been appointed to the command of a new steamer in the service of the engineer of the Chicago lighthouse district. The "Engineer" is about the size of the Beaver.

The ice in Pine Lake broke up Saturday and Sunday, and navigation is open to up lake points. The steamer Three Brothers broke her way through Friday. The steamer Cummings began her Boyne City trips yesterday, and the East Jordan steamer Hum begins her trips to day or to morrow.

"Ma's New Husband."

That merry, romping, musical farce, "Ma's New Husband," will appear at the Charlevoix Theater on Saturday April 24th. From all accounts it is one of the big laughmakers of the season, and the management has been obliged to promise return dates in nearly every city that it has played in order to satisfy the demand. The scene of all the mirth and melody is laid in the Chicago home of a rich old sport bachelor, Culpepper. His cousin Maria Longfellow, has recently lost her husband. Culpepper had loved her in the old days and writes her to come on from New York and take charge of his home. His letter arrives in the nick of time to save Maria from visions of starvation, as she has just been cut out of house and home and furniture by a lot of impecunious actors. One of these actors, Herbert Short by name, has captured her heart. They arrange to marry just as soon as there is money in sight to tide over the honeymoon. Maria brings Short along to Chicago and as Culpepper has never seen her little boy, Willie, a lad of fourteen, it is agreed that Short will impersonate that youthful darling. It is needless to state that Short is the center of mirth and laughter. His escapades with Dorothy, the housemaid, with Mrs. Dickles, a guest, with Madame Halliday, a vocal teacher, with a venerable tutor and old humbug, Mr. Hooker, and indeed with every character in the play afford little time for sanity or straight-faced demeanor The musical numbers include all the new and popular songs, solos, duets, quartettes and choruses, together with pleasing dancing numbers.

How People Lose Their Money

By concealing it about their person; by stowing it away in mugs, jugs and jars; by sewing it up in skirts and ticks; by tucking it under the couches and carpets, in cupboards and bureau drawers; these are some of the ways by which people lose their money and sometimes THEIR LIVES.

How People Save Their Money

By depositing it in a good reliable bank. Confident that this bank fully meets that requirement and the public's needs, we tender its services to all who believe in keeping on the SAFE SIDE. Four (4) per cent interest paid on deposits. Compounded semi-annually.

Local News.

—E. A. Burnett, of Cross Village, was in town Monday.

—Tuttle, the liveryman, has the timber on the ground for an extension to his barn.

—Judge Mayne went to Cadillac Monday to hold a term of court for Judge Chittenden.

—Capt. Wm. Finnan left here Monday morning to temporarily take command of the steamer Sterling.

—The Kalamazoo Furnishing and Tailoring Co has a new ad. in this issue Fagan building near Antrim street.

—W. H. Miller returned home from Battle Creek with his wife last Friday. Mrs. Miller is somewhat improved in health.

—Mrs. D. J. Tilloteon, Deputy Great Commander of the L. O. T. M. M., is at Boyne City all this week, working in the interest of the order.

—Mrs. Silvia Brown, third daughter of James O'Brien, died at the home of her parents in Norwood township, last Saturday. The funeral occurred Monday.

—There will be a children's meeting at the Salvation Army hall next Saturday at 3 o'clock, something interesting for the children, all children are requested to come.

—The Kalamazoo Furnishing and Tailoring Co., in the Fagan building, opened last Thursday. This new firm comes with the best of records, and and their stock is in all respects up-to-date. We bespeak for them the consideration of the public.

—Mr. F. M. Deitz, of Bay Shore, was in town Saturday, visiting his daughter, Mrs. Babcock, of Antrim street. Mr. Deitz is a veteran of the civil war, who was 74 years of age on the day of his Charlevoix visit, on which occasion his children presented him with a handsome watch.

—The music for the "Ma's New Husband" show last Saturday night, was furnished by the Cohen Orchestra, augmented by Mrs. Aggie Jarvis as cornetist and Earl Johnson with the trap-drums. The work of this organization is worthy of praise. The three overtures were executed with a precision and expression worthy of an orchestra of far greater pretensions.

—Although the chief of police still wears his fur coat, and the keen air induces keen rheumatic twinges occasionally, the sun is shining, and is creeping higher in the heavens. The bridge is responding to the signals of the freighters, and the Missouri and Illinois are regular on their spring schedule. The steamer Cummings is on her Boyne City run and the steamer Hum is plowing the waters of South Arm.

—Henry D. Carey, author of the American play, "Montana" knows the west, and has imparted the true western spirit into his play. "Montana" is not a roaring melodrama, but a story of the plains and the people of the west, as they really are. Mr. Carey has given his play a fine scenic production, and the cast is said to be excellent. "Montana" will appear at the Charlevoix Theater on Friday April 30.

—The local inspectors were here yesterday inspecting the steamer Lou A. Cummings.

—New subscribers to the SENTINEL are coming in every day. Add your name to the list.

—On short notice, Frank Cullman left Monday morning to ship as steward of the steamer Sterling.

—Mrs. O. E. Wilbur and daughter Calla went to Grand Rapids yesterday for a few weeks' visit with friends.

—On Sunday afternoon May 2, at the Barnard M. E. church the pastor will present the "Benevolent causes."

—Charles A. Donlin, assistant general freight agent for the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. was in the city Saturday.

—Mrs. A. T. Burnett is still at Cross Village visiting her son, E. A. Burnett. Mr. Burnett loaded his first lumber vessel last week.

—Everybody is busy. There is not a mechanic or laboring man in Charlevoix who is not at work, and the demand is greater than the supply.

—E. A. Jefferies has been advised by Dr. D. C. Loveday that five barrels of grape fruit has been shipped to him from St. Petersburg, Fla. They are probably here by this time.

—The Charlevoix High School base ball team walloped the Bellaire team Saturday on the Bellaire diamond seven to five. And like Cæsar, they are seeking more worlds to conquer —The ditching for the golf links water supply is under way, and work on the pumping station, on Pine Lake, will be commenced the first of the week. On this, and the grounds, a large number of men will be employed.

—About twenty five friends of Mrs E. S. Small surprised her at her home last Thursday evening. A pot-lock supper was served and the evening was spent in a round of social enjoyment. When the party left they presented Mrs Small with a beautiful cut-glass berry dish.

—It is given out by authority that Frank Chalonpka will open a swell, up-to-date cafe in his place in the Ayers building soon after May 1st, with Frank Cullman as chef. The location is good, "Angry" Cullman is all right, and the combination ought to make a success of the venture.

—The Cemetery Board, of which Chas. E. See is president, is just now beginning improvements at Brookside. Grading is already being done, and on Tuesday a large consignment of spit leaf birch and maple trees were sent up for planting along Baxter avenue. Other improvements in ornamentation will be made during the summer in the "silent city of the dead," in which proposition every tax-payer will acquiesce.

—Mrs. Catherine Alexander died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. T. Kirkpatrick, in this city, on the 24th. Deceased was born in England Feb. 18th, 1826. With her parents she moved to Canada in 1851. She was married to James Alexander in 1866, in which year they came to Michigan, locating a homestead in Banks township, Antrim county, where she has lived most of the time since. Her husband died December 2, 1881. To this union there were born two children—Mrs. J. T. Kirkpatrick, of Charlevoix, and David H. Alexander, of Banks. Mrs. Alexander was one of the pioneers of Antrim county, and experienced many hardships in the early days. She was a good mother, and leaves many friends.

—The northern Michigan Maccabee district convention will be held in Traverse City June 22 and 23

—The anti-saloon league is figuring on the submission of an amendment to the state constitution for state wide prohibition in 1910.

—Capt. Berdan, having reconsidered this determination to decline the street commissioner job, duly qualified in that office last week, and is on duty.

—The Senior Class banquet of the Charlevoix High School, last Friday night, at Bark Hall, was a stupendous social event. The banquet was followed by a dance in which all participated, and "joy was unrestrained." Frank Cullman was the caterer.

—"Montana," Henry C. Carey's play of surpassing interest, will be the attraction at the Charlevoix Theater Friday April 30. "Montana" is a character study of the west, a simple, natural story that grips the heart. A splendid scenic production, and a cast of real merit is assured by the management.

—The home of Chas. Zeller was the scene of unusual jollity last Tuesday night, on the occasion of Mr. Zeller's 55th birthday. The gathering was a surprise, and there were about thirty friends and admirers of the genial Charlie present. And such a time! Refreshments were served, and the event was one long to be remembered.

—Harvey Campbell and wife will this week move into the rebuilt and refitted "old Fox house," presented to them on the day of their marriage. It is an ideal location for a home, and the house is practically a new one since the rebuild. The place has a peculiar charm for the writer of this. Thirty eight years ago, with his bride, he was entertained there following the wedding festivities, by good old Amos Fox and his wife. The improvements to the properly are a decided improvement to River street.

—H. O. Plank, of Chicago and Fox Island, were here over Sunday, arranging to locate his family here this summer. Mr. Plank owns all of North Fox Island as well as a part of the south island, where he is establishing a resort. Mr. Plank's card reads: "Stock Ranch and Fisheries on South Fox Island. Plank's Game Preserve. Frog Propagation. Stock Ranch and Fisheries on North Fox Island." Mr. Plank is one of the oldest and best know resort hotel promoters in the country, and was the founder of "Plank's Grand" at Mackinac Island, now known as the "Grand."

—Mike Litney is here this week. "Mike," of the old times. Who among the old settlers does not remember him? When his chum, Gurley Boak, killer, was here, and the two of them locked the SENTINEL editor in the detention cell until released by duly constituted authority. Mike kept a livery stable, and, when cleaning the buggies, turned the hose on everybody who would not vote the democrat ticket. Mike is "to the manor born," and is one of those who is catalogued as the cream of the earth. But, blessed be Allah, he is no longer a democrat. The tug Maggie is at Washburn's yard for an overhauling.

It is now possible to go from Mackinaw City down through the state to the Indiana state line and never leave dry territory with the single exception of Antrim county.

THE SUPERVISORS

They Will Assist the Officers to Enforce the Local Option Law.

From the Boyne City Evening Journal.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors the enforcement of the local option law was brought up and freely discussed and it was unanimously agreed that each and every supervisor should make it a point to see that no violations occurred in his locality. Each one is to closely watch for "blind pigs," "bootleggers" and all such things and to notify the officers whenever they find anyone violating the law or any symptoms of such violations. They believe, that the people having spoken in such an emphatic manner, their wishes must be respected and that so far as they are concerned the law shall be obeyed. Sheriff McWain has announced, both previous to the election and since, that he will use his best endeavors to protect the people from all violations. In conversation with a representative of the Journal he stated very emphatically that he should do his whole duty and he is anxious that every man in the county should know just what to expect. The Sheriff has worked for the cause all during the campaign, notwithstanding the fact that he expects it will make a difference of several hundreds of dollars in his bill of fees, and now that the law has been adopted he proposes to see that it is enforced.

The Journal also learns that prosecuting attorney Nicholas has said that he will be just as zealous in the enforcement of the local option law as he is in any other law and now that the people are fully warned there need no one expect any favors if they are caught in any nefarious practices. Look out for trouble for the first man who dares to sell "booze" in Charlevoix county after May 1st.

County Normal Notes

Commissioner J. H. Milford called on the Normal class Monday afternoon.

The class started their work in elementary agriculture and civil government this week.

Pearl Hurst is substituting for Miss Bessie Kay, at the Hop Yard school house in Hayes township. Miss Kay has been compelled to leave her school on account of illness.

Maud Cross began practice teaching in the sixth grade arithmetic; Hazel Holliday in first grade reading and language, Margaret Ryan and Cecil Barkley in fourth grade geography last week.

—Bellaire entertained a large gathering of leading republicans of Antrim and Charlevoix counties last Friday night. There was a banquet and big "talkfest," and the bunch who went from here came back singing the praises of the Bellaire folks. According to accounts, the event was a most enjoyable and profitable gathering, resulting in a good understanding of matters of mutual political interest, as well as strengthening the friendship that has always existed between the two counties.

—The forthcoming engagement of Henry D. Carey's great American play, "Montana," is creating a great deal of interest. "Montana" is one of the few western plays that possesses real merit, and its four seasons of unprecedented success is the best criterion of its dramatic worth. To those whom the best in dramatic art appeals are assured that the performance will prove a genuine dramatic treat. On account of the remarkable popularity of the attraction, and the large demand for seats, it is respectfully suggested to intending patrons, that the reservation be made as early as convenient. The engagement of "Montana" is for one night only, Friday April 30.

Elk Rapids Progress: S. S. Spaulding received a dispatch Tuesday from his son Willard, of Detroit, who is well remembered by the residents of the village in former years, that his oldest son Dwight, a young man of twenty two, had died Monday evening from a relapse following measles.

RAILROAD LAND

Charlevoix County Is Also Interested in the Decision.

From the Petoskey News

Emmet county people who have been interested in cases of the farmers who bought land of a railroad company and found that the government still owned it, will be pleased to learn that the titles over which a cloud has been resting for many years, will be quieted and the occupants be left in peaceable possession of the same.

E Maxwell of Springvale township called at the News office Saturday, and told of his trip to Marquette in the interest of a number of the others in the quieting of titles. The following taken from the Marquette Chronicle tells the story:

The applications for titles to the land in Emmet county, Springvale township, which has been reserved from settlement by the United States government for many years will be filed tomorrow with United States Land Agent Jones at his Marquette office in the postoffice building.

This land was formerly controlled by the G. R. & I. railroad but after years of litigation was wrested from their hands and became indisputably the property of the United States government on the 31st of last January The G. R. & I. had in years past sold this land to settlers, many of whom had lived and grown gray headed on the land not knowing that it was in fact not their property. They had also made many valuable improvements to the property.

In justice to these settlers the federal government decided to give to each man the land which he had purchased from the G. R. & I. railroad and, upon which he had lived and made many improvements.

The Dawning of the New Dispensation.

The people have spoken, and after nine o'clock next Friday evening there will not be an open saloon in Charlevoix county. But it will not be all calm after the storm. For some time the dealers have been unloading their goods at wholesale prices and less, which have found their way to the cellars, straw stacks and coal bins against the time when the doors are closed and the thirst still lingers. The dealers cannot be blamed for disposing of stock which to them will be useless as an article of merchandise after next Friday night. The sale of bottled goods the past two weeks have been large if not profitible.

It is the last spasm of an expiring giant, and for a long time there will be very pronounced reflex action. There will be a wake, and it will continue long after the corpse is laid away under the ground. "Blind pigs" may spring into action and they may not, but whether they do or not, many a cork will pop out behind the barn or woodshed, and the aroma of old crow will float in the air. Empty bottles will adorn the refuse heaps and cork screws will be found outside the curb.

And herein lies the danger, not only to law and order, but to the cause for which the people have so bravely fought; for it will be used as an argument that prohibition does not prohibit. While the booze lasts the law will doubtless be violated. But be not dismayed. It will be only a freshet which will be soaked up in due time; and the verdure of summer time will soon again show itself through the debris.

If we were vigilant before, our vigilance should be redoubled now. Let the law be strictly enforced. Make it known that the legislative act providing for local option also provides for the condition of which we speak. The "giving away or furnishing for any person of any intoxicating liquor" is a criminal offense, punishable by imprisonment. Let it be known that violations of the law will meet with prompt punishment. The chief result of an awakened public conscience has been accomplished, but an important duty still remains. Let the law be enforced.

The Great Tontine

HAWLEY SMART

Author of "Bubbles, Ltd.," "Bound to Win," Etc.

CHAPTER XXII.—(Continued.)

Hesitingly, was right in the prediction about the money. She kept her force so much as possible turned away from him, and addressed herself to Hingwood in the measured tones, which struck the manager as having been deliberately adopted. He was disappointed, for he had reckoned upon her once to recall this scoundrel to life himself. As yet it had not dawned on him that he felt pretty sure that she would claim his help as little of it as might be. Clearly, if possible, he must follow her lead.

"No," observed the manager, "the old critter also seemed to be out, and, and a proper old thing, he said I have been friendly for the Master's sake, but I suppose you are, there are many of his old friends he don't remember."

"He recognizes very few of them now," said Hingwood, in the same low, methodical tone.

"He knew Mr. Hingwood, of course," said Hesmingly carelessly.

"Why, said anything about it," Pugram, "I'm sorry, I'm sorry, I'm sorry, despite of his existence. "He never cared much about his relations, I'm afraid, and he was sent to big old Mr. Krabbe was too ill to receive visitors, and I was alone in the house, and, consequently, placed himself at the mercy of Lord Lakington, or anybody else who chose to demeanor him.

Hand as old Pugram was, he a little broke down when he told his tale. It has been said that every human being must have something to live, that it is a necessity of our existence, and such love as lower Pugram was capable of giving he had centered on his son.

However, the old lawyer quickly recovered himself and after the first outburst, faced the situation as undaunttedly as ever.

In the course of the afternoon there was a concession, also in the shape that old Krabbe, was dead, and inquiries at Mr. Pugram's office were told it was true that the old man had died very suddenly and unexpectedly.

CHAPTER XXIV.

It was quite open to question whether Lord Lakington was not as much disappointed at the explosion of the great Pugram fraud as the old lawyer himself. He was grateful to his accomplice, for, for avenging his failing a free to a most audacious imposition, still the fact remained, that he, Viscount Lakington, was left in just as precarious a position regarding income as ever.

Although the Viscount might argue to himself that it was his nephew's business to marry money, he was sufficiently a prig to the extent that would eventually fall in love, he had not the least conviction that Jack Phillimore would please himself about choosing a bride, and though he might talk of speaking to his daughter concerning the palpable hereditary gout in the Lakington bosom, he was shrewd enough to know that he had tried Beatrice's obedience to the uttermost limit when she consented to marry Hubert Pugram. His lordship was a trifle shaking for breakfast and now occurred to him that idea which he had rejected when Sheriff Ringwood on the discovery of Finnigan.

"Why, I suppose, he reflected, "I can marry Miss Chichester and settle the "Great Tontine" on her. I will do it myself, and as little delay as possible. I had better, perhaps, propose to her before I do anything else. It would be as well to have her on my side, and I don't know that she is, exactly. Girls object at times to youthful sepulchres, but she and Miss Chichester agree in this, I, still, know, or Beatice, if she cares realizing her fortune, would, in the second place, Lakington is one of little consequence to her.

About two or three days afterwards the Viscount, rather to his astonishment, was informed by his daughter that Miss Chichester was going to dine with all of them, for their kindness, she thoughtfully appreciated and thanked Lord Lakington for the honor he had done her, and was sorry, as she was the cause, of his "Tontine" in any way, her that a fragment could never be, and she Viscount, consequently, had to once more consider in his study over that, in, time, another problem of Will Who is to Succeed?

It speedily occurred to him that the next thing to try was to effect a compromise. Miss Chichester had stated her cautious to meet his views in any way but marriage, and he was small fool to write to Chichester, and propose a division of the money, which would be forfeit, as part of the arrangement, that there should be no prosecution. The idea of a game of Phillimore's game would be almost sure to be carried up a week or two.

"When the servant one day announced Mr. Ringwood, there was no little flutter in the drawing-room. Jack Phillimore, very fair that from that interview she should be able to decide as to whether Ringwood really cared for her or not.

"I have come, Miss Beatrice, I regret to say, to break bad news to you," said Ringwood, "if Miss Lakington's "Great Tontine" is, I should prefer that you alone should know, I, Ringwood, have Hoax Terence Finnigan to dear."

"Poor Terence!" exclaimed the girl, "I am sorry for him; though when existence has become so merely miserable, life was, I suppose cannot but feel that death is deprived of all its terrors."

"By his death your share in the "Tontine" becomes null and I am sorry to say, Miss Beatrice, I, Ringwood, had to inform Mr. Chichester, whose one point was—that the agreement between you and Lord Lakington being still signed, it is not worth the paper it is written on."

"I understand," replied Mary, quietly, "You mean to say that Lord Lakington will not marry me, and, I, for one, cannot regret the prospect of being an heiress less settled into this old."

"That, I regret to say, is the exact state of the case," and very, very hard luck for you it be."

"Well, Mr. Ringwood, I am not going to pretend to be sorry, I am not sorry, I feel relieved in the loss of four thousand a year, I, never, never, wanted it. I, I stand in the same position that I, and my three or four weeks ago, and never have the spending of such an income, I very partially realize the loss of it. I, I shall always feel that I can never be sufficiently grateful to you for all the time and trouble you have wasted, first on my uncle's behalf, and then on my own."

"I have something more to say to you Miss Beatrice, and I, I, I,

ONE thing that makes our store the real headquarters for well-dressed men is the fact that we provide for the needs of young men. These clothes are made in such a very great variety of models that we can cater to men of all ages, and give them what they want.

We find that men seldom grow old in their clothes-tastes; and the makers of these goods seem to have the gift of making styles for the man of middle age which are as young looking as he feels; as well as making the ultra fashions which very young fellows want.

All the fabrics are all wool; it's quite a unique fact in clothes in these cotton-adulteration days.

His Life Made Up of Hardships, Adventures and Accidents.

The career of the shipwrecker consists of samples of hardships and adventure, and a Chicago man who recently came from the city by the endless chain by the wrecking company up to the time he is brought back now from the grim ship he calls "home" crippled or fatally injured. Of all the perilous ones that demand heavy toll of human life, none, not even acting as powder making, is so dangerous as the one of these wreckers. Every year these daring men, who travel about the wave and tempest to save the stranded ships, to raise the stolen ocean gory found, to rescue the ship imperiled upon rocks and, if nothing else, to prove what valuable cargo may be rescued from the New York harbor and give it the benefit of their influence. This is a wonderful.

SULTAN'S ABDICATION RUMORED

Abdul Hamid Also Reported in Flight as Revolt Rages Fiercely.

Abdul Hamid II has abdicated the throne of the Ottoman Empire, according to a dispatch sent to closer from Constantinople and received in London. The young Turks have issued a proclamation naming Mohammed Reshad Effendi, Abdul Hamid's brother, as his successor.

A report that Sultan Abdul Hamid had abdicated caused the greatest excitement in the lobbies of Parliament and spread with lightning like rapidity throughout the city of Constantinople. A rumor of the flight of the Sultan in a warship followed closely on that of his abdication, but neither could be confirmed.

Large crowds gathered at the British embassy, where, other reports had it, the Sultan had taken refuge, and there were scores of inquiries at the Russian embassy concerning the truth of the rumor that he majesty was under the protection of Russia on one of its guard ships. At both of these places also all knowledge of the Sultan's movements was denied, and the Turkish foreign office also gave a strong denial to one and all of these rumors.

The abdication of Abdul Hamid, however, seems not improbable, and it appears that the constitutionalists may accept as his successor Prince Yussef Izeddin, the eldest son of the late Sultan, who is second in line to the throne and strongly disposed with Abdul Hamid's abdication. The prince was under strong guard, and even high officials were not permitted to enter it.

SOTHERN DIVORCE IS LOST.

Nevada Court Denies Decree Asked for by Actress Against Spouse.

One of the most important legal decisions ever written in a lonely corner of the State of Nevada was handed down and filed Monday in the second judicial district court in Reno by Judge W. H. A. Pike, when, in an elaborate opinion on the marriage of Actress Verne Lee of Nevada, he unanimously refused to entertain jurisdiction of a celebrated proceeding begun last July by Virginia Harned Sothern for divorce from E. H. Sothern.

Judge Pike's decision, it is contested, settles beyond question the fact that Mrs. Sothern cannot secure a divorce from her husband unless either she or her husband comes to the State and takes up such a residence there as proves conclusively a bona fide residence to remain there. The particular point settled is that on complaint filed by a non-resident plaintiff with process served on a non-resident defendant, who happens to be temporarily in the State, no jurisdiction is secured for the purposes of allowing a divorce decree.

The effect of the decision will be revolutionary. There are at least twenty divorce actions which are withheld awaiting the outcome of this investigation, and it is probable that the suitors will either return to the East or settle down in the Reno custom of waiting six months, which custom was religiously followed during the period of the Sothern's counsel devised a plan that up to now prevailed hope.

FAREWELL NOTE HINTS AT PLOT

Bakhelaje Leaves Message Saying He Was Sacrificed to Revolution.

"I am the victim of the most diabolical plot ever devised to ruin an honest man," is the main message contained in a farewell letter found in the effects of William L. Bakhelaje, conductor and agent on the United States treasury department in charge of the Philippine bureau, who committed suicide. Mr. Bakhelaje's colleagues in the American consulate in Paris are not able to throw light on the mystery, however, they say that they know nothing of the existence of a plot involving the government. The American consul general continues to believe that Mr. Bakhelaje had become insane. Mrs. Bakhelaje, however, without hesitation, expresses belief in her husband's words. She says her husband was poisoned by the men that he had recently exposed in getting his ruin. It is understood that an investigation will be made into the circumstances connected to Mrs. Bakhelaje by her husband.

MAN KILLED BY FOLDING BED.

Coach Shuts in Night, Crushing Husband and Wife.

A folding bed caused the death of James F. Mather, a feather cutter, in Williamsburg, N. Y. During the night the bed began to rise as if pushed by an invisible hand, pinning Mr. Mather and his wife, despite their struggles and efforts to raise themselves. The man was sleeping on the floor above, based his parents' rifle and was in their sodden sleep, tombstones and funerals. Brooding over this and her advanced years, she ended it all.

TAFT IN TARIFF PLEA

President, in Message, Asks Congress to Revise Philippine Revenue System.

PAYNE BILL FORCES CHANGE

Recommendations of Secretary Dickinson and Gen. Edwards Are Transmitted with Act.

The President sent to Congress a long message in relation to the Philippine tariff. The message transmits recommendations by the Secretary of War for a revision of the Philippine tariff so as to permit as much revenue as possible for the islands and at the same time to extend to the islands the principle of a protective tariff for the industries.

Under the conditions which will arise from the enactment of the tariff bill pending in Congress, which provides under certain conditions for free trade between the Philippines and the United States, the revenues of the island will be considerably affected, and numerous protests have been received here on the account. The proposed amendments to the bill are to interfere as little as possible with these free trade conditions and at the same time permit collection of ample revenue. The message and accompanying letters of recommendation from Secretary Dickinson and General Clarence R. Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the War Department, with a copy of the proposed act were submitted to both houses of Congress shortly after they convened.

Briefly speaking the bill submitted by the President makes a slight increase in the rates of duty now provided in the Philippine tariff, not in Francos way in tendency is to limit, so far as practicable, the benefit of the Philippines market for American manufactures and products. The bill makes some additions to the free list. There will be an increase in internal revenue duties, by which it is hoped to make up the loss which the Philippine Islands will sustain by the operations of the free-trade provisions in the pending Payne tariff bill. The internal-revenue laws for the Philippines are enacted by the Philippine assembly.

President Taft's Message.

"To the Senate and House of Representatives: I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War inclosing one from the chief of the bureau of insular affairs, in which is transmitted a proposed tariff-revision law for the Philippine Islands.

"This message covers the present Philippine tariff, simplifies it and makes it uniform as nearly as possible to the provisions of the tariff laws of the United States, especially with respect to packing and package. The present Philippine regulations have been cumbersome and difficult for American merchants and exporters to comply with. Its purpose is to meet the new conditions that will arise under the section of the pending United States tariff bill, which provides, with certain limitations, for free trade between the United States and the islands. It is desirable that the people of the islands should be protected in the enjoyment of as much revenue as possible and to protect to a reasonable measure those industries which exist in the islands.

"The bill now transmitted has been drawn by a board of tariff experts, of which the insular collector of customs, Col. George R. Colton, was the president. The board held a great many open meetings in Manila and conferred fully with representatives of all business interests in the Philippine Islands. It is of great importance to the welfare of the islands that the bill should be passed at a time when the pending Payne bill, with special reference to the provisions of which it was prepared.

"I respectfully recommend that this bill be enacted at the present session of Congress so that its incidents may be applied by the passage of the Payne bill.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

400 SLAIN AT ADANA.

Slaughter of Christians Continues, Two Americans Reported Killed.

Adana, Asiatic Turkey, was broken out afresh at Adana, thirty-six miles from Mersin, Asiatic Turkey, where large numbers of Christians are said to have been slain. It is reported that two American missionaries have been murdered, but no names are given and the report has not yet been verified. One report says that a dozen have been killed. Fires and that many houses have been burned and burned. The British consul is said to have been wounded. The troops are powerless to control the situation and some of the soldiers are joining in the pillage of the city. The city has been afflicted for four days and horrible massacres have been carried out in the district. The foreign consuls have requested that war ships be sent to Mersina. The troops are commanded at Adana. The little town between Adana and Mersina noted as the birthplace of the apostle Paul, and many houses there were reported to have been burned. The number of victims at Tarsus is unknown.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS.

Great Crowds in Several Cities Attend the First Games.

Immense crowds thronged the big league ball parks for the opening game of the baseball season Wednesday. The Cubs played to 10,000 people in Chicago and over 11,000 fans watched the Sox at Detroit. The Cubs won, 3 to 1, and the Sox lost, 0 to 2. Brandon won from the Cleveland Naps and the Boston Doves trimmed Philadelphia. The only other American League game was at St. Louis, where Cleveland won, 4 to 3. Senator got a banner start on what seems to be its most prosperous year.

The largest crowd that ever witnessed the inauguration of a baseball season in Cincinnati was out to see the Cincinnati nine and Pittsburg game play. The Brigadiers secured a lead in the first inning and gradually increased it through timely hitting and Frommer's stubborn pitching. Cincinnati had men on bases in nearly every inning, but was unable to get one of them home. The Pirates scored three runs. Before one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Southern Ohio, Indianapolis, champions of the American Association, defeated Toledo in the opening game. Opening the season at St. Louis with Cleveland, before one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a spring game, the St. Louis baseball team won from Cleveland by a score of 4 to 2.

BREAD COST RISES.

New York Finds Familiar Dates at Wheat Corner Is Not Broken.

With flour by 40 cents a barrel and the prospects apparently good for a further rise, New York City is now facing the possibility of bread at 7 cents a loaf. What will appear to hundreds of thousands in the poorer quarters the inevitable rise in this staple bill falls to be blamed on the result of the recent rise in wheat. The bakers of the City of New York has already felt the effect of the knowledge of the Chicago wheat pit. Six cents a loaf is the price now charged, and some bakeries, while the proprietors of hundreds of others declare that they cannot continue selling at 5 cents much longer, with flour of the better grades selling for $5.75 to $7.20 a barrel against $5.60 to $6.80 a few days ago. They said, moreover, that with flour prices mounting up to the rates recently quoted even 6 cents would not give them any sort of a profit.

DOCTOR'S FAT RUM FEES.

Ten Thousand Prescriptions for Liquor Issued at St Clair.

The anti-saloon people of Morgantown, W. Va., who have been wondering for some time past why so many drunkards in that town, have found the reason: it was simply "dry" over a year ago here from a place where the Prohibitionists found, in the Attorney General, who declares that the Prohibitionists have made Morgantown have been running the golden bar, and that formerly went to the liquor men. According to announcement made in court by Prosecuting Attorney Reed, one prominent physician alone has written 10,000 prescriptions for liquor during the past year. Mr. Reed announced his intention of making wholesale prosecutions against the physicians. Similar conditions are said to exist through other "dry" districts.

STRAWBERRIES CAUSE ILLNESS.

Californians Poisoned by a Solution Used to Destroy Insects.

Scores of persons in Los Angeles, Cal., have been poisoned in the last few days by strawberries shipped from Japanese produce sold Hughes and Dunn, several other dealers. None of the cases have been serious. Complaints were made some time that the fruit from Dinuman sent a letter to the horticultural commissioner, asking the members of the fruit growers association to kill insects on strawberry plants. The Japanese practically are the only offenders, according to reports. Early in the season the Japanese appeared to a last resort the gardeners used a powerful solution to destroy the pests.

DIES FOR MURDER OF MOTHER.

Youth Who Avenged Life in Reformatory Electrocuted.

For the murder of his mother, Susan Cyrin, in her home in Brooklyn one year ago, Bernard Carlin, aged 22, was put to death by electricity in the Sing Sing prison at Ossining, N. Y. Carlin had been an inmate of charitable or reformatory institutions a greater part of his life, beginning in infancy, when his father died. He blamed his mother for permitting him to be placed in an institution, and when he was released a year ago, went to his mother's home and killed her.

DENOUNCES WHEAT DEAL.

Secretary Wilson Predicts Patten's Corner Will "Go to Smash."

Secretary Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, said in answer to James A. Patten's charges that the figures of the department of Agriculture concerning the wheat supply were inaccurate and untrustworthy: "Our figures are correct. There is plenty in Chicago is enough to allow a corner to rob the consumer and to smash Patten. If Mr. Patten is correct there is a serious shortage in wheat in America. If Secretary Wilson is correct there is no shortage of wheat. The only statistical number engendered by Mr. Patten for speculative purposes. Also, if Secretary Wilson is correct, Mr. Patten's deal will go to smash soon.

The Secretary of Agriculture insists that the government's report to the effect that there were 437,000,000 bushels of reserve wheat in the farmers' hands on March 1 was strictly correct and that he knows where the wheat is. "We do not get our information from speculators," exclaimed Secretary Wilson angrily when the Patten statement was shown him. "We get it from farmers who are reliable, conscientious men. We have been perfecting our system for gathering information for the last twelve years, and it is as correct and thorough as it is possible to get. To corner the wheat market successfully nowadays you have to keep buying and buying and buying. Finally they will come when you can't buy any more, and then the smash comes."

MANY DIE IN BURNING HOTEL.

Six Dailies Found, Others Still in the Ruins of San Francisco Building.

Six bodies recovered and probably eight or ten others buried in the ruins; six dead and twenty-five injured, and yet $125,000 are the results of an early morning fire in the Hotel Ansel, in Ellis street, a lodging-house for laborers, and other small buildings in San Francisco. The bodies taken out the morgue were so burned that identification was impossible. The hotel was a three-story frame building and burned so rapidly that some of the 200 occupants had time to dress, and many escaped by jumping on the roof of an adjoining warehouse. Seven claimed from the hotel of the United States for the week ending with April 15 were 281, against 227 last week, 204 in the week of 1908, 167 in 1907, 167 in 1906 and 181 in 1905. The week's mortality was 29 more than last week, as compared with 38 last week and 27 the week before, and 19 the week of 1908.—Bradstreet's Commercial Report.

CHICAGO.

In the aggregate big volume of payments through the banks and improvement in credits and business conditions are encouraging. Old prices for foodstuffs and labor disputes are temporary cross-currents, and behind retail prices require more seasonable weather for an ample reduction of merchandise. But mildness of weather makes some progress, freight transportation increases and agriculture has started with an excellent outlook.

Metal and woodworking gather strength from the wider demands for supplies, and iron producers have less difficulty in negotiating contracts for future deliveries, although no specially large individual tonnages appear in the bookings.

Increasing inquiries impart a better tone to railway equipment, forge and foundry operations. Hail mills in this district are accumulating orders for forward work, while the orders have more breadth for plates, pipe and merchant bars.

Some gains noted in new demands for lumber, with the Chicago stems roads exhibit further gains, while distress from accumulations of heavy materials factory products grain and general merchandise.

Bank clearings testify to rapid advance in spring work, more acreage between circle and Rocky Mountains and rye do well with higher temperatures and moisture.

Bank clearings $261,274,761, exceed those of corresponding week in 1908 by 20.7 and compare with $234,000,724 in 1907.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 19, against 21 last week, 21 in 1908 and 17 in 1907. These with liabilities over $5,000 number 5, against 4 last week, 5 in 1908, and 8 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Weather, crop and industrial reports are still very irregular, rendering general characterization difficult. Taken as a whole, there is, however, a slightly larger business doing, this being particularly true of retail trade in sections where weather permits and in bookings for fall and winter delivery at wholesale.

In portions of the South and the East generally there is more confident purchasing, higher prices for cotton falling in the former instance, while the advance of the season helps trade along the Atlantic seaboard. Business in the Pacific coast states is quiet, slightly, particularly in California. In the central West trade at retail is exceptionally slowly and a rather better business is reported with country merchants, but jobbing activity is not as pronounced as it was some weeks ago.

Industry is in a rather spotted condition, some factories, for instance, in iron and steel, but largely, it is claimed, at the expense of prices. The improvement noticed in the cotton goods industry is maintained. Prices of staple goods are firm. There is more doing in silk manufacturing. Women's wear woolen goods are in good request and worsted yarns and yarns are strong, reflecting the continued business in raw wool. Business failures in the United States for the week ending with April 15 were 281, against 227 last week, 204 in the week of 1908, 167 in 1907, 167 in 1906 and 181 in 1905. The week's mortality was 29 more than last week, as compared with 38 last week and 27 the week before, and 19 the week of 1908.—Bradstreet's Commercial Report.

The Sunday School Lesson

Subject for April 25, 1909.

The Gospel at Antioch.—Acts 11:19-30.

Golden Text: "The disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." Acts 11:26. The sacred writer of the acts of the apostles now turns his hand again to the writing of the general history of the spread of Christianity.

"Upon the persecution." The revised version translates it "Tribulation." The persecution here means the general history from the time of Stephen's death to the arrest of Paul, the "Tribulation" is simply immediately north of Palestine. "Cyprus," an island in the Mediterranean Sea about sixty-nine miles west of the coast of Palestine. "And Antioch." There were two cities of that name. The one was in Syria. It was a very central point and called from its situation "The Gateway of the East." "Unto the Jews only." They had not heard of the transaction that took place at the house of Cornelius. To those also it took a long time for news to travel.

"Men of Cyprus and Cyrene." They were probably natives of these places, Jewish proselytes, and had not yet heard of the Jews only. "Spoke the word." They preached the gospel to the Jews only. "Preaching to these Greeks that Christ is the Saviour of all men as well as of the Jews, the land of the Lord was with them." The term hand is a figure denoting power. It means that the power of the Lord was with them. "Sent forth Barnabas." He was given high honor by the apostles. It means Son of Consolation. "Desire the grace of God." He was a spiritual man and could tell when he saw a genuine work of God. "Cleave unto the Lord." And he found it was genuine. "With purpose of heart." That is, he exhorted them "entirely consecrate themselves to God. This is the point that all Christians should aim at, if they expect to be saved. "To go unto Tarsus." It is stated that Barnabas came to Antioch. "This was a second time that he went personally in the history of Saul or Paul. "Brought unto the Lord." Saul had led many to the disciples when they were afraid of him, just after his conversion. (Acts 9: 20, 26). What an influence for good Saul's conversion must have had on his character. "Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus to seek for Saul." Barnabas was a man of great power in the world. "Saul." Saul was the Greek form of his name. "Tarsus." Tarsus was a city of Cilicia, and was the birthplace of the apostle Paul. "Brought unto Antioch." This was the second time that he went personally in the history of Saul or Paul. "Taught much people." Saul led many to the disciples when they were afraid of him, just after his conversion. (Acts 9: 20, 26). What an influence for good Saul's conversion must have had on his character. He said he wanted to see the disciples and he was talking to. Most of the women have complied with the request.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT.

Flour May Go to $10 a Barrel, Say Millers.

Rise in the price of flour sold into the mills in America are selling spring wheat flour at $7 a barrel, or $1.50 more than a year ago, is brought to light in one of the effects of the present condition of the wheat market and the country's supply of the cereal. According to the Chicago Daily News, manager of the Washburn-Crosby Company, the Pillsbury-Washburn Company and the Northwestern Consolidated Milling Company, which operate what are declared the largest mills in the United States, and practically fix the price of flour, say there is no relief in sight from present conditions, and every indication is that the price of flour will continue to rear and may go to $10 a barrel. The rise in the wholesale millers' price is being followed by a rise in the price to brokers and consumers and will result in materially affecting the price of bread and bakery goods. The price of rye flour and other breadstuffs has also been increased, the rise in the price of rye flour per barrel being about 30 cents in less than a month.

The managers of the milling companies deny that there is any combination to increase prices or to control the business. They insist that the rise in the price of flour is due to the fact that the supply of wheat and breadstuffs in Europe and other countries is the insufficient and that the United States is the fight of the demands which are now being made and by the great crop of wheat. Millions of dollars in minister of war and marine, and in grand master of artillery.

The change in the cabinet in Persia was caused by the attempt of the Russian political situation by the Young Turk party, or committee of union and progress, which virtually imposed on the Sultan a ministry of the Young Turks. The committee publicly repudiated any intention to overthrow the Sultan or to establish a military dictatorship, but the crisis did not promote well for the stability of the ministry or the success of parliamentary government. It has been a question how the minister of finance of the empire would regard this proposal of the committee, as it is responsible constitutionally.

A note in a bottle was picked up in the Pacific Ocean, a message purporting to tell of the plight of a Hendrina Rockaway, a young girl who was dragged at San Francisco and carried out to sea by a man who hacked up on the water from a Oakland dock. The paper was crumpled in a bottle which the girl threw from the cargo porthole of her prison ship, trusting that her agent would reach land. The note was addressed to her father and bring about her release.

SOLDIERS OF SULTAN START A REVOLUTION

Panic Rules Turkish Capital and People Blame Young Turks Movement.

Serious disturbances of a revolutionary character have broken out in Constantinople. The situation is grave. The unruly troops made demonstration against the building of the Turkish parliament. Panic has seized the people of Constantinople, and all business in the city has stopped.

The latest report received in this country is that the Sultan has fled from the capital. A resolution to this effect was passed the other afternoon. Of 52 men, 31 voted in favor of the resolution and 21 against it. It looks forbidding in view of the fact that the Sultan is popular and is able to work much faster than the House. It is rumored that a joint resolution of the Ottoman Parliament, including representatives of the Senate and the House, is to be presented to the sultan, and it is said that the sultan will concur, as the latter feels he is unable to get away as soon as possible and is able to work much faster than the House. It is rumored that a joint resolution, providing for the dethronement of the sultan, is to be presented to the sultan. The sultan is popular Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Moved by Swinton and seconded by Glassford that the minutes of last meeting regarding the salary of the Street Commissioner be corrected to read "eight a.m." instead of working days. Motion prevailed.

Moved by Bachow and seconded by Glassford that the bill of Robert M. A. Johnston & Co. to do the commercial work, wiring etc. now being done in the City Electric Light Department, be referred to the Board of Public works. Motion prevailed.

Moved by Hiddocks and seconded by Glassford that the finance committee be instructed and authorized to have the city books properly audited and provide for the proper keeping of city records. Motion prevailed.

Moved by Webster and seconded by Swinton that Tuesday of each week at 7:30 p. m. be fixed as the time of holding regular meetings of the common council and that the first and third meetings of each month be set as meetings for the auditing of claims and accounts. The same to take effect April 27, '09. Motion prevailed.

There being no further business the council adjourned.

G. E. DUTTON, City Clerk.

A Big Success

A big success for a quarter of a century and still one of the most popular plays ever written is the "Two Orphans," and it this fall to live triumphantly through the twentieth century, with nevertheless undeadened vigor, its marvellous melodramatic, vicious musical centralizes and suggestive problem plays the likewise. The great old play is to have a fine presentation here Wednesday May 5th. Manager Bridge having been fortunate enough to secure the Frank G. Connel production of the only authorized Kate Claxton version. The company has been receiving high praise all along the route and evidently is a most carefully chosen group of players. Many of them are known to be especially strong in the parts which they are now playing in the "Two Orphans," having had long experience in other productions of the play. Kate Claxton's celebrated part of the blind girl will be played with all the telling detail which her dramatic genius and years of experience have supplied. The terrible Raglan woman monster, La Frochard, will be powerfully played and the crippled Pierre will be a brilliant emotional achievement to compare with the patheticpleading blind girl. The beautiful and well known stage picture of the "two Orphans" will be supplied adequately out of the special equipment of scenery which the Connel company carries. It is no exaggeration to say that the "Two Orphans" presented by this an excellent company is an event of the season in any community. The play is classic, and an example of the dramatist's and the actor's art at its best. Take all the animal plays it supposes to all kinds and all ages. It has thrills of the right sort, sure heart interest from a dozen ordinary melodramas and it is a gold mine of intense, distinct, contrasted characters.

Local News.

—Attorney Jersey, of Boyne City, was in town Tuesday.

—James C. Gallagher, of St. James, came over on the Monday trip of the Beaver.

—The freight boat Stirling, of the N. M. T. line, was in port Monday night on her first trip.

—John A. Linn left yesterday for St. Louis, where he has another large rustic work contract.

—Mr. H. P. Parmelee has returned to Charlevoix for the summer, after a winter's visit with relatives in Canada.

—F. G. Bellinger and wife left yesterday for Lansing, Ill., where Mr. Bellinger has secured a lucrative position in the big watch factory.

—We are glad to learn that Will Bellinger has succeeded in arranging matters so that he will re-open the Bazaar, near the bridge, about June 1st.

—John Thumer and wife left Monday for Muskegon. Weiss Mrs. Timmer is visiting relatives John will spend two weeks trout fishing on Pentwater river.

—Mrs. J. W. Harris arrived here yesterday for a two weeks visit. Mr. Harris will arrive Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Harris have spent the winter at Oak Park, Ills., and will return there.

—Mrs. Mary Sweetland, who has been held here under restraint for some time awaiting examination as to her sanity, so far recovered her normal condition of mind Monday as to accompany her daughter to Chicago.

—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. & A. M., has accepted an invitation to visit Boyne City Lodge on the night of May 14th, on the occasion of the dedication of a new hall. Boyne City Masons are noted for their hospitality and a most enjoyable time is expected.

—The change from saloons to no saloons at St. James was marked by no incident worthy of note. The two places closed up promptly at nine o'clock Friday evening. "The boys" all had a good time during the day and evening, but nobody got hurt, and there was nothing unusual.

—Dr. C. A. Monagne left Monday night for Rochester, Minn., to attend the surgical clinics of Doctors Wm. and Charles Mayo. He will be absent three or four weeks. Dr. Tibbles will look after his patients while he is away. Mrs. Monagne will visit relatives and friends at Buchanan, Mich.

—The vaudeville entertainment presented by Manager Spencer in the Bridge Theater, Monday night, was pronounced a success by all who saw it. The Fairchaus in their laughable sketch "Holding the Fort" were a decided hit and provoked many outbursts of laughter and applause. "Hotman" the Happy Frogman did some astonishing feats of contortion and was well received. There were two packed houses, and Mr. Spencer expressed himself as being very well pleased that his show detracted in no way from his previously established reputation for playing good attractions.

—Van Pelt has begun excavating for his new building in the rear of the postoffice.

—Grimell Bros., of the celebrated Detroit music house, have an advertisement in this issue.

—W. J. Bachow is grading and improving the grounds of his beautiful Park Avenue home.

—Special transportation of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., next Tuesday night, May 11th. Work on E. A. degree. By order of W. M.

—Archie Miller, an attendant at the Northern Michigan Asylum for the Insane, at Traverse City, was in town over Sunday, visiting his father, Lionert A. Miller.

—The Majestic Theater opened Monday evening and is giving good vaudeville and vaudeville entertainments nightly. The attractions thus far have been high-class.

—Mrs. A. D. Cruikshank returned last Thursday from Pueblo, Colo., where she spent the winter with her daughter, Miss Gale Cruikshank. Mrs. G. brings the news that Miss Gale will, with three of her girl chums, visit Europe this summer.

—Too old comrades and friends of that honest old veteran, Robert Miller, dined with him last Sunday, and "the battles fought over again." Mr. Miller's daughter, Mrs. Aggie Jarvis, was the hostess, and the old boys say the dinner was a banquet. The event was immensely enjoyed by all, and especially by "Uncle Robert."

—The musical organization spoken of in these columns last as the Cohen Orchestra is known as the Charlevoix High School Orchestra, and is under the direction of Miss Gregory, the high school music teacher. The orchestra is not only a credit to the high school but to the city. Its work at the Charlevoix Theater last Friday night, in the "Alumnae" engagement, was splendidly received by the large audience.

—The librarian of the public library has the following report to offer for the month of April: No. of fiction given out, 339; juvenile fiction, 256; philosophy, 3; religion, 7; sociology, 19; natural science, 9; fine arts, 10; literature, 22; history, 8; travel, 18; biography, 19; total number, 749; daily average, 30. Number of patrons enrolled during the month, 14. Total number of patrons, 266. Fines collected $2.14. Ninety-one new books have been added to the library.

—When nine o'clock came around Friday evening every saloon in Charlevoix was closed and remained closed. The crowd had plenty of fun Friday afternoon and evening, and made considerable noise. In one place some furniture was broken, and some of the boys were out all night, demonstrating, from time to time, their presence on earth. At seven Saturday morning some were still out and still noisy. But no arrests were made, the police authorities deeming it not best to be too stringent at the outset. Information from Boyne City is to the effect that Medium broke loose there, and that considerable action property was destroyed and damaged. Saturday afternoon there was the usual crowd in town, and many were the anxious glances cast at the closed doors. But the streets were as quiet as the country church yard, so far as any liquid inspiration was concerned. Plenty of booze is doubtless being licked up, but it is not in sight.

—Mrs. L. C. Calsoun, of Dekalb Junction, N. Y., is here visiting her sister, Mrs. W. H. Miller.

—The street commissioner says clean up your premises, and he means what he says.

—Capt. Manuss Bonner, of St. James, was in town Tuesday on his way to Sheboygan to fit out the schooner Home Shannon, which he will sail this season.

—In another column will be found the call for a special school meeting May 7th. It will be an important meeting, and every legal voter in the school district should attend.

The Normal Class will give a supper at the Methodist church Friday May 7. One of the members of the class has been obliged to drop her work for the present on account of sickness and the proceeds of the supper will be used for her benefit.

—The regular May term of the circuit court for Charlevoix county will begin next Monday. There are in the docket thirteen criminal cases, seven issues of fact, ten chancery cases (including seven divorce cases,) and five applications for naturalization. It is the largest calendar ever taken into court in this county.

—Rural carriers are required by the department in orders dated April 15, 1909 to submit without delay names of all patrons whose boxes cannot be served without leaving the road, dismounting, driving in deep ditches, or on steep inclines. Boxes should be securely fastened to post posts firmly set at the side of the roads, at a sufficient height to be served by carriers without rising from their seats or reaching through the spokes.

—Now watch for the "blind pig" joints, operated under the guise of soft-drink emporiums. There are places that will lure wayfarers, and indulge in furnishing of intoxicating drinks to others under any pretence what ever subjects the offenders to severe penalties. Charlevoix is a dry town, and it will be kept dry under a strict interpretation of the local option law. If you don't know what it is you had better look it up and be cautious.

—Dunkirk, (N. Y.) Observer: Capt. John Dahlmer, owner of the fish tug Knapp, is having a new tug built by Isbel & Son of Ashtabula, O. The construction of the boat is now well underway and the tug will probably be completed and turned over to Capt. Dahlmer the latter part of July or early in August. It will be about 75 feet long with a fifteen foot beam and will be equipped with the engine and boiler now in the tug Knapp. The Knapp will probably go out of commission upon the completion of the new boat.

—The severest and most protracted storm within the memory of the oldest inhabitant began on Wednesday night of last week and continued almost uninterruptedly until last Sunday night. The 45-mile northeast gale was accompanied by low temperature and snow, and in all respects conditions were more distressingly uncomfortable than at any time the past winter. All telegraph wires went out of commission Wednesday night and communication was cut off until Sunday night, and then with but one wire out of four. The storm covered all of Michigan and parts of Indiana and Ohio, reaching some of the southern states with much violence. There were no marine disasters in this vicinity.

—Word has been received here announcing the death of Capt. Wm. Lemon, at the home of his daughter, in Chicago. Capt. Lemon was one of the old school schooner masters, and sailed some of the sidlinne vessels out of this port. He was a veteran of the civil war, serving from 1861 to 1865 in the 9th Illinois Cavalry. He was a member of Baxter Post G. A. R. of this city.

—Miss Maud Black, daughter of Wm. and Mrs. Lillie Black, of Marion, a very ambitious and popular member of the senior class of the Charlevoix High School, has been forced by severe illness to abandon her studies, just finishing her third graduation. Having reached a point, so near the goal of her ambition the honor will be scarcely less than that which is bestowed with a sheepskin.

—James Perry, for many years engineer at the Argo mill, and the past year foreman of the Vanthuyne building, left Monday for his old home in Haverhill, Mass., where he expects to remain. Mr. Perry has always been numbered among the best citizens of Charlevoix, and he has very many friends here who will wish for his peace and happiness and a share of the prosperity of his. It may be that it was the more conspicuously disreputable that damned the remainder, but justice demanded that the latter should share in the reproval. In this second American emancipation, as in the first, the slaveholder must be the sufferer, after generations of suffering for the slave. We believe the emancipation will be complete.

Turning from the vanquished to the victors, the retrospect also discloses the fact that the movement that has thus far been so successful was not alone the work of temperance people, so-called. Co-jointly with the well directed efforts of the Anti-Saloon League, there arose a united cry from the conservative, thoughtful business element of the country. Many a good citizen, who drank champaign at the behest of the toastmaster, and upon whose premises could at any time be found empty beer bottles, was as earnest in the cause as Mr. Dickie of Albion. Moreover, many a man who had been for years in the group of Republican voters under silently added his vote to the avalanche that at this very hour is sweeping the open saloon from the land.

It is as much an epoch-making movement as that which demolished the bastile; that which followed the sinking of the Maine, or that which more recently dethroned "the assassin of Europe." Abdul Hamid will never again reign; neither will whiskey. But conspirators still abide with us, and their work has already begun to stem the tide of popular sentiment that has been so disastrous to the liquor traffic.

But veteran vigilance is the price of liberty even in Charlevoix county."

A New Primary Law.

The following is the gist of a primary law measure that has been finally agreed upon by the committees of the two legislative branches at Lansing and will probably pass at this session:

Mandatory—On governor, lieutenant governor, United States senator, congressman, all legislators, all circuit judges.

Optional—On all city and county officers, but option reversed so that cities and counties must nominate by primary unless majority electors votes not to do so.

Exempted—State officers below lieutenant-governor elected in fall, and the judicial and other state officers named in spring.

Primary date—First Tuesday after first Monday in September making it the day after Labor day.

Recounts—To be conducted by boards of canvassers, not by circuit judges as proposed in Dickinson bill.

Delegates—To county conventions to be named at primaries.

Conventions—State conventions for minor state officers retained. Delegates to be named at county conventions held simultaneously throughout state.

Looking Backward

As we pass along under the changed conditions of the new dispensation we are enabled to assume a frame of mind that is conducive to a clear and impartial retrospect of the "Pandora's box of evils" that finally led to revolt. It is the story of Boston harbor in 1775 told over again. In 1775 it was a protest against misrule; in 1909 it was a protest against anarchy—for what is defiance of law but anarchy? In 1861 there was commenced a war that finally abolished a system of bartering in human souls; in 1908 there was begun a crusade to disenthrall human souls.

The war has been carried into the enemy's country, and has already passed the forty-forty period. Speaking for Michigan alone, we believe that in two years there will not be an open saloon in the state.

The retrospect clearly reveals the fact that the saloon system itself, by its persistent and brazen violation and defiance of law, brought about the delegation of war. It may be that it was the more conspicuously disreputable that damned the remainder, but justice demanded that the latter should share in the reproval. In this second American emancipation, as in the first, the slaveholder must be the sufferer, after generations of suffering for the slave. We believe the emancipation will be complete.

Turning from the vanquished to the victors, the retrospect also discloses the fact that the movement that has thus far been so successful was not alone the work of temperance people, so-called. Co-jointly with the well directed efforts of the Anti-Saloon League, there arose a united cry from the conservative, thoughtful business element of the country. Many a good citizen, who drank champaign at the behest of the toastmaster, and upon whose premises could at any time be found empty beer bottles, was as earnest in the cause as Mr. Dickie of Albion. Moreover, many a man who had been for years in the group of Republican voters under silently added his vote to the avalanche that at this very hour is sweeping the open saloon from the land.

It is as much an epoch-making movement as that which demolished the bastile; that which followed the sinking of the Maine, or that which more recently dethroned "the assassin of Europe." Abdul Hamid will never again reign; neither will whiskey. But conspirators still abide with us, and their work has already begun to stem the tide of popular sentiment that has been so disastrous to the liquor traffic.

But veteran vigilance is the price of liberty even in Charlevoix county."

NINE KILLED IN OHIO STORM.

Six Fatally Injured and Property Loss Is Over $1,000,000.

Nine persons were killed, six fatally hurt, and at least fifty scattered by tornadoes and property valued at more than $1,000,000 was destroyed in a gale which swept through Cleveland and northern Ohio Wednesday. Fred Grugo committed suicide during the height of the storm because he was afraid he was about to be killed. He rushed into a barn out of the rain and drank carbolic acid. He left a note explaining his action. Roofs were lifted off houses, walls hurled down, strongly braced smoke stacks pulled up and chimneys demolished. Porches were stripped of residences and small buildings were carried away. The largest single injury that was done will be at St. Schalliano's Church, East Sixty-fifth street and Forman avenue is ruined. The wind practically demolished the structure. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

He did not arrive there, and when he failed to return home for luncheon at noon his mother became worried. Inquiry at the school developed the fact that the boy had not been there.

ABDUL HAMID. THE DEPOSED SULTAN OF TURKEY.

PEACE IN COAL MINES.

Operators and Workers Practically Agree on New Contract.

Peace in the anthracite coal region appeared for another three years.

President Thomas L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, who with the three district presidents had been in conference with a sub-committee of the operators in Philadelphia for two days, made a positive announcement Thursday night that a new working agreement would be signed before the end of the next week. This contract will be based upon a proposition which has been submitted by the operators, and which, in the opinion of Mr. Lewis and his colleagues, contains a number of important concessions.

Acting on behalf of the union miners, Mr. Lewis accepted the proposition, subject to the approval of a tri-district convention, which goes to be held in Scranton the next Tuesday afternoon. There is little doubt that the men will accept this new offer and will authorize their officers to sign the agreement. It is believed that the new agreement will avoid recognition in some form to the organization, but will recognize the union as a branch of the United Mine Workers of America, but not a distinct labor-union association. The contract will also provide that all new work shall be paid according to the rates established by the strike commission. There will be no increase of wages, but there will likely be readjustment of wages at new collieries.

DEATH TAKES GOV. LILLEY

Peaceful End of Executive Is in Contrast with Career.

Surrounded by his family of wife and three children and by his brother and sister, Governor George L. Lilley, after a six days' illness, died at 7:20 o'clock Wednesday night in the executive mansion on Farmington avenue, Hartford, Conn. Following his fight in Congress in the submarine boat controversy, he was taken to his cottage in Litchfield county of last summer and Mrs. Lilley was hurried from the Waterbury, Conn., in a state of serious collapse, and the news of his death was received by the citizens which greeted his first message as Governor. A tribute in New Jersey authorizing Julius C. Lilley, and following his return to Hartford he gave indications of his fatal disposition being due to kidney trouble, which affected his heart and brought on intestinal poisoning. Lieutenant Governor Weeks will at once assume office.

CHICAGO.

Trade is stimulated by the more seasonable weather, and there is mobile redistribution of life hands in the sacred of industrial and farming activities. The volume of payments through the banks is next to the well above that of a year ago, and money has a firmer tone, but rates for choice commercial paper are unchanged. Preparations for the May settlements indicate a release of interest and dividends exceeding former totals.

Confidence in the business outlook is reflected in a larger investment in bonds, stocks and improvements. Agricultural advices show more agreement as to extending acreage, there being much breaking of soil for the first time in the Northwest, where new settlements are multiplying rapidly.

Implement factories have increased outputs and there is wider absorption of wagons and nearer deliveries are repts exhibit considerable gain, and the mills remain well engaged, but shipments of various woods to Western points steadily grow, and finishing materials are in better demand. Small outputs and quarry products. Numerous building permits are issued for structural steel, pipe, merchant iron and forge work. Car builders obtained considerable new business and have a fair tonnage is booked for rails and fastenings. Some mills are running close to capacity, and the improved conditions affording work to several thousand additional hands. Leather working trades find inquiries increasing for belting, cowhides and trunks. Shoe factories accumulate forward orders, and there is good business in the markets for the raw material. Other factory supplies come forward in fair volume, requirements, but prices hold steady and, in some instances have a firmer tendency.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 32, against 21 last week, 34 in 1906 and 19 in 1907. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 8, against 11 last week, 10 in 1906 and 7 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Trade conditions are without much change, and frequently it is still the leading feature in business and industrial times. Results of spring business are on a whole disappointing. There is, however, more doing in wholesale lines for next fall and winter, and the tone in this branch is fairly optimistic.

There is considerably more activity in the pig iron market, and the volume of business doing in iron and steel is larger than a month ago, but the tone is more or less disappointing. There was a decided falling off in wholesale lines for next fall and winter, and the tone in this branch is fairly optimistic.

NIGHT RIDERS' CASES.

Twenty-two Man to Be Tried for Capt. Rankin's Murder.

This week the cases of the Night Riders, convicted of the lynching of Captain Quentin R. Rankin last October, are before the Tennessee Supreme Court. Of the eight men convicted, six were sentenced to be hanged and two received life sentences of imprisonment. Appeals to the Supreme Court were taken in all the cases and Attorney General H. H. Caldwell is now busy opposing the efforts to secure new trials.

The disposition of these eight cases will not end the legal proceedings over the sensational and cold-blooded murder of Captain Rankin. Twenty-two other men are under indictment for the same offense and it is expected that their trials will soon open. Practically the same evidence will be used against them as in the cases of those who are now under sentence.

The murder of Capt. Rankin thoroughly aroused the State and led to a determination to put an end the reign of lawlessness of which it was the most sensational outgrowth. Capt. Rankin and his friend, Judge Zachary Taylor, organized the Western Tennessee Land Company, which purchased the bulk of the land bordering on Reelfoot Lake—a little body of water noted for its fish and game. Hitherto the people around enjoyed the fishing privileges of the lake; but then the land company came into control it put an end to these privileges. This led to the formation of Night Rider bands among those who claimed the fishing privileges of the lake were denied and the violation by them of summary vengeance upon all who either refused to sold their property to the land company or sympathized with it. Last October Capt. Rankin and Judge Taylor visited Walnut Lodge on the shores of Reelfoot Lake. The Night Riders learned them and carried them off into the woods and there hanged them. Judge Taylor escaped by jumping in the darkness into a deep ravine and hiding among the bushes and escaping the pursuit.

EX-SENATOR STEWART DEAD.

Nevada Was Represented in Congress for Three Terms.

Ex-Senator Stewart, of Nevada, formerly United States Senator, died at the Georgetown Hospital in Washington, Friday, following an operation. The end was taken to Nevada Monday. Mr. Stewart was born in Lyons, N. Y., Aug. 9, 1827. He left Yale College in 1849 and went to the gold diggings in California, and made the city of Nevada and arrived in San Francisco in May, 1850. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1852. After serving a term as Attorney General of California he moved to Virginia City, Nev., in 1860. He became interested in the Comstock lode, which made him a fortune. He had a prominent part in the organization of Nevada and gathered partial complaints of last summer and Mr. Mrs. Patten gathered from the Waterbury, Conn., in a state of serious collapse, and the news of his death was received by the citizens which greeted his first message as Governor. A tribute in New Jersey authorizing Julius C. Lilley, and following his return to Hartford he gave indications of his fatal disposition being due to kidney trouble, which affected his heart and brought on intestinal poisoning. Lieutenant Governor Weeks will at once assume office.

SUPERSTITIONS ARE IN DEEP MISERY

War Ships of Powers Land Marines, but Little Progress Is Made Toward Order.

The situation in Asiatic Turkey is one of extreme gravity. How many thousands have been massacred cannot even be estimated, because the disturbances have been so widespread that it is impossible to secure details of the happenings of the last ten days. The latest estimates of the number killed in the vilayet of Adana range approximately 25,000, and thousands have been sold to death in the towns of Ada Kale—a little body of water noted for its fish and game. Hitherto the people around enjoyed the fishing privileges of the lake; but then the land company came into control it put an end to these privileges. This led to the formation of Night Rider bands among those who claimed the fishing privileges of the lake were denied and the violation by them of summary vengeance upon all who either refused to sold their property to the land company or sympathized with it. ARREST "SOUL MATE" TEACHER.

Mormonites Women Arrested Over Affinity Doctrine.

Mormonites women are amused over the proposition to establish a "soul mate" colony there and to their indignation in the arrest of Joseph Klopeck, Prosecuting Attorney Harle said that Mormons refused to sanction any "affinity" marriages or permit immorality under cloak of religious fanaticism. Joseph Klopeck asserts that there is no such thing as marriage in the Bible. Four years ago he brought his "soul mate" from Chicago. They took up their residence in Birch Creek, several miles from Mormonites, and the authorities allege they began to teach the doctrine. Recently several women called on Prosecuting Attorney Harle and informed him that their husbands decided to have their marriage vows annulled and after that had been done to take their divorced wives to Birch Creek and live. The investigation brought Klopeck to the district attorney's office, where he admitted the creed he had been following.

NOW SUSPECT MURDER.

Discovery of Arsenic Not Near Muskegon Expected to Clear Mystery.

A discovery which will probably throw light on the mysterious death of Mrs. Ida Belle Lake of Deputy Sheriff Bassettine and Deputy Wardens Julius and Martin Salomonson last fall, in their endeavor to find the murderer of Ed Bigelow, was made when William Hrae of Whitehall found a wooden box containing 700 feet from Long Point to the place where the bodies were found. Hrae and his men were ordered away while other portions of it looked as if they had been removed by officers. The stories circulated at the time of the discovery of the bodies of the Lakes and Bigelow have been in the act of removing the nets from the water when they met death.

SOLD LIQUOR TO BOYS.

Bartender in Mecosta Saloon Arrested for Violating Law.

Joseph Lindebaugh, bartender for Barnes Brothers, owners of the Big Rapids saloon, was arrested the other day for selling liquor to Joseph Stepkes, 16 years old, and bound over to the May term of the Circuit Court. The selling of liquor has continued six months, and more than one adequate the involved Stepkes is said to be one of a band of four or five boys, all minors, one not more than 12, who have been getting liquor regularly. The purchase was always made by Stepkes, but the money was furnished by others. The investigation was made through the complaint of an outside laundry for which one of the young drinkers was agent, and which found him $23 short. The illegal sales were unchecked in looking up the shortage.

STATE PROHIBITION IN 1910.

Figures on Submission of Amendment to Constitution.

Two years hence will see Michigan in the throes of a fierce fight over the question of State-wide prohibition. This is promised by the Anti-Saloon League which is made continent only upon the showing to be made next year on the local option proposition. Attorney Fitzy Morris, of the Anti-Saloon League, who has been one of the prominent figures of the State for years, is quoted as saying that the state wide prohibition feature would be an issue in the legislature of 1909. The League makes another good show in the campaign for local option this year, he will feel justified, he says, in making the light for State-wide prohibition, and after an amendment to the constitution because it is doubtful of a statute's permanency.

The French Tariff Commission in analyzing the report of the maximum and minimum schedules of duties in its opinion is understood to have decided to recommend to the American trade in manufacture. This was done with the hope of convincing the United States Congress that France was desirous of treating on commercial relations with this country.

Michigan Legislature

Names Men to Succeed Davis.

Governor Warner's strategic move in appointing former public secretary Fred Davis, Jr., to succeed Highway Commissioner Hiram E. Earle, to head off legislation designed to perpetuate Earle in his office, stirred up the Senate to an unexpected manner the other afternoon. When the appointment was answered in the Senate the usual reference made by Senator Weimaster that it be confirmed. In keeping with the traditional idea of confirmation of appointments in which former members are honored should be made in open session, Earle's friends in the Senate, led by Senators MacKay, Tuttle and Maynes, asserted that this required a two-thirds vote since it represented a suspension of the rules. There was quite a parlimentary debate on the issue, but the motion failed to prevail. The confirmation was carried by a vote of 20 to 8. Senators Aubert, Holt, Tuttle, MacKay, Mayes, Sutherland and Weimaster voted against the confirmation. After everything had been thus solidly fixed for the administration, MacKay read the law to the Lieutenant Governor and Senate and secured unanimous consent of the Senate that the rules be suspended. The senators were required to pass upon the appointment of Davis, and the way was clear for the action on executive business then prevailed.

Railroad Commission Bill Passes House.

In the course of another busy afternoon the House managed to pass another of the big items of legislation in which it has been so industrious this bill. The measure went through on a vote of 64 to 14 without amendment or debate, and with a fine. He pointed out that corporations cannot well be charged with misdeeds. In addition, Representative Copley indicated to the friends of the bill that the title was not in keeping with its text or purpose and was liable to an unconstitutional ruling by the courts.

Senate Passes Highway Bill.

Former State Senator Townsend A. Ely was twice confirmed by the Senate the other day for the position of State Highway Commissioner to succeed Hiram E. Earle. The duplicate action came through the failure, in the first instance, to insert the former State Senator with the necessary complimentary confirmation in open session. During the interval between the two confirmations the Senate passed the big general highway bill and the amendment making the State Highway Commissioner's office elective, beginning with the spring of 1908, was incorporated.

Cash Fare Penalty Bill Again.

In direct opposition to the ideas of the Senate was the report of the House committee on railways on the bill providing for a cash fare penalty of 10 cents. The minority was reported out by this committee with the recommendation that it be passed. It was contended that after one of the bitterest and closest fights of the session, the House voted the measure down.

House is Hurrying Things.

Speaker Campbell is still optimistic. He believes the work can be completed for adjournment May 6. The determination to hurry things is apparent in the resolution to place bills of importance on their immediate passage and get them out of the way one by one as agreed upon in committee of the whole.

State to Borrow $250,000.

In accordance with the new constitutional provision allowing an emergency loan, Senator Shields has introduced a bill authorizing the State Board of Auditors to negotiate a loan of not exceeding $250,000, to be credited to the State treasury upon the proper vouchers of any nature.

Another New Game Bill.

Introduced by Mr. H. Merson of Saginaw, a party of sportsmen came to the Capitol with a game bill which proposed to be Michigan Association for the Protection of Game. The bill is based on the idea of the only real game by State Game Wardens Pierce and Inspector Mason, and it is a fine piece of work. It is said that it is said by the sportsmen to be more scientifically drawn.

Unanimous on Military Bill.

The Senate military bill passed the House the other afternoon by a unanimous vote, with an amendment added to give to the Detroit company $1,000 a year for armory rental. So far as is known there is no objection to the bill at the capital, and it is expected that it will pass there promptly. In general the bill is a revision of the last military law, making no extensive changes in the great troops.

NINE KILLED IN OHIO STORM.

Six Fatally Injured and Property Loss Is Over $1,000,000.

Nine persons were killed, six fatally hurt, and a dozen more seriously injured in Lorain and property valued at more than $1 Hundred was destroyed in a storm which swept through Cleveland and northern Ohio Wednesday. Fred Gray got committed suicide during the height of the storm because he was afraid he was about to be killed. He rushed to a barn out of the rain and drank carbolic acid. He left a note explaining his action. Roofs were lifted off houses, walls blown down, strongly braced smoke stacks picked up and hurlmeyer demolished. Porches were stripped off residences and small buildings were carried away. The largest single injury that was reported was in St. Stanislaus Church, East Sixty-fifth street and Herman avenue, in Cleveland. The wind practically demolished the structure. The loss is estimated at $125,000.

CINCINNATI BOY IS KIDNAPPED

Disappearance Follows the Receipt of Threatening Letter by Mother.

Jay Sheridan, the 12-year-old son of Mrs. John McIlhenny, 413 West 5th street, Cincinnati, is missing following the receipt by his mother of two letters threatening to kidnap the boy. The police believe that they have another Willis Vocis case to solve. Mrs. Mulhern received a third letter saying that the boy had been kidnapped and that he would not be returned to his home until she deposited $250 at a place designated. The boy's father, Mr. Mulhern's husband died recently, leaving her several hundred thousand dollars. Her attorneys, the Poor Cathedral parochial school, and let home the other morning at the usual time for school. He did not arrive there, and when he failed to return home for luncheon at noon his mother became worried. Inquiry at the school developed the fact that the boy had not been there.

PEACE IN COAL MINES.

Operators and Workers Practically Agree on New Contract.

Peace in the anthracite coal region appeared near another three years.

President Thomas L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, who with the three district presidents had been in conference with a committee of the members in Philadelphia for two days, made a positive announcement Thursday night that a new wage agreement would be signed before the end of the next week. This contract will be based upon a proposition which has been submitted by the operators, and which, in the opinion of Mr. Lewis and his colleagues, contains a number of important concessions.

Acting on behalf of the union miners, Mr. Lewis accepted the proposition, subject to the approval of a tri-district convention, which was to be held in Scranton the next Tuesday afternoon. There is little doubt that the men will accept this any offer and still authorize their officers to sign the agreement. It is believed that the new agreement will extend recognition in some form to the organizations of anthracite miners, now in a branch of the United Mine Workers of America, but as a distinct local trade association. The contract will also provide that all new work shall be paid according to the wage scale authorized by the strike commission. There will also be a decrease of wages, but there will be no readjustment of wages at new collieries.

The canal will cost $2,000,000 and will reclaim 200,000 acres of land. Beginning at the lower end of the government canal the extension will run 100 miles into Utah to a point in a region which is virgin. Irrigation in South will be built.

KEEP UP MASSACRE; PEOPLE ALL DESPAIR

Atrocities in Asiatic Turkey Continue and Starvation Claims Many.

SURVIVORS ARE IN DEEP MISERY

War Ships of Powers Land Marines, but Little Progress Is Made Toward Order.

The situation in Asiatic Turkey is one of extreme gravity. Now many thousands have been massacred cannot even be estimated, because the disturbances have been so widespread that it is impossible to secure details of the heretofore unknown. Cyrus Hamlin, his latest estimate of the number killed in the vilayet of Adana reaches approximately 25,000, and thousands have been done to death in the towns of adjacent districts. The state of siege which several of the places are undergoing has brought the inhabitants to the verge of starvation, and such day brings its toles of further atrocities and fresh depths of misery and despair to which the savagery of the Moslems has brought the people. Several warships are now in the waters of the disturbed territory, but the disorders are so far-reaching that the efforts of the powers to restore normal conditions have so far lately proved futile. A British ship has been ordered from Alexandria to Mersina, where the disorders have become worse. All the property of the Christians at Djebel Berekat has been destroyed. The fate of the inhabitants is unknown, but it will be enormous.

At the town of Adana more than 100 girls are missing. It is known that twenty-one native pastors have been killed, and there are entertained that other American missionaries than those mentioned in the dispatches have been murdered. There are 15,000 refugees in Adana and Tarsus and 5,000 at Mersina. A messenger, dispatched for relief by Miss Lambert, the American missionary, who for two days presented an appeal to Constantinople, was killed in the cross fire. A second messenger, a soldier, was shot at. The vali has given assurances of the safety of Americans.

According to the latest information from the country around Alexandretta, the Armenian village of Kessab has been burned and many persons have been killed there. The women and children of Kessab are fugitives in the surrounding mountains, exposed to hunger and violence. No news has been received from Hadjin, where five American missionaries were reported to be in danger of violence at the hands of infuriated Ottomans.

EX-SENATOR STEWART DEAD.

Made Fortune as a Pioneer in Nevada—Served Long in Congress.

William M. Stewart of Nevada, former United States Senator, died at the Georgetown Hospital in Washington, D. C., Friday, following an operation. The end was taken to Nevada Sunday. William M. Stewart was born in Lewis County, N. Y., August 9, 1827. He left Yale College in 1849, attracted by the gold discoveries in California, and made the trip overland, and arrived in San Francisco in May, 1850. He quickly got into work and entered the bar in 1852. After serving a term as Attorney General of California he moved to Virginia City, Nevada, in 1860. He became interested in the Comstock lode, which made him a fortune. He had a grandiose part in the silver fight of the 70's, and had had many lukewarm encounters from death. He was United States Senator for Nevada 1863-75 and 1887-1905.

P. F. COLLIER DROPS DEAD.

Publisher Was Attending Horse Show at Riding Club.

Peter Fenelon Collier, founder of Collier's Weekly, famous as a pole jumper and a patron of the horse show held daily in the riding club at 7 East 59th street, died in that city Friday night of a sudden apoplectic stroke. Mr. Collier had been in excellent health and was seen about under the auspices of this club and had several times attended the horse show in which he was in attendance and after the show had ended he was in the club house, where a banquet was served. Shortly after 10 o'clock he was found to be in the best of health and entered the club house with the intention of leaving the table and making their way to the dressing room. Mr. Collier suddenly fell back on his chair and with a groan fell forward on the floor.

NIGHT RIDERS' CASES.

Twenty-two Men to Be Tried for Capt. Rankin's Murder.

This week the cases of the Night Riders, convicted of the lynching Captain Quentin H. Rankin last October, are before the Tennessee Supreme Court. Of the eight men convicted, six were sentenced to be hanged and two were sentenced to life imprisonment. Appeals to the Supreme Court were taken in all the cases and Attorney General D. J. Caldwell is now busy opposing the efforts to secure new trials.

The disposition of these eight cases will not end the legal proceedings over the sensational and cold-blooded murder of Captain Rankin. Twenty-two other men are under indictment for the same offense and it is expected that their trials will soon open. Practically the same evidence will be used against them as in the cases of those now under review.

The murder of Capt. Rankin thoroughly aroused the state and all to a degree the authorities of the reign of lawlessness of which it was the most sensational development. Capt. Rankin and his friend, Judge Zachary Taylor, organized the Western Tennessee Land Company, which purchased the bulk of the land bordering on Reelfoot Lake—a little body of water noted for its fish and game. Hitherto the people around enjoyed the fishing privileges of the lake; but when the land company came into control it put an end to these privileges. This led to the formation of Night Rider bands among those who resented the fishing privileges of the lake were denied and the violation by them of summary vengeance upon all who should thereafter sold their property to the land company or dealt with it. At last the whip has been ordered from Alexandria, where the Night Rider band Taylor visited Walnut Lodge on the shores of Reelfoot Lake. The whip was seized them and carried them off into the woods where they were whipped and hanged. Judge Taylor escaped by jumping in the darkness into a pile of the woods where he was discovered in the opposite shore.

After the murder Gov. Patterson and other State officials began war on the Night Riders. Troops were poured into the region and hundreds of arrests were made. Then came the slower process of law, resulting in the conviction of eight of the Night Riders and the indictment of 22 others.

CHICAGO

Trade is stimulated by the more seasonable weather, and there is notable reduction of idle hands in the spread of industrial and farming activities. The volume of payments through the banks is seen to be well ahead of that of a year ago, and money has a firmer tone, but rates for choice commercial paper are unchanged. Preparations for the big autumn business indicate a release of interest and dividends exceeding former totals.

Confidence in the business outlook is reflected in a larger investment in bonds, stocks and improvements. Agricultural advices show more agreement as to extending acreage, there being much breaking of soil for the first time in the Northwest, where new settlements multiply rapidly.

Implement factories have increased outputs and there is wider absorption of wagons and vehicles. Lumber receipts exhibit considerable gain, and the mills remain well employed, but shipments of various woods to Western points steadily grow, and building trade also has nearly equaled the showing in outputs and query products. Numerous contracts have been negotiated for structural steel, pipe, merchant iron and forge work. Car builders obtained more cars for immediate deliveries and a fair tonnage is booked for rails and fastenings, there also is much tonnage over to capacity, and the iron and steel industries are kept busy in several hundreds of additional hands. Leather working trades find inquiries unusually active for both upper and trunks. Shoe factories accumulate fresh orders, while there is good steadiness in the markets for the raw material. Other factory supplies come forward in better volume, and concerns, but prices hold steady and, in some instances, show a firmer tendency.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 32, against 21 last week, 24 in 1908 and 18 in 1907. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 8, against 10 last week, 10 in 1908 and 7 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Trade conditions are without much change, and industrially is still the leading feature in business and industrial lines. Results of spring business are on a whole disappointing. There is, however, more doing in wholesale lines for next fall and winter, and the tone in this branch is fairly optimistic.

There is considerably more activity in the pig iron markets, and the volume of business doing in iron and steel is larger. A large part of this, however, appears to be at the expense of prices, because structural material is apparently at the bottom, wire prices have been cut, and a number of other lines show the effect of the desire of manufacturers to get business.

Manufacturers are certainly buying more freely, though they report little increase in orders. Eastern shoe shipments are 24 per cent larger than a year ago, but still behind 1907.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending April 22 were 247, against 201 last week, 259 in the week of 1908, 157 in 1907, 177 in 1906 and 195 in 1905.

In Canada the week's failures number 34, against 27 last week and 32 in this week of 1908.—Bradstreet's.

News of Michigan

SOLD LIQUOR TO BOYS.

Bartender in Mecosta Saloon Arrested on Serious Charge.

Joseph Lewis, bartender in the Greenville Bottinger, owner of a saloon in Princeton village, was arrested the other day for selling liquor to minors. Lewis is 20 years old, and based over to the May term of the circuit court. The selling of liquor has continued six months, and more than one schoolboy is involved. Stephens is said to be one of a band of four or five boys, all minors, one not more than 12, who have been getting liquor regularly. The purchase was always made by Stephens, but the money was furnished by others. The evidence was made through the complaint of an outside boundy from which one of the young drinkers was sent and which found his $20 short. The liquor sales were unearthed in looking up the shortage.

STATE PROHIBITION IN 1910.

Figures on Submission of Amendment to Constitution.

Two years hence will see Michigan in the throes of a fight over the question of State-wide prohibition. This is promised by the Anti-Saloon League and is made conspicuous only upon the showing to be made next year on the local option proposition. Attorney Philip March, of the Anti-Saloon League, who has been one of the principal figures of the State in the liquor fight, said that the State wide prohibition feature would be an issue in the Legislature. He said the League makes another good show in the campaign for the local option bill, which will feel justified, he says, in making the fight Saturday. The Supreme Court after an amendment to the constitution because it is doubtful of a statute's permanency.

LAD SUPPORTED HORSES.

Twelve Long Journey Tale to Sell Second-Hand Horse Team.

A 15-year-old boy giving the name of Tyler Mooney, has been found to be the support of a small gang of hobos that has a big camp on the outskirts of Muskegon, where they have been living on the money the boy earned by selling needles, was brought to police headquarters on a recent afternoon. The prisoner appeared in the city and earlier admission by stating that he walked from some point in Pennsylvania and was working his way north to the copper country. When the police visited the camp a big stew was boiling over a camp fire and the men were waiting for the boy and his money. The sympathy was so great that the boy's story concerning walking story had brought great results in the way of financial revenue.

NOW SUSPECT MURDER.

Discovery of Seiner-Nel Near Muskegon Prompts Search for Slayer.

A discovery which will probably throw light on the mysterious death by drowning in Waite Lake of Deputy Sheriff Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Ella and Martha Salmonson last fall, in their endeavor to stop the practice of illegal fishing, was made when William Hesse of Whitehall found a seiner net stretched out 100 feet from Long Point to the place where the bodies were found. Parts of the net were found floating at other portions of it looked as if they had been removed by drifting. The bodies were located at the time of the murder of the men by fishermen are strengthened by the finding of the seiner net stretched out 100 feet from Long Point to the place where the bodies were found. Parts of the net were rotted away while other portions of it looked as if they had been removed by officers. The stories circulated at the time of the murder of the men by fishermen are strengthened by the discovery that the men were found in the act of removing the nets from the water when they met death.

Buchanan Dead Man's Brother Gives Testimony Implicating Him.

Charles Charlwood and George Smith, accused of the murder of John Smith, whose body was found near Buchanan, had their examination for the murder in the court against Smith was dismissed, he testifying in behalf of the State. In the stand he related that he saw Charlwood strike Smith, and then grab him by the neck, knocking him down. This would explain how the bruises on Smith's neck was broken. Justice Batchelor found Charlwood over for trial at the April term of the Circuit Court.

Michigan Legislature

Names Ely to Succeed Earle. Governor Warner's strategic move in appointing former senator Henry Ely to succeed A. Ely to succeed Highway Commissioner Earle is thought to be one of legislation designed to perpetuate Earle in his office, without the Senate is an unwieldy manner the other afternoon. Where the appointment was up in the Senate the other Monday, it was made by Senator Wetmore that it be confirmed, in keeping with the tradition that the confirmation of appointments in which former members are honored should be made in open session. Earle's friends in the Senate, led by Senators McKay, Tuttle and Mayes, asserted that this required a twothirds vote, since it represented a suspension of the rules. There was quite a preliminary debate on the issue, but the chair ruled against McKay. The confirmation was carried by a vote of 20 to 5. Senators Aldus, Traverse City has street car service by means of automobiles on a 15 minute schedule.

Thursday morning last, the body of a man afterwards found to be John Dufore of East Jordan neighborhood, was found face downward by the side of Pessaint Valley road, out of Boyne City. He is thought to have died from exposure while intoxicated.

Traverse City Record: A meeting of the executive committee of the Old Soldiers' Association of the Grand Traverse region, was held at the court house Wednesday. Arrangements were made for the big annual meeting to be held in the city on Wednesday, June 9th.

There are 98 schoolhouses and eight Primary Grades in the ten counties forming the northwestern corner of the lower peninsula of Michigan, and Wexford county leads with 20. The counties and the number of Grades in each follows: Wexford 20, Charlevoix 16, Antrim 14, Kalkaska 12, Grand Traverse 10, Leelanau 10, Missaukee 9, Manistee 9, Benzie 4, Leelanau 1.

A Chicago party who owns a large tract of land in the city of Petoskey (Bode township, township 34 north, range 7 west) has offered to donate that our pine stump lands are valuable for agricultural purposes. We understand that he already has men and teams at work fitting ground for the operation he contemplates. His specialty will be clover seed, and he has faith to believe, backed by good judgment, and by the value this crop is at grift on the lands in question. All will watch his experiment with great interest and wish him success.

East Jordan Enterprise: Dr. Wintfred E. The Doctor will also be in attendance at the annual meeting of the Women's Board of the Northwest in Milwaukee April 27th and 28th.

The Boyne City Evening Journal is authority for the statement that the Author of the Pere Marquette railroad has work paid to the attorneys T. E. N. N. Peterson & Company the sum of $1,000, being the amount due on account of overcharges in freight rates on lumber shipped from Phelps, near the Charlevoix county line, and covering a period of several years. It appears that while Peterson & Co. felt that they had been wronged, they did not feel able to go up the expenses to bring suit against, and so turned the matter over to Boyne City attorneys on a contingent fee, and the lawyers took the matter up with the railroad company finally inducing a settlement as above stated without a suit.

Petoskey News: Night hawk Mrs. H. H. Hale and Mrs. Abbie Hale Hatfield, who have been spending the winter in Hot Springs, Ark., stopping at the Park Hotel, returned last night from their trip. Mrs. Hale is feeling much improved as a result of the trip, a source of gratification to friends. They were surprised and are again occupying their Bluff street residence.

Bids were opened on Monday afternoon, April 19, for the construction and the plumbing and heating of the girls' dormitory to replace the one recently burned at Ionia, Michigan. The meeting was adjourned until Wednesday afternoon, at which time the figures were considered before a full board of trustees and the building committee. The costs are for the dormitory at East Jordan. The building will be begun immediately and is to be finished Sept. 10, to be of solid brick construction, the outside wall of vitrified paving brick of a deep brown shade.

VALUE OF WIDE TIRES.

One of the First Essentials to Good Highways.

The King drag is no doubt a good thing, but now about the wide tired wagon? Observe the dirt road after a thorough soaking. The farmer output work in his fields, and, having some wheat, corn, oats or hogs to haul to market, the time to haul is while the fields are soft to be worked, saving time by doing so.

He loads his wagon or puts his car and a half load, load wagon, from pounds or more, and probably binding four horses to do haul and doing the whole distance he gets a rut from three to six inches deep. Except of the horses are in poor condition, and make the haul in normal days to the average number of days a road drag, says J. P. Anderson in Farmer. Rule, in fair weather, although 20 horses will haul an out when I am alive that 10 times had been four inches or more the road would have been benefited rather than damaged. A wide tire under a load makes an observer think of a roller.

I think this with the proposition is one of the first essentials to good roads and should be encouraging to legislation, and a great law for the amount of load for every inch of tire width. If wagon tires were required to be three inches or more for 2,000 pound loads and one additional inch for each added 1,000 or major fraction thereof, very soon the roads would be repaired in much less time.

OUT FOR THE BEST ROADS.

Why the West Believes in Building Highways For Automobiles

"The road roads compared in the east does not compare with that of the west," said Richard G. Gordon of the Grand Rapids Press, "I noticed this while in my visit to New York on a visit last year. Nothing is doing in good roads advocates in the east has attract no the people in the east and no for the good roads in the world in the west. Just I do not believe the eastern states will ever be in good condition for the roads in the west. Nothing is doing in the east in the west. Nothing is doing in the east in the west. The Main Chance

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

THIS is an honest, straightforward picture of the life of a wide-awake western town. It gives the reader a pleasant impression of a type of people and a phase of life well worth a closer acquaintance.

It is a crisp, forceful delineation of the career of William Parker, a prosperous banker and promoter, whose beautiful daughter, Evelyn, is the heroine of the story. John Saxton, the enterprising Bostonian, is sent west to close up some ranch and other investments for a Massachusetts trust company. This brings him in contact with varied types of humanity all of whom play an interesting part in a plot involving the manipulation of a traction line, the kidnapping of the banker's child and other events which go to make up an intensely graphic narrative.

THE MAIN CHANCE is a romance of youth, of love, and of success honestly won. It is buoyant, yet full of pathos, wholesome humor, convincing realism, admirable diction and bright sayings. Added to this is a rare, common sense touch that shows the practical side of real western life.

CHAPTER I.

"Well, will, they say I'm crooked!" William Parker, president of the Clarkson National Bank, tilted back his swivel chair and watched the effect of his declaration on the young man who was writing to him.

"They said he was more successful than you, isn't it?" asked John Saxton.

"They say I'm crooked, regardless," continued the unmoving of the eyes, "But they don't say it very loud, and I guess they don't say of them who want to have to prove it. I'm afraid these Boston friends of yours have given me up as a bad job, and they've sent you out here to get their money back. I don't blame them. Well, sir: that money's got to come out in time, but I'm going to take time to get money to get it."

"I believe they sent me because I had plenty of time," said Saxton, smiling.

"Well, we want to see you very much," returned Parker. "And now what can I do to start you off? I want you to come by against the bank in this town; but we've got a fairly decent club in my here, and you'd better stay there till you get acquainted. Just look over the bunch of 'em; I get rid of these letters and I'll be free."

Porter turned to his desk. There was an air of great alertness in his small, lean figure as he pushed letters to one side, ran various numbers of the clerical force for rapidly dictated answers to letters to a stenographer. Saxton was impressed by the banker's perfect confidence and ease.

John Saxton had been sent to Clarkson by the Neponset Trust Company of Boston to look after the interests of a group of clients who had made such investments in several of the Trans-Missouri States. Foreclosure had, in many instances, resulted in the transfer to themselves of much town and ranch property which was, in the conditions existing in the early '90s, an exceedingly slow asset. It was necessary that some one on the ground should care for these interests. The Clarkson National Bank had been recommended as a safe depository, but, as one of the investors told his fellow sufferers in Boston, their affairs were urgent when they could call home anybody, and here was Saxton, a gentleman of means and steady fellow, who had some knowledge of the country, and who, moreover, needed something to do. Saxton's acquaintance with the West had been gained by a bitter experience of ranching in Wyoming. A blizzard had destroyed his cattle, and the subsequent depression in land values in the neighborhood of his ranch had left him encumbered with a property for which there was no market. His friends had been correct in the assumption that he needed employment; he was, moreover, glad of the chance to get away from home, where the impression was making headway that he had failed in something of the sort in the East.

"Now," said Porter, presently, scrutinizing a cigaran carefully before igniting it, "I'll take you up-town and show you where you'll board. Some people, and show you what it looks like."

"The code proved to be a small one at the top of the building. On the ground glass door was inscribed "The Interstate Irrigation Company." The room contained a desk, a typewriter and a few chairs. Several signs hung on the walls, engineers' charts of Lake Reno irrigation ditches.

"It isn't pretty," said Porter, critically, "but if you don't like it you can make them give you a fresh coat of paint and handiwork, and we don't charge you much for it. You've don't like get job! Interest'y stuff with you, and here is the main proposition, copies of profile records relating to this, copies of all the letters I've written, and a rough proposition, young man. You'll hear a lot about irrigation in this country. Some people who are your friends money will be slipping every time they can! put. Many of the ranch lands your people own will be worth something. Land is a valuable thing in Colorado irrigation scheme ought to pan out in time, and I believe it will. Maybe you've got to come at these things. Make your principals for you stand. These fellows get in a hurry and do the wrong thing—that's my experience with Eastern investors. Tell them to go to Timbuktu and get rid of them for a while, and make them give a chance to work out the thing. They're not the only pickers. I'll send the combination of the safe up by the boy, and you can get a bird's-eye view of the situation before lunch. Mr. Wheeler, our cashier, is away today, but he's familiar with these matters and will be glad to help you when he gets home. When you get ready to lock up, just drop down to Room 12-20 and go up to the chap for lunch. Take it easy; you can't do a lot in one day."

"I hope I shan't be a nuisance to you," said the younger man. "I'm going to fight it out on the best lines I know how—if I take several months."

"Well, I'll take them all right," said Parker, emphatically.

Memories of the War

Lee's Surrender at Appomattox.

Company H, First Rhode Island Light Artillery, was attached to the Sixth Corps under command of Gen. Horatio Wright. We were encamped on Farmville Heights, on the night of April 8, 1865, and early on the 9th the order came to advance. We proceeded along the narrow road leading from camp to Appomattox, and after marching a few miles we heard the sound of cannon upon the right and left, and we knew that the running tight of the precious seven days was not yet ended and probably not one of us anticipated that this was to be our last fight, or that the brilliant and daring Gen. Lee, whom we had been pursuing for so long a time, would surrender before sunset.

On every side were evidences of the disastrous condition of the Confederate forces, and it seemed to us that some sort of a truce must soon be declared. Hundreds of soldiers had dropped from the retreating army, and were lying by the roadside, completely exhausted; half-starved horses and abandoned wagons and ammunition wagons were scattered around in great confusion. The horses were too weak to haul the ammunition and tent and forage, and the guns had been spiked and some buried so as to render them useless to our army.

At about 11 o'clock Gen. Grant and Gen. Lee met, attended with mail, came galloping along and passed us with the announcement that the surrender was to take place at the house of Wilmer McLean, which was a mile or two in advance of our camp, and never wearied of protesting against it. The only way we American vessel could get out was by sailing under some foreign flag and this course exposed Hobbs' Confederate owner to more than remaining in idleness. Judge of his wrath then when the Alabama was ordered to set sail the next day under the British colors. He was ordered and procured a British flag, the smallest which could be bought, and this, on sailing day, was hoisted and near it was fastened a large and mysterious bundle of bunting. The tackle was hauled up and objected angrily that the British flag was not made properly and ordered to be taken down. The bundle was then hoisted and another substituted.

"Guess that will Hobbs. "That flag was bought in a British port and made by a British subject. He was a British subject, and he made it over our owner. I don't care if it is the flag of Patagonia, it is good enough for me and that of England. Good morning!"

"The harbor master had nothing to say to this and started back, but he had no sooner done so than the main halliards were cut, the bundle at the top was cut and in a second the stars and stripes were flying before the astonished eyes of the harbor master, the Yankee skippers and Capt. Semmes of the Alabama, which had been lost into port. Indeed, so large was old Glory in this particular case that it almost brushed the Alabama's decks the vessels being so close together. The huge flag had been presented to the ship at her launching and in the sailed spectators on this occasion, seemed larger than the ship itself.

"The harbor master put about, another than before, and demanded explanations.

"What does that flag mean, sir?" said he.

"That's my house flag, ——you," said Hobbs, "the rule parts of my owner. You ought know whether that red flag up there is bunghole or clubfooded or not, but you can't give him any points on the construction of that article up there. I tell you it's a good thing to get that flag now I please, when I please, and where I please, while was the fashionable church in Charleston, where he joined the plate for the aims and aliases of the well-dressed congregation.

"He was capable of quotation of the most whimsical sort. He had, for a year, taken his meals at a cheap boarding house in order that he might maintain two Indian boys in school. He was not long discovered when, at the end of the first year, they ran away and returned to their reservation with their brothers. He chaffed himself about it to his friends. He too was enough to say that Warry Hardies could lead a german or die and he better than any other man on the Missouri River; for he was also the best horse man in that area stretching valley concerning the traditions of English sporting, and was a fairly good actor himself, as amateurs go. He was a slight literary gift, which he contrived for his own amusement. His hobbies were horses and bows, and he occasionally wrote sermons for the local papers, or mailed pleasant jingles to the brilliant Spirit.

"I'll wager that if you stay here a year you'll know more than anybody, as they send domestics together. "Yes, I know a good deal about the people who live here since I took a lot of conducted excursions around the country in the course in other towns. But there's a great deal more to be learned about things out here that I like, and I believe most people who strike it early enough like it and are lonesome for it if they go away. I think I understand you've been out about it," said Saxton. "There were times in Wyoming when Western life seemed pretty grim, but when I went back to Boston I was homesick for Clarkson."

NEGLECTED ROYAL GRAVES.

Tomb of Murdered Alexander of Russia Is Neglected and Uncovered.

One morning, Leo Claretie writes in Le Gaulois of Paris, in the cafe which is attached to the hotel I was staying in at Belgrade, I made a sign to a waiter and asked him to direct me where the tomb of Alexander and Draga could be found.

The man looked at me with eyes wide open in fright, startled by the audacity of any one who dared to speak of a king and a queen in a country so renowned for assassinations. He made no reply, but fled. I was more fortunate with the other two colleagues, who spoke a little French. He gave me this advice:

"Go discreetly, so that nobody can see you. There are spies everywhere. Be careful not to offend the old regime, such a visit is considered a crime."

He wrote an address for me on a piece of paper in the Bulgarian alphabet:

"Just show this to the coachman without speaking."

"Thank you."

I went out and called a cab. I showed the little bit of paper to the driver, who looked at me in terror, whipped up his horse and, I expect, is still going.

I went to the cab stand in the Theatre square. I held out my paper to another driver, but he could not read. He called a companion and the two held their far-curled heads over the writing. They seemed to be some difficulty in reading the address, other cabs crowded up and were passed by signs of to negotiate what was going on.

"Well?" I said to myself, "for a visit that ought to be made discreetly here's lots of publicity."

At last one cab driver made it out, pocketed the paper and made me a sign to get in his cab. We drove through the suburbs until the cab stopped and the driver showed me some way off a little chapel almost in ruins.

Inside it was empty, the glass in the windows broken, no sign of a tomb, no inscription or marble slab. The walls bare, as was the floor.

"Where is the place?" I asked.

The guardian struck the floor with his foot in two places. It was below that nothing was there to mark it. In a corner two small wooden crosses, both impaired, were leaning against the wall. One bore the name Alexander and the other Draga. The nails had been stolen, so that they could not drives into the ground, but no one had touched them, the points were still white and evidently unused. No one had rendered this last duty to those who dead, who have at least made some expiation.

Frying Eggs.

The most disagreeable part of frying eggs is the spattering and flying of the hot fat. This may be avoided by sifting a little flour in the pan before adding the eggs. This you will find to work like a charm and equally well the difference be noticed where there is a large family to supply.

The State of New Jersey has imported five stallions from Great Britain to enable its farmers to produce a higher type of horses.

Paul's first missionary Journey—Acts 13:1-15.

Golden Text: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," Mark 16:15.

Our lesson is a narrative of the first missionary journey of Paul, Barnabas and John Mark through the provinces of Asia Minor, which at this time were a very wild, barbarous country. Not merely was the country rough in exterior, being made up of rough, rugged mountains and territory, but it was inhabited by a wild and barbarous people. There were many Jews scattered through this region. Far removed from Jerusalem and the influence of the Jewish hierarchy they were less conservative and more liberal than the Jews of Palestine. Jew and Gentile met in the synagogue, intermarriage was not uncommon (Ch. 13:44-16:1). Why Paul chose this region as the field for missionary work is not merely a matter of surmise. It is a fact, however, that God had prepared the way for this work in ways that he none have been well acquainted with, as he had prepared long at Tarsus."

Verse 1. "Certain prophets." The New Testament prophet was not have had an office that was needed at the time of the founding of new churches, but being no longer needed, has disappeared. In the founding of new churches God's gifts, supernatural gifts, possibly of prophecy, were needed. Verse 2. "Barnabas." We learn from Acts 4, 36 that he was a Levite of Cyprus, and that his name "A Son of Consolation." He introduced Paul to the church (Ch. 9, 27) and was the only one who could trust Paul. Paul was called before gain strength to denounce other people. This denunciation, even only against one who was attempting to hinder the work of the Holy Spirit, was hardly in keeping with his spirit. No doubt it was such a feeling back that the writer noted it, in "fidelity and all mischief." The Holy Spirit spoke to the prophets and teaching. "And Paul who afterwards wrote the Holy Spirit holds communion with men and women who are the living epistles of the Most High to men, and that evil spirit, even only speaks one who was attempting to hinder the work of the Holy Spirit." Verse 3. "Laying on him." No doubt it was such a feeling back that the writer noted it, in "fidelity and all mischief." The Holy Spirit spoke to the prophets and teaching. "And Paul who afterwards wrote the Holy Spirit holds communion with men and women who are the living epistles of the Most High to men, and that evil spirit, even only speaks one who was attempting to hinder the work of the Holy Spirit." Verse 4. "Seleucia." Elymas, in reasons with all souvenirs of the Holy Spirit, and the Father and Son are spoken of in other passages. "Because he withstood them." They are set apart not by man's orders, but by the Holy Ghost. But although set apart and consecrated by the Holy Ghost, yet they had to be sustained by the church. This shows that God has a place for the ordination of the church, and that it is not of the Holy Ghost. There must be order and system and a regular and visible channel through which may be that all things are done decently and in order. The church recognizes the call of the Holy Ghost and administers the outward ordination.

Verse 5. "Salamis." It seems that they fasted and prayed first for light and then for special preparation for their work. "Laid their hands on them." The laying on of hands is an outward sign that the church accepts the candidates and thus affirms that it believes that the candidate is accepted of God. It is the same in significance as the seal upon a document.

6. "Sent forth by the Holy Ghost." The Holy Ghost still sends forth men. It is amazing that anyone can be indifferent on the subject of missions for proper when the Holy Ghost himself is engaging this the first mission. "Salamis." A seaport on the Mediterranean sea, on the eastern side of Cyprus. This island was always allies from Seleucia.

5. "Salamis." A seaport on the eastern side of the island of Cyprus. "Synagogues of the Jews." They always opened up to the Jews first, giving them the first chance, as they would make good hearers of salvation to the Gentiles, and they if they refused to accept it they presented it to the Gentiles. "Had also their servant." Literally, "Had also their servant." Literally, "Had also their servant." Literally,

EARLY ROAD BUILDING.

How a Wealthy Pennsylvania Turnpike Was Improved.

The desire to speculate a hundred or more years ago is as apparent as it is today. An example of this is shown by the construction of a company in 1792 to build a turnpike from Philadelphia to Lancaster, 62 miles, at a cost of $465,000. The charter was received, and in ten days 2285 subscribers made application for stock. As this was more than the line allowed, the names were placed in a hat, they wheel, and 400 were drawn. With these subscribers the work began. The road bed was of that day knew little or nothing regarding the construction of highways, and the difficulties met with made on this account, taught them some valuable lessons, says the Ladies' Journal in the American Cultivator. The road was completed, the trees felled and the road bed prepared. The largest stones that could be found were dressed upon it for a foundation, and upon this coarse and large earth and gravel were spread. Then the work was declared complete, but when the wagons came over it they broke up the stones protruded from the surface, and the horses received scratches and bruises as they sank between the hitherto up to their knees.

The chief fear of the road builder was that needle plan. Indignation meetings were held, at which the turnpike company was condemned and the legislature blamed for giving the charter. But it was here for an Englishman who offered to rebuild the turnpike on the macadam plan, as he had seen roads built in the old country. Improved road construction would have received a severe blow. The English's proposition was accepted by the company, and he was successful in completing the Lancaster and Philadelphia turnpike road, which was then declared to be "the best piece of highway in the United States, a masterpiece of its kind."

NEW ROAD MACHINE.

Grading Attachment That Can Be Put Upon Any Traction Engine.

Streets of Holdrege, Neb., have been improved and beautified by a very unique and eminently practical road and street grading machine, the invention of Elihu A. Hendebeck of Funk, Neb. The machine was built by Mr. Hendebeck himself, and notwithstanding its crudity of construction, owing to lack of facilities for turning out the proper kind of work, it has proved a success and a money maker from the very start, says the Omaha World-Herald. It is in fact a real genuine attachment, so constructed that it can readily be put upon any ordinary traction engine.

The machine is very simple in its construction and seldom ever gets out of order or causes any annoyance to the operator. It consists of a frame attached to the boiler and running gear of the engine. On the left side directly in front of the large drive wheel, is a beam carrying the plows. The former cut by the plow is just outside of the tread of the drive wheel of the engine, enabling the operator to cut a straight back to any length desired. The dirt is dropped from the moldboard upon a belt conveyor system that under the belly of the engine is deposited in the middle of the street or road to make the grade. The depth of cut of any channel can be raised or lowered to meet requirements.

Mr. Hendebeck, the inventor, is a young farmer who has lived on a farm all his life. He has had no special training as a mechanic, his only education in that line being that obtained from practical experience in operating threshing machines and other kinds of farm machinery.

Keep Out of Rut—Save Roads.

It is not unlikely that American farmers who have with them always the question of good roads and how to maintain them may find in the following extract from a letter received by the Panama canal commission in officers who saw on the isthmus a suggestion of help worthy consideration in making good roads but and bad roads worse. Says the letter:

"Nothing have been posted at the crossings, and the portal footpath has so situated that the custom of wagons following in one another's tracks cut a deep groove, which is a nuisance of the unhandsome work on the macadam road, especially during the wet season. It made necessary by wagons coming down, one the tracks have been worked to distribute travel over the full width of the highways, and it is believed that the cut or road ruptes will be much reduced as soon as complying with these instructions becomes general."

BEULAH HOME

McGuire's Gives Some History of Famous Place.

In last week's Grit is an article written by W. Frank McGuire upon the men who are working for homeless and wayward boys. He gives the names of five of the leading workers along this line and we find the name of Herman L. Swift among them with a picture of the famous founder of the Beulah Home. This is what McGuire says:

"The work of the boys' commonwealth, at Boyne City, Mich., started in Chicago. Herman L. Swift, then a resident of Chicago, and who is now carrying on the great work of the commonwealth, one day learned the startling statistics that 16,000 boys had been arrested during the previous year in that city. As a boy of 12, Mr. Swift had read "Little Men," by Louisa Alcott, and was deeply impressed with the way she reclaimed the eight wayward boys on "Uncle Jed's farm." He then and there determined that he would some day have a work similar to that described in "Little Men," where he would teach boys through the power of love rather than discipline or rules.

Later, becoming convinced the country was the best place in which to make a man out of a street waif, he obtained an old estate on the banks of Pere Lake, in Boyne City. There were 160 acres of land and an abandoned hotel building thereon. More than a hundred boys were brought there from Chicago and in this beautiful country spot they began the raising of sugar beets and other vegetables, and after harvesting the crops, and upon the true principles of a commonwealth each became a stockholder in its business.

Considerable work has been done in the way of drawing stone and other supplies for the purpose of starting the construction work on the new building at the Beulah Home. The little fellows are going at the task with a will and Manager Swift will be able to announce shortly the date for breaking ground. The new building, which is to be modelled after a public building at Harbor Beach in the Thumb, will be second to none in the state. Much of the material used in its construction will be field stone, and it has been suggested that the many stones along the roadways and farms in this vicinity would be a great help to the boys if the farmers could be induced to bring in a few each time when they came to town. This plan would not only rid the farms of the surplus stones but each farmer could feel that he was individually a factor in the building of a home which has now a world wide reputation.

Luxuries.

Luxuries are those possessions which are enjoyed chiefly and almost solely because other people do not have them. All other possessions are necessities. If every one were a hundred Oil magnate, it would be unbearable bore, and it is getting to be almost the Longway. Luxuries do not console comfort. On the contrary, they connote litter, indigestion, gout and bankruptcy. Contract costs only from necessities.—Life.

Intellect Ruled by Superstition.

A man more absolutely governed by superstition than Lord Macaulay could not be found, but in his diary he gives as an after-dinner talk about the feeling which Johnson had—of thinking one's self bound to repeat a particular rail or post and to tread in the middle of a paving stone, and he added, "I certainly have this very strongly."

Use for Scotch Water Power.

The growing industry of extracting aluminum has stimulated the search for water-power in the British Isles, because the extraction of aluminum is so expensive that only low-cost power can be economically employed. Scotland, in the Highland mountains, is remote to the point. The water power at the falls of Foyers is available, but Hibbert from the largest in Great Britain; but now a still larger plant is contemplated, utilizing the rainfall over a tract of 55 square miles. The water will be led into reservoirs for the production of aluminum. Its three hydraulic turbines, each of 3,300 brake horsepower, are the largest water wheels in the British Isles.

India Victims of Tigers.

The toll of life in India taken by tigers is seen from the fact that according to a report there has been made responsible for 57 per cent of the human beings killed by the wild animals of Hindoostan. The writer says that once a tiger has tasted human flesh he is satisfied with no other food. Hence the southern India one of these man-eating tigers has devoured 200 human beings.

Local News.

—Harry Dodge, who spent the winter in Florida, is home again.

—Leahy, the optician, will soon be here. For dates see locals next week.

—"The Fairburns" and two fine plays at the Bridge Theatre commencing Thursday night.

—Mrs. Lulu Oberlin, of Hellefontaine, Ohio, is in the city, visiting her nieces, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dodge.

—Mrs. John Dunlevy, of St. James, came over last Thursday on her way to Chicago to visit relatives and friends.

—Gerritt V. Nash, formerly of Norwood, but of recent years engaged in the lumbering business in Arkansas, is here as the guest of F. J. Mesch.

—Capt. Sam Rose and engineer Harvey Dennis left Tuesday for Harbor Springs to fit out the game warden's steamer Chase. S. Osborn. Van Vankeuren ships as steward.

—The residence of W. S. Stephens, of the Beaver Island Lumber Co., at St. James, was totally destroyed by fire last Thursday morning, with all its contents. Partially insured. A spark from the locomotive is supposed to have been the cause.

—The Charlevoix County Sunday School Association will hold its annual convention at the M. E. church in Boyne City Wednesday and Thursday, May 26th and 27th. A program of unusual scope and merit is announced. The steamer Cumming will give a round trip rate of 25 cents.

—Notwithstanding the unusually large calendar, the May term of the circuit court closed Tuesday afternoon. David Hunter, who came up from Boyne Falls on a burglary charge, entered a plea of guilty of larceny, and was sentenced to the Ionia prison one year to five. The other twelve cases in the calendar went over to next term, likewise all the civil cases. The August term is non-jury, but it will of necessity to make a jury term.

—The very gratifying intelligence comes to us that the sugar beet acreage this year will greatly exceed that of last year, and the area is much now complete. Many of the farmers have doubled their last year's contracts, and many new ones have been added to the list. Best seed drilling began yesterday morning, and seeding will be in full swing next week. Another bunch of foreign beet field workers arrived this week, and more are expected.

—We are in receipt of the commencement announcement of Columbia College of Expression, of Chicago. In the senior class enter the name of Miss L. Ninita Mayne, of Charlevoix, "details at the rest." The graduating exercises are concentrated into a week-long recital, in which will be presented Ibsen's "A Doll's House." Miss Mayne takes the character of "Nora Helmar," the second in the cast. Miss Mayne's graduation marks the close of a four years' course of study in this high class school, and her success is very gratifying to her many friends. Mrs. Mayne was present at the graduation, which took place last Monday.

—Jos. Lemieux has accepted a position as clerk in Mrs. Emery's clothing store.

—Fine Vaudeville at the Bridge Theatre the last half of the week. F. L. Spencer, Mgr.

—Dr. Frank Wilkinson and wife left Tuesday to visit friends in Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor and Detroit.

—New and interesting new ads this week: J. L. Crane, M. A. Levin-son & Co., Ward & Ward, F. E. Frazier.

—F. J. Bailey and wife, of Thetford, arrived in the city yesterday, and the work of putting the big hotel in shape for opening will begin at once.

—Regular Convocation of Charlevoix Chapter No. 141, R. A. M., on Monday evening May 17th. Work on the M. M. degree. Companions are cordially invited to be present. By order of the E. H. P.

—Rep. Chandler's bill to exempt the property of civil war soldiers and widows, providing it does not exceed $1,200 in value, has passed the house. Only four votes were registered against the bill. The amount was originally placed not to exceed $2,500.

—The D. M. Ferry Co seed warehouse in this city has 12,000 bushels of seed peas cut, and seeding has commenced. This seed represents 4,000 acres, and, with an average yield, the company expects to get 60,000 bushels of peas next fall. It may exceed these figures.

—The N. L. Prudence Co.'s creamery, Block Brothers proprietors, is now in active operation, and the boys are "smiling good" in every feature of the business. Besides gilt edge butter, they are daily delivering pasteurized milk and cream, and pound cans of cottage cheese that is a joy to the heart of the epicure. Drop upon about the place is inescapably clean, and every ounce of product is of the very best obtainable.

—The township unit school system bill, which passed the house at Lansing recently, is looked upon as a good thing. It will enable a township, if a majority of the electors so decided to build a High school near the center of the township above the eighth grade, along the lines of cities, with their central High school. Now students in the country have to go to villages and cities and pay tuition when they pass the eighth grade.

—Frank Chabopiks is transforming his former saloon into a high-class lunch room. It is the purpose of Mr. Chabopiks to cater to the wants and appetites of those who desire something better than the ordinary restaurant supplies, and to this end he will buy only the very choicest supplies that can be bought, many of them imported. During the season he will employ an experienced chef, and will utilize his palm garden, overlooking the harbor, as a dining room.

—Manager Spencer put on two elegant vaudeville and moving picture attractions at the Charlevoix Theatre last Friday and Saturday evenings, and to crowded houses. Mr. Spencer has an enviable reputation for producing high grade entertainments both in films and vaudeville, and the public always shows its appreciation. McDaigh and Sherwood, in their sharpshooting act, was the best thing of its kind we have ever seen, while "Dick" Stoddard, the inimitable comedian, is always a drawing card in Charlevoix.

—See the big Vaudeville show at the Bridge Theatre commencing Thursday night.

—A card from Mrs. E. A. Jefferies states that she will, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Loveday, arrive home to-day or to-morrow.

—The total of the state primary school fund apportionment this spring will be $3,726,555, at the rate of $2 per head for every child of school age.

—F. S. Brown, formerly of this city, who has been living in Chicago for some years, has returned to Charlevoix to spend the remainder of his days. As soon as he can buy a house his daughters Lillie and Pearl will come also.

—A mass meeting is called to be held at the Congregational church Friday evening of this week by the W. C. T. U. This meeting is for the purpose of considering Rest and Recreation Rooms for public use in our city. All interested in the welfare of the city are invited.

—Miss Marie Mayne, of this city, has been tendered another year's contract as teacher of domestic science at Whiting, Ind., and has been asked to be Traverse City School Board to come there in the same capacity. She will probably accept the latter proposition for the sake of being nearer home.

—That fine little place of amusement, the Majestic Theatre, is putting up an excellent program as may be expected in Charlevoix. The films, who have been on the bill three nights this week, are really fine, close star attractions, and the moving pictures are eloquent in effect. The Majestic management proposes to preserve the high standard of its entertainment, and will open every week-day night, and a 25 gold piece will be given away after the last pay Saturday night.

—The house on Thursday passed the Dickinson search and seizure bill practically as it came from the senate. Numerous amendments were offered, but they were nearly all voted down, and the bill will probably become a law. Much oratory was used in the passage of the measure. The search and seizure bill is an Anti-Saloon League measure. It concerns only "dry" counties and forbids druggists to sell liquor except on a doctor's prescription; forbids a doctor to refill a prescription and gives the police the same right to search for and seize liquor as they now have to search for and seize gambling paraphernalia.

—The advanced rates on the Pere Marquette for those tourists who wish to come early and stay late, and also for those who always make an early trip to see that everything is right before bringing their families for the season, will arrive in this city on the following dates: June 9, June 16, June 19, June 23 and June 26. With the exception of the last date the trains will return from Petoskey on the same day, but the train which goes up on June 26 will return on June 27. These trains are available for people in all parts of the district around Chicago, St. Louis and the other big points, and always have a large patronage. It is expected that the road will start on its regular summer schedule about June 27.

The Boyne City Tanning Co. have broken ground for another addition to their plant which will be constructed of cement and will cover a tract of ground 54x220 feet. This plant is now one of the largest sole leather tanneries in the world.

PLOW FOLLOWS AXE

What the Charlevoix Lumber Co. is Doing at Its Marion Camp—Good Farms Being Made.

The SENTINEL scribe was entertained Saturday and Sunday at the Charlevoix Lumber Co's logging camp, in Marion, of which "daddy" Scroggie is the superintendent. The term "lumber camp" at this time is a misnomer. It should more properly be called a farming camp.

In the winter time it is a very active place, with its force of forty men in the woods and at the skidways, and it is just as active now, with its force of fifteen men clearing land and putting in crops. The company has about twelve hundred acres in this tract, and every acre that is fit for farming land, which, as fast as the timber is taken from it, is cleared up for the plow, the planters and seeders are following in the plow. There is some more good winter's cut of logs on the tract, after which will come a boom in Marion agricultural development, for the company is already surveying the property into subdivisions, and will place it in the real estate market.

But, under the skillful management of Mr. Scroggie, the Company already has a strong grip on the foreclock of timber, and is demonstrating to a society that farming pays in Charlevoix county. Twenty acres of potatoes are being planted, and in a good clay loam as the sun ever shone upon. Thirty acres will be sown to sugar beets, and vegetables of all kinds will be raised to supply the camp next winter.

The camp itself is a model of business utility and physical comfort. The large living and sleeping quarters of the men is a log structure, plastered inside, and supplied with comfortable bunks. The dining room and kitchen is equally comfortable, and scrupulously clean. The long generously laden table, at any one of the three meals, has given the Charlevoix Lumber Co's camp a reputation far and near for good fare. The cook, Mr. Ingersoll, is a man who knows how to make good pastry, and Warner's third term is assured.

There are no new things in this world that are beyond human understanding, and Warner's third term is one of them. There was never so small a shad caught in so large a mesh.

THE BOYS' CITY

Manager Brown Here, and Work on the Grounds to Be Commenced at Once—City to Open July 22d—Booklet Out.

Mr. Frederick H. Brown, manager of the "Boys' City," recently located near this city is in town, and he has come to stay until the juvenile community is in full swing. The grounds selected are on Oyster Bay, Pine Lake, the grounds formerly used as an Indian camp meeting. It is an ideal location, just far enough from town to be suburban with urban advantages. The work of cleaning up the grounds is already in progress, and it is intended that the boys will inaugurate their government July 22d.

The Association has issued a neat little booklet, a copy of which is before us. Under the head of "General Information" we clip the following:

"Boy City which is located in Charlevoix, Mich., season of 1909, is conducted by the Boys' City Association, an incorporated concern. The officers of this Association are:

"President, Rev. W. H. MacPherson, Associate Pastor in charge of the boys work of St. Paul's Church, Chicago.

"Vice President, Judge F. W. Mayer, Judge of Circuit Court, Charlevoix, Mich.

"Secretary, Fred'k H. Brown, Business Manager of Boy City.

"Treasurer, Hon. W. A. Gardner, Attorney at Law, Chief Council National Juvenile Betterment Association, St. Louis, Mo.

"Judge Willis Brown, the originator of the Summer Boy City plan, has been engaged by the Association as the General Director and will be on the ground all this time during the existence of the city.

"Chas. B. Hahn, the Assistant Director, was Chief Probation Officer of the Juvenile Court with Judge Brown. The 'King of Boyville' as he is called, organized and conducted the Anderson, Ind., Boyville and has been Assistant Director of Boy City for the past two years.

"Additional assistant directors in charge of the various activities of Boy City are all men of recognized experience and authority in their vocation.

"Boy City is located in northern Michigan, the greatest summer campand recreation place in America, and in this grand country Boy City has the choicest spot. An old Indian camp ground of over 160 acres on the north shore of Pine Lake, one mile from Charlevoix, "the beautiful," and one mile from Lake Michigan. Acres and acres of deep woods of cedar and white birch and many other varieties; high, dry and healthy; clear, pure spring water; the most perfect spot on the earth for a boys' camp.

Mr. Brown informs us that a regular camp course will be inaugurated, with literary and manual attractions three times per week, and that a league base ball season will be begun to represent Charlevoix whenever they may get it.

Four men are now in the field, recruiting boys for the city, and it is expected that 1000 boys will be on the ground by August 1st. Mr. Brown is enthusiastic in the work, and predicts that the undertaking will develop into one of the greatest humanitarian enterprises of its kind in this generation.

And now it is given out that Hon. Patrick Kelley, lieutenant governor of Michigan, is camping on the trail of Chase S. Osborn to the race for the governorship.

Pat is one of the Warner political family, and the regularly scheduled heir of the third term governor. He occupied the port-hand seat in the Warner automobile last fall, and made about the only speech that could be dignified by that term.

Warner's semi-official seal is affixed to the Kelley booklet, and the "moral influence of the Administration will be exerted for Pat. Kelley himself declares that he is in the fight to stay, and as the Dooley would say, "Where ye are".

The East Jordan & Southern R. R. Co. received a new seventy ton locomotive Monday evening from the shops of the American Locomotive Co. at Pittsburg. The new machine is thoroughly first class in every particular, and will be used in the passenger train service between East Jordan and Bellaire.

The Fifth Year

The Michigan legislature has about closed a very uneventful session. Has anybody heard of anything last year from the Lansing legislature bearing the mark of Warner on it? We mean, of course, anything that could, by any possible construction, be credited to reform or economy.

From the automobile last fall we were given to understand that the third term meant great things for Michigan, and there has not been a tippie. Warner's "primary reform," which hamstrung the people last year, and busted political precedent into smithereens, has proven a failure, and the whole law practically repealed it by amendments.

There are no new things in this world that are beyond human understanding, and Warner's third term is one of them. There was never so small a shad caught in so large a mesh.

HOLLAND'S HEIR IS DAUGHTER.

Popular Hope of a Son to Succeed to Throne Is Disappointed.

Queen Wilhelmina was married to Prince Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin Feb. 7, 1901. The queen is now in her twenty-ninth year, having been born Aug. 31, 1880. She came of age Aug. 31, 1898, but had previously been queen for eight years, having succeeded her father, the late King William III., Nov. 23, 1890.

The queen's marriage to Prince Henry was sold to be the result of a love matter pure and simple. She had been sought in marriage many times and often reported engaged, but she refused with a determination that surprised her counselors full of their prince. Prince Henry was at the time of the marriage in the prime of manhood, a German infantry lieutenant attached to the battalion of Grenadiers in the Prince Alexander regiment.

The birth of a son to Queen Wilhelmina would have necessitated her retiring from the throne owing to the Salic law prevailing in Holland. Her son, when 18 years old and legally of age, would probably be regent and king, unless she chose a daughter, on the other hand, still survived her mother should she outlive her.

POWERS' EYES WATCH TURKEY.

All European Nations Interested in Fate of Ottoman State.

Turkey for many years has been the bone over of European governments because her name symbolizes that enchantment of old which is the dream of the Turk—the eastern question. What nations are to divide the territory of Turkey in Europe should the Ottoman Empire be crumbled? Is Russia to occupy Constantinople? Is the Austro-Saxon to lift Sinai to be the kingdom of orchestration for the twentieth century? These are three of the chief questions which, taken together, constitute the famous near eastern question of which so much has been written.

England and Russia are the powers which chiefly stand face to face on the question. British diplomacy on the near eastern question has been mainly aimed at checking the attempts of Russia to extend her empire and strengthen her strategic position by absorption of part of the Turkish territory. Whatever any phase of the eastern question is opened the whole world becomes concerned. Russia is interested because the question affects her route to the sea and her relations with England, the United States and the other great powers.

Austria is concerned because the question affects her prospects in the Balkan states. France is concerned because it affects her commercial relations in the far East, her claims in Africa and her route to the east.

TWO DIE IN BIG FIRE; LOSS $1,000,000

Elevator "B" of Illinois Central in South Water Street, Chicago, Burns.

FIGHT ON BLAZE IS STRENUOUS

Striking of Structure by Lightning Followed by Terrific Explosion, Then Fall of Wall.

Two firemen were killed, eleven persons injured and a loss of $1,000,000 caused early Thursday by the fire that destroyed Illinois Central elevator B, foot of South Water street, Chicago. A cordon of firemen narrowly escaped being caught beneath falling walls while dozens of others were overcome by the heat and smoke.

Lightning is believed to have caused the blaze which was shown skyward by a heavy wind from the lake when the flames burst through the roof and the gale sent thousands of burning cinders and sparks flying over the huge district, ignitions big lumber houses.

Within an hour the huge elevator was a mass of fire and backed like an Roman candle, as the sheet iron became rolled and the walls began to bulge.

So intense was the heat that firemen were constantly overcome, and one after another fell at their posts while duty. It was seen to be impossible to save the harbor structure. Consequently the firemen's main fight was to prevent a spread of the flames to adjacent buildings.

Fireman Cooper and McElligott met death in the collapse of the south wall. They were loading the hottie at that point, when somebody shouted a warning. A rush for safety was made by the firemen, but Cooper and McElligott were too close to the building to escape being caught. Both were buried beneath tons of brick and burning beams.

Several other firemen who narrowly escaped a similar fate were seriously injured, being struck by flying bricks.

The elevator stood between two river slips and contained 420,000 bushels of wheat and about the same amount of corn. It was one of the largest in the city and was surrounded by big lumber houses. It was nearly 100 feet high and about 350 feet long.

For a time the flames threatened to destroy the Illinois Central docks, the Goodrich docks, the Wisconsin Central freight house and other large buildings. The two freight houses caught fire more than a dozen times, but hard work by the firemen prevented their destruction.

8 DIE IN "BLACK HAND" BLAZE

Children Among Five Victims in Crowded New York Tenement.

Eight persons five of them children, were burned to death and fourteen others were injured, some of them fatally, in an early morning fire in a tenement at 37 Spring street, New York, occupied by Italian families, mostly Italian. The blaze followed a demand by members of a so-called "Black Hand" society for money from a $1,000 blackmail. It spread through the building with startling rapidity, as the hallways were soaked with kerosene oil by the Blackmailers. In a panic which followed the alarm the tenants fought their way down the narrow stairway from the window, while ladders were thrown from windows to the aid of policemen on the sidewalk. Six injured, three of whom are children, are not expected to recover. Jacob Hinck, the proprietor of a grocery store on the ground floor of the building, received on April 15 a letter reading: "We demand $1,000 or death. Beware of the Black Hand." Detectives to deal the black hand letter. Black Hand Society in Italy. Yesterday last Hinck received another letter written in a similar strain. He turned both letters over to the police.

RICH GIRL ON TRIAL FOR LIFE.

Pazos Jury in Answer Charge of Slaying Sister's Sweetheart.

Miss Ana Pazos, a wealthy young woman, who killed Roy Rassmer in Neo-Mo, on Jan. 6, 1908, following a quarrel at the Davidson home, in which the girl's sister Josephine applied an epithet to the girl, is on trial there. Miss Pazos plays in self-defense. Rassmer was a suitor for the hand of Miss Grace Davidson, the defendant's sister. A few days before the murder the two had quarreled. Rassmer used improper language to Miss Pazos' "dolmen" Davidson, who is relieved to retire, also killed him with a revolver.

SCENE OF THE $1,000,000 GRAIN FIRE IN CHICAGO.

HELD AS SLAYER OF GIRLS.

Man Said to Have Admitted Crime—Arrest May Clear Many Crimes.

Elmer Carr, declared to be the murderer of Mary Fisscher and Lillie Daft, has been placed under arrest in Dayton, Ohio, at the instance of H. H. Holcombe, assistant state fire marshal, and Bert Hallinan, a deputy fire marshal.

So strong is the web of evidence in which Sam Dudgeon and Hallinger believe they have involved their that Holcombe was given instructions to proceed to Dayton and place the bracelets against Carr for murder and arson.

This arrest, while having to direct connection with the Iroquois Theater crime, is in firmly believed by the authorities, who have been seriously working on the murders of young girls in Dayton, that Carr may be able to explain how Iroquois Theater.

Mrs. Carrie Middlesteter was being examined by officers of the Fire Marshal's office relative to the destruction of a house belonging to a relative of hers and during her testimony she said that Carr had confessed to her that he had killed Elizabeth Fullhart. Mary Fore-hner's body was discovered by her stepfather on Jan. 31 in Southbington. One arrest followed another, but nothing came of them. On Feb. 5, or about two weeks later, the body of Elizabeth Fulhart was found in a cellern in the rear of a house on West Jefferson street, Dayton.

Again many arrests took place, but no prosecution were instituted because of the inability of the police to get the proper evidence.

Recently a fire destroyed a house belonging to Joseph Vogel, a relative of Mrs. Middlesteter, near Dayton, and the inquiry held adduced the following testimony: That Carr had brought the Fulhart girl to a room in Mrs. Middlesteter's house. The following Sunday the same program was carried out, but this time the victim was Mary Fore-dorm which she wore that day, as described in the Iroquois Theater.

Herman Lieb, an art instructor, who came to Dayton from New York in 1906, and who claimed to be the possessor of art works valued at $500,000 stored in New York, is dead. Lieb refused all aid and lived on his pictures, though his last Carp were passed in poverty.

Miss Marden died a few hours later. She was a daughter of Frank Marden, of Somerville, Mass.

Smith, who was about 25 years old, was graduated from Dartmouth College a year ago last June. He had since been traveling for the company of which his uncle, Edward H. Smith, of Chicago, is president. For several days prior to the shooting he had been in Northampton trying to renew the engagement. Miss Marden ended him and sent him word that his attentions must cease. He persistently followed her, and she apparently was afraid of him. For she kept away from classes and other exercises, at which Smith was accustomed to see her, and remained in her room. Thursday morning's chapel Smith was seen at its usual seat, and when Miss Marden did not appear he started in the direction of her dormitory. He was watched by a dormitory the girl came out and they met.

No one was near enough to hear what words passed between the two, but a second or two after the meeting Smith drew a revolver and fired one or three shots at Miss Marden. She fell to the ground, and a number of students who were passing ran to her. As

HATCHERIES IN DANGER

Legislature Trying to Compete With Northern Michigan Asylum for the Insane

Lansing Special.—Official notice was served here Thursday on behalf of the United States bureau of fisheries that if the legislature intends to put on the statute books a law that the bureau's representatives in Michigan must hitch up with the politicians of Michigan's state game and fish warden's service the bureau will move the hatcheries at Northville, Alma and Charlevoix and cease to do any work with the hatcheries at Detroit and the Soo.

The notice was given by Supt. Clark, representing the national bureau, who lives at Northville, and who is in charge of the bureau's work in Michigan. Supt. Clark's authority for giving the notice is a letter signed by Commissioner Bowers, of the Washington bureau. The substance of the letter is that the federal bureau of fisheries has demonstrated by years of experience and by the service of the best experts of fish propagation in the world that to get the best results the expert must be in charge of the spawn from the hour it is taken from the fish until it has been hatched and the young fish counted. Careless or ignorant handling may spoil the spawn, although the fact that it had been spoiled may not be discernible even by experts until months after the spawn has been in the hatcheries.

The Washington bureau therefore will suspend all work in Michigan unless it continues its work of propagating fish without hindrance by the state game warden on the scientific plan on which it conducts this work in other parts of the country.

What this pending bill contemplates is that the Federal bureau must cease taking fish during the closed season—and that is the only period when spawn fish can be secured—and must leave the work of gathering spawn to such persons as Game Warden Pierce designates. Pierce says that he will designate everybody that applies for a position. All spawn so gathered under the pending bill is to be turned over to the hatcheries, although it is turned over there will be no way to determine whether it is dead or alive. What Game Warden Pierce wants is a law to license as many fishermen as his deputies to take fish spawn during the closed season, whether they know anything about how to protect the life of the spawn or not, and turn it over to hatcheries.

If all the bills already pending relating to game and fish regulation become laws they will strip every other department of a lot of business, but will vest in the state game and fish warden's department whether or not about 200,000 or a fourteen-year-old can do the business. That is, they can do business in Michigan if Pierce O. K's their application. This, at least, is a conservative estimate of the pending bills. Pierce for years has been the most resourceful agent Gov. Warner has had.

State Prohibition

With go out of 83 counties of Michigan "dry," the "handwriting upon the wall" looms up larger than ever in the eyes of the liquor interests in the state. The results of the local option election are likely to go far toward completely dispelling the arrogance of the dealers in intoxicants and they will transform many of them into peaceable citizens applicants for a right to continue their business. Time was when not only Michigan but in most of the states those who sold liquor insolently sneered at the prohibitionists and the administration of state, county and city, in so far as it is related to their traffic. They were not satisfied with obtaining from favorable to the liquor traffic but they also demanded that those laws be considered a dead letter. Hitherto their own interests or no interests have pursued one offensive course after another to further their own mistaken ends. They have only themselves to blame that through persistent refusal to comply with proper regulations of their business they have made the liquor traffic in many communities in Michigan into the law-abiding people who are always in the majority will be satisfied with nothing less than the wiping out of the saloon.—Lansing Republican.

Saxton was sitting beside Gordian in the lower hall. He had an impulse to express gratitude for his escape from the gentlemen of the twilight; but Hardian, laughing incessantly, and with hands thrust ceaselessly into his trousers' pockets, led the way into the reading room.

"Hello, Wheaton, I didn't know you were at home," he called to a man who sat reading a newspaper with his back toward the door. "This is Mr. Saxton, Mr. Wheaton." "Oh, yes," and the man introduced as Wheaton, rose and shook hands with him. "Mr. Porter told me you had come."

Wheaton seemed very serious, and had not much to say. He had just come home, from a tension trip to the western part of the State, he said, on an errand for his bank. He was tall, slim and dark. There was a suggestion of stern indifference in his dark eyes, though he had a well-established reputation for easy and kindly humanity.

"Mr. Porter told me you were comfortable. I'm personally relieved that you have come home. Your interests were getting very impatient with us. We shall do all in our power to do what is of course Mr. Porter his said all that to you." The words were in a monotone of the lips, and his eyes did not seem in sympathy in it. He was one of the most easily possible business relations with Saxton, but stood for conservatism in all general channels. They sat together for an hour, Hardian, as was his way in any company, doing most of the talking. They crossed to have the club house to themselves. Now and then one of the negro servants came and loaded in some more seconds cigars and brandies. A clerk at the desk in the hall rang in peace. A party of young people could be heard entering by the side door set apart for women; and soon fled echoes of their gaiety reached the ears in the reading room.

"There's back in the lazarettes," said Hardian, in explanation to Saxton. "It isn't quite the thing to speak of the beverages. Now and then one of the negro servants comes and loaded in some more seconds cigars and brandies."

"Evelyn, this is Mr. Saxton. He's come to dine with us, but I forgot all about it. See here, Evelyn, you've got to square this for me." he concluded, and she came forward and shook hands with Saxton.

"I don't know how it can be squared." This is only one of Father's jokes, Mr. Saxton. You may be—you be didn't mean to do it."

"No, indeed," declared Porter. "This is ashamed of myself." He waved the young people to seats and vanished into the hall.

Porter returned and launched into anecdotes as to the number of times he had dined in the State House school club from during the past year. The maid announced a visitor, and Porter talked on as he lit the way to the dining room. Saxton found himself seated in a row of 12 took the place opposite Saxton.

"This is my brother-in-law," said Miss Porter. The boy rose and shook hands with Saxton. "The affairs of his sister is being thrust upon him, and he's bearing it like a man." Miss Porter spoke in this it was with an assumed kindness. He looked not unlike her, a stranger, but his face brightened at the honor of the introduction.

"You'd better get Mr. Saxton to tell you how much his ranch is, Evelyn," Porter, turning to the boy, who at once blushed furiously in resolution.

"I'm going to be a ranchman," the lad declared. "I'm going to buy out my brother ranch some day."

"That's one of Mr. Saxton's properties, Evelyn. I'm trying to run for a vice-president."

"Is it as bad as that?" asked Saxton.

"Just wait until you see it. It's pretty bad."

"The house must have been charming, Miss Porter."

"And that's about all it was," replied her father.

It was warmer outside than in, but Porter pretended that it was pleasanter out of doors, and insisted that there was always a breeze on the hill at night. Hardian expressed at the step presently. They all rose as he came up, and he was obliged to be shown some books with him. "I see you've found the way to hospitalities. All made load up to the Albion heights—and I fear—I fear—that all roads lead down again," he added, with a sigh, and laughed. He laughed nothing himself greatly at home. He seemed to have a sense of humor, however, that his versatile clerks were the most unappreciative of it. Saxton felt that he had himself a better seat from the hall. Porter was talking to Wheaton and Miss Porter in his absence.

"I'm glad you found nothing uncomfortable, too," Saxton ventured.

"Oh, he's the very kindest fellow in the world," she replied.

"Aquared after a sharp fight by the British ministers skills Experiment, Captain Brown, commanding aboard the vessel, gave his sword to the captain, Sir James Wallace, who continued to use it, it made, saying, 'I never take sword from a brave man.'"

Trying his adversary more as a friend than as a prisoner, Sir James presently took this below, where he met other officers of the ship, and a general conversation followed over the campaign. Captain Brown, Commander Sir James proposed a toast: "His Majesty, King George the Third." Captain Brown made no comment and raised his glass with the others, and Sir James hoping, perhaps, Yes, his fellow that he had acquitted himself, and would reply with some thing suggestive of a possible elasticity in his rebel principles, called on him for a toast.

Captain Brown rose at once to his feet with more dignity and gave "His Excellency, General George Washington, the Commander-in-Chief of the American forces."

All glasses were lowered hastily, and Sir James demanded with anger, "Did you mean to insult me, sir, by proposing the name of that arch-rebel?"

"I was the quite answer. "If there was any insult it was in your giving George the Third," which I did not hesitate to drink to, although you must have known it could not be agreeable to me, who, at this moment, as a guest though a prisoner."

The English gentleman perceived instantly that the failure in courtesy had been his own, and made the best of it. Presently I remember how that was became a safe subject, Brown showed a fairly good knowledge of a divine greyhound and grace. So Cole's forward, and Sir James, who was a sportsman, talked on to the Brown, who, if observed in an item a faith, will be crowned with an unrelish reputation.

In parting his service these underwelcomed forward of Christian manhood and womanhood, remember that, the years of it grows and the time grows in attaining our ideals or of appearance of bitter defeat and failure, not to be so. Much is accomplished in these struggles of the soul which only God and the individual may weigh. Many times, of the little things, the hidden things, yet of these be well done like towers of strength, we will rise and be exalted to do greater things ahead for God.

Remember, too, that God's call for the underwedded forces of Christian manhood and womanhood bespeaks the exalted purpose of real life, viz., to remove obstructions. The ignorant and the indolent may blunder and stumble in the way of God's plans and purposes for the betterment of humanity. But the office of a true man is to use all his accumulated knowledge in making the pathway of the pleasant, prosperous and prosperous. Even as Jesus Himself sought to make it so for great humanity.

We may see our knowledge upon the unsophisticated forces of God and God profit therefrom; but when we have used our acquirements in benefiting the souls and souls of our fellow beings, so that afterward they rise up and declare to depart them, we have achieved the most exalted of all services.

These things will aid in going forward in spite of every difficulty, difficulty and difficulty, world of our Master. To live well is to carry task, but to attempt to live without this attempt to live in the living. Thinks, attitude, and abuse us, in—certain of it, yourself, and to draw the curtain of modesty. Another inspiration is more convincing, more practical. Christ speaks to us and asks our service in behalf of a world. Love for a being, and for humanity is another inspiration.

The people are neglected, the sore in health, the helpless ought to find in us their truest friends, as we seek for our strength to overcome the difficult places of life. Such strong men and women find a delightful opportunity in this service and blessing their obedience, since, too, the world appreciates, sooner or later, the man or woman who ever trial this earth declared of himself, "I am sent to do the will of Him who ever does those things which please Him." When you and I have done this, we will be ready to go as do we have emphasized the fact that the Christian life is not of earth the living when it is lived well.

SERMONETTES.

He cannot force heaven who gets at it through force.

The trouble with many uplifters is that they are only unhooked.

Little faith cannot long be satisfied with dead men's prayers.

The religion that cannot live in business is not worth much.

Being good is not much good unless your goodness makes good.

Life is not to be measured by their outgoings, but by their income.

The finest private character grows out of devotion to public welfare.

The time man will find the bread of life lies in the strife for bread.

Nothing will help you into heaven like helping others out of their ruts.

It is no use talking about being faith in God unless you keep faith with men.

Faith is something a good deal broader and mightier than fear of the future.

They who have done least to prevent evil are the most ready to cry out against it.

Some people are sure they are humble because they think only in diminutives.

Many a church that rails at idolatous indulgences is eager for mental anesthesia.

When the church acts as an umpire it usually waits until the cup has been stolen.

You may know how heaven regards money when you see the people who have it.

One of the most popular ways of dodging a duty is to write a book describing it.

The people who seem to have religion on the brain usually have no brains in their religion.

When your neighbors wish you were in heaven you may be sure you are not headed that way.

It takes more than a heaven-searing steeple to overcome the selfsadding spirit of some churches.

You may think you see your will quite resigned to God's will, but you never reap them under those conditions.

We only know some have of staying in their heaven is that no wind will carry them to other sky. Christ overthrew the idea.

DON'TS FOR CHURCHMEN.

Don't try to understand a truth till you obey it.

Don't forget that crooks are made by dodging duties.

Don't forget that it is always safe to go where you can help another.

Don't be overanxious to give advice, and you yourself may need it most.

Don't forget that obedience is the initial step for training for authority.

Don't hesitate to rip to your brother's aid if you would escape the tempter.

Don't mistake for generosity a longing to give to others what you have not.

Don't fail to notice the difference between trying to seem pleasant and seeking to give pleasure.

He Was Proud of Her.

The Greenhorn—Is your wife supports the family by taking in washing, Uncle Hayseed?

The Real Thing.

"I suppose," remarked the village gossip, "that you have acquired a liberal education at college?"

"Yum suppositious ain't jest right," answered Farmer Goshaw. "It cost me more'n leven hundred dollars, by gran'."

Cling An Example.

"Hoggs" remarked the mere man, "is certainly a wonderful thing."

"It is," rejoined the wise woman, "one thing the whole will keep my husband fishing all day."

A FIXED CENTER.

By Henry F. Cope.

The heavens declare the glory of God—Ps. 19:1.

Life runs steadily only as it has some center. Those who are driven hither and thither by every wind and passing breeze of adversity are those who are unchanging center, no centrifugal force to hold them. Life seems to find its fulfillment in the pole star; where can our lives find the unchangeable life?

Strange to say, the modern man is able to combine the religious faith from a source that his fathers feared most of all; science. In the latest and most up-to-date word of science, the most intellectual, in the most advanced science of the day, that nothing is left to change, that all things are guided and ordered.

Now, it makes a tremendous difference whether we feel orderly in the world or as thus under the sway of law, or whether we feel orderly in the world of chance, of accidents, called a universe by virtue of a law of gravitation and other forces. There right is ever right because justice is a necessity of law.

Here, then, is the stable, unchanging foundation, the pole star of life. Let this be an orderly world, that the same effects always follow precisely the same causes, and the world is at once a fixed center. It will test much good working with evil harvests, and the good will be rewarded with the sheaves of the doom of death.

It is a great thing to be able to think of an all-wise, holier personality who has the reins of human destiny in his hands, who is the father, whose down in pity to his children. But personality is not the only one of the forces working mind is subject to partiality. It is—calling of law—the mind of God. The force of the office was filtered with service of the original meaning of law, but evidently made a quick settlement of the Hebrew word, which, in fact, is the same word as the modern cooking in the day did his same law, which has and otherwise marked it as be helping place Barton viewed the man with disgust; it was more like a hound than a human. "Why, anybody wasn't so bad after all," he muttered, "if you have a pony we'll take a ride around the fence."

A TOAST TO WASHINGTON.

It Was Patriotic Only to the Man Who Proposed It.

Many a loyal toast to the great commander of the Revolutionary forces, offered from time to time, sometimes at stately banquets, sometimes in shadowed homes by a handful of anxious mourners, moves men-folk were fighting under him far away—many an hour passed down to us, preserved by formal histories, or faded diaries, or cherished family tradition. Simple or elegant as the case may be in their phrasing, there is something often oddly stirring even to the man who speaks—with such full and overflowing enthusiasm in the days of old. Let few such words, however gladly and eagerly honored, are more striking than one proposed by Major Moses Cleveland of Newburyport, commander of the privateer General Arnold, and accepted with anything but enthusiasm by every man present except himself.

"Captain Brown, commander of the British sloop-of-war Experiment, Captain Brown, commander of the vessel, gave his sword to the captain, Sir James Wallace, who continued to use it, it made, saying, 'I never take sword from a brave man.'"

Treating his adversary more as a friend than as a prisoner, Sir James presently took this below, where he met other officers of the ship, and a general conversation followed over the campaign. The National Revenues.

The tariff-tinkering and the framers of the new tariff bill to provide an adequate revenue-raising measure which will meet the running expenses of the Federal Government and also encourage the large delivery-bags prove unedited for to a great extent, after all. The national processes of a free government in business throughout the country may produce the revenue required for current expenses, but cut down the deficit to insignificant proportions. Since April 1 the tariff has been in force nearly a month, the Government's daily revenues have exceeded its expenditures, leaving an average daily surplus of over $63,000. The increase is due to the customs receipts, which show a slight falling off from the corresponding period of last year. The daily average receipts from customs from Jan. 1 to April 10 were $1,621,401, while in April they fell off in receipts of the same period in the previous year of 1907, amounting to $1,558,441, and well ahead of the average for 1906 in the same months, which was only $880,000. The reason of this is that increased revenue during the same period last year, when the average was $1,773,078 in 1906 and $850,320 in 1907. The decrease is thought to be due to the general slack in business, which is felt throughout the country. The average daily receipts from all sources have been $2,007,880, as against $1,897,184 in 1906 and $2,180,577 in 1907. The average daily expenditure has been $2,920,900, as against $2,926,400 in 1906 and $2,905,000 in 1907. The accompanying feature, however, is the fact that the daily deficit has amounted to $913,000 during the period, when it was $295,000, to March 10, when it was $290,000, and since April 1 the deficit has disappeared entirely, the average daily receipts showing a surplus of $63,000 in the month of April, while during the months of the fiscal year, from July to March, the original estimated by the treasury experts at the beginning of the last session of Congress, will be adopted within comparatively comfortable limits, and the Treasury Department will be able to pay bills as well as the general revival of business activities which is sure to follow the enactment of the tariff giveaway. It will probably put the Democrats in a fine fix, too.

There is also another important feature to be taken into consideration, and that is, the effect of many superfluous expenses for governmental purposes, which have, in a big and growing country, like this it is to be expected that the legitimate demands upon the national treasury will constantly increase, and its expenditures will increase correspondingly to the extent with the nation's growth. But unless all signs fail, the tariff shibboleth will give strict attention to the curtailment of its expenses within the limits of its revenues, and it is not unlikely probable that a new or revised tariff will be made necessary.

The Tariff Must Be Reduced.

Treasury Secretary Cortelyou in that tariff debate seem to show that he does not feel bound, through party pledges in a general reduction of tariff duties. Yet that is exactly what every Republican speaker, from Mr. Taft down, bound the Republican party in the last campaign to do. With that pledge was accepted in good faith by the people, and their approval of it was renewed. And the will of the people expressed with deliberation, is the supreme law.

Whether the decision of the people was wise or unwise is not now in question. It is the duty of Republican leadership to keep the party's pledges and obey the people's will. And also to do so means less customs revenue, for the treasurer duty to find other sources of revenue.

An inheritance tax has been suggested. It is a Democratic measure proposed to say many States. An income tax has been suggested, and is one most suitable for national use. Though to make it fully effective a constitutional amendment may be required, yet under the laws in effect there is a tax of an average of $84,000,000 annually was obtained.

There are also other methods of obtaining revenue, such as the stamp taxes of the Civil and Spanish wars, which yielded a revenue, and are unvoting, but they place burdens according to ability to bear them, and, by the enforcement of the interest in economical expenditure.

Whatever may be the discomforts incoived, the sovereign people are entitled to what they voted for. The people are entitled to what they voted for, and the penalty of bad faith, the Republican party, is the tariff taxes and make the test of the situation.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Signs of Improvement.

Many indications point to an improvement which must register itself in the general treasury situation. The receipts from all the railways which have reported for March show a gain of 12.11 p. ct. The Home railroads over the month of 1908. Bank clearings are making a long and over the corresponding period a year ago. Merchandise imports in March of this year reduce all the records for that month. This is an unmistakable sign of a growth in public confidence. Production is only the iron output, which is two-thirds of that of the high-water mark of the year, is a fair index of the proportion which the country's aggregate activities at this moment bear to those in the second half of 1906 and the first half of 1907, before the panic was upon us. The iron and steel output is increasing. Merchandise exports in March were below those of a year before, but only one of the three most report years, but they were higher than those of the two preceding years. Exports are increasing, and there is a fair probability that before the end of the year the exports of the year may will be close to the figures of the most prosperous year. The increase in exports is respectable for the growth in the revenue, which is given a good deal of encouragement to treasury officials. At the same time the wonder is that the receipts from customs have gone down to lower figures than have been reached in previous years, that is on a solid basis, and that the removal of the uncertainty as to tariff revision has not yet produced a noticeable increase in the receipts from customs, the sharp increase in the receipts from internal revenue, but this stands a chance to correct itself by the larger accession of revenue from the tax on whisky, which is promised.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hinsley Law Revenues.

What a really stupid thing is the arrangement of the Hinsley law, as it affects a prodigious revenue is shown by the treasury report for March, the receipts for the month were more than $53,000,000. This is nine million more than for March of last year, $7,000,000 more than for March, 1907, half a year before the panic commenced. And it must be remembered that the complaint against the Hinsley law two years ago was that it produced too much revenue, the surplus for March, 1907, being roughly ten millions.

There have been enormously increased expenditures, but the surplus for March, 1907. Yet, in the face of general complaint against the Hinsley law, the issues in all private business, the deficit for this March was only $1,113,000, as against $8,013,000 last year.

The recent gain in receipts has been so great that it is reasonable to increase during the next few weeks—and with no prospect of increase in expenditure, no prospective or industrial and commercial activity this would be assured—would restore the old Hinsley law conditions of a surplus revenue. The one thing in this country which moved involuntarily revenue producing capacity during the slack times following the panic was the Hinsley law, which must be tinkered now by legislative jugglers who must attempt to guess at what the treasury receipts will be under the new tariff.—New York Press.

Awful, Crusted, Weeping Eczema on Little Sufferer—A Score of Treatments Prove Utterly Failures—Cure Achieved by Cuticura.

"My little boy had an awful rash all over his body and the doctor said it was eczema. It was terrible and used to water awfully. Any place the water went it would form another sore and it would become crusted. A score or more physicians failed utterly and disastrously in their efforts to remove the trouble. Then I was told to use the Cuticura Remedies. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and before we had used half the Resolvent I could see a change in him. Build Good Roads in Front of Farms.

Use the Drag and Harrow Until Cold Weather—Tip on Improving Sand Roads.

It is encouraging to see the attention that is being paid to good roads all through the United States. Vast sums are appropriated, are taking the matter up, national conventions are held, and an honest, broad, practical way seems to develop in favor of good roads. Every day adds to the good work. Every month brings better definition for good roads, and better conditions for the work.

It is a good sign, when the farmer in the suburbs, nearer to his church and school, is a leader in his district. The time will come when one will travel a mile or two out of his way to go over a good road rather than over a bad one. The popularity which the good roads movement is making will be a strong factor in bringing about the good roads era.

There never has existed a political contingency in Michigan that was more acute, and more fraught with dangerous possibilities than at this present moment.

The republicans of Michigan may as well begin to gather in the fact that Michigan extends north of the straits of Mackinac. They may as well begin to study the political history of Michigan and learn how many times the upper peninsula has come down at the eleventh hour and saved the party from defeat.

The upper part of Michigan is an Empire of itself, and the time is not far distant when it will demand and secure organization and statehood. It has never grumbled when the geographical big end of the state was good enough to give them a lieutenant governor or a commissioner of the state land office. The republicans of that section are dangerously near the limit of their party loyalty.

Chase S. Osborn is the unanimous choice of the republicans of the upper peninsula for governor to succeed Fred M. Warner. CHAPTER IV—(Continued.)

They spent the day in the saddle riding over the ranch. The Stillwater character of the Poindexter undertaking could not spoil the real value of the land. Tiree was Sexton could see the working hers of a great farming property; he felt the old interest in outdoor life quickening in his veins as they rode in the morning.

Snyder cooked supper for both of them while Sexton repaired a horseshoe which had been designed to unhorse the house with saner. He had formed a poor opinion of the caretaker, who had no well-defined duties. There was nothing for any one to do, unless the rains were again soaked and stirred the earth drenched as a serious business. Sexton was used to rough men and rough ways. He had a longer faculty of adapting himself to the conditions of any exigency in illiterate men, and enjoyed drawing them out and getting the point of view. In Snyder's case not a vinegar that incline, confidence. He has a great skull, black hair and a scraggy beard. He lacked an eye, and a pipe fitted in the hole his head sound in order to accommodate his branding iron on to any cattle. He did this with an humouring kind of humour that Sexton thought was the best interview.

"This place is too fancy to be of much use," the man confided. "You may be right, but I don't know. I've seen places where another dude has dug the fire below his. I reckon you'll have a hard time catching a man that will calculate wouldn't care for all this house. It might be made into a college, but I don't know what luck ridiculous is here. You might have a corn crib made out of it, or it might do for a hotel if you could get dudes to spend the summer here. I don't think life is a little hot out here for summer boarders."

"The only real value is in the land," said Sexton. "The land there is a fortune on the river. The house is a handicap, or would be, unless you could find a man who make money out of cattle. Have you ever tried rounding up the cattle that strayed through the fences? The Indianapolis crowd would make laughing their last colleys about two years ago. Assuming that you are a part of them you sold or run off, there ought to be some two-pounds still loose in this country and they'd be worth finding."

"Her joke! I guess. These fellows around here are a little fellows and a little but I guess they don't give anything back. I guess we don't give anything back to us."

"Who've you been reporting to, Sny-der?"

"How's that?"

"Who have you been considering your self responsible to?"

"Well, this Winston at the Clarkson National Bank—I reckon I'll report to him if I required to anybody. But if you've got to report to anybody and want to be reported to, I guess I can report to you."

"I want you to report to me," said John, quietly. "In the first place I want the house and the other buildings cleaned out. After that the fences must be put in shape. And then we'll see if we can find some of our cows. You can't tell—I'm a-my, open up a real ranch here and go into business."

"Well, I'd like to, you're the boss I'll do it your way. I go along all right with Winston."

Sexton determined to leave for Clarkson the following morning and Snyder set in his mind the result of his journey and place in the future of the incomprehensible property that had been entrusted to him. He sat for an hour smoking and in deep reflection. He followed the long sweep of the gulch, literally upon his knees, to the miles the triple ribbon of the river. A train of cows rumbled from a ravine in iron trail between the two oceans, intensifying the loneliness of the place and house.

"I seem to find only the lonely places," he said aloud.

In the morning he ate the breakfast of coffee, hardtack and bacon which Snyder prepared, and mounted a bay like the railway station.

"Tiles as regards to Mr. Wheaton," he said, as Sexton swung himself into the saddle. "You'll find me here at the old stand when you come back."

"A quiet place to spend a Sunday—a bad day," was Sexton's reflection.

When Sexton had ventured on the report of his trip he took it to Winston, to get his suggestions before forwarding it to Boston. He looked upon Winston as his professional, and asked to avail himself of Winston's knowledge of the local conditions affecting the several properties that had now passed to his care. Winston undoubtedly wished to be of assistance, and in their discussion on the report, the cashier made many suggestions of value, of which Sexton was glad to avail himself.

"As to the Poindexter place," said Sexton finally, "I've been advertising it for sale in the hope of finding a buyer but without results. The people at Indianapolis seem to be better about the fate of these things, but I can't see way we should neglect the property while there's nothing to take over it. That house is worse than a white elephant. I'm going back in a few days to see if I can't coax some of the cattle we're entitled to into the place that I suppose we may as well dispose with the place."

"I don't see that there's anything else to do," Winston observed. "I've been to the ranch, and there's little potential property there. Snyder is a good man, but I don't know that I'd care long one day and asked for a job and I sent him out there Dobbins and I keep things in good order the Trust Company and its own interests are involved."

There were times when Winston's black eyes contracted strangely and this was one of the times.

"I don't like discharging a man that you've employed," Sexton protested.

"Oh, that's all right. You can't keep him if he performs no service. Don't trouble about him on my account. How soon are you going back there?"

"Next week, perhaps."

Sexton was not surprised when he received a letter from Mr. Wheaton that had made no effort to obey his instructions. He made his visit unexpectedly. He reached the house in the middle of the morning and found the front door bolted and barred on the inside. After much pounding he succeeded in bringing Snyder to the door, evidently both surprised and displeased at his interruption.

"Howdy, boy," was the salutation of the frowsy outsider. "I wasn't feeling just right today and was nakin' a little sleep."

The great ball showed signs of a recent. The dirt had increased since Saturday's first appearance. Empty whisky bottles and beer glasses were in evidence, sticks stood in their grassy stations in the table. Sexton sat down on a bench which had evidently been recently used for a bed. He resolved to make quick work of Snyder.

"How many cattle have you rounded up since I was here?" he demanded.

"Well, to tell the truth," began Snyder, "there ain't been much time for doing that since you been here."

"No; I suppose you were busy mending fences and clearing out. Now you have been drawing forty dollars a month for doing nothing. I'd rather have seen that you deserve and give you ten dollars honest to get out. I believe the money is the real belongs to you. We'll let it go at that. Here's your money."

"Well, I guess as Mr. Wheaton hired me, he'd better fire me."

"I'm quite as Mr. Wheaton about you. He understands that you're no job. He has done his part. Snyder (spiteful) I'm sorry you have forgot the manners of a man in the two years."

"Well, it's all off," said Sexton, rising. He began throwing open the windows and doors to the fresh air.

"Well, I guess I'll have to see Mr. Wheaton," Snyder ventured, when Sexton was laying to further admitted to the house and cooking his breakfast, watching in astonishment the violence with which Sexton was exhausted in the disposing of rubbish.

"Here comes a lot more interested in Wheaton than Wheaton is in him," observed Sexton to himself.

Sexton spent a week at Great River. He hired a man to cook and care for the house in his absence. He visited several of the large ranch owners and discussed the management of the Poindexter land, with the result that he collected about one-third of the rents due from the property. He expected to come to hear of Snyder's being in the town but the fellow had disappeared.

CHAPTER V.

James Wheaton was 55 years old, and was reckoned among the solid business men of Clarkson. He had accomplished far beyond his expectations and was fairly satisfied with the result of the labor that he had reached. He never talked about himself and, as he had no intimate friends, it had never been necessary for him to offer confidences. His father had been a farmer-maker in a little town lower; he and his other brothers were expected to follow their father, but the brother John was restless under the threat of enforced superintendency, and prevailed on James to run away with him. They crossed the Mississippi and found themselves running through the country, until finally they were caught stealing in a little Illinois village and both were arrested.

James was ashamed of the publicity of his brother in taking all the blame on himself; the other boy was sent to a reformatory alone. James then went to Chicago, where he got work and saved blacked boots for a year until he found employment as a train boy, with a company operating on various lines running out of Chicago. He was a good boy, accustomed with Western towns, and individually with railroad and railroad men. He grew tired of the road, and obtained a position in the office of Timothy Margrave, the general manager of the Transcontinental, which he had heard, was a great primary school for ambitious boys.

He attended night school, was assiduous in his duties, and attained in due course the dignity of a desk in the room back the cards of Margrave's callers, in the meantime learning the rudiments under the direction of the chief clerk. After a year Margrave, who was the Clarkson National Bank's messenger was about to resign, he applied for the place. Margrave recommended him; the bank manager of the time accepted the lad's integrity, and in due course he went out the streets of Clarkson carrying a leather billbook, the outward and visible sign of his position as messenger. He was soon fully promoted in the bank and felt his past receding farther and farther behind him.

When, at an important hour of his life, Wheaton was promoted to be paying teller, he was in the receiving clerk's cage. He had known that the more desirable place was occupied by a man who had fallen clerks speculating as to the possibility of his being put out to make room for Thompson, the cashier, had a nephew in the bank and among the clerks he was thought to have the best chance. They all knew that the cashier was in a measure dependent upon whose tasks for the good fellows, lingered long in the office that night to see what would happen. Wheaton kept quietly at his work but he had an eye on the door of the directors' room, and an ear that usually turned toward the mahogany tube by which messengers were called to the board room. It rang at last, and Wheaton wiped his pen with a little more thoroughness than was necessary to the result to the summons. This was on his twenty-fifth birthday.

"Mr. Wheaton." The other clerks looked at him as he hurried. The question that had been uppermost with all of them for a week past was received. Thompson's nephew slammed his book shut and carried it into the vault where he put safe the balance sheet over which he had been fingering with his uncle the directors room. There had been no end of joy among the assembled, for it knew that he was not popular with them; he was, in their sense, a good fellow, and they rejoiced at the defeat of the aristocrat. The question that had been uppermost with all of them had not been addressed to anybody to help them. As for himself, he felt balanced, and did not need their help; he was ready for his fate. This was the hour of triumph, but he went to his victory without the cheer of his companions.

Later, when need arose for creating the position of assistant cashier, it was natural that the new dean should be assigned to the office, and he was quite competent; neither Porter nor Thompson had a word to bring in the bank; he was they said to each other and to their friends, a fellow who had earned his place by outstanding qualifications—he did his work and he kept his mouth shut.

In the course of time Thompson's health broke down, and the doctors ordered him away to New Mexico, and again there was no choice but to place the young man Wheaton. The signal rolled so all his stock and margin, but Thompson's uncle, "I'll take that when, after two years," it was clear that the cashier would not return to fill the continuous vacancy in the bank. Wheaton was duly elected cashier and Thompson was made assistant cashier.

The relations between Porter and Wheaton were strictly of a business character. This was not by planning on Porter's part. He assumed that at some time or other Wheaton had known of the latter's antecedents; and after so many years of satisfactory service, during the greater part of which the bank had been protected against Wheaton, as against all the rest of the employees, by a bonding company, he accepted the cashier without any question. Before Porter's return he had no day dreamed to Wheaton his satisfaction that it would soon have a home again, and Wheaton regarded with civil sympathy that Miss Porter must now be "quite a young lady."

"Mr. Porter, you must come up to the house when we get going again," Porter had invited him.

Wheaton had seen the inside of few houses in Clarkson. He had a recollection of being sent once to Porter's several times, while he was still an errand boy in the bank, to fetch Porter's bag on occasions when the president had been called away unexpectedly. He remembered Evelyn Porter as she used to come to a child and set in his carriage outside the bank to wait for her father; the Porters stood in his time, and now, for wealth and power.

Harden had a contempt for Wheaton's intellectual sufficiency, and praise. Wheaton's studious and reserve rated him as having some sting for himself; he was one of those unpleasant people get better of his prejudices, and he showed them many kindnesses. When the others at The Bachelors' nagged Wheaton, it was Harden who threw himself in the breach to take Wheaton's part. He took him to call at some of the houses he knew best, and though this was a matter of practicality he knew Wheaton was not preferred Wheaton to the others in the house. Wheaton was many one preferences and the others were sometimes both.

Wheaton soon found it easy to anything that he had never thought of doing before. He became known to the florist and bakershaker; there was a lilac in season a certain flower—I forget which Harry Harden drove a good deal. Harden had a habit of chaffing Harry his pleasant it was to drive out to the new conservatory on a summer afternoon and carry the street car, when into a mesh of plebeian wrangling at the end of the week then lie. Sometimes the most grievous damage is done by some well meant effort. Harry's every wrong made an impossible enemy the whole world of Harden's life, and so Harry's kind heart's hotel against his neighbor, and all progress and peace forever impossible.

Forgiveness among men makes possible the doing of the kingdom of the eternal goodness. Harry's wrong was done to one another, only as we can be patient, make allowance for weakness and pardon give up the natural desire for vengeance and seek to heal the breaches constantly being made by selfishness can men live together in peace and good will.

To forgive, then, is to refuse to take the attitude of a foreman toward my fellow man, to refuse to be judge and injustice or may leave modern their duty, and, more, it is to take the attitude and play the part of a friend to them. It is to turn a deaf ear to the discussion of selfishness, self-love and self pride, and to have a larger consideration for the good of others and for the well-being of all than for any own prestige or personal advantage.

Forgiveness is the sweet smile with tenderness on the wrongdoer; it is the sweet word of love to the friend who. But it will mistake, it will denounce and it will punish even all in the name of the law, it will be dragging back the wanderer from love's way and bringing back to the mouth of getting even, of paying back in kind or of satisfying vengeance. It will by every means in its power to make even least the man who has degraded himself by injustice or meanness instead of trying to get even with him.

Forgiveness does not defeat justice; it puts another motive in the act. Justice is that process which teaches an man of the ways in a complex world in which one must reap as he sows, consequences must follow every wrong, reprisals lets justice take its way; it does not shield the willful criminal from the results of his acts, but it lets them fall on him only in the measure of enforcing the lesson of his action, and never in the measure of personal pleasure in retaliation.

The world is full of a spirit of revenge, this new law says. Love your neighbor, strive to do good to those who would do you ill, make friends of your enemies. Vengeance emphasizes and scale the vanity; forgiveness breaks down its battlements and makes friends out of those against whom it lifelong foes.

Forgiveness, in a word, is the antithesis of vanity; it substitutes helpfulness for hatred. It is altogether apart from the matter of forgiving the trespasser; it sometimes you can only help another effectually as you remember his past sins. But forgiveness takes the sting out of the memory; it remembers with love with growing charitable help. It does not overlook; it sees through and beyond the fault to the possibility of what the other may be with a little help and love.

Forgiveness is the attitude which says, I will not be at war with my own fellow-creatures, I will not be a foreman, I will fight, but I will fight the great and wrong along with them. When a man has fallen under temptation, even though I am thereby injured, I will not take the side of the law against Him, and so bring the kingdom of peace and good will to come among men.

MORAL AND MATERIAL POWER.

By Rev. Thomas Reed Bridges.

Endowed with power from on high. —Luke 24: 49.

Power is something every man wants. We are all struggling to get it in the rank of the nobodies into the rank of the sensitives.

Money is power, and in its pursuit men tear upon mountains and sail with the ocean and toil early and late. Knowledge is power, and to possess it men read books and excavate buried cities and make experiments in the laboratory and exhaust the brain with perplexing thought. Social position gives power also, and there are those who will make any sacrifice and endure any humiliation to see their name printed in more exclusive list of social citizens.

The struggle for power is as old as the race. Man is inferior in physical strength to many of the animals, but holds dominion over them all. He won this was not by planting on Porter's part. He assumed that at some time or other Porter had known of the antecedents; and after so many years of satisfactory service, during the greater part of which the bank had been protected against Wheaton, as against all the rest of the employees, by a bonding company, he accepted the cashier without any question. Harry's wrong was done to one another, only as we can be patient, make allowance for weakness and pardon give up the natural desire for vengeance and seek to heal the breaches constantly being made by selfishness can men live together in peace and good will.

To forgive, then, is to refuse to take the attitude of a foreman toward my fellow man, to refuse to be judge and injustice or may leave modern their duty, and, more, it is to take the attitude and play the part of a friend to them. It is to turn a deaf ear to the discussion of selfishness, self-love and self pride, and to have a larger consideration for the good of others and for the well-being of all than for any own prestige or personal advantage.

Forgiveness is the sweet smile with tenderness on the wrongdoer; it is the sweet word of love to the friend who. But it will mistake, it will denounce and it will punish even all in the name of the law, it will be dragging back the wanderer from love's way and bringing back to the mouth of getting even, of paying back in kind or of satisfying vengeance. It will by every means in its power to make even least the man who has degraded himself by injustice or meanness instead of trying to get even with him.

Forgiveness does not defeat justice; it puts another motive in the act. Justice is that process which teaches an man of the ways in a complex world in which one must reap as he sows, consequences must follow every wrong, reprisals lets justice take its way; it does not shield the willful criminal from the results of his acts, but it lets them fall on him only in the measure of enforcing the lesson of his action, and never in the measure of personal pleasure in retaliation.

The world is full of a spirit of revenge, this new law says. Love your neighbor, strive to do good to those who would do you ill, make friends of your enemies. Vengeance emphasizes and scale the vanity; forgiveness breaks down its battlements and makes friends out of those against whom it lifelong foes.

Forgiveness, in a word, is the antithesis of vanity; it substitutes helpfulness for hatred. It is altogether apart from the matter of forgiving the trespasser; it sometimes you can only help another effectually as you remember his past sins. But forgiveness takes the sting out of the memory; it remembers with love with growing charitable help. It does not overlook; it sees through and beyond the fault to the possibility of what the other may be with a little help and love.

Forgiveness is the attitude which says, I will not be at war with my own fellow-creatures, I will not be a foreman, I will fight, but I will fight the great and wrong along with them. When a man has fallen under temptation, even though I am thereby injured, I will not take the side of the law against Him, and so bring the kingdom of peace and good will to come among men.

FORGIVENESS.

By Henry F. Cope.

"Forgive us, as we forgive our debtors."—Matt. 6:12.

Forgiveness is the least understood of all the virtues. To many it means a willingness to see others forego vengeance; to others it means a process of defending the ends of justice; to some it means only an evidence of cowardly weakness. It is so easy to be merciful to those who have wronged others and also who have injured us when they are stronger than we are.

Forgiveness is the setting aside of our own selfishness and our own personal considerations in the attitude we take toward the wrongdoer. It is the refusal to take vengeance; it is the setting of one's self on the side of the offender in order that we may help him to recover from his transgression. It means one has found and not the enemy of the one who may have done on the wrong.

The great common prayer teaches us all to forgive just as we hope to be forgiven. This sounds a dark creed. If every act of enmity and hostility set up its eternally vindictive consequences, if every offense against the infinite affection set us forever at variance with the Most Holy, shut out from all possibility of return, or if the act of anger or greed made forgiveness impossible further friendship with the one injured.

Passion, greed, sneer, envy, selfishness in their many guises mount up in the wrong doer's life, and he is shut out of the mercy; it remembers with love with growing charitable help. It does not overlook; it sees through and beyond the fault to the possibility of what the other may be with a little help and love.

Forgiveness is the attitude which says, I will not be at war with my own fellow-creatures, I will not be a foreman, I will fight, but I will fight the great and wrong along with them. When a man has fallen under temptation, even though I am thereby injured, I will not take the side of the law against Him, and so bring the kingdom of peace and good will to come among men.

Paul's First Missionary Journey—Instead and Lesson—Acts 13: 26.

Golden Text: "All of the gods of the nations are idols: but the Lord made the heavens."—Psalm 96: 5.

"The length of this ministry in Iconium is unknown, as no rapid a journey it could be accomplished in a short time here, a by time. The Greeks who believed are probably Jewish proselytes; since they attended the synagogue service, the public ministry of the apostles in Iconium appears to have been confined to the synagogue. Thus the unbelieve Jews affected the minds of the Gentiles in not believing; not satisfied, as preachers perhaps usually are, to be silenced by a rival of another kingdom and another king than Christ (Ch. 10: 20, 21); or it may be that their ministry against idolatry was more to the purpose than that of the idolatrous Jews (Ch. 10: 20); or there may be some hidden reason for the Jesuits Catholic legend of St. Thecla. According to this story, she was converted by the apostle's preaching and refused to marry the Jew to whom her parents sulted in Paul's imprisonment and banishment."

Verse 4. "Multitude of the city was divided." The preaching of Jesus and the apostles was, as it were, the sword of Christ, by which he came to make division among men. Jesus was treated the same way. The solo multitude that cried "Hosanna in the house of David," cried "Crucify Him." Those who are seeking the kingdom of God are seeking a very uncertain and unsatisfactory thing. "Some believed and some disbelieved." This was doubtless the time when Paul was caught up into the third heaven and saw unutterable things, and at the same time received a thorn in the flesh, lest he should be exalted his "thorn in the flesh" he afterwards called his "thorn in the flesh."

Verse 5. "Assault." Insulation he was stoned. Though it might have been the case that he was stoned to death, he did so recorded in 11, Cor. 12.

Verse 6. "Confusing the souls of the disciples." Instead of confirming the disciples in the faith, he was the cause of the rise of confrontation in the Catholic and Rigorous Church, which ultimately doubled dates from this. The confrontation which Paul and Barnabas sought to confer with the church was the second difficulty of the Paul and Barnabas had to face.

Without taking into account patronages occupied by them, the Home Herald, Chicago, is laid out in 1,000 of the salary paid ministers in this country is 1,000. It is estimated that 30 per cent of the ministers are furnished parsonages, so that were this free house rent taken into consideration, the average salary would be somewhat increased.

Father Denis Hayes, pastor of a Catholic church in the Southwestern district of Chicago, has won wide fame for his charity, which has taught a lesson to boys and girls of his neighborhood to be by their kind and helpful.

Employees Take Profit-Sharing.

During the recent convention of the National Metal Trades Association at Chicago, A. T. Crane, head of the Chicago Crane Company, told of the profit-sharing plan which had been put in force with the employees of that company. He said that the net earnings after payment of interest at legal rates on the capital invested, are divided into two equal shares, one of which goes to the company as a reserve or dividends and the other being set aside for the employes. Some 300 employes have participated this plan as being satisfactorily.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and extreme bodily weakness. This medicine I would have to go to this hospital to be operated, but I found by think of it, I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash and I am cured after three months' use of them. Mrs. Williams, R. F. D. No 14, Box 35, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and nerve tonic to the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, kills pain, gives pert, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake, for those you love, give it a trial.

LIFE TERM TO BOYLE; WIFE GETS 25 YEARS

Woman Also is Fined $5,000 and Costs in the "Billy" Whitla Kidnaping Case.

BOTH PRISONERS COLLAPSE.

Husband and Spouse Are Carried Most of Way Back to Cells—She Weeps Violently in Jail.

In Mercer, Pa., Judge Williams on Monday sentenced James H. Boyle, convicted of kidnaping "Billy" Whitla, to imprisonment for life in the western penitentiary at Pittsburg. Mrs. Boyle, who was tried as Mary Doe, was sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $5,000 and costs of the prosecution. Boyle did not cause the scene in court which he had threatened and did not utter a word before being sentenced. His counsel, however, dropped the sentence for both Boyle and his wife. The law per said that such a course carried the extreme penalty for kidnaping in this State was ten years and in view of the fact that the law was passed after the crime was committed and that all care had been taken not to inflict unnecessary mental anguish upon the parents he felt leniency might be added with propriety. After Attorney Miller of counsel for the Boyles had completed his plea for mercy he called on his clients Judge Williams said that he had stood up and asked if they had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon him. Boyle said: "I have not." Mrs. Boyle and also his lawyer. Judge Williams then addressed the prisoners and said that the sentences imposed upon him. Boyle for the crime of which he had been convicted. Both Boyle and Mrs. Boyle then fell to the floor in a state of nervous prostration. Mrs. Boyle was violently when returned to her cell.

SEVEN DEAD, BATTLE TOLL.

Herold Sanborn, Chicago, Who Killed Girl, Was Totally Wounded.

Additional reports received at El Paso, Texas, of the recent riot at Sanborn ranch, near Vera Cruz, Mexico, are to the effect that seven persons were killed during the riot and that Harold Sanborn of Chicago, son of the proprietor of the La Junta estate, was dangerously wounded. Young Sanborn is held in jail, the charge against him being the killing of a 16-year-old girl, who, it is alleged, stabbed Sanborn's ranch manager, Vicente Espinoso, in the back. The killing of the girl took place in the general flight that followed.

Missing Boy Found Drowned.

The search which has been conducted by hundreds of people for several days for the two missing children of Michael Proch of Latrobe, Pa., resulted in the discovery of the body of Joseph the 7-year-old son, in a creek. The other boy is being searched for the girl who is also thought to have been drowned.

$7 ELMO AUTHOR DIES.

Augusta Evans Wilson, Well Known for Her Novels, Passes Away.

Augusta Evans Wilson, author of "St. Elmo" and many other novels, popular a generation ago, and still widely read in the South, died at her home in Mobile, Ala., Sunday as the result of an attack of heart failure. She was born in 1835 in Columbus, Ga. She was the daughter of Matt Ryan and Sarah Howard Evans, one of the oldest families in the South.

Ill Health Was Cause.

Ill health is also removed with her parents to Texas, then a frontier state. Soon after the Mexican war, her people located in Mobile, Ala. It was there that, in 1858, she married Colonel L. M. Wilson. The marriage was a very happy one, and, although they had no children, they were known among their friends as the "lover couple" until Colonel Wilson's death in October, 1891.

It was in 1855 that her first novel, "Inez, a Tale of the Alamo," appeared. It met with only moderate success, however, and it was not until her fourth or four years later, was instant appreciation and she soon became recognized as one of the leading writers of the romantic and intensely emotional school. It was this book which gave to column "Macaria," which she sent to a Charleston, S. C., publisher, who only rejected it under the laws of the "Confederate States of America." The book was published, however, brown book all that the printer could obtain, and soon after it left the press the entire edition was confiscated by a federal officer. A blockade runner, however, succeeded in getting it through to Havana Cuba, whence it later was taken to Paris, where it was translated. The book met with heavy sales immediately.

In "St. Elmo," the most popular, most criticised and most widely read of Mrs. Wilson's novels, published in 1866, and it is still one of the "six best sellers." The author's first work, "Beulah," followed quickly and in 1857, Mrs. Wilson published "At the Mercy of Tiberius," which was considered by her a consentatial evidence as a lesson of her literary ability. Her last book, "Devota," appeared above a year ago.

REPORT SHIP LOST WITH 21.

Work of Congress

The tariff bill was again taken up by the Senate Wednesday for the consideration of committee amendments that were passed over upon the first reading of the bill, after it had been practically laid aside for ten days while decisions have been making sweeping changes in the measure as a whole. Small progress was made in the consideration of the measure, only eight pages being considered before adjournment. There was much debate on the various amendments that were acted on. Senator Bulkeley concluded his speech begun the previous day.

Little progress was made in the consideration of the tariff bill in the Senate Thursday, the bulk of the time being under discussion Senator Hitchcock made a strong fight against increases in the rates of the schedules over the Dingley provided in the House on the ground that such increases would unnecessarily increase the cost of paint, which the farmers are extensively. During the discussion Senators Beveridge and Lodge engaged in a sharp colloquy during which Mr. Gallinger accused the Indiana Senator of "deliberately misrepresenting" the Senate committee. Mr. Beveridge said the Senate committee had adopted the Dingley rates in the tariff bill in the place of the lower rates fixed by the House of Representatives, was the Indiana Senator's statement. Mr. Gallinger denied that Mr. Beveridge's statement was correct and declared that the committee had reduced the rates in the schedules over the Dingley provided in the House on the ground that such increases would unnecessarily increase the cost of paint, which the farmers are extensively. Grand Traverse bay is lower than for many years. Several docks that have been rendered useless by the water receding.

Probate Judge Fred S. Lamb of Cadillac has been appointed to succeed Judge Chittenden of the Wexford-Kalkaska circuit court.

They run it in some people at Petoskey. One saloonist just got out of business by local option, has five cases against him in the circuit court for violating the liquor laws.

It has been decided at Traverse City to hold no fair this year, the fact that no acceptable permanent location could be secured being the situation that caused this decision.

The Petoskey Evening News says that a doctor of that city was called to Conway Saturday night to attend a man who had received a broken leg while being initiated into a secret society.

East Jordan Enterprise: Prof. J. B. Allen arrived Tuesday from his winter home in Georgia. Prof. Allen is looking particularly well this spring, and notwithstanding the fact that he was in a railroad wreck on the moonlight down near the Georgia line, he stood the fatigue of the long journey very nicely.

Reports from Boyne City convey the news that the Beulah Home has recently acquired a plant for the manufacture of "cocoa meat," and have also secured the patent right to its manufacture. The report states that the new cereal will be placed on the market about June 1 and will be known as Swift's Cocoa Cereal.

Boyne Journal: Game Warden Smith of Traverse City, Game Warden Smith of Petoskey and several other game wardens in this part of the state, assisted by Supervisor Ford of Boyne Falls, were in the city yesterday and went out to the lake, and with the use of seine nets secured about 50 big pickerel, weighing between 4 and 8 pounds, and helped them up the fish ladder at the dam. They expect to seine about 500 of these game fish and put them into the pond which will make most excellent fishing at the dam.

Petoskey Record: A gathering of the hosts of the Knights of Columbus from this and other sections is to take place Tuesday, May 26, in this city, and the carrying out of present plans will easily eclipse any and all former efforts of this kind in Petoskey. All towns in this part of the state and Grand Rapids and other towns in that section, will be represented in the celebration. Those delegates will be brought here by special trains on both roads and from both north and south. The main object of this big celebration is to initiate a class of over 40 candidates into the mysteries of the order and this will be done in grand style.

Traverse City Herald: While the time for the outing on the proposition to make Grand Traverse county in the dry column in the state of Michigan—and driving the saloon and and breweries out of the state if need be—is all, the workers for the movement have signified that they do not intend to wait idaps before beginning their campaign of education, which they hope will result in victory. They will hold a series of meetings in this city and several places in the near vicinity, as the entering wedge to their efforts. Each of these meeting are to be addressed by people who have become established in the work and under the auspices of the organization known as the Anti-Saloon league.

The Greatest Mistake of All.

In formulating laws to regulate commercial fishing the legislature has never yet failed to make mistakes, but the last mistake is the greatest of all.

The Ming fisheries bill only awaits the governor's signature to become a law. If the U. S. Fish Commission means what it says, and it must be assumed that it does, the law will abolish artificial propagation in Michigan waters.

At first blush it would seem that the causes which brought about this action are based upon a desire to equalize the benefits which fall to the fishermen through the gathering of spawn during the close season. There have been many heartburnings and very much severe criticism. That some fishermen should be favored while others are excluded seems, at first view, to be unfair. But there is another side to the question.

The system operated by the government has for its purpose the perpetuity and growth of the fisheries industries. This being true, the benefit accrues to all the fishermen. The close season, the one wise legislative measure, has the same purpose in view. The two taken together were effective and beneficial, as experience and scientific investigation has proven. And so the Ming law is narrow and unwise, in that it considers the financial benefit of an uncertain number of fishermen during the period of a month at the ultimate expense of all the fishermen.

If superintendent Clark has discriminated in the employment of fishermen in his work it is because such discrimination was unavoidable. The reasons for this were fully explained in an article in our last issue. The plan provided for in the Ming bill is impractical and will never be put in operation, for the government commission will not receive spawn so gathered and handled. The outcome will be that the close season will be a close season in fact, and it will be a close season for every fisherman on Michigan waters.

If government propagation ceases, the effect will not be noticeable at once, but in after years it will be felt and the fishermen will be the sufferers. Therefore we regard the act as legislation for the few against the many, and the most damaging blow that the fisheries industries have ever received.

Traverse City Eagle: The firm of Smith & Hall is constructing a logging railroad in North Manistee island, which it is expected will be finished by June 15, at the latest, and which may be finished by the first. The road will be five miles in length and 35 pound steel rails will be laid. The equipment will consist of 12 flush-well logging cars and 25 ton Shea engine. All the material, aggregating 20 car loads, was assembled in Muskegon and carried to the island on the steamer Greenwood. This was considered a rather risky stroke at this time of the year, owing to the wet winds, and logging on the west side of the island, where the Smith & Hull holdings are located. The road will be used to carry 6,000 feet of logs to the mill daily and for forwarding lumber to the dock for shipment. The road runs right up into the woods and the longest haul is three or four miles. There are also several branches. There is lumber for a six years' run.

Her Beautiful Rival.

By LUCY MEDFORD.

Copyrighted 1905, by Associated Literary Press.

"You got awfully embarrassed today, Jim," said Jim Carpenter's nice little wife as she handed him his cup.

"I guess I have. My hat blew off just before quitting time, and I wouldn't come down from the rocks for it. He leaned back in his chair comfortably. "Mrs. Holman has company" he announced.

"Has she? Who?" Nan looked eager.

"You can't guess." He was teasing her.

"No, I can't. I'm not good at guessing. Tell me, do!"

"Well, it's Mrs. Abner McClure."

Nan sank back in her chair.

"You mean Molly Stewart?" she asked.

Jim nodded.

"When did she come?" Her voice had changed.

"This morning. She brought a trunk, so I judge she is going to stay quite a spell."

Nan caught her breath and looked at her husband, eating his supper and apparently all unconscious of the stir which he had suddenly roused in her heart. Long ago, very long ago in the days when she had only loved Jim and never expected to be his wife, Molly Stewart had been her confidante.

She was a rare beauty, one of those to whom Nature has given much and given multi n seeds she can add not one tither more. And she had wrapt. No other girl could efform as she could, or dance or sing or laugh.

She had never known what came between Jim and Molly. He said he had not asked Molly to marry him, and she had blushed that he had said that she would have none of him.

Nan remembered the first time he walked home with her from church and how the people stared. She was not pretty, like Molly, and she had with him. She had now been away seven years, and still people remembered and spoke of her young beauty, which had reached its transcendent point on her wedding day. Now of a sudden she had come back. The news oppressed Nan. She did not know why.

"I didn't tell you, did I, that Abner McClure's dead?" Jim asked later in the evening.

"No, he isn't" Nan returned in what she tried to make a careless tone. Then she rose and went into the back room for something.

A little while afterward he said: "You needn't put on my buckskin for me tomorrow. I'm going to cut it Hollman's. There's some rather fine flies I promised to look at long ago, and I guess I'll do it tomorrow."

The hot day subsided itself into a hot night. Jim slept heavily, but Nan could not. She lay looking out of the window at a certain star which struggled vainly to free itself from a cloud of cloud in which it had become entangled. Varied and very bitter were her thoughts.

Molly had been such a widow, Nan could see her in her black dingle, with her vivid face and coppery hair. It was said Abner McClure had money, and Molly always would dress well anyway.

Jim had heard of what a beautiful widow may do, and tomorrow Jim, her Jim, was going back to Hollman's, straight into the old net that had entangled him. She clinched her hands in the darkness and prayed.

Toward morning she fell asleep. At the sound of her husband's rising she woke at an hour.

"I let you sleep as long as I could," he said. "Don't fuss over the breakfast. Just make me a cup of coffee and give me some bread and butter. I'm in a hurry today, dear."

Nan got breakfast. She did not eat any herself. She kissed Jim passively at the door.

"What's the matter? Aren't you feeling well this morning, Nan?" he asked anxiously.

Nan watched him up the hill. Then she lay down on the lounge and had her cry out. Now came. She made some tea and drank it. It relaxed her so wonderfully. Indeed, she felt almost feverish. It came to her that she would not endure it a moment longer. Jim was there, and he was her husband. She would go there too.

After some a breeze sprang up which relieved the hot day. Nan dressed carefully in a white lawn with pinkish spots, a dress her husband admired. She loosened her hair about her face and let it drop a little lower toward the usual place of her neck.

She felt that she was girding herself for battle, and she meant to have a weak spot in her armor. Then she locked the door, called Shep to follow her and, raising her umbrella above her hate head, set forth.

The walk put heart into her. She felt ready for anything as she crossed the one field before the Hollman house.

Mrs. Holman greeted her with a kiss.

"Why, Nan, how do you do? I'm right glad to see you. I suppose you know Molly McClure's here? Jim told you? Yes. Well, sit right down in this chair. Well sing on the veranda for it's cooler than in the house." She stopped to the door. "Molly" she called. "She'll be down in a minute, she's gone through dressing." she said, coming back to Nan. "How when you look in that dress! You're one of the few women I ever knew who could wear pink and keep their complexion in it."

That did Nan good. She was cool and her heart had steadied down when a great rustling of skirts on the stairs announced Mrs. McClure. Nan rose to meet her.

"Why, Nan Farrell—Nan Lanneston, I should say!" Molly spoke, embracing her ceremoniously. "I am perfectly delighted to see you!"

She held Nan off and looked at her. "THEY AS MUCH IN LOVE WITH YOU AS EVER, DO YOU?"

ent Molly's good clothes or Molly's way of wearing them. She was just a sweet, dimply looking girl, with a heart capable of love and sacrifice. Jim had always been her first, her boy. When he turned from Molly Stewart to her she could not understand it.

Molly had married Abner McClure for his money, and her heart had ment her doubts, her long fear, her jealousy. Here was life like a pinch of thistledown in a strong breeze. She found herself sitting in her chair again with Molly beside her talking volubly. It was all over.

"You haven't changed a bit, Nan," Molly was saying. "I asked Jim if you had yesterday, and he wouldn't say. He said I should judge for myself. What have you done to keep your complexion like that, and your figure?"

Nan laughed. She could laugh now. Molly's young glory had faded sadly, the wonderful hair was thin and dull, her cheeks coarse; her teeth had undoubtedly been restored; her double chin rested on her full bosom, and she wheezed as she talked.

Presently Jim came strolling up with Mr. Holman. From after he waved his hand toward his wife.

"Just as much in love with you as ever, I bet!" he laughed, and, seeing that she disarranged her handsome skirt carefully, so as best to display its cut and make, but Nan did not notice. She was thinking of Jim. Molly had been in illusion, and the illusion was dispelled.

Missed His Own Play.

Baron de Freslly, who figured prominently in France during the days of "the terror," must surely have been the only author who ever missed his own play. This was entitled "Les Trois Tonneaux" and was produced at the Vaudeville theater, Paris.

"Before half of the first scene had been played I said to myself, 'Oh, but this is execrable!' The public was of the same opinion and while my friends kept applauding, hissed with all my strength. I rushed by heartily hissing myself, for the further the play proceeded the more convinced I was that it was a great failure.

"On leaving the theater a friend who was in the secret of the author slipped hold to me. 'What a piece of extraordinary, what a wretched farce!' 'Detestable,' I replied, and whatever he said I went one better. 'It is said to be by Comte de Sirgur,' he continued. 'No,' replied I, it was written by me.' The poor man swallowed his amazement."—From "Baron de Freslly's Reminiscences."

A Peasant Boy Philosopher.

Very remarkable was the boyhood of the celebrated James Ferguson, who was born at Keith, in Banffshire, Scotland, in 1710. His father, who was a day laborer, taught him to read and write and sent him to school for three months at Keith. At the age of eight he constructed a clock of wood that kept remarkably good time and afterward made a wooden watch with a wheelwork string. He began to earn his first money by cleaning and mending clocks in the neighborhood. His astronomical pursuits commenced soon afterward, his father having sent him to a neighboring farmer, who employed him in watching his sheep. While thus occupied he amused himself at night by watching the stars and during the day in making models. In 1747 he published his book on the phenomena of the harvest moon, and this was followed by other astronomical works. His books received the approval of the Royal society, before which he frequently appeared.

PEACE CHAMPIONS IN SESSION AT CHICAGO

PRESIDENT TAFT SENDS LETTER

Leaders from All the States and European Nations Voice Cry to the World.

The second national peace congress was opened formally in Chicago for a three days' session. Orchestra Hall was well filled with delegates. Robert Treat Paine, of Boston, president of the American Peace Society, was in the chair.

Addresses of welcome were made by Governor Charles S. Deneen and Mayor Fred A. Busse, of Chicago. The Rev. A. Eugene Bartlett, chairman of the reception committee, welcomed the delegates to the work of the congress, and told them of the arrangements had been made for their comfort and convenience.

In his address of welcome Dr. Bartlett said: "To a congress must be more than a specmodic expression of protest against war, and a resolution that disarmament would be desirable. It should inaugurate a still more effective campaign of education of the people in the interests of permanent, world-wide peace. The burdens of war are borne by the common people, in the end the verdict of War or peace must rest with the rank and file of the people."

President Taft in his letter applauded the purpose of the conference and said:

"The United States has contributed much to the cause of peace by assisting countries weak in respect to their national government so as to strength in them the cause of law and order. This relationship of guardian and ward as between nations and countries, is my judgment, long along the cause of international peace and indicates progress in civilization. The policy of the United States in avoiding war under all circumstances is not those plainly inconsistent with honor or its highest welfare has been made so clear to the world as hardly to need statement at my hands. I can only say that as far as my legitimate influence extends while at the head of this government it will always be exerted to the full in favor of peace, not only as between this country and other countries, but as between our sister nations."

Exercises of many kinds were held in the city Sunday as a preliminary to the opening session. Special peace services were held in all of the churches in the morning. In the afternoon there was a labor demonstration and the Socialists held several meetings. In the evening a big mass meeting was held under the auspices of the Sunday Evening Club, at which Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell, discussed taxation and Sir Frederick Schurman predicted that there would soon come from the property classes in the countries a demand that usage be so found to reduce the cost of defense and preparations for war.

ALIMONY FIRM TO AID EX-WIVES

Omaha Agency Volunteers to Trail Neglectful Husbands.

A unique collection agency, with the sole purpose of collecting alimony for divorced women former husbands have failed to live up to the obligations imposed on them by the court, has been formed in Omaha, the business, according to the men in charge, has already an extensive clientele. 5 GUILTY IN BUCKET-SHOP CASE

Cincinnati Court Convicted by Jury of Using the Mails to Defraud.

The jury in the case of Louis W. Foster and five others, who were charged with using the mails to defraud in conducting a so-called "bucket shop," returned a verdict of guilty in the United States District Court in Cincinnati Friday. The men found guilty are Louis W. Foster, John Gorman, W. J. Campbell, A. C. Baldwin, John M. Scott and Edwin P. Hall. The penalty is a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000, eighteen months in the penitentiary, or both.

William I. O'Dell, who died in Cincinnati several years ago, left an estate estimated at $2,000,000, his assassin of his fortune by running a bucket shop on a larger scale than ever before known in this country, having branches in all the principal cities and towns in the West and South. At his death the defendants found guilty Friday continued the O'Dell Brokerage Company. Gorman, Baldwin, Scott and Hall were formerly telegraph operators in the employ of O'Dell. William Dudley, telegraph operator, and Attorney Thomas Shay, both of whom are dead, were interested in the business. Other prominent men are credited with having cleaned up $1,000,000, some of which, however, Gorman and Dudley and Shay retained.

The result is a great victory for the government, which contended the defendants did not even play the game, but used the mails only for the wires and fast wires to Chicago and New York from advantage of the market quotations and closed out traders with their customers to the best advantages to the defendants.

TAFT RAPS PORTO RICO

"GENEROSITY IS FORGOTTEN."

Special Message to Congress Urges Change in Foraker Act—Holds Politicians Irresponsible.

President Taft sent to Congress a special message recommending legislation at the present extra session, for the relief of the island. Under which Porto Rico is governed. The President directs attention to "a situation of unusual gravity," the result of the failure of the legislative assembly of Porto Rico to pass the usual appropriation bills, leaving the island without support after June 30.

Porto Ricans have forgotten the generosity of the United States, the President says, in the desire of certain of their political leaders for power, and have allowed the delusion indulged that the United States has come into the island to exploit the resources of the Porto Ricans. Mr. Taft concludes that the undoing power of generosity should be taken from "those who have shown themselves too irresponsible to use it."

The President suggests to Congress the wisdom of submitting the separation committees the question, of modifying some of the provisions of the Foraker act which, in the executive jurisdictions of the executive council and the legislative assembly, on no action of this kind, he says, should be taken unless, if it makes no difference whether the husband was neglectful to pay the $10 or $15 in small monthly installments—the firm undertakes the collection of both. The agency will be run by men who have had experience in the collection of ordinary debts and they anticipate no trouble.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

On account of the decision upholding the constitutionality of the Oregon minimum wage law, affecting a company from which it has orders for 1,000,000 feet of lumber in one year, the New York Life Insurance Company has ordered 1,000,000 31 sheets 1,000 of its agents. This step is taken in the interest of the insured, as of some of the foreign agencies, but an effort will be made to have the law repealed.

Sidney the insurance department of the State of New York has ordered a reduction of the rates of insurance companies from 40 to 30 per cent. Senator M. L. Fossum, Minneapolis, offered a resolution in the legislature under which companies from Iowa will not be granted licenses if the insurance rate is further reduced. The bill applies to all States which make regulations that would exclude Minnesota companies.

Ally an order of the interior department, 3,000,000 acres of land in the counties along the eastern border of Wyoming are to be thrown open at once to homesteaders, who will be allowed to take either 160 or 320 acres. The land cannot be irrigated and will be of use, therefore, for dry farming only. Those who take the full 320 acres entries must make an attempt to cultivate the land while those who go in on the smaller entries will not be compelled by the law to do so.

The business life of London was all but paralyzed by the action of the government store of the American merchant, Marshall Field of Chicago, who has lately advertised his intention of showing the Londoners how business should be done in that line. Immense throngs of people visited the big store on the day it was formally offered, but at the same time the leading London merchants have accepted the challenge by inserting big advertisements in the papers and also flooding crowds Hilberto their had not used the daily papers extensively.

The Security State Bank, of Braintree, Minn., which was closed down about a year ago, has been ordered to pay about $20,000 of the paper indorsed by Walter Jones, of Lindy, N. Jones, who failed, has reopened for business, an announcement to 100 per cents dividend is paid.

Senator F. E. Putnam's bill, which commits the Legislature to the policy of establishing and maintaining an agricultural department in one high school in each county in Minnesota, was passed by the Senate with only two dissenting votes. The bill carries an appropriation of $100,000 to cover the first two years of the work.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

A cheering attitude is seen to be pervading current operations in trade generally, and conditions have become distinctly encouraging as to the immediate outlook. The important developments include the stimulus which comes from seasonable weather and the opportunity to advance industrial and farming activities, together with a readjustment of labor controversies which threatened considerable loss.

A significant feature which foreshadows increased production at the mills and factories appears in more numerous demands for forcing output, quick shapes and equipment. A tendency toward rising prices for supplies characteristics from textiles, silver metals and leather.

Important May settlements at the banks and board of trade were promptly liquidated and the demand strengthened for money, although the discount rate for choice commercial paper was unchanged.

Prices for the guiding broadcasts stand at the highest average for the season, and the prospects in farmers induce larger expenditures for implements, materials and improvements. Forwardings from Chicago have broken of its opportunities. We dare affirm that in no party in this country has ever had and last so great an opportunity as the Democratic party had and lost exceptional deliveries of quarry products, plumbing supplies and architectural. Another working trades obtain satisfactory contracts, especially for footwear and the market for hides is firmer. Cleveland. The issue was there, plain and unmistakable, it was the issue of tariff reform at last played into the party's hands—had compensated its rule wandering in the wilderness for a quarter of the President Land. But the Democratic leaders have let go that with the situation. They waved aside a great political verity and reasons of a superficial opportunist tactics of the recent past.

Up to 1896 the Democratic party had at least had the original and exclusive proprietorship of its catchword de vices. But in that year it even lost this peculiar vantage. The result was that it joined the part of the revolutionising bird that hatches out the cuckoo's eggs.

Mr. Bryan's readers may start their weeklies, Mr. Mack may start his monthly, and Champ Clark may open lease an annual, but the Democratic party will not get the issue from the enterprises. Let the party once awake to its opportunities and cease to neglect them—seize on the issue, and, lay bored political principles instead of the fanciful and fantastic ones, and the only Democratic weeklies, monthlies and annuals, and Democratic orators, lies, will have a message to deliver that will be world wide, and they and the party will go forth together.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Prosperity Noise.

The hour of prosperity is prosperity several degrees nearer. The last fortnightly report shows that 21,355 freight cars which had been standing on the side tracks had been put into service. There is still left something more than 200,000 cars lacking cargoes, but this is not considered a discouraging number. The feeling of depression are added the quiet time that ordinarily prevail at this season. The big point is that traffic conditions have so improved that in nearly 22,000 cars can be called into commission in the course of two weeks.

The mills have been kept a great number of coal cars empty, yet 1,000 more were transported from the mines to the active mills. The Pittsburg district alone has —A petition has been filed with the board of public works to sewer Dixon avenue.

Additional Locals.

—The regular meeting of the W. R. C. was held May 13th, at which arrangements are made for Memorial Day exercises, which will be published later. Refreshments were served by a volunteer squad, which was a surprise. It was a very enjoyable session. The corps now has forty members in good standing and is in a very prosperous condition. All honor to the ladies of the W. R. C.

—Matthew Pressla, a fireman on the fishing tug G. H. Green, was lost overboard from that tug last Friday morning about two hours run from this port. The Green was bound out for the fishing grounds in comparatively smooth water. Capt. Harris noticed Pressla walking along the rail going aft, the deck between the rail and the engine room being filled with coal. Then he was seen to lose his balance and fall overboard. The boat was stopped and backed immediately, and a life preserver thrown, but he could not be rescued before he went down. Pressla hailed from Stevens Point, Wis. He was 39 years old and unmarried.

—The mass meeting called for last Friday met in the Congregational church according to previous announcement. The object of the meeting was to consider the desirability of securing Rest & Recreation Rooms in our city. It was voted that it was the sense of the meeting that an effort should be made to this end, and a committee was appointed to organize and incorporate a company that should have control of the movement. Dr. A. J. Wilkinson, Mr. Kurz, Mr. Stacey, Mrs. S. J. Allcox, Mrs. H. C. Cooper, Mrs. P. D. Campbell and Mrs. H. A. Putnam were selected as that committee with the power to appoint their own chairman and sub committees.

—Only about three weeks has elapsed since the saloons went out of business, and we have not heard a complaint from a business man of the local business depression that was predicted by the "wets," but on the contrary we have the opinion of at least two merchants that trade has improved. Conditions thus far have certainly strengthened the local option cause, and the opinion is freely expressed that county prohibition has come to stay. Money is slowly but surely being diverted into legitimate channels, and the very atmosphere seems clearer and more healthful. There are several instances of former steady drinkers expressing satisfaction with the new order of things.

—The Ming fish bill, regulating net fishing on the great lakes, which had already been passed by the senate, passed the house without opposition. It was amended so that the nets in use at present may continue in use until 1912 instead of 1910, and the minimum size of whitefish was fixed at one and a half pounds. A particular point in the bill which its sponsors claim is of great importance is that it prohibits government agents authorizing fishermen to catch lake fish in the closed season except under conditions which will prevent favored fishermen having an advantage over other fishermen around the lakes. The bill has been backed by both the game warden's department and the smaller commercial fishermen.

—Capt. Bright, of the steamship Missouri, is hopping mad, and so are the good citizens of Charlevoix, over a report that was recently printed in several Northern Michigan papers to the effect that the Missouri lately got stuck on "a bar" at the mouth of Charlevoix harbor and was detained "several hours." The account went so far as to state that she finally had to back out, dredging her way as she went. The report, from beginning to end, is a slanderous falsehood. The Missouri has never been stuck on a bar at Charlevoix, because there is no bar. She has never backed out of this harbor since she was built. The man who started that tool report either did it maliciously or it was fool to some regular at a joke.

—Cadillac News: If one get real thirsty for a drink of beer or would like a bottle of sparkling champagne with his dinner, and cannot get it in Cadillac, and it is presumed of course one cannot, one has but to get on a railroad train and he can drive to his stomach's content. The menu cards on the diners have been carrying this hint at the bottom of the card: "No liquor served on this car in the counties of so and so." Now the word "not" has been erased and an inquiry of the porter brings the answer from him with a wink and a face-wide grin: "We have found that we can serve liquor to our guests in every dry county whenever the train is in motion, see, sah!" No one has yet undertaken to prove whether the national companies are acting within their rights in the matter but that all kinds of drinks are now being served on trains through dry counties is a fact.

—In an opinion just handed down the supreme court holds that in the absence of anything in the record impeaching the regularity of the proceedings of the board, or the accuracy of its canvass of the votes before it, that its determination must be considered final. The case is that of the Hasbnie Brewing company of Jackson against the supervisors of that county. Incidentally, it destroys the last ray of hope the "wets" may have had to reclaim the county, until the next election at least. Irregularities were charged in several of the townships in the county, but the irregularities were evidently of a technical nature and, in the opinion of the board, did not materially affect the election results. The supreme court holds that its report, as made by the canvassing board, must be taken as final. In this respect the opinion is along the same line as decisions in other local option cases which have been up for attention within the last several months.

Important Changes Affecting Equipment of Boats.

Many important changes affecting regulations and equipment of boats on the lakes have been made by the board of supervising inspectors. The new rules have not recently been issued by the board.

One new regulation, in regard to fire buckets says that only six buckets can be kept on the upper or boat deck. There are boats on the lakes, particularly passenger boats, that have as high as 20 buckets on these decks. The new rules had been made with a view to distributing the buckets about the boat.

Safety of the crew and passengers sleeping below decks on all steamers over 100 gross tons is provided in an amendment which requires all such quarters to be equipped with a bell to be operated from the bridge or pilot house.

An important rule in regard to infestation or use of abusive language has been adopted. Whenever any inspectors shall find any licensed officer on board a boat who is under the influence of liquor or any other intoxicant and unfit for duty, while on official duty, the inspector shall immediately revoke the license of the officer without further trial or investigation.

The Shakspeare Club.

The last gathering of the members of the Shakspeare Club was held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Paddock, on May 18th, on which occasion scenes from the "Merchant of Venice" were presented, by Mrs. Woodley as Shylock, Mrs. Fitch as Portia, Mrs. Idle as Nerissa, Mrs. Hampton as the Duke, Mrs. Crouter as Gratiano, Mrs. Crane as Bassanio and Mrs. Bridge as Antonio.

The characters were well chosen, and the actors pleased all by their interpretation of their parts. Mrs. Woodley, who is a "shaster member" and a most faithful one, was presented with a set of solid silver spoons, this being her last meeting with the club.

Dainty refreshments were served by the retiring committee, Mrs. Thisten, Mrs. Paddock and Mrs. Shanahan. A pleasant feature of the meeting was the presence of a former member, Mrs. Fred H. Hubbard, of St. Louis, Mich.

How to Prevent Tender Feet.

One woman boasts of not knowing what it is to have sore feet, and the secret of her success is very simple. She takes time once a week to cook her feet for almost an hour, and in this way she keeps them tender, but not too much so, and she has never known what it was to have a corn, bunion or other affliction. A small foot tub is filled with warm water in which there is a plentiful supply of melted white soap. She sits with her feet in the water and to keep the time from being too tedious reads a book. When the water begins to cool she realizes the soaking process is at an end. After drying the feet she attends to the nails and cuts them across merely clipping the nail corners, because rounded nails will eventually penetrate the flesh, and the turnout of narrowing nails is most severe. A plentiful amount of talcum powder is used, and this insures comfort. No stockings with seams are worn, the stocking fit snugly, and a shoe too large is considered as injurious as one too tight. At the first appearance of a corn it is never tampered with, but the spot is treated with turpentine, and ere long it disappears.

Grading a Rowbed.

It is simply extraordinary the lack of judgment shown by many who undertake to shape a roadbed. The road allowance in various states is sixty-six feet. In rounding up the roadbed the earth is sometimes moved toward the center from nearly the entire distance of the width of the road. This means that the ditches for carrying away the water are not distant from the fences that belong to the highway. The roadbed is entirely too wide. It cannot be sufficiently rounded toward the center, and as a result water does not run off with sufficient quickness. The temptation to spill roads by grading them thus is all the stronger since road graders have come into use. This result follows from the comparative quickness with which the earth can be moved by these machines. A distance of forty-two to forty-five feet between the outer edges of the ditches furnishes a roadbed sufficiently wide.

How to Utilize a Warmout Screen.

A dilapidated Japanese paper screen with a sound framework is easily made both useful and ornamental again. It may be covered with any artistic wall paper, but a good plan is to paste sheets of brown paper over the old paper and then to cut little slits in the covering at angles, so that the screen may now be used as a sort of album for picture postcards and Christmas cards. To facilitate the adornment of the screen lay it on the ground and arrange the postcards on each panel, marking the corners where the slits are to be cut with a pencil. As the postcards are easily slipped in and out of the brown paper, they can be changed from time to time, and so the appearance of the screen may be varied.

How to Relieve Minor Ills.

A tablespoonful of glycerin in a wineglassful of hot milk will often relieve a severe coughing spell.

Fresh lemon juice when injected into the nostrils has been successful in arresting bleeding.

Pepsin would serve yet spongy gums if they made it a rule to rinse the mouth daily with some innocent antiseptic. Common table salt dissolved in water will serve.

For earache a few drops of warm glycerin poured into the ear soothe and heal and equal parts of belladonna and glycerin mixed and rubbed round the ear will soothe the pain if severe.

How to Dry a Sweater.

Try drying the sweater on a coat hanger and one shoe will fit will keep its shape. If it is pinned to the line or hung over a chair, no matter how careful one may be, it is sure to be pulled out of shape in some place or other.

—Cummings, the talented blind violinist and singer will give a concert at the Congregational church Friday evening of this week. Admission 25 and 15 cents.

—Ward Bennett, of the Charlevoix life saving crew, has exchanged his Mason street property for the Chamberlain house and lot on Park Avenue. Mr. Bennett will be remembered as the recipient of the $1,000 life-saving medal some time ago.

—Governor Fitzgerald, who is a native of the Stirling states that the flag staff of the Northern Michigan hotel, the Stirling, would make her first trip June 15, taking the Michigan and Indiana coal dealers to the Soo, where they meet in convention.

—The new $10,000 mortgage built by Alex Cameron for Robert Sim, on the Chicago Heutel grounds, will be ready for occupancy some time in June. This, with the McIlvaine cottage, built by Glamford, on the same ground, are the two best cottages on the splendid grounds.

—The A. Booth & Co. wholesale fish concern went out of existence last week, the Booth Fisheries Co., a Delaware corporation, having bought all the property and assets of the old concern. The business will be conducted along the same lines as formerly, in the same territory, which is pretty much everywhere in the United States and Canada. Mr. Olof Nordrum will continue as the Northern Michigan manager.

—By act of the legislature, the fish laws will be changed considerably next year, the bass season opening on June 15 and the trout season on May 1. The closed season on black bass will be from February 1 to June 15, as was urged by the sportsmen of the state, is being urged, that the bass were still on their beds May 20 and that to take them was the slaughtering setting beds. This local law was passed back to the old season, from May 1 to September 1. While many thought that the season ought to be fixed May 15 to September 15, as the change is a great improvement over the present law.

Memorial Day and Base Ball

Memorial Day comes on Sunday this year, and there will be no base ball or foot-ball on that day, but it will be game it is Sunday and not because it is Memorial Day. It is indeed gratifying that the calendar should occasionally favor decency, that the thought suggests the question: Was the day set apart for what its name implies, or was it intended to be a day of hilarity and bunkoing?

We entertain the well grounded belief that the day was created for an expression of the tenderest and holiest of human emotions. Originally conceived as a day for honoring the memory of those who gave their lives to their country, its observance has, naturally and wisely, been broadened to a scope that knows no discrimination in cherished memories.

The memory of the soldier whose body lies under the sward awakens our patriotic emotions, and well it may. We glory in his achievements and give expression to our devotion to the cause for which he died; but when the encomiums are spoken and the salute is fired, we turn to the graves of those of whom the bones have been bereft long, long since the first volley was fired over the soldier's grave, and our tears fall upon the fragrant tributes of affectionate remembrance which we tenderly place upon the sanctified sod.

Memory—hence Memorial Day, memory of the loved ones whose lives once brightened our homes and cheered our hearts, lures us to the "silent city" on this yearly recurring day. Hallowed memory! Memory! Why should not the day be to us a day of sacred, loving memory?

But the virus of holiday revelry has been inoculated into the solemnity of Memorial Day observance. Frivolity has invaded the sanctuary. While the mother is weeping by the tombstone, the harsh notes of sportive turbulence grate upon her ear. Sorrow and revelry are not akin, and sorrow is the more pronounced emotion that created and sanctified the day.

We deplore the latter-day tendency to prostitute this day of tender and holy remembrance to boisterous pleasure. We consider it little less than sacrilege. Base ball, foot ball and foot races are as much out of place on Memorial Day as billiards are in the sacristy.

But they gave the Savior vinegar to drink as he hung upon the cross.

The Old Settlers

The annual meeting of the Old Settlers' association of the Grand Traverse region will be held in Traverse City on June 9. This promises to be one of the best meetings ever held by this organization, which has been in existence about 25 years.

In connection with the meeting of the old settlers, W. S. Anderson, of Traverse City for the past many years historian of the organization, has been hunting for records of some of the old settlers who have passed away, by a fortunate circumstance he located a ledger which contains the biography of many of the oldest inhabitants of this region, which has for the past 30 years been in the private library of the late Judge J. J. McLaughlin of Elk Rapids, and which had just come to light. This book will prove a most valuable addition to the records of the historian, whose intention is to continue where the work was left off by entering the biographies of the old settlers belonging to the association.

The book starts with the life of Abram S. Wadsworth, who came to this region in 1847, and continues until who has left any record whatever. When the book is completed it will contain a compilation which will be invaluable in years to come.

No Excuse This Year.

"Pshaw!" you don't says so, well if I had known it was going to be so good I would have gone, sorry I didn't it. We hear that everybody who attended the Bridge Street Opera House last season. Well, there is no excuse this year, we know it now and if we really want to see a good play, let us all put on our "glad rags" and go to the opera house. It will be a pleasant way to spend an evening and we know we will be entertained.

Base Ball Notes

Last Saturday the undefeated C. H. S. team played two out of town games and won both. The team drove to Petoskey in a bus and played the Petoskey High school team in the morning. The game lasted ten innings and Charlevoix won by a score of 5 to 6.

The afternoon game was played with Harbor Springs at Harbor Springs and was the best high school game played on the Northern Michigan. For eight innings there was not a score made and in the ninth Charlevoix got two and shut Harbor Spring out, leaving the score 2 to 0 in favor of Charlevoix.

A feature of the game was Holt's home runs from the out field cutting of a run when within two feet of the plate.

Next Saturday the Charlevoix High School team plays on the home grounds with the Boyne City High school. Charlevoix won from the team three games ago by a score of 9 to 2 so a good hot game is assured. The diamond on the high school athletic grounds is being attended and fixed, which will make it as good as any high school base ball diamond in Michigan. This will add in giving the people of Charlevoix a chance to see the best high school base ball teams they have ever seen, on Saturday May 29th. The game will be called at 2:30 and the C. H. S. 2nd team will play with the B. C. H. S. 2nd team at 1:00.

Rabbits and Red Squirrels.

The Harris game law has been passed by the house. Following are some of the bill's points.

Quail, fox, black and gray squirrel, protected until 1912. Fall duck season Oct. 1 to Dec. 31.

Spring duck season, March 15, to April 25.

Rabbits and red squirrels protected from March 15 to Oct. 1.

This is the first time rabbits were ever protected by a state wide law. The idea of protecting red squirrels will, perhaps, be give pause. As the game laws now read, the red squirrel may be killed at any time of the year, and the fact that they are protected by a state wide law will be a surprise to many who have been killing them for years.

MEMORIAL DAY

Although May 30th is Technically Memorial Day—Monday, May 31st Will Be Observed.

Memorial Day coming this year on Sunday, Baxter Post G. A. R., which has the arrangements in charge, has decided to observe Monday 31st. The students of the Charlevoix High School, through a committee, consisting of R. Hartsig, Lottie Cohen, L. Crane, Harold Hampton and Mary M. Dunlop, addressed the following communication to Commander Harrison Bersham:

"In recognition of the patriotic spirit, heroic service and self sacrifice displayed by the brave and courageous men who, for four long terrible years of bloody civil strife, fought and died for the perpetuity of the Union so that future posterity might dwell under a stainless and unfoundered flag, we the students of the Charlevoix High School do hereby freely offer our services to the members of the Charlevoix Baxter Post, No. 119 of the Grand Army of the Republic, in commemorating, on Memorial Day, May 31, 1909, the noble services performed by the boys in blue."

Commander Bersham promptly acknowledged the communication in the following terms:

"In behalf of Baxter Post G. A. R., I beg to acknowledge with many thanks the receipt of your patriotic communication of May 24th last, in which you freely offer your services to aid the members of this Post in commemorating Memorial Day."

The following is the program for memorial day exercises, to take place Monday May 31st, and in which all lodges, clubs, unions and societies are not only invited but earnestly urged to participate and by their aid encourage the spirit of patriotism in our little city.

The procession, under direction of Commander H. Bersham, will form on Bridge street at Maj. E. H. Green's office, and headed by the band, will move south to the cemetery when the following program will take place:

Grand opening chorus, combined schools
Invocation.....Rev. F. Dewey Bills
Address of welcome.....Chaplain of the day.

A few days after Evelyn Florid came home, Wheaton followed Harlan to his room one evening after dinner. Harlan had set his Bachelors' an example of white flannels for the warm weather, and Wheaton now had abolished his evening clothes. Harlan's mouth had not yet lost their severity, but he looked as pictured the statuettes, the books, the broad couch with its heap of varicolored pillows, the table with its candelabra, for which Harlan always had a quarrel with the janitor, these still had their mystery for Wheaton too.

"Going out tonight?" he asked with a sense of relief.

"Didn't thought of it," answered Harlan, who was curling the pages of a magazine.

"Don't let me interrupt if you're reading," said Wheaton. "But I thought some of dropping in on Mr. Porter's—Miss Porter's home now, I believe."

"That's a good idea," said Harlan, who was what Wheaton wanted. He threw his magazine at the coal scuttle and got up lazily.

The call had been successfully paid. Miss Porter was within, looking as pleasant does about them. Porter's heart was warm with the joy of Evelyn's home-coming. She had been away from home but if she was thinking for the first time the common experience of fathers, that her daughter, Evelyn, must have escaped suddenly and inexplicably from girlhood into womanhood and that the girl heart in her had not lost its preciousness in the transformation. He had carried off her little company charmingly. Porter was feeling very young and he felt young again in the presence of youth.

General Walpole had attached himself to one of the young people that were strolling here and there in the grounds. Porter and Mrs. Walpole had been alone when Wheaton was unconsciously watching Evelyn and Harlan as they walked up and down in front of the house, talking gaily, and Evelyn smiled at the engineer and looked up at her companion. Harlan's deliberateness contrasted oddly with the girl's lightness. Such a girl must carry a man wooing her along, and Harlan, he thought, was the fellow to do it, and for the first time the thought of losing her rose in the heart Harlan had sold it.

Evelyn and Saxton had met the elder one, who were coming up from the walks and, there was a rubbernecking at the house; it was too beautiful to go in, they said, and the sunset glow had outlined a great flood of moonlight poured over the grounds. A bonfire little up from the valley and made a soothing rustle in the trees.

Evelyn and Wheaton heard the sound of the piano through the open windows, and a girl's voice broke gaily into some "18th Hello. She does sing those coon songs wonderfully. Let us wait here an hour and hear them all." The sunspot opened from the dining room. They could see beyond it, into the drawing room; the singer was in plain view, sitting at the piano; Harlan stood facing her, keeping time with an imaginary baton.

A man came unobserved to the glass door of the porch and stood motionless peering in. He was very dirty and had stood himself in that abandon with which intoxicated men belie Newton's discovery. He had gained the last step with difficulty; the light from the window blinded him and for a moment he stood within the inclosure blinking. An ugly grin spread over his face as he made out the two figures by the window, and he began a laborious journey toward them. He tripped on a root, and this added further to his embarrassment, but the fig ures in the window were intent on the song and did not hear him. He drew slowly nearer; one more step and he would have concluded his journey, but he stood on his toes before taking it, for the law of gravitation now asserted itself. He lunged forward heavily, catching himself upon Wheaton, and nearly knocking him from his seat.

"Jimmy!" he blurted in a drunken voice. "Jimmy—"

Evelyn turned quickly and alarmed back with a cry. Wheaton was actively helping from the shock of his surprise. He grabbed the man by the arm as he began pouring him toward the door.

"Not in this house," he said over his shoulder to Evelyn, who had shrunk back against the wall. "I'll manage him."

"Don't let me interrupt if you're reading," said Wheaton. "But I thought some of dropping in on Mr. Porter's—Miss Porter's home now, I believe."

"That's a good idea," said Harlan, who was what Wheaton wanted. He threw his magazine at the coal scuttle and got up lazily.

The call had been successfully paid. Miss Porter was within, looking as pleasant does about them. Porter's heart was warm with the joy of Evelyn's home-coming. A FEW OBSERVATIONS

Political and Otherwise.—Prompted By a Review of Current Events

Legislatures are all alike,—that is, all Michigan legislatures. Neither party has a monopoly on wisdom or its opposite. We may talk about "Hawbucks" and "Sqaw-bucks," but it is a "horse spiece" when the gospel hymns are sung at the session's close. But the legislature of 1909 is supposed to have had a mentor who is endowed with wisdom. The state's chief magistrate was elected a third time in order that the law makers might have a guiding hand in traversing the thorny path of legislation. And it has been written by some of the astute Lansing correspondents that all of the chief magistrate's measures but one were moulded into law. We have no doubt of it. They did the best they knew how, and so did the chief magistrate. More's the pity. We do not think a Michigan legislature ever left behind it a record more at variance with sound principles of public good than the one that has just happily closed.

It is given out that Walter Wellman, the talented staff correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, has started out for another attempt to reach the north pole by the balloon route. There is but one greater four flusher in the United States than Wellman, and he lives in Michigan. His name is Warner. In Washington, where Wellman works when he is not taking Arctic excursions, he is laughed at. His much heralded start from Spitzenberg with an air ship a year ago was a most brazen fake. He had no air ship at Spitzenberg. But the circulation of the Record-Herald was inflated, and that is what Wellman is paid for. We speak by the card when we say that among true Artic explorers Wellman is considered a consumate bluffer.

Hysteria still has the tariff reformists in its grasp. It was said of the Bourbons that they never learned anything and never forgot anything. The difference between the Bourbons and the tariff tinkers is that the latter forget and never learn. The tariff question is a vital one. It involves to a greater degree the welfare of the republic than any other governmental policy. Talk as we may about "revision," it is only a question of tariff as per scribed in present schedules and low tariff. We have tried both, and the record is plainly written. President Harrison was wont to say that there was no good in building a tariff wall unless it was built high enough to be effective at high tide. The hysterical tariff-tinkers should read tariff history.

We suggest a substitute for government fish-spawn hatching, recently abolished by the legislature. Let the State start a canning establishment and produce caviare for the use of the members of the legislature. After the strenuous work done by the solons the past winter some delicacy of this nature is needed to restore lost vitality. Caviare is a most palatable dish, and it said to build up brain tissue as effectively as the flesh of the fish itself. Cavaii and musk-melon, with just a dash of pepper sauce and a thin slice of Warner's third-term cheese makes a very delectable lunch. Cheboyan papers please copy.

Substantial Success

The theatre goers of this town have been taken in so many times by extravagant advertising matter of various dramatic entertainments that they did not pay much attention to Mr. Cimaglia's announcement of "Eugene Moore in "My Boy, Jack" last season. Mr. Moore did not have a very good house and, it was a disappointment to the town for "My Boy, Jack" was the best play from every point of view, presented here for a long time. It was one of the substantial successes of last year and is of the main quality and class as "Peck's Bad Boy," "The Wolf"—"The Tiger and the Lamb"—"The Servant in the House" and "The Howl of the Wolf." Mr. Moore will return this year with "My Boy, Jack" and no doubt will be well compensated for the lack of attention last season. He will be here at the Charlevoix Theater June 5th.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

A forty-inch vein of coal has been struck on Ontwaya.

It is reported that an epidemic of some sort is prevalent among the horses near Williamsburg.

A 10 day reunion of the Latter Day Saints of central, western and northern Michigan will be held in Cadillac this summer.

As the result of heavy drinking the past winter Henry Donahue of Boyne City has been sent to an insane asylum.

Mrs. Martin J. Staley of Evelina township, near East Jordan, died last week, after a residence of thirty years in that place.

The Ann Arbor railroad will send Dingman Hinkhorst, a Hollander, to Holland to induce settlers to come to Northern Michigan.

The Journal of Boyne City knows of a man, whose belief that there is oil and coal in that locality is so strong that he will stake his last dollar in an attempt to find it.

Boyne Journal: Walloon Lake is becoming the leading resort of South ern Michigan and the beautiful lake ought to be for it is the finest place in the world for such a purpose. Every house and cottage about the lak. is eagerly taken each season and hundreds are turned away for lack of accomodations.

What is probably the longest walk ever taken by a woman since pioneer days is being planned by Mrs. Stella M. Champney, general reporter on the Traverse City Evening Record. In company with her 15-year-old son, Dea O. Champney, who is attending school at Oberlin, she will walk from Oberlin, O., to Traverse City, in June. The distance is more than 400 miles.

Recently the Traverse City asylum authorities shipped the eighteenth young bull sent out this season, to a breeder of Hersey, Mickigan. The animal was a yearling and brought $125, considered a moderate price for such stock. The 18 bulls shipped since the first of the year have netted $2,000, all of them being registered Holstein-Fresians. Average price, $110.

Traverse City Eagle: Lou Colman added considerably to his glory this morning when he pinned a rainbow trout which tipped the beam at eight one-half pounds and is 27 inches long. The monster bit a muddler on the end of a small line, and was landed after many minutes of angling. Lou brought the big fellow to the gangway alive, and put him in a tub with running water, where many people saw him today.

Kalkaska Leader: At a recent meeting of the village council a license bond with the necessary sureties was presented. On motion the same laid on the table. This move evidently means that the local option law is to be tested in the courts, but on what grounds we have not learned. Ex-congressman W. S. Mesick of Mancelona, appeared before the council and argued for the acceptance of the said bonds we understand.

Caught with seven small trout in his possession, some of them only three inches long and the longest about five inches, Jacob Wiseman, an East Jordan clothing merchant was arrested Tuesday by State Deputy Game Warden Smith. Wiseman had his trout all nicely done up in a cloth and regretted his arrest quite much. After he was handed a fine of $25 and $5.50 costs, he regretted it still more. It is stated that this is the second time for he forgot to measure up his catch after returning from the stream.

A representative of the plan lands of Northern Michigan at the recent meeting of the West Michigan Development Bureau, stated that in the scores of ten years land which are now considered almost worthless will be selling from $50 to $75 per acre. This seeming ridiculous will be performed by treating the soil with lime in quantities of from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per acre, and then seeding alfalfa, which has roots of sufficient moisture to mature three crops per year. This alfalfa will restore the humus to the soil and make possible the raising of other crops that cannot at present be raised.

St. Ignace Enterprise: F. G. Moe of Detroit, representing the United Wireless Telegraph Co., of New York was at Mackinac Island last week looking over the ground preparatory to installing a station there. Thursday morning on the way to the boat, Mr. Moe called on the Enterprise and gave us some interesting information, and said that if the State Park commission would be prevailed upon to permit the erection of the site of old Fort Holmes, Mackinac would have a station second to none on the great lakes. Falling in this location Duud's point near the Iroquois and a point near the Grand hotel are to be considered. The Grand hotel and business men are giving the company all the help they can as they realize how much benefit is to be derived from the station in the way of keeping Traverse City Record: Herbert Montague, grand master of the Michigan Masonic lodge, will leave tomorrow for Ann Arbor to attend a unique entertainment to be given by the Craftsmen club which is composed entirely of University students who are Masons. Delegations of Masons from Detroit, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and other cities will attend as will also several grand masters from other states. This affair will be very unique, representing a Masonic lodge of 1732, six years after the organizing of the first grand lodge in London. At that time a candidate will be raised to the degree of master Mason, the one degree in use at that time being used. The costumes will be true to the time as well as the ceremonies while the scenes and properties will be carefully reproduced from old prints. The 18th century lodge will meet Friday.

Traverse City Record: E. O. Plank's 10-ton gasoline launch, North Star, lies on the beach of South Fox island, a total wreck. The boat is in kindling wood and the engine has been reduced to practically scrapiron. A defect in the anchor chain is blamed for the boat going ashore. The North Star was about 35 feet in length, of heavy construction, and was used to carry the mail from the mainland to the Foxes. The boat also carried passengers and was used by Mr. Plank as an excursion and freight carrier. The loss is from $3,000 and $4,000. There was no insurance. The boat was driven ashore by Saturday's blow, the anchor chain parting. Robert Anderson, the engineer, lost between $25 and $40 worth of tools which he had aboard the boat.

Central Lake Cor. Traverse City Eagle: All accomplishments need not be reckoned in dollars and cents. L. D. Wright, and old Ohio farmer, thinks the following items of successful northern Michigan farming of greater value than the mere money value of a crop which might be raised on the same land. He says that when he came here two years ago the farm operated by his son north of town "did not have tame grass enough on it to feed a goose." They have seeded their land till now they have about 30 acres of good grass—some clover, some timothy, and some clover and timothy mixed. "Even if it should not bring me ten of hay per acre," says Mr. Wright, "hay is often $15 per ton, and what crop will pay as well for merely the labor of harvesting it?" He considers the benefit to the land, the cash value of the crop, clear fed or sold and the fact that they are turning wild land into good pliable, fertile acres for any kind of agriculture, and doing it easier than by any other method, equite a generous return for labor and money invested.

How Kansas Has Felt Influence of the Machine.

RURAL ROADS TRANSFORMED.

Farmers Have Taken Up Motor Cars and Improved Roads In Order to Use Them—Remaking Sand Highways With Clay.

The farmer's motor car has worked a transformation on the country roads of central Kansas. For many years there was indifference regarding the roads. The old fashioned plan of working the road in theory and doing nothing in practice was carried out. Now there is levied a road tax in cash, and the money is used to hire competent men to do definite work in keeping the roads in good condition.

A striking example is the road from Abilene to Enterprise, six miles along the bottoms where gumbo soil is frequent. For two decades it had been almost impassable for heavy loads in wet weather owing to the great ruts cut in it. Little more than a year ago the township entered on the new plan. It is now dragged after every rain, and the transformation is so notable, says an Abilene (Kans) correspondent of the Kansas City Star. It is smooth, even and has become one of the favorite runs for the motorists of Abilene owing to its fine condition. As a matter of fact, it is kept smoother than are the city streets that lead to it. The same is true of a road to Detroit, in the line of the Kansas City-Denver run for tourists. It, too, is dragged after rains and has become a very attractive highway. Those who have not been over the roads cannot comprehend the change that has taken place in them.

Up in Hayes township, eight miles from Abilene, are two brothers, Joseph and Isaac Page, who own motor cars. They are enthusiastic drivers of their touring machines and have learned to appreciate good roads. They have taken up the road drag in their own communities and are giving the residents of their healthy practical examples of what can be done in making good roads. Joseph Page says he has the best half mile of road in the county, and he feels offended if motorists pass along its smooth course at less than thirty miles an hour. As a result, largely of their efforts, there are a dozen drags in constant use in the township when the farmers can get time to use them. In the summer, with so much rain and such a rush of work on the farm, it has been neglected, but now they are at it once more. The geology of the farmers in that part of the county toward proper road work has greatly increased, and the road tax is being used with better effect than ever before.

One of the former motorists of the county, P. H. Gfeller of the northeast part of the county, who talked to the city officers of Junction City recently to show them how to make good road drags that would keep the roads leading to the city in good condition, has interested to make a bid for trade by dragging the roads in all directions from the city and also making the farmers to come there to trade because of the excellent highways leading into town.

Mr. Gfeller recently returned from a 200 mile trip to western Kansas in which he was accompanied by his family. They were gone a week and had a successful journey. Their car has proved a great satisfaction to the family, living, as they do, twelve miles from town. Now the same motor goes in Junction City and Abilene frequently, and there is nothing going out of commission. The sandy loam of the uplands gives a fine finish for the dragged roads, and Mr. Gfeller has become an enthusiast on the subject. He advocates this as the solution of the road question at all times.

Another interesting experiment that has been made by the farmers of the county who have become interested in good roads is the remaking of the sand roads by paving them with clay. For instance, the main street of Detroit, little town five miles east of Abilene, was for years a waste of deep sand. In the rain it much traveled, and all the motor car parties from Kansas City to Denver go through this street. The town trustees tried to grade it up, but were unsuccessful, as they finally determined to pave.

They hauled from the clay beds along the Smoky Hill river enough clay to make a covering for the roadbed, and this was smoothed down until it became a fine, hard road, one of the best in the county while the sand beneath takes up the moisture, and the road is always dry. The proved satisfactory that other sand roads in that vicinity have been similarly treated and are passable for every sort of vehicle. The hills that formerly could only be traversed by the well equipped teams and where motor cars could not go now are excellent highways, and the cars are frequently run over them. Roadmaking has received a decided impetus since the introduction of the motor car to the rural districts of the county. There are now a half a hundred cars in this county, and the number is increasing every week. Many of these are owned by the farmers, and these are the ones who bring to the movement for good roads the best effort. Next year's road money will be more than ever for the dragging of the roads, and the county will evidently have fine highways in every political direction connecting the towns.

Forest of Stone in Australia.

In Albany, in Australia, is to be seen a strange forest—in other words, petrified trees. The trees are of a gray stone. It is suspected as an explanation of the strange phenomenon that in the depths of past ages the forest was in full vegetation and then through some upheaval of the earth it was buried in sand. Little by little water setting on the sand penetrated the branches and petrified.

The wood gradually disappeared under the layer of stone and in time took its form. Then in succeeding years the winds again carried away the sand and the forest appeared anew, but of stone.—London Globe.

HANDLING SPRING BULBS.

How to Treat Them When the Plants Have Finished Blooming.

The national council of horticulture, through its press committee, has this to say of caring for spring bulbs:

"When tulips, hyacinths and other spring bulbs are through blooming and the last blossoms have faded, pick off the seed pods and if possible leave the bulbs in the beds until the tops begin to turn yellow. This gives the bulbs a chance to ripen before digging them up.

"If it is wished to plant the bed with something else, the moment the bulb blossoms fade pick off the seed pods, as before, and dig the bulbs up immediately, using a spade, thrusting it deep into the ground below the bulb so as to pry it up. This should be done carefully, because the stems of tulips especially are brittle and break easily just above the bulb. When all the bulbs have been dug take them to a convenient place in the back yard and heel them in, leaving them until the tops are dry.

"By heeling in is meant to dig a trench about six inches deep and as long as necessary, lay the bulbs in it, tops up, in a single row and cover only the roots and bulbs with moist earth. In about two or three weeks, or when the tops are dry, dig up the bulbs and clean them, trimming all the old roots, tops and bulbs scales and place the clean bulbs in shallow boxes, letting them to dry thoroughly in the sun before storing them away. When dry put them away in a cool, dry place where they will not be reached by the sun.

"Although these suggestions apply principally to tulips because they are the most widely used of the bulbs, the same treatment should be given hyacinths and narcissuses. Where the bulbs are left in the ground persistently do not pull the tops until they begin to turn yellow."

How to Get Rid of the Smell of Paint.

To dispel the smell of paint allow two or three onions and place them in a large pail of water in the middle of the room and leave it there all night. If the smell has not gone off by the morning repeat the process. Her is often used in the water instead of the cut onions; but, though evenetor smelling itself, it is perhaps less efficacious.

Alcohol was not discovered until the seventh century, and the distillation of spirit from wine was not discovered until the twelfth century.

BILLIONS OF GOLD GONE.

Figures Show That Some One Has Made Off with $2,000,000,000.

Somebody is making away with the gold supply of the world. Since the discovery of the American continent and the beginning of its gold production $2,000,000,000 in gold has disappeared from the available supply. This leaves the present supply of this love close metal at $11,000,000,000, and, while the United States is in no danger of a gold famine, the government would like to know who has made off with nearly one-sixth of the world's supply.

Considerably more than two-fifths of the world's supply is already stamped into coins. About $5,000,000,000 is in circulation and $4,000,000,000 held in banks and public treasuries. The United States has the greatest gold supply, the amount reaching $1,653,000,000. Germany has $1,040,000,000, France $870,000,000, Russia $817,000,000, United Kingdom $750,000,000, Japan $12,000,000 and Canada $65,000,000.

The gold output in recent years has increased rapidly. During the ten years ending with 1908 it aggregated $5,000,000,000. This was a big jump over the preceding years, when the output reached only $2,000,000,000. The production in the United States in ten years has aggregated between $8,000,000,000 and $9,000,000,000, or about one-fourth of the entire product of the world.

TO ASK AID OF WHITLA FAMILY.

Anna McDermott-Boyle Hopes to Lighten Husband's Sentence.

Though pledged to her fate and willing to give up any idea she had of fighting her sentence of twenty-five years, Mrs. James H. Boyle, formerly Anna McDermott of Chicago, still hopes to free her husband, serving a life sentence for kidnaping Willie Whitla.

She has asked Mrs. J. P. Whitla, the stolen boy's mother, to call on her in her cell, and is in what she plans to make a personal appeal for intercession in behalf of Boyle. Mrs. Whitla, however, is known to be averse to further communication with the kidnapers.

She has not dropped the attempt to discover clemency for Boyle, that Harry Forker, a relative of the Whitla and Buhl families, had a hand in the kidnaping, and it is believed she would be disposed to consider Mrs. Boyle's plea if Boyle came forward with a retraction of the Forker story.

MANY HURT IN ALTON WRECK.

Train Bound for Bloomington, Ill., Leaves Track in Missouri.

Between thirty and forty persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, by the wreck of Chicago and Alton train No. 14 near Odessa, Mo., Saturday morning. The train, which left Kansas City at 8:13 a. m., was a local, bound for Bloomington, Ill. The wreck happened at Walnut How Schoolhouse, two miles east of Odessa. The cause of the accident is not known. The track was torn up for 400 feet. The train was made up of three cars and engine. All the cars left the rails and tender left the track. The engine stuck to the rails.

8 TO 16 YEARS IS SENTENCE FOR HAINS

Captain Convicted of Killing W. E. Annis Gets Indeterminate Term in Prison.

JUDGE DENIES A NEW TRIAL

Defendant Seems Overcome by Court's Words and Father and Brother Deeply Affected.

Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for killing William E. Annis at the Bayside Yacht Club last August, was sentenced Monday by Justice Garretson in the Supreme Court in Flushing, L. I., to an indeterminate sentence of not less than eight years, nor more than sixteen years, a hard labor in Sing Sing prison.

John P. McIntyre, counsel for the defendant, made the usual motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and also contrary to law. Justice Garretson denied these motions. Mr. McIntyre then raised the point of jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over the defendant, contending that he had never been released from jurisdiction of the federal government and therefore the case was not properly before the court. Mr. McIntyre also stated that the trial, which had been an expert witness for the defense, had examined Capt. Hains since he was convicted. Justice Garretson said there was no evidence to that effect before the court and he declined to consider the motion in regard to jurisdiction.

The court clerk then instructed Capt. Hains to come to the bar and proceeded to ask him the formal questions preliminary to his being sentenced. The prisoner seemed dazed and seemed to have some difficulty in understanding the questions. Lawyers McIntyre and Young of the defense stood on either side of Capt. Hains and assisted him, by answering the questions of the court clerk.

Referring to the nature of the case the court said that Capt. Hains had been indicted for murder in the first degree, the severest crime against society, and, although there had been a great deal of sympathy injected into the case, the law did not allow a man to punish another for wrong he had suffered or to wreak vengeance on the man who had wronged him.

After Justice Garretson had imposed the sentence Capt. Hains sat down and dropped his head on the table before him. He seemed overcome with emotion for a few moments, but soon recovered himself and sat upright, staring at the court. Gen. Hains, the defendant's father, and Maj. John Francis Hains, who were in court, disappeared immediately after sentence. The prisoner's lawyers asked for a stay of sentence for a few days to take an appeal. Justice Garretson said the case would take the usual course, and gave the defense twenty-four hours in which to file an appeal.

WIDOW IS GIVEN $1,000,000.

Plaintiff Holds Heirs Effect Compromise and Save Estate.

Mrs E. J. Baldwin is to get $1,000,000 from the estate of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, the millionaire, who at the time of her father's death was said to have to be his child, Mrs. Hosell in Robinson Selby, of Oakland, is to get $225,000. The lawyers who arranged the compromise divide a fee of $400,000. According to the terms of the will Mrs. Baldwin was left a one-third interest in property in San Francisco found to be worth only $350,000. She also was left a panel of land which was said to be worth about $25,000.

ABRUZZI TRIES TO END LIFE

Report Concerning Duke Greatly Agitates Italian Court Circles.

Court circles in Rome are agitated over sensational reports which have reached the government about the duke of the Abruzzi. It is related on authority that in one of the fits of depression to which the duke has become subject of late he attempted to kill himself with a revolver on the way out to India, but was saved by a member of his suite, whose suspicion had been aroused and who had kept a watchful eye on him. Letters from members of the expedition represent that the duke is utterly reckless.

WARSHIPS REACH TURKEY.

Will Stop Massacres and Give Protection to American Schools.

The armored cruiser North Carolina and the armed revenue cutter Tahoma have arrived at Alexandretta and put the United States in position of dealing directly with the Turkish government. Several cases involving the payment of indemnity and the giving assurances of peace were discussed at the Cabinet meeting. All text is definitely known is that this government proposes to show a strong hand in the instances of the death of American citizens and the recurring attacks from Turkish outcrops to American colleges and schools in Asia Minor.

Priests Lead 10,000 March.

Thirty priests, coming from all over the United States, led 10,000 celebrants in a grand march Thursday in Carey, Ohio, closing the ceremonies of the seventy pilgrimage to the Church of Our Lady of Consolation.

Bank Currency Law Passed.

The Texas Legislature adjourned at midnight Tuesday night, after having been in session more than 12. The most notable feature of the concluding session was the passage of a bill for the guarantee of bank deposits.

TORNADOES IN THREE STATES.

Town Devastated and a Train Wrecked by Kansas Cyclone.

A series of tornadoes in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma late Friday killed at least five persons, injured fifty-five, devastated one town, wrecked a train, and did great damage to property. The storm spread over a wide area and had to waste many farm houses. On account of a great portion of the damage being done on farms its full extent could not be learned at once. Many conflicting reports have been received. One said ten were killed. A blinding rain and hail storm accompanied the wind in all three States. Many washouts demoralized railroad traffic.

Twenty-five were injured by a storm that swept over Mount Washington and Fairmount Park, suburbs of Kansas City. At least two of these are thought to be fatally injured and others seriously. The town of Hollis, near Concordia, also was swept away. Three were killed there and all were badly injured. The Eckstrom family, consisting of five persons, is missing. Their house is in ruins and it is thought they are dead.

Near Coal Bend a tornado killed two and injured twenty. All wires are down in that vicinity and it is feared that the death list may be greater. William Ackerly, a Santa Fe engineer, was killed while working with a bridge gang between Coal Bend and Kinsley. Frank Nicholson, a conductor, was killed. The tornado wrecked the work train of which Ackerly was engineer and blew it into a ditch. Several members of the crew were blown 100 feet. The pile driver was left overturning Ackerly to death in his cab, where he had remained, with his hand upon the throttle.

At Hoisington, Kas., a tornado injured a number of persons and damaged farm property. It was not so severe, however, as that in other parts of the State. At Pond Creek, Okla., a severer storm came, injured four and wrecked several houses.

RUSSIAN "ROBIN HOOD" SLAIN.

Robber Chief Who Long Joked with Police Finally is Killed.

The noted robber chieftain, Savitsky, the "Robin Hood" of the Russian revolution, has been killed by members of the rural guard. With three members of his band Savitsky was surrounded by the guard in a village near Mohilev, and after a fight lasted for four hours all four were killed. One member of the guard had his leg shot off, another received a bullet in the stomach, and two others were wounded. Savitsky, who was a high school student when he took to brigandage, had been the terror of the police of the provinces of Tchernigov and Mohilev for several years, but he was a source of amusement to the rest of Russia on account of his dare-devil exploits. He delighted in playing fantastic tricks on the police. Once, on a wager, disguised as a priest, he visited the governor of this province and various other officials. It was his custom to "rob only the rich, and he distributed his spoils among the peasantry with a lavish hand. He finally was betrayed by a member of his band.

JURIST WHO SENTENCED BOYLE.

TWENTY BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Victims Hurled High in Air by Blast in Quarry.

At least twenty men were killed Saturday by a premature explosion of dynamite in a stone quarry operated by the Chilesen Road Improvement Company near South Bethlehem, eleven miles northwest of Albany, N. Y. Twelve Italian workmen are among the victims. One thousand pounds of dynamite exploded, and the bodies of the victims were hurled hundreds of feet by the concussion and so badly mutilated as to be almost beyond recognition. As darkness was falling a wagon drawn by an engine loaded with bodies that had been picked up back on the quarry hill. A crowd of grief-stricken relatives gathered around eager to identify the dead, only to turn away at the sickening sight. Italians with shovels found here and there sections of bodies and brought their gruesome loads in boxes to the engine house, which was used as a temporary morgue.

FARMERS PLAN GRAIN TRUST.

Assemble in Central Prairie, but Want "Corners" Suppressed.

Grain growers from many States assembled in Springfield, Ill., in mass meeting at the call of C. S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' union, to take action to protect their interests. The farmers' union has a membership of 2,000,000, and that part of the organization that convened in Springfield is known as the grain growers' branch. President Barrett, in his call, issued at Atlanta, Ga., said: "It is the intention to build such a system as will enable the growers to sell their wheat for the highest possible price, but in the course of events the grain growers the same as the cotton planters of the South are organized, the chief aim being to aid members in storing wheat until prices are raised to a price, that will be satisfactory to enact a law that will prevent corners in grain.

TWO KILLED IN PANAMA RIOT.

Police of Republic Clash with American Canal Employes.

In a conflict between Panama police and employes of the canal zone near the dividing line C. H. Abbott, an American electrician in the power house at Christobal, and a colored man, also an American, were killed. The police crossed the zone at Christobal in an effort to arrest an escaped prisoner. They were resisted and pelted by West Indians and finally were arrested by the zone police for disturbing the peace. Reinforcements of Panama police armed with rifles proceeded toward the zone in an attempt, it is alleged, to free the prisoner and disarm their comrades earlier in the day. They were met by a force of canal zone workers and many revolver and rifle shots were fired. The riot became so threatening that all plans for release were quickly closed, but eventually the prisoner was released.

Use Dynamite House as Target.

Steve Puze is dying from injuries upon a mysterious house near Washington, Pa., containing forty quarts of nitroglycerin and 150 pounds of dynamite. The explosive belongs to Pasquale, Italiano, not knowing what was in it, placed it in his house as a target and began shooting at it with revolvers.

Boy Ends Life to Avoid Arrest.

Peter Parchalt, 13 years old, living with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Parchalt, near Sandusky, Ohio, killed himself as a policeman, called by his aunt, was entering the house. The boy had been whipped, Mrs. Parchalt says, and, with rocks in his hands, threatened to kill her.

The Patchen Willbes Breed Early.

A West Virginia man has finally secured a record for the new Kentucky-Trotting Horse Breeders' Association track.

The Columbus, Ohio, club, former champions of the American Association, ended the present season by losing seven straight games.

John H. Taylor, the aged horse racing and breeding king of Freeport, Ill., is dead, from injuries received by a fall from his buggy in a runaway.

A mass meeting of one thousand citizens decided that Goldfield, Nev., should offer $10,000 for a fight between Jack Johnson and James J. Jeffries to take place in the interest of September, during the session of the mining congress.

Governor Morris of Montana said to horsemen at Frankfort, Ky.: "There is but one thing that will ever induce me to racing in Montana or any of the Western States, and that is the man who do not care anything about racing except to make money out of the gambling that accompanies racing."

The Western Circuit Baseball League, successor to the Northern Illinois Leagues, opened in the Illinois Wisconsin Border, Dodgeville had Calaway, Regina, Moose Jaw, Leth-bridge and Edmonton. A very large number of the players are Americans, gleaned from the clubs of the Northern States.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

Actual improvement and the general business and business affairs now reflecting the hopeful return of better times. Some increase in trading developed on a special cause and lackes significance in view of the sustained high aggregate of interest payments through the banks. Weather conditions favor enterprise in both industrial and agricultural operations, and the promise improves for larger crops and better prices for all the manufactures.

Notable demands appear in the iron working branches, large tonnage being closed for pig iron, rails, structural steel and wire, while there is gratifying revival in the bookings of railway equipment, power, machinery and minor metals.

Idle capacity is seen to be undergoing further reduction in various branches, and more hands find supply than of the past year. Lumber, Tile, mills and forges in the Calumet district appear almost as busy as ever, and mills and yards in other States make rapid gains at thary and large additions to the Pullman works are planned.

New enterprise is noted in ice manufacture, in cotton goods and mercantile structures, which again exceed expectations, and government departments figure more actively upon track extension, elevation and bridges. Construction of local telephone is involve the use of enormous quantities of wire and cable, and of poles and timber, while the building trades are now settled into a remarkably prosperous condition.

Movements of general merchandise, as reflected by the railways, show the moderate decline incident to this period, but the shortage is in very low in factory materials, raw supplies and needs of the farms.

Bank clearings, $284,142,523 exceed those of corresponding week in 1909 on 141 per cent, and compare with $267,551,845 in 1908. Failures reported in the Chicago district number 26, against last week, 24 in 1909 and 26 in 190.. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 4, against 7 last week, 7 in 1908 and 4 in 1907.—Dun's Review of Chicago Trade.

NEW YORK.

Irregularity still characterizes the trade, crop and industrial situation, in industrial lines the consensus of reports is that further improvement has been registered, especially in the iron and metal industries, woolen manufacturing and leather trades. Building is active and the tone of trade outcrop in the industries are feeling benefit from it.

It is a between-season period in wholesale and jobbing distributive trades, orders for spring goods are note-worthy of a mitigated character and hardly equal to expectations. The tone of opinion as to the outlook for fall trade is as a whole rather more confident, the attitude of expression in trade, whether due to tariff and crop uncertainty, reflecting a restraining power of the public or high prices for foodstuffs, are too evident to be ignored.

Manufacturers of woolen goods are buying freely of raw material in Boston, and sales of new domestic clip wool to arrive have aggregated 10,000 pounds, while foreign sale prices are reported to have been advanced, and there is a fair demand for large clips in foreign wool.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with May 12 were 224, against 214 last week, 201 in the week ending May 12, 1909, 161 in 1908, 161 in 1907, 161 in 1906 and 191 in 1905. Canadian failures for the week number 30, against 29 last week and 22 in the like week of 1909.—Bradstreet's.

THE OLD SOLDIER.

Does it seem like a dream, old soldier, Your hanging sword with your heart in old days?
In the ashes of the battle's blaze?

When death's grim reapers were rutting down lives through the war-purged land,
And by ranks and ranks your comrades Were falling on every hand?

Does it seem like a dream, old veteran, You with the battle fire,
The times when you marched for battle, To the drum's soul-stirring beat?

Or, when the odds against you,
And the enemy pressing near,
A word of command, the shrill fife tuned, you slowly turned for the rear?

When the touch of the stormful weather Quickens the battle-scarred,
And the stiffened limbs of memory To a clarion measure stand,

Do you live again in fancy
Those scenes of the war-worn past over,
And march and skirmish and rally
Up the slope of the battle hill once more?

While your memories are stirring
Do you see the faces of your wives and sweethearts
If grazing be fast asleep,
Pleading with you to the midnight skies? Taken in the silent night?

Old soldier, wrinkled and grizzled,
To me it seems like a dream
Your battle days are long forgotten,
With the layman's seeming gleam

Alone you, and on your shoulders
The burden of years has fallen,
And away with the jaunty step
You marched with your strong young fellows.

Yes, you are a dismantled soldier,
The average soldier dream
Of a man who fought for the cause
We still lovingly care for—
Tom Taylor in Chicago Inter-Ocean's Weekly.

He Brought the Cows Home.

A boy whose parents would not permit him to go to school, started out one morning to drive the cows to pasture on his way to work, taking his little sister along. He did not attempt to fight. He had run away and left the cows to shift for themselves. The cows were left to fight without a forlorn hand and turned with the regiment undaunted by Confederate valor. Left to the old pasture at home just at "cow time" and temperly drove up the same old cows just as if he had never been away.

REUNITED AFTER MANY YEARS.

Brothers Reported Killed in War Meet on Iowa Farm.

Jeremiah McDermid and his brother, James McDermid, who lives in Dundee, Dubuque county, Iowa, recently met for the first time in nearly a half century. Each believed the other to be dead.

In the year 1861 these brothers were living in Illinois. State and enlisted in the Union army. On going to the front they were engaged in the battle of Shiloh. James was carried off the battlefield with six bullets in his body, and the report was sent home James that his brother was dead. Jeremiah was also given the same report that his brother was dead. Both, accepting the statements as true, made no further investigation. At the close of the war both men went West, James locating in Delaware county, Iowa and Jeremiah going out to Washington state. In all these years no effort was made to find out if the report of the necessity of amputating the limb of both men until half fell.

On the occasion of the meeting of the third Army of the Republic in Saratoga, N. Y., Jeremiah went there as a delegate from Washington and Alaska. He had a conversation with one of the old soldiers, who, noticing the badge and the name of Mr. McDermid, asked him if he had any relatives living in Delaware county, Iowa. The question set Jeremiah thinking that night have been a mistake in the death of his brother and he resolved to return to his ship home he decided to stop at that place and make some inquiries. Arriving at Manchester, Iowa, he was informed that there was a James McDermid living on a farm near Dundee, Iowa. Thither Jeremiah went, and to his surprise and joy he found his brother James alive and well.

The Old Forage Cap.

A regulation dress hat was brought into the army under strict orders that it was necessary of war, but the best known article of headwear was the forage cap of dark blue cloth with rounded visor, the crown of the cap pulled out to the front to display the insignia of the arms of the service (crossed sabers for the cavalry, crossed cannon for the artillery, and a bugle for infantry). For a time infantry, for which alone it was designed, generally wore the hat, but it soon became popular with the cavalry, and finally was adopted by the entire army. Each regiment had its own distinctive insignia, which was worn on the forage cap, and the cap was worn by officers of all grades, with the insignia of their rank on it. The cap was worn by the soldiers who served in the Civil war, and it was worn by the soldiers who served in the Spanish war, and it was worn by the soldiers who served in the Philippines, and it was worn by the soldiers who served in the Boxer war in China, and it —Superintendent Martindale went to St. James Monday to repair the dynamo of the Beaver Island Co plant, returning the same day.

—Bert Kuch, of Boyne Falls, was convicted of spearing bass in Deer Lake, and he got thirty days in the Charlevoix jail for his recklessness.

—The Gray's Reef light-ship, which sprung a leak on her stations and was taken to Sturgeon Bay, Wis. for re-caulking, was in port Friday on her way back to station.

—L. F. Adams is installing a billiard parlor and fruit, confectionery and cigar store in his former place of business. The billiard tables, which are new, arrived from Chicago on the Missouri Monday.

—Robert M. Chamberlain, of Detroit, was in the city Saturday, on his way to Dwight, ostensibly on business connected with the David Ward estate, for which he is attorney, but he had his inner red with him for a short outing on the Little Manistee river.

—Boyne Journal: Gus Myers of Boyne Falls has resigned his position as one of the county superintendents of the poor on account of going west, and Judge of Probate Harris has appointed E. L. Stanford of this city to his place until the Board of Supervisors meet in October. The superintendents held a meeting in this city today and elected Stanford secretary. Mr. Stanford is well known and is thoroughly equipped for the place in every way.

—A curious feature of the present season for trout fishing will develop on account of the change which the legislature has made in the fish law. By the provisions of the present law the season closes August 15, and the new law does not go into effect until 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature. That adjournment will take place June 2, and just 90 days from that date, or September 1, the new law goes into effect. By the provisions the season closes September 15. Consequently the present season will close August 15, but will on September 1 reopen for another 15 days. This is an odd state of affairs which has never before occurred and which probably will never be repeated.

—Superintendent Pettibone of Petoskey high schools has issued invitations to five neighboring schools to send athletic representations to Petoskey Saturday, June 5, to engage in a field meet. Charlevoix, Pellston, Harbor Springs and East Jordan have answered the invitation, and announce their intentions of having teams on the field. The meet will be held at the fair grounds, and with favorable weather, a big crowd should turn out to see the different events, which will include: 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard run, half mile, and the mile run; discus and hammer throw, shot put, pole vault, high jump, 120 high hurdles, 220 yard low hurdles, and possibly the running broad jump. The main event of the meet, always the most interesting, is the relay race. This race will be but a half-mile, and four laps of 200 yards each.

—Cadillac News: There are more violations of the liquor laws in open saloon cities and villages than in cities and villages were saloons are forbidden to exist at all. The usual assumption is that the entire absence of saloons leads to violations in order to meet the demand by those who insist upon having liquor law or no law. The assumption continues in the direction of taking it for granted that the open saloon makes violation unnecessary and infrequent. Comparatively observation shows these several assumptions to be as far as possible from the truth. Illegal sales of liquor of all sorts, after hours, on holidays days, sales to minors, to habitual topers, without licenses, blind tigers, and all such attributes and nuisances are ten times more frequent and more demoralizing in saloon cities and villages than where saloons are not known. And the experience of all cities is that the more saloons they have the greater number of illegal sales are made and the more nuisances are continued to handle liquor. Some theories on this question don't at all agree with the day by day showing of actual experience.

—New type suitable for wedding announcements, just in at the SENTINEL job office, and more coming.

—We have heard some criticism of the council for its action last week in purchasing crushed stone from the Elk Rapids Lime and Cement Co. The criticisms are based upon the fact that the city owns a limestone quarry but about a mile from the bridge, with a crusher and engine on the ground, and the claim is made that it is discrimination against home labor. We accepted the criticisms as justified providing the facts were as alleged. But we investigated. We start out with the proposition that the city council is composed of tax payers—some of them heavy ones. This goes a good ways of itself. But we also dug up the following facts: The city owns a crusher and a quarry, but the crusher is worn out and of little use. The cheapest that crushed stone has yet been produced at the home plant was 50 cents per ton. The Bay Shore stone contracted for by the council costs 50 cents on the track at Charlevoix, and we take just what we need this year and no more unless we choose to. As all the stone to be used this summer is for the north side, the difference between the quarry long haul and the depot short haul contributes largely to the economy side of the deal, even though the crusher was an effective factor. Giving fair weight to all these facts we consider that the council acted wisely.

How to Care For Lamps.

So often people complain that their lamps give poor light. Perhaps they do not give them half the attention they require, yet if done regularly it takes but a short time each day. In buying lamps select those in which the end of the burner is elevated above the body or main of the lamp. Watch your wicks closely and change them before they become short. Do not trim or cut wicks—it is almost impossible if you do to get them straight—but scrape off the charred black crust with a piece of cardboard, and to avoid an odor of oil wash and boil the burners every two weeks. Clean the glass chimneys as soon as they begin to look cloudy. Keep your lamps well filled with the best kerosene oil obtainable and never attempt to fill a lighted lamp or to burn one when it is nearly empty. Carrying lamps should be of metal and have firm handles, so if they are dropped they will not break or explode. See that hanging or bracket lamps are put up securely and never allow a lighted lamp to be in a current of air, as it will smoke if it does nothing worse. If burning oil should get on the floor or table smother the flames with a woolen blanket or rug, but not with cotton material. Cotton ignites very quickly and is dangerous in case of fire. Remember never to throw water on burning oil. Always keep the oil can well corked and away from the range or any other heat or fire.

How to Wash Blankets.

When blankets are to be washed soap should be cut into small pieces and dissolved into a jelly. This should be added to warm water, enough to form a suds, and borax put in for softening and purifying purposes. Into this the blankets should be entirely immersed and allowed to remain for half an hour. The water should not be allowed to get cold. After the blankets are soaked through they should be soused up and down to release the dirt, then put through a wringer. After this the blankets are put through a second suds prepared in the same way as the first. They are squeezed, but not rubbed. A board should not be used, and above all, soap should never be rubbed directly on the blanket. This not only causes it to shrink, but the small hairs are all matted by the soap, and the blanket loses its fluffy appearance. They should be rinsed in warm water with borax or ammonia added to keep them soft and dried on a day of sun and wind.

How to Clean Velveteen Dresses.

For the benefit of those who may wear velveteen dresses the method employed to clean either light or dark velveteen is a very simple one. A bitter of white soap, is made, into which the velveteen is dipped, then placed on a board or table and scrubbed the way of the ribs with a clean nailbrush until all the dirt has been removed, when it is rinsed in clean cold water, but not squeezed or wrung, as it would spoil the pile. It is dried in the air, and sometimes the back is dried over a hot iron, but this is not absolutely necessary.

How to Save a Wet Dash Cover.

Should water be spilled on the back of a carriage dash board in cloth or not attempt to dry it with a cloth or place it near the heat. Instead absorb as much of the moisture as possible with blotting paper and put the dash over the back of a chair or rack so that the backs hang down. Set the chair where there is a strong draft of air that will dry quickly.

How People Lose Their Money
By concealing it about their person; by stowing it away in mugs, jugs and jars; by sewing it up in skirts and ticks; by tucking it under the couches, and carpets, in cupboards and bureau drawers; these are some of the ways by which people lose their money and sometimes THEIR LIVES.

How People Save Their Money
By depositing it in a good reliable bank. Confident that this bank fully meets that requirement and the public's needs, we tender its services to all who believe in keeping on the SAFE SIDE. Four per cent interest paid on deposits. Compounded semi-annually.

—The many friends of Mrs. Devoe will be gratified to learn that she rallied well from the recent surgical operation at Ann Arbor, and is safely on the road to complete recovery.

—Capt. S. Smith has been moved his residence here and removed his family to Milwaukee. This change was made necessary that the Captain is a water sailor. Capt. Smith sails the Kansas.

—We are advised that Mr. Ed. F. Parmenter, formerly a partner in the SENTINEL, but for the past twenty years engaged in newspaper work in San Diego, Cal., is on his way east and will visit his parents here this month.

—The advance sale of tickets for the Charlevoix Theater has been changed from the 7th to Chapel's Drug Store where it will be found for this season. The tickets for "My Boy Jack" will be at Chapel's Drug Store Saturday morning.

—Very little business was done at the council meeting Tuesday night. The bond of Lee Howland for cement sidewalk construction was approved, and title to the amount of $1,325 was tendered by the American League base ball scores will be shown on the curtain every night.

—The Principia Alumnus, a St. Louis college publication, contains the following item: "There was a pretty contest in the 880-yard run between Clifford Lewis and Jones. It looked to be very close until the last half, when the former's ability to sprint made itself evident, enabling him to leave Jones some 25 yards in the rear. Time, 2:32 1-5." Good for Bob.

—The solitary salooniat at Ellis worth, Antrim county, is doing a rushing business these days. Charlevoix and East Jordan chipping in generously to swell the business. Two or three loads went over from here last Saturday afternoon, and two or three loads of jugs returned. It was a unanimous public sentiment that put the salooniat out of business May 1st, and there will be another awakening one of these days that will surprise some of them people. Certain laws become operative in September.

—Some fine siftings of brook trout have been caught lately inside the revetment on the south side of the lower channel. The spotted beauties were found nestling under the old slabs that lie on the bottom.

—Underhill & Wilkinson, who are installing the bowling alley in the Paddock building, expect to open the place the last of this week. The equipment is a good one, and the room well adapted to the business.

—The U. S. revenue cutter Tuscarora was recently at anchor at Harbor Springs, and the Republican speaks of her as a "U. S. training ship." There is nothing like a long cruise to make a jack-tar town to keep an editor well posted in marine matters.

—There will be two eclipses next month—a lunar and a solar. The latter end of the eclipse of the moon, June 24, will be visible over nearly the whole of North America; that of the sun, June 17th, as a partial eclipse, will be visible over the greater part of this continent.

—The Majestic Theater is putting up good shows every night this week, with the best of moving pictures and excellent vaudeville attractions. The Majestic is now under new auspices, with Stephen Justice as house manager and John Murrel as stage manager. The American League base ball scores will be shown on the curtain every night.

—Boyne Journal says: Cabbages and other plants can be protected from cut-worms by erecting a two-inch-high paper fence around each stem. Lay the paper side and push the "fence" an inch into the soil to hold it in place. The paper should not come nearer to the stem than about one and one-half inches.

—Hob" Douglas, Republican state central committeeman from the Twelfth district and editor of the Ironwood News-Record, was in Lansing recently. Incidentally he set at rest all doubts as to where the iron country stands on Chas S. Osborn for Governor. "We're all with him," declared Mr. Douglas, "and nothing can stop Chase Osborn from being the next governor. He is the man to unite the party, and from every part of the state the feeling about here is the interests is his candidacy is growing."

—My Boy Jack at Charlevoix Theater June 8th.

—Geo. Marsac, for several years past the F. M. freight clerk at this station, has been appointed agent at Phelps. Mr. Marsac has bought the store at Phelps and will do a general mercantile business in addition to his railroad duties.

—The incubator in the chicken house of C. S. Dodge went wrong Sunday and set the place on fire, roasting several blooded pullets to a turn. A fire alarm called out the fire department, but the fire was extinguished before it arrived at the scene.

—Of the voluminous general game law left introduced and dragged along through week after week of the legislative session, only one little clause relating to quail remains, and this has been changed to read the period for the prohibition of quail shooting from ten to five years. With this change goes the prohibition of hack, gray and fox squirrels and for a similar period.

—Tom Lambrinides and Jack Diordeo constitute the bill of vaudeville which Manager Spencer is offering at the Bridge Theater the last three nights of this week. The Lambrinides do a musical act with eight different instruments, representing an investment of nearly one thousand dollars. Jack Diordeo does a singing and dancing specialty with a Tuxedo and a voice. See which act you like the best.

—Miss Nita Mayne, of this city, who recently graduated with honor from the Columbia College of Expression, of Chicago, was last week tendered an engagement with the company of Madam Nordica, a celebrated dramatic star. She decided the honor, however. Miss Mayne recently took the leading lady's part in the college presentation of Ibsen's "A Doll's House," in which she displayed marked histrionic ability.

—Charlevoix has some fine beauty spots, but if there is a finer one to be found anywhere than that on "the hill" at the foot of Park Avenue, we have not found it. Drawing a circle that takes in the beautiful residences and grounds of W. J. Rachow, J. L. Crane, H. Lee Iddings and Mrs. O. A. Sears, it embraces ground that is enchanting. From the porches can be seen every vessel that enters the harbor and every setting of the sun. Just below them is the park, to the eastward the grand perspective of the lake, and to the southward the forest of maples that adorn three other lovely streets. A lover of the beautiful always wants to linger at this charming spot.

THE BOY CITY

Getting Down to Business—Chautauqua Entertainment Engagements All Made—Government and Activities Arranged

Manager Brown, of the Boy City, is hustling. There is not a busier man in Charlevoix. When the Boy City government is set up and the machinery set in motion there will be something doing all the time. The Chautauqua program is already arranged, and it embraces many star attractions. Among those who will contribute to the success of the enterprise are Judge Willis Brown, lecturer; Dixie Jubilee Singers; Rev. W. A. MacPherson, of St. Paul's Church, Chicago; The Great Houston, Entertainer; Dr. A. S. Foster, of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, and his boy choir, of New York; Tahan, the White Savage; Hon. W. A. Gardner, of St. Louis, lecturer; Wm. B. Stout, chalk talker and master whittler, and other good attractions.

JUDGE WILLIS BROWN.

Big events will be the Boy City election day, inauguration of the mayor, county fair day with its games and races; circus day, with all its traditional attractions; other routine events that attach to a well governed city. One of the best juvenile bands in the country will give afternoon and evening concerts.

Boy City will have a railroad station, and all Pere Marquette trains will stop regularly. Afternoons and evenings the Boyne City and East Jordan boats will make stops, and two thirty-passenger autos will make regular trips between the Belvedere, the Inn and the Boy City.

This unique juvenile commonwealth will be in operation from July 25 to August 14. It is the greatest boy camp in the world, with hundreds of acres and a thousand boys. It will have eight special days and sixteen great entertainments. It will have athletics and baseball and popular sports. It will have a good restaurant for the accommodation of visitors. In short, it will be one of the greatest summer attractions to be found anywhere.

Improvements at the Life Saving Station.

Down in Capt. Kent's domain, the U. S. life saving station, they are doing things. Improvements are in progress that, before autumn arrives again, will transform what used to be a sand-pile and frog pond into one of the prettiest spots in this habitable world.

A nice little village of homes is being built for the life savers in a row between the frog ponds-to-be and the sand-pile aforesaid. Nat Palmer's house is completed and will be occupied next week; Fred Marsh's neat cement house will be ready to move into in two weeks, and another just like it for David Jarrat will be occupied some time in July. Two more houses are contemplated.

The sand-hill is to be graded down and the material used to fill up the frog-pond. When this is done a street will be laid out and macadamized along where the sand hill was, and it will be sewered and water pipes laid.

Two rows of young maples have been transplanted in the park to the west of the station, and other improvements are being done that will add greatly to the beauty of the place.

THE RESORTS

What Has Been Done and is Being Done On the Famous Resort Grounds of Charlevoix.

Every year the beauties of the renowned resorts of Charlevoix are increased by the erection of new cottages, the rebuilding and enlargement of old ones and the improvement of grounds. This work constitutes an industry that gives employment to many artisans and laborers. From early spring until the snow comes to stay, carpenters, masons, painters, plumbers landscape gardeners and common laborers find employment, and their numbers are on the increase. The resort business in Charlevoix has become an industry that rivals any one other industry in Northern Michigan.

Up on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds four elegant new cottages have been built—those of F. W. Rockwell, Geo. L. Warner and F. A. Fielder, of Chicago, and Mrs. Aiken, of Nashville, Tenn. Several cottages have been rebuilt and enlarged, and much more work has been put on the grounds of the Association this spring than in any previous year. Area beautiful, the beauties of this place are more enchanting than ever.

Just outside the western boundary of these grounds the new Hallett Hotel adds wonderfully to the appearance of that part of the city, and the erection of new residences and the enlargement of others, in all parts of the city, intended to be rented to resorters during the summer, has not even yet met the growing demand for summer homes in the best resort town in Northern Michigan.

The Chicago Resort people are putting finishing touches to the fine cottages on the grounds—in fact the finest in Charlevoix,—the Stuart and McIlvaine cottages, have just been completed, and very many improvements made all about the premises. The club house has been thoroughly overhauled and put in excellent shape for the reception of guests. The Chicago Summer Resort Association will, one of these days, build a new club house that will better correspond with the magnificent grounds than the old one.

The Charlevoix Golf Club, which is practically controlled by the Chicago Club, has expended a large amount on the links this spring, and most of the work has been done by Charlevoix people. A complete water system has been installed to the uttermost limits of the links. It is an independent system, with a pumping station on Pine Lake. A steam roller has been provided for the links and is already in operation. These links are the finest in the state, as level as a floor, and abound in beautiful maple grove, affording attractive resting spots. Next week the caddies will begin to gather. A neat little club house has been erected on the links, near the old Dixon orchard. It has bath-rooms, restrooms, and other conveniences and adds very much to the attractiveness of the links.

—Last Saturday a crowd of 200 people witnessed the first defeat of the season for the C. H. S ball team. The Boyne City H. S. team defeated C. H. S. team by a score of 12 to 4, which gives them a chance at the championship of Northern Michigan along with Charlevoix. The defeat of the Charlevoix team can be attributed to many things, the greatest of which was being too sure of the game, and the usual slip-shod. Nat Palmer's house is completed and will be occupied next week; Fred Marsh's neat cement house will be ready to move into in two weeks, and another just like it for David Jarrat will be occupied some time in July. Two more houses are contemplated.

The sand-hill is to be graded down and the material used to fill up the frog-pond. When this is done a street will be laid out and macadamized along where the sand hill was, and it will be sewered and water pipes laid.

H. H. ROGERS IS DEAD; VICTIM OF APOPLEXY

NEWS SHOCKS WALL STREET

Romantic Career of Man Who Rose from Poverty to Vast Wealth—His Genius as Organizer.

Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, died at his home in New York City Wednesday of apoplexy. His arrival in Rogers, but began to feel ill, complaining of confusion and nausea. Before anything could be done he died. The news of his death came as a surprise to the world of Wall street. This was the second illness of this nature suffered by Mr. Rogers, the first having occurred in July, 1901. His health had been failing for several years, and he had curtailed his financial operations to some extent, but he continued to be active in the management of the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. Rogers was for many years one of the most prominent financiers of the country. He took a leading part in all of the enormous undertakings of the Standard Oil group of capitalists, was vice president of the Standard Oil Company, and was the active spirit in the organization of the Amalgamated Copper Company, of which he was president up to the time of his death. He also was interested in a number of railroads.

Henry H. Rogers was a man of mystery. He shunned no servitude was he that not even the date of his birth was a matter of record or knowledge. As nearly as can be determined, this colossus of modern finance was born in 1840, Fairhaven, Mass., was his birthplace. The story of his life is one of those romances of modern finance in which present-day America delights to read. He was from newsboy to head of the wealthiest corporation in the world and master of a personal fortune of more than $125,000,000 in fifty years.

Rogers was still in his twenties the story of the oil that was spouting from the earth in Pennsylvania took up his cause and he determined to go to the oil fields. This was in the

FREE LUMBER BEATEN BY OVER TWO TO ONE

Senate Vote Shows Only 25 for Dropping Duty, While 56 Are Against It.

PARTY LINES ARE BROKEN.

Deliver Furnishes Surprise of Day by Standing with Anti-Radicals.

No single piece of lumber was ever used more effectually as a scarecrow to children than was the great lumber industry Monday by the United States Senate. The lumber schedule of the tariff bill was under consideration almost the entire day, with Senators Heyburn, Borah, and Dolliver contending on the one hand for a protector for the lumber, and Senators Clapp, Burkett and McCumber arguing as strongly against that policy.

The vote closed with more than a two thirds vote against Senator McCumber's free lumber amendment, the ballot showing 25 for and 56 against. Of the twenty-five affirmative votes thirteen were cast by Republican Senators and ten by Democratic Senators, as follows:

Republicans.

Beveridge, Curtis,
Dillingham, Dupont,
Frazier, Gamble,
Brown, Heyburn,
Burkett, Johnson,
Clapp, La Follette,
Crane, Nelson,
Crawford, Page,
Cummins.

Democrats.

Clay, Newlands,
Culberson, Paynter,
Fessler, Taliaferro,
Gore, Shively,
Hughes, Stone,
Taylor.

The surprise of the day was the attitude of Senator Dolliver, who here tofore has stood with the "protectionists" throughout the tariff fight. He took positive position against the ruling on demand for free lumber, but expressed the opinion that the industry would not suffer from a reduction of the Dingley rates.

Senator Root opened the day's proceedings with an argument in favor of a differential on dressed lumber. Senators Borah and Heyburn of Idaho contended for the highest duty on lumber, and Mr. Borah entered upon an argument to show that the policy of protection is "a system" and can not be maintained if there are to be constant exceptions to it as is desired by the lumber interests.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

Payments through the banks and lower defaults testify to stabler conditions. The commercial outlook is keener and savants an early settlement of tariff revision. Developments as a whole carry the encouragement which stimulates enterprise, renews strength and confidence being well established. Current activities are conspicuous in the enlarged movements of heavy materials, factory products, general merchandise and rails. The tone of securities also is increased, although the stock arrivals declined and pushing capital works under the normal.

Weather conditions have favored more extended operations in the building industries, construction and building, and gain is seen in the absorption of seasonable goods, but more wanton is needed for an adequate disposition of tight-weight apparel, retailers not yet securing ample sales.

The wide distribution and ceaseless decline of wool fabrics induce more widespread orders in wholesale dry goods lines, this being in sharp contrast with the numbers of visiting buyers into the marketing for staples, and looking ride for immediate and full shipments of textiles, footwear, hardware, furniture and household needs.

Inquiries for turnover and mill output extend into the future and the contracts closed reflect distinct progress in hosiery, knit goods, leather working. Railway orders appear more freely and assure increased activity in the forges and equipment plants. Building materials are in fair request, commodious than heretofore, and this stiffens prices and gain the building trades upon a substantial basis.

Bank clearings, $271,814,502, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1908 by 19.5 per cent and compare with $252,002,830 in 1907. Gains are reported in the Chicago district number 24, against 26 last week, 48 in 1908 and 15 in 1907. Failures with liabilities over $5,000 number 10, against a last week, 7 in 1908 and 4 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Weather conditions continue irregular, but a change for the better has set in with an improved tone in stocks. Sentiment is slightly improved, though disappointing and unsettling influences of the repression heretofore evident. Re-order business from jobbers and retailers has been rather quiet, but there is, if anything, a more assured optimism in regard to the prospects as to the outlook for next fall and winter trade.

OKLAHOMA TOWNS ARE FLOODED

Heavy Rain and Hail Storm Cause Damage over Wide Area.

One of the heaviest rainfalls in northeastern Oklahoma in recent years has swollen Grand River and other streams to the flood stage, causing much damage to railroad property and farms and partially submerging the town of Afton, twelve miles east of Vinita. At Colony, a portion of the trestle work of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway bridge has been carried away. Other bridges are in danger and train service is demoralized. A terrific downpour falling in continuous rain of four days causes the Canadian and Arkansas rivers to rise rapidly. The streets and many houses in Muskogee are inundated by the storm. Six inches of rain fell in three hours in a territory extending from Muskogee south from South Haven, Kan., into Oklahoma. The rain was accompanied by a storm of hail that beat the grain into the ground.

Women and Unsay Renewed.

While rowing in the Blue River near Manhattan, Kan., Miss Gladys Irish of Manhattan and Walter Gordon of Minneapolis, Kan., were drowned. They boat struck a snag and capsized. Both were students of the Kansas Agricultural College.

Accidentally Kills Her Brother.

Mrs. Bertie Shields accidentally shot and killed her brother, Johnny Shields, in the home of their father, Henry Shields. The woman was shooting at a target.

Kansas $2 Bill Is Afloat.

Treasury officials have found a counterfeit $2 silver certificate. The bill is of the series of 1899, bears the check letter "A" and face plate is No. 1110.

$5,000,000 Gold from Nome.

Nome's gold output this year will be approximately $5,000,000, according to a statement made by Lafayette Lane, one of the pioneers of the Nome district, who is in Seattle.

Orders Forty Engines Built.

MIDES IN PENITENTIARY.

Convicts Beneath the Floor and Elsewhere Under Prison Guards.

Within the walls of the penitentiary in Columbus, Ohio, Harvey Johnson, a life prisoner, who was received a few days ago from Franklin County, is hiding. Since Wednesday the penitentiary officers and guards have been searching for him. Twice during the night he was seen. One of the wall guards said he saw him strike his head out of a lattice-top window and he fired. The bullet afterward was found embedded near the window. Capt. Krause of the guardroom also saw the little prisoner, who is a negro, but was unable to capture him on account of the darkness. A double guard was on duty all night, but Johnson was not seen for a few hours. The entire floor in hell shop No. 4, where Johnson worked, was swept up, and it was found that Johnson had secreted himself in one of the working clothes were found there and also a crude, improvised blackjack. Warden Jones ordered the guards to shoot to kill if Johnson does not immediately give up. The police department has been notified.

MORRIS TO BUILD BIG PLANT.

Will Invest Million in Oklahoma Packing House.

Investing an investment between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, a deal was closed in Oklahoma City the other night by the Morris interests, represented by representatives of Morris & Co., Chicago, for the erection of a packing plant. The plant will have a capacity of 1,000 cattle, 2,500 hogs and 1,000 sheep per day and between 1,000 and 1,500 men will be employed. Representatives of the company have preliminary arrangements for the construction of the plant will begin immediately. The Morris interests are the live stock industry of the State will be changed materially. It is now all shipped southbound go to Kansas City and hogs to Fort Worth, Tex.

DOG RESCUES TWO PREACHERS.

Saves John Wanamaker's Pastor and Another Clergyman.

Rev. Amy Perry, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, with John Wanamaker attends, and his brother, Rev. Clement Perry, pastor of the Morrisville, Pa. Presbyterian Church, were saved from drowning by a shepherd dog. The brothers were now upset in the Delaware River. They could make no progress and both were rapidly becoming exhausted when the dog plunged in and swam out to them. The dog seized the minister's collar in his teeth and dragged him to shallow water. The big shepherd went back after the Philadelphia minister and soon pulled him to shore.

Supposed Kidnaped Boy Drowned.

The body of John Altmeyer, 5 years of age, who was thought to have been kidnaped, was found in the river at Newark, N. J. It developed that John Altmeyer and seven other boys went swimming Friday, and it is thought he was "kidnaped" while bathing. The other boys will be questioned.

GEORGE MEREDITH IS DEAD.

Succumbs in London to Attack of Heart Disease at 81.

George Meredith died at 3:35 Tuesday morning in London. The news of the great novelist's illness caused deep and widespread regret and it has been generally feared that because of his great age he was past it—the chances of recovery were slight. The immediate cause of death was heart failure following grave symptoms that developed early in the evening. Mr. Meredith's illness began on May 14 and he steadily declined since that time.

George Meredith was born Feb. 12, 1828, in the county of Hampshire, England. He was educated in Germany, and on his return to England he entered a solicitor's university and read for the bar. He gave up this for literature and his first success was in articles written for prominent reviews of his time. In 1851 Meredith published "Poems," his first volume of verse, and since then throughout his long life he has published poems and books of every type. Recognition came very few years. Recognition, in fact, came to him in the spring of 1905, when the novelist was 77 years old, and "Diana of the Crossways" Meredith's early works were recognized as masterpieces and his novel, "The Ordeal of Richard Feverel," now ranked as one of his best efforts. Of his many prose works those which are declared by critics to be certain of outlying fame are "The Egoist," published in 1879, "Diana of the Crossways," published in 1885, and the two books already mentioned.

The outbreak of the Albanian garrison at Ukaup, Tuesday, about 100 miles north of Salonika, where the deposed Sultan of Turkey is a prisoner, was believed at Constantinople to be prearranged as an uprising under the leadership of the Sultan's son, Mehmed Selim, who is expected to attempt to ascend the throne.

The commission which has been taking inventory of the property at the imperial palace at Yildiz has discovered, according to the Sabah, that the imperial bank notes to the value of $2,000,000 and a large quantity of jewelry, and also some rosary alone valued at $175,000. Papers seized at the palace show that Abdul Hamid had over $5,000,000 on deposit in foreign banks and he had begun to give up the cash in the Young Turks.

WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Summary of the Important Measures Which Were Made Into Laws, and Those Which Failed of Passage.

Marked by some unusual features, the forty-fifth session of the Michigan Legislature is at an end, and another batch of laws has been turned over to the courts for construction and the people for their guidance. By virtue of provisions of the new constitution it has been one of the shortest sessions in the history of the State, and by virtue of the same document there has been an absence of many lines of legislative work that have had a familiar part in previous gatherings of the State lawmakers.

Chiefly in this Legislature notable as the body upon which has devolved the duty of carrying out the mandates of the new constitution and obeying its radical changes relative to legislative procedure and the class of laws which might be enacted, and looking ride for immediate and full shipments of textiles, footwear, hardware, furniture and household needs.

Inquiries for turnover and mill output extend into the future and the contracts closed reflect distinct progress in hosiery, knit goods, leather working. Railway orders appear more freely and assure increased activity in the forges and equipment plants. Building materials are in fair request, commodious than heretofore, and this stiffens prices and gain the building trades upon a substantial basis.

Bank clearings, $271,814,502, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1908 by 19.5 per cent and compare with $252,002,830 in 1907. Gains are reported in the Chicago district number 24, against 26 last week, 48 in 1908 and 15 in 1907. Failures with liabilities over $5,000 number 10, against a last week, 7 in 1908 and 4 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Weather conditions continue irregular, but a change for the better has set in with an improved tone in stocks. Sentiment is slightly improved, though disappointing and unsettling influences of the repression heretofore evident. Re-order business from jobbers and retailers has been rather quiet, but there is, if anything, a more assured optimism in regard to the prospects as to the outlook for next fall and winter trade.

OKLAHOMA TOWNS ARE FLOODED

Heavy Rain and Hail Storm Cause Damage over Wide Area.

One of the heaviest rainfalls in northeastern Oklahoma in recent years has swollen Grand River and other streams to the flood stage, causing much damage to railroad property and farms and partially submerging the town of Afton, twelve miles east of Vinita. At Colony, a portion of the trestle work of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway bridge has been carried away. Other bridges are in danger and train service is demoralized. A terrific downpour falling in continuous rain of four days causes the Canadian and Arkansas rivers to rise rapidly. The streets and many houses in Muskogee are inundated by the storm. Six inches of rain fell in three hours in a territory extending from Muskogee south from South Haven, Kan., into Oklahoma. The rain was accompanied by a storm of hail that beat the grain into the ground.

TRACY & CO. FAIL.

Action Against Brokerage House Taken in New York.

The big stock and grain house of Tracy & Co., with two Chicago offices, three offices in New York, and branches in five other cities, went into the hands of a receiver late Monday afternoon. A rough estimate made by attorneys for various creditors placed the liabilities at $1,250,000, with assets of $950,000, although the amounts named in the petitions were only $1,000,000 and $750,000 respectively. William W. Tracy, formerly president of the Lincoln Park board in Chicago, and a well-known Illinoisan, was head of the company.

Unfortunate ventures in the cotton market in New York and Chicago and a hard success in the recent grain corner explained by James A. Patten were ascribed as the chief causes of the failure in dispatches from New York, where the formal court action was taken. There was no announcement of the exact cause of the failure by the firm, but R. A. Ballantine, the receiver, he said he understood money lost in tactical promotions figured in the recent ventures. The firm is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade and the New York Stock Exchange, but is said to have had no stock exchange obligations.

STOESSEL LEAVES RUSSIAN JAIL

General Sentenced for Surrendering Port Arthur Released by Czar.

Lieutenant General Baron A. M. Stoessel and Rear Admiral Nebogatoff have been released from the fortresses of St. Peter and St. Paul by order of Emperor Nicholas of Russia. The health of both leaders has been gravely affected by their confinement.

General Stoessel was found guilty by court martial of surrendering the forts of Port Arthur to the Japanese and was sentenced to ten years imprisonment. Nebogatoff was sentenced to the same term for the same length of time for surrendering to the enemy at Tsushima Strait. Stoessel began his sentence March 20, 1908, while Nebogatoff took up his term on the fortresses April 15, 1907.

under Nebogatoff in the Russo-Japanese war, were pardoned and released from the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. Nebogatoff was sentenced to death for having surrendered their commander, but in view of extenuating circumstances their sentences were commuted to ten years imprisonment, which they began serving in 1907.

OPENS 800,000 ACRES.

President Provides for Homes for Settlers in Western Reservations.

President Taft has issued a proclamation providing for the opening up to settlement and entry of about 440,000 acres of land in the Kootenai (Idaho), and in the Coeur d'Alene (Idaho) and between 50,000 and 100,000 in the Colville (Wash.) reservations in Washington, which will commence on July 15 and close on Aug. 15. Land to be opened is known to all settlers who have been considered, the widow's mite of all, inexhaustible.

I issue financial methods were accompanied by the loose financial machinery of our institutions. The chairman of the Senate Finance committee is not a unknown of the government, but now the responsibility that rests on an Finance minister. The secretary of the treasury, on the other hand, has no responsibility to the legislature who voted appropriations with instructions for him to disburse the same.

In short, this government has been carried on for more than a century without a budget, which is an extraordinary as if a bank were conducted without ever drawing a balance, or a business without ever correlating profit and loss. The Taft system is the cabinet sitting as a body and by it are studied and overhauled.

In Congress, too, says Mr. MacVeagh, "the idea of a budget and of the study of government expenditures and revenues as mutually related, has taken form, as shown in the Senates action in creating a committee on expenditures which will bring together the estimated revenues and the estimated expenditures, and will decide whether the imposition of additional taxes is necessary. The budget idea will bring about a new sense of responsibility and a new moral of intelligence and systematic spending."

Government is not pure business, but some business system should characterize government. The finances of the United States are in a condition certainly over since the days of Andrew Jackson, in business style. Congress and the heads of departments have been consulted in this inspiration, and proceeded to demand and appropriate what sums they could agree upon. The wealth of the country has increased so enormously that the Washington government has ever been disposed to regard the country as a spendthrift son regards an indulgent father. The pockets of Uncle Sam have been considered, like the widow's cruse of oil, inexhaustible.

Political Comment.

As Taft Sees Porto Rico.

President Taft, being an expert by virtue of experience upon the Philippines and also being a specialist upon Cuban pacification and Panama revolution, is fairly entitled to be taken as authority in regard to colonial affairs. The presumption amounts to proof that he knows whereof he speaks, when he sends a special message to Congress concerning Porto Rico.

The recommendations he transmits in the message should be heeded. The message itself is detailed and concrete, and pregnant with evidence in support of the President's conclusions. Congress cannot well be in possession of as much knowledge and as accurate information concerning Porto Rico as is in possession of the President.

A recent contribution to the choice of Judge Taft for President, was his expressive fitness to govern well our new dependency. Having been elected with that purpose in view, he should now be allowed to try out his ideas. He is the least likely to be wrong concerning them, and even if he is wrong, no one else among us, neither citizens nor Congress, can possibly be more right.

The Porto Ricans have protested vociferously for the last two years against our government, our officials, our judges, our everything else in the island. They contend that our tariff rules their coffee-growing, and a combination of them have been lobbying in Washington in favor of a 4 or 5 cent duty on Brazilian and other foreign coffee, in order to make a market here for the Porto Rican product.

President Taft does not propose to permit the Porto Rican people to raise the bill in their interest and he is absurably heroic. He believes that not more, but less, self-government just now is the most effective thing they needs. He declares that American rule has given the island a higher liberty and greater prosperity than ever in its history. He says that if such rule should be continued for a while with greater limitations upon the self-government of the island, and upon the course to the Porto Ricans are further educated in liberty and autonomy.

The probability is large that President Taft is right. The experience of Congress following his advice amounts to no less than duty.—Minneapolis Journal.

No Tariff Cure For Wheat Corners.

Representative Tawney, of Minnesota, West Virginia, has proposed to cure the evil of wheat corners by repealing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend the duty on wheat imported for a period of ninety days whenever, owing to the full extent of the wheat collected among farmers and dealers had combined or conspired in this particular case to refuse to sell for deal with the consumers. It would not be substituted in law that the refusal was illegal. The idea is that "the extent of the business can affect the rights of one party." The conclusion, however, he says: "If the aggregation of enormous industries made a single control is economic evil, as in which I express no opinion, the evil can be easily cured by the Legislature."

Socialist Editor Convicted.

Fred C. Richards, editor of the Editor of the Appeal to Reason, was found guilty at Fort Scott, Kan., on the charge of sending a letter to the press in connection with his offer of a reward of $1,000 to any person who would kidnap former Governor Taylor of Kentucky, and return him to the State. Mr. Richards, who has circulated two years ago, was indicted for draw attention to the alleged kidnaping of the accused minister leaders from Colorado by the officials of Idaho. Governor Taylor was present at the trial as a witness for the State. Mr. Richards contend only briefly by the State and not at all by the defense. Warren's attorney said that he has as much right as a private citizen as any official had to offer a reward for the capture of any fugitive. He charges that the jury was influenced by prejudice against him and to his party. The case will be appealed to a higher court.

Aid for Unemployed.

At 14 State street, New York, the first public office of the Unemployed Employment Exchange has been opened. No fees are to be charged for registration of persons looking for manual labor and for the present more than half of the employers who get helpers through this bureau. Which work will be secured for an applicant a fee of $2 will be charged and deducted from the first earnings. Employers are to pay the cost of transportation of laborers.

THE TAFT BUDGET IDEA.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh Regards It As An Important Movement.

The introduction of a balanced budget in President Taft is regarded by Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh as "the most important movement in many years."

The secretary explained in his report to the President that before there had been no correlation of the financial estimates. Each head of department went ahead on his own book, on preparing the statement of his needs, and these separate, unrelated estimates were transmitted to Congress without modification.

Each estimate thus has depended upon the conception, the temperament or perhaps the ambitions of its chief. No general law of economy or of policy "standardized" the estimates.

Under the Taft plan the idea of a budget governs the relation between expenditures and revenues is considered; the estimates are turned in to the cabinet sitting as a body and by it are studied and overhauled.

In Congress, too, says Mr. MacVeagh, "the idea of a budget and of the study of government expenditures and revenues as mutually related, has taken form, as shown in the Senates action in creating a committee on expenditures which will bring together the estimated revenues and the estimated expenditures, and will decide whether the imposition of additional taxes is necessary. Trombonesque Tariff Revision.

The sweet music of labor which will ever be derived will in its final analysis be nothing more and less than compromise selfishness. Massachusetts wants free hides and a tariff on shoes. Iowa wants a tariff on hides and the lowest possible duty on steel—according to our United States senators. Florida, voting the free trade ticket year after year, shows a premium upon inconsistency by demanding that the fruits which are her sprightly shafts have ample protection. The Virginias and the Carolinas, from south to north, want a duty on the peanuts. And so it goes from one end of the country to the other. The most possible result must be a compromise measure which shall serve the double purpose of providing sufficient revenue to run the government and furnish protection to American industry and labor. If our representatives in Washington know when they are well off they will give to the country a tariff law which will do the business for as long a period as the Dingley tariff measure has done.—Des Moines Capital.

Those Feminine "Protests."

The free trade camp is making much of the "attitude of women" in regard to the tariff on gloves and hosiery and discourse solemnly of the hundred thousand or more women who are said to be represented in the protest against the duty placed on these articles in the new Payne bill. It is fair to say, however, that not one in ten of the women referred to ever took a second thought about this special duty—perhaps "real estate" did the work and this is the way a council operates: its membership is made up of two or three women, representing each of a number of clubs and societies which, in turn, have themselves delegated to their literary pursuits or some other special work. Each of these—either with other matters and delegate to the council the task of looking after some public in terest, as more in need attention. The council, therefore, consisting of, say, fifty persons, is carried off its feet by some ardent member who thinks she knows, violently denounces the tariff and forthwith forwards to Congress its denunciation as the action of 3,000 women.—Philadelphia Ledger.

BUSH FIRES CAUSE HEAVY LOSS

Big Mills Go Down Before the Onrush of Destructive Flames.

Word has been received at Winnipeg that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed and scores of ranchers were forced to flee for their lives as the result of disasters from bush fires that swept the country from North Hill, as far east as Three Valley, and south from Sycamore as far as Vernon in the Okanagan. Among the losses are two large saw mills, both of which were totally consumed in the wall of flame that swept overland. The Carlin mill, located between Tappen Siding and North Hill, was wiped out with a loss of $75,000 as was also the Carlinn mill on Salmon river, valued at $25,000. Several mill hands had to flee for their lives. Three large lumber yards have been burning for several days, and a terrific gale soon brought them into contact with each other.

Farms and houses fell prey to the fire, and many head of cattle were lost. Whole scores of settlers left everything and hastened to save their lives. The total losses, it is known, will reach half a million dollars. The Canadian Pacific Railroad fences and telegraph lines were destroyed for nearly twenty miles, and telegraph communication between Revelstoke and Kamloops was cut off for hours. West of Kamloops the fire swept down down by the wind.

The car attracts a great deal of attention and is said to be the finest one in Northern Michigan.

Within less than a month the asylum at Traverse City has had three suicides, the last being Mrs. Emma Olmstead, a patient from Isabella county, who last Thursday morning secured a bottle of carbolic acid from a medicine closet and drank about an ounce, dying within a short time. Since the establishment of the institution, about twenty years ago, there have been but four suicides by inmates or attendants.

A Lansing dispatch says: State Fire Warden Pierce has received the first report of a forest fire for the present season. A settler in Antrim county burned some waste timber and the flames spread destroying several cords of wood belonging to a neighbor. The man who gave the fire a start paid damages amounting to $130 and will not be prosecuted. Later it appears that the fire was in Clearwater township near the south line of Antrim county.

Attorney A. G. Urquhart, of Hoyne City, who was recently appointed trustee for Moxie Spangenberg's creditors is placed in a queer position. Spangenberg was a liquor dealer who went into bankruptcy just before local option closed the liquor traffic. Urquhart has been ordered by the court to close out the property which consists chiefly of liquors. The question is, should he dispose of the liquor and be the first violator of the local option law, or should he disobey the court's order and be held for contempt.

Harbor Springs Republican: The illegal fish catchers' steamer Chase S. Osborn was pulled into the water last Wednesday afternoon, and on Thursday made a trial spout out into the bay. In speaking of the trial Hip Deputy Game Warden Eddy said: "We went about half way across the bay. Our new engine turned over at the rate of about thirteen miles an hour. We can run faster, but that is fast enough to catch any illegal fishermen. When they know they can be caught they won't attempt to escape. We are well pleased with the boat as she is now." She is a staunch looking craft and while she seems to be considerably longer than the steamer Three Brothers, she lacks in the beam measure and does not carry quite so large a load. She can take on about 700,000 feet of lumber while the Three Brothers has taken out between 800,000 and 900,000 feet.

One of the most prominent fruit growers of the county was interviewed lately by a Traverse City Record reporter in regard to the prospects for fruit the coming season, and he declared. This region can beat the world in that respect."

Hoyne Journal: The Supreme Court has finally announced its decision in the local option case which went up from this county. It will be remembered that after Judge Mayne refused the liquor nets an injunction that the matter was taken into the supreme court by their attorneys. WASHING OF CURTAINS.

How to Clean the Lace Varieties at Home and Save Money.

Curtains sent out to the cleaners for washing cost a pretty penny that can be saved as well as not by doing them at home. Shake and brush the curtains to remove all dust. Make a good suds of white soap, cold water and a little borax. Lay the curtains in it and let stand for several hours or overnight. If curtains blackened by a soft coal atmosphere are put into warm water, as is sometimes advised, they will be gritty to the end of their days, no matter what is done afterward to bleach and clear them.

Change the cold water once or twice during the soaking process, working the curtains up and down in it and squeezing between the hands to get the dirt out. Now put into clean warm suds with ammonia or some of the washing fluid added and squeeze and rub until the curtains are clean. Never wring curtains by hand. Simply squeeze, which does not stretch the mesh, or lay on a strip of cloth and put carefully through the wringer. Rinse in several waters to which a little borax has been added, then put through hot, moderately thick starch. If cream colored, add a little strong coffee. If you have a drying frame, and this is a great convenience, set in the air and pin the curtains to it pinkets, drying two or three curtains on the frame at the same time. If you have no frames, lay clean sheets on the floor of a unused room and pin the curtains on it square and true, fastening with a pin in each point, or if some must be skipped do so at regular intervals. It is a good thing to attach to poles, pinning the selvages of the two curtains together.

To make starch for curtains take a large clean pan with no symptoms of rust and put in it a half cupful or more of starch, according to the number of curtains to be starched. Add cold water to mix to the consistency of thin cream, then pour in boiling water from the teakettle in a thin stream, stirring constantly to avoid lumping. Add a teaspoonful of kerosene or stir with a sperm candle kept for this purpose and cook until clear.

Wisdom in Old Adages.

"Strike when the iron is hot" and keep it hot by striking. Take time while time is, for time will away." the English say. The Spanish proverb has it: "When the fool has made up his mind the market has gone by." The old Latins said: "Opportunity has hair in front, behind she is bald; if you seize her by the forelock, you may hold her; but if suffered to escape, not Jupiter himself can catch her again."

Mortgage Sale.
Default having been made in the conditions of a mortgage made and executed by Chas. Hosmer and Alvina Hosmer to E. Gilbowski, dated the twenty-fourth day of June, A. D. 1907, and recorded in Charlevoix County, Michigan, January twenty-fourth, 1908 in Liber 3 on mortgages, on page 99, which said mortgage was duly assigned by said E. Gilbowski to the undersigned by an instrument in writing, on the twenty-first day of February 1908, and recorded in the same office of said county, on the 27 day of February of said year, which said assignment, duly executed by the said Gilbowski, there is claimed to be due and is due at the time of this notice the sum of four hundred and twenty dollars principal and interest, and the further sum of fifteen dollars as an attorney fee, stipulated for in said mortgage and whereas the said mortgage contained the clause that upon default in payment of any of said sums of principal and interest the said mortgagee had the right to declare the whole sum of said mortgage and interest thereon at once due and payable and to foreclose said mortgage and whereas default in payment has become operative.
Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises thereon described at public auction, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the 26th day of July, A. D. 1909, at one o'clock in the afternoon of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to wit: The following described land and premises situated in the Village of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, viz: Commencing at a point one hundred and eight feet south of southeast corner of Lot one hundred and twenty-six (126) in Boyne City, thence south one hundred and eight feet, thence west one hundred and twenty feet, thence north one hundred and eight feet, thence east one hundred and twenty feet to place of beginning. Together with the right to take from said premises any and all gravel, sand and stone, and the right to enter upon said premises at any time for the purpose of taking and removing said gravel, sand and stone, and the right to take from said premises any and all gravel, sand and stone, and the right to enter upon said premises at any time for the purpose of taking and removing said gravel, sand and stone, and the right to take from said premises any and all gravel, sand and stone, and the right to enter upon said premises at any time for the purpose of taking and removing said gravel, sand and stone.

"Well, Jim," he said, patting out his hand. "I hope you're feelin' out of sight." Whaston took his hand and said good evening. He threw open his coat and put down his hat.

"A little fresh air wouldn't hurt you any," he said, thinking himself funny in his chair.

"Well, I guess your own freshness will make up for it," said Snyder.

Whaston did not think he was very cool and manner of the admission.

"I came to see what you want, and I had better come quick, I guess."

"Oh, you shake up, Jim, said Snyder, with his easy laugh. "I don't have to give you my secrets for you to know that you're ever down to snuff for me. You don't want you to forget that I did that for you once."

"Look better not rely on that too much. I was a poor little kid and all the world I ever knew I learned from you. What is it you want now?"

"Why, I want you to pick up a friend from that nice Immerson job for me—a real live friend, Jim."

"I had nothing to do with it. The people in charge of that have a right to send them and I had nothing more to do with it. The fact is I attached a point to you; you in there. Mr. Saxton has taken the whole matter off the reach of my hands."

"Well, I don't know anything about that," said Snyder, contemptuously. "But that don't make any difference, I'm out and I don't know but I'm glad to be out. That was a fool job from about the beginning. I don't want your friend Mr. Saxton Smith seems to take a shine to me; wanted me to go down with him all over the Northwest——"

"The Northwest?" said Whaston, a faint smile drawing at the corners of his mouth.

"None of that kind of talk," returned Snyder, sharply. "Look here, if you get to say for yourself?"

"Why, I don't know anything about myself," said Whaston, coolly. "What is your idea? Do you want me to go to get out of here in a hurry and stay out?"

"Why, I'm in a hurry, Jim. Large bodies move slowly. It took me a long time to find you and I don't believe I'm the last to be a hurry."

"I have no more job for you; if you stay about here you'll get into trouble. I was a fool to come out in that ranch. I heard about your little round with the sheriff, and the gambling you carried on in the ranch house."

"Well, what's that to you? I'm a fool you're getting on," said Snyder, with a chuckle.

"Now I'm going to make you a fair offer: I'll give you one hundred dollars down and you can go to Mexico or Canada or—"

"Hold your pipe, Jim," said Snyder. "A hundred wouldn't take me very far."

"Oh yes, it will. What I'd do," Whaston went on undisturbed, "is to buy you a ticket to Spokane or Portland—wherever you have your transportation—and a hundred dollars in cash. Now that's all I'll do for you, and it's a big sum of money for me."

"Oh, no it isn't," said Snyder.

"And it is the best I'll ever do."

"Don't be too sure of that, Jim; I can get a regular salary and a regular allowance, say, twenty-five dollars a month."

"I don't intend to fool with you," said Whaston, with a frown. "I have picked up his let. "What I offer you is quite a little kindness; we may be well enough stand each other. You and I are walking along different lines. I'm the guy that you succeed in some honorable business; you're not cut to that mold. I can't have you around here. It's out of the question—you're giving you a pension, I can't do anything or the kind."

His tone suddenly softened; he took on an air of pathetic magnanimity. Stop and look at your sister.

"Look here, Jim, don't try the goody-goody business on me. You've always got mighty smooth and you're usually good and you're guilty as pretty fast. Your picture in the papers is mighty handsome and you looked real swell in that Sam Bass clothes at the bankers table' to the girls."

"That's another thing," said Whaston, still standing. "I ought to refuse to do anything for you after that. Getting drunk and attacking my cousin's guest! Or do you or no any good. It was about time you stopped. I'm sick of your tricks. I don't fit, and my clothes don't fit, and I don't fit anywhere."

"And you're having a fit. You'd better get a nerve specialist."

"I say, Sattie," he said, calmly. "Well! Has Vanessa subsided?" Saxton sat up in his chair.

"What a merry-hearted of a fool I make of myself! As I'm a living man, I had no more intention of flying with that girl than I had of going up in a balloon and walking back. You know I never know her well; I didn't want to know her; for that matter, not on your life!"

"Is this a guessing contest? I suppose I'm the goat. Well, you didn't care for Miss Margaret's society; is that what you're driving at? She wasn't bear this from me; I'm as safe as a trunk. Moreover, I don't enjoy her acquaintance. Go ahead now, full speed."

"And it was just my luck that I got caught this afternoon," continued Warry, ignoring him. "Sometimes it seems to me that I'm predestined and foreordained to do fool things. I've been working on a weaterwaman's suit against the Transcontinental—running their switch through her back yard—and I had put away all kinds of temptation and was feeling particularly virtuous; but here came the Marquess straight with that girl's case, and I went up the street to long pumps to meet her, and let her drive me all over town and all over the country, and what you'd do something on me; let me have a dollar or three or four or five, or, to vanize, or to something equally brutal and mean that would for a little of the Folly of me. Why," he continued, with utter bewildering, though which his humor glimmered, "I ought to have turned down Mrs. Indian Allen as soon as I saw the monogram on her note paper. Three dollars and bitters as big as your head! My instinctive good taste failure, and my purse needed rest and chastening."

"I quite agree with you, sir. But it's more grievous to blame yourself than Miss Margaret's auditory—that is, if I am correctly gathering up the crumbs of your discourse."

"Now here, John, she means a whole lot to me. You know when I come to Saxton know he did not mean Mamet Marquette. "You know," Harlan went on, "we were kids together up there on those hills. We both had our dancing lessons at her house, and did such stunts as that together——"

"Yes," said Saxton.

"I want to work and show that I'm some good. I want to make myself worthy of her." He got up and walked the floor, while Saxton sat and watched him. "I can't talk about it you understand what I want to do. It has seemed to me lately that I have more to overcome than I ever dreamed." He stood at the window playing with the cord of the shade and looking out over the town. Saxton walked to the window and stood by him, saying nothing and after a minute he put his hand on Harlan's shoulder. And Saxton has found and grasped Warry's slender fingers in his broad, strong hand.

"I understand how it is, old man. It isn't as it as you think it is. I'm sure it will all come out right."

AMERICAN EX-PRESIDENTS.

Only Two of Roosevelt's Predecessors Retired to Public Life.

President Roosevelt retired from his exalted office while a comparatively young man, and doubtless looks forward to a longer lease of life than has fallen to the lot of a majority of retiring presidents, says the Salt Lake Herald. John Adams, the second President, lived over a quarter of a century after laying down the cares of office, but the average period of life of Presidents after retirement is only twelve years and ten months. The list follows:

George Washington lived two years and nine months after retirement.

John Adams lived twenty-five years and six months.

Thomas Jefferson lived seventeen years and three months.

James Madison lived thirteen years and three months.

James Monroe lived six years and four months.

John Quincy Adams lived nineteen years and served in the House of Representatives.

Andrew Jackson lived eight years and three months.

Martin Van Buren lived twenty-one years and four months.

William Henry Harrison died prior to one month after his inauguration, April 4, 1841.

John Tyler lived seventeen years after retirement.

James K. Polk lived three months.

Zachary Taylor died in office, sixteen months after his inauguration.

Millard Fillmore lived twenty-one years after his retirement.

Franklin Pierce lived twelve years and seven months.

James Buchanan lived six years and eleven months.

Abraham Lincoln died in office.

Andrew Jackson lived six years and four months after retirement, and served a portion of a term in the United States Senate.

U. S. Grant lived eight years and four months after retirement.

Rutherford B. Hayes lived eighteen years and eleven months.

James A. Garfield died four months after his inauguration.

Chester A. Arthur survived one year and eight months after retirement.

Grover Cleveland lived ten years and two months.

Benjamin Harrison lived eight years.

William McKinley died in office.

Only two of Mr. Roosevelt's predecessors returned to public life. John Adams died while a member of the House of Representatives, and Andrew Jackson passing away while United States Senator. Mr. Roosevelt may also return to Washington as a Senator, but whether he does or not the people of the country, regardless of politics or religion, will wish him a lease of life far beyond the three score and ten allotted to mankind.

Her Mother Wit.

A Kentucky girl whose father was an undertaker, was sent to a fashionable New York boarding house for a finishing term. One day one of the girls asked her if her business her father was in, and, fearing she would lose caste if she told the truth, she cleverly answered: "Oh, my father's a Southern planter."—Lippincott's.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

PURPOSE OF CHRISTIANITY.

By Rev. Jerry G. Smith, D. D.

"And this they did, not as we had hoped, but first gave of their own selves to the Lord and unto us by the will of God."—II. Cor. 8: 5.

The supreme purpose of Christians, and of the Christian church, is or should be to take away the sin of the world. How true is this of the church in general and how true is it of our particular church and how true is it of our individual Christian lives? Is it the great central thing in our endeavors? Is it also subordinate to this great divine purpose? Is there a mighty hunger in the heart of the church in general and in the heart of our church in particular and in the heart of all of us as Christians this morning to take away the sin of the world? Or have we fallen into the easy supposition that the world is in a very prosperous condition, that it is not in the vitality of spiritual life, that it is not greater activity in the Christian church and in the Christian heart today, so that we can look at the world and say we have away from the sin of the world? There is a vast amount of difference in it the great object of the Christian church and of the Christian heart today to take sin out of the world. What is the purpose of sin in the world? Whatever may hold in theory, in actual practice I believe it is true that sin as a Christian are concerned, not so much in taking away the sin of the world as in taking away the sin of our own hearts, in turning away from the sin of the world, and many of us, I fear, are not working very hard at that even.

Now these are serious questions; they affect the future of our lives and the future of our children. We are going to be as certainly as the sun affects the growth of a plant, the influence of the church in theory, at least, the church still holds that its business is to take away the world; to take away the sin of the world. Now if that be true let us look for a moment upon the tremendous task that is ours. Some of the specific things we must do.

First and all we must drive deeply out of the world; we must drive it out of our homes and lives, out of our business, out of our business; out of our social relationships, how thoroughly it has entrenched itself and woven itself into the very fabric of life. It must go. God desireth truth in the inward parts and that means clery to the heart of a man's life; his business can come in no other way; it is built upon no other foundation. The world's ideals are our cities to be cleaned up; to be made whole. The great city of America today is an entirely modern institution; there has been nothing like it in the past. The cities of the world are the product of centuries of slow growth, but here in America under the whip and lash of steam and electricity great cities have sprung into being as if by magic, and the crowding into those great cities of millions of people from Europe century and every clime, due to causes that are entirely modern and did not exist a century ago, this has created conditions and offered opportunities for vice and crime and graft and greed that are unprecedented. Now these must be made clean; we must learn how to live together and live right, economly and soundly and cleanly and unselfishly. Every question that concerns the city life must be looked at from the moral standpoint. Here is a tremendous problem that lies at the foundation of great souls. How are we Christians to meet it? Shall we go to the suburbs; keeping away from the sin of the world instead of taking away the sin of the world. And we again are all the injustices of the industrial system on the other side of the question; on the side of labor and on the side of capital; the unfairness, the injustice, the cruelty, the selfishness, the hatred, these must all be adjusted, righteousness and brotherhood must here in the great heathen world to conquer in Christianity. It is absolutely necessary that this be done, for every country is controlled, not by its rulers, but by its ideals. We talk about democracy and the rule of the people; down underneath government, industry, education, and customs and ethic habits and everything else we find the religious ideas of a nation. There is not a thing in China or India or Africa or any other but of pagan country that you know of that man it and makes it a place where you would not want to live but that it has its root in the religious ideas of that country. Man after all is hopelessly religious and it is religion that governs the world, and if you want to exalt a nation give it a clearer vision of God and of his will and purpose for man and of man's relating to him and to his fellow man. You must remove the fountain if you would make pure the streams, and a nation's religious ideas constitute the very fountain of its life. These must be purified, must be converted to the clearer, sweeter vision of God as revealed in Jesus Christ and here is the great work of the conference to be overcome. That is in the world. Now, Christians, I do not know of anything in connection with Christian work in the city that is more difficult and more heartbreaking than just the phlegmatic indifference of people who should be allies and aids in the kingdom of God. We are the great business of the Christian church is to "seek and to save that which is lost." If it is to "take away the sin of the world," and not merely to "keep away from the sin of the world." Here are these great problems before us, and some other problems might catalogue did time permit; but here are these—the drifting out of the city and the bringing in of the realm of truth, truth in the inward parts, and not merely on the outward surface, the cleansing of our great cities and giving them the power and purpose of God, the righteous adjustment of the industrial injustices and differences, the conversion of the heathen world and the overcoming of the powers of hostile of darkness in the lives of those who ought to be ablaze with enthusiasm in the service of their Lord and Master. These are vast undertakings; they call for supreme faith and undaunted heroism.

Now, the question is how is it all to be done; what is the divine program for accomplishing these great ends? There is a right way and a wrong way to go about it, and the marvel is that after almost nineteen centuries of error leading us to the right way we should continuously be drifting into the wrong way for accomplishing these great ends and behind the reign of the kingdom of God. Let us look at the wrong way for just a moment in order that we may see more clearly the right way. The wrong way is simply to tell the world in cold, dynamicistery, belligerent tones what it ought to do; to stand either in the pulpit or the marketplace and with a frown on our faces tell men they must stop lying, must stop deceiving, must stop vicious practices that debauch the blood and ruin the souls and industrial injustices that cause great islands of wealth to rise beside a chasm in which are the children of a race of poverty; to tell the heathen worlds coldly and dogmatically that they must throw their idols their idols and their superstitions and subjugate themselves; to tell the great indifferent world that it is its duty to wake up; to continually be a nagging, wriking, impreratory tone against all the wrongs Christianity ought to correct. All the wrong way to accomplish this great work is to wait for some great leader upon the other hand, it will do positive harm. It will never be long to solution of the problem. Men will follow a superior way that it is his duty to follow a certain way simply because it is his to do it; perhaps he does not feel that it is his duty; then to tell him he ought to feel it, or that he is a Christian, is simply no argument at all. It is the power of the Christian life, the power of the Christian spirit, the power of what men call Christianity

Additional Locals.

—"My Boy Jack" will be at the Charlevoix Theater Tuesday June 8th.

—Elmer Salgren, of Joliet, Ill., will spend the summer at Norwood, with Geo. H. Van Pelt.

—The Melrose Highway case was up before Judge Mayne again Tuesday at a special chancery sitting.

—A very fine horse arrived from Chicago on the Missouri Sunday for Warden Gaskins, of the Chicago Club.

—A treat in music and fun at the Bridge Theatre the last three nights of this week. Admission, Adults 10c Children 5c.

—Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 292 F. & A. M., next Tuesday evening, June 8th, for work on M. M. degree. By order of W. M.

—Special Convocation of Charlevoix Chapter No. 141 R. A. M. Monday evening June 7. Work on R. A. M. Degree. All companions cordially invited to be present. By order E. H. P.

—The annual meeting of the Charlevoix County Odd Fellows Mutual Benefit Association will be held in Odd Fellow hall on Monday June 7th at 10 o'clock a. m. All officers are requested to be present. By order of Sec'y.

—Manager Spencer announces "The Two Lambritzes," French Musical Monarchs, Jack Dresden, "The Band Box Cutup," songs, stories, dancing and impersonations. Bridge Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights this week.

—Arthur Beattie, of Marion, left yesterday for a western trip that will take in points in Washington, Montana and Idaho, returning through the Canadian Northwest some time in August. While in the west he will take in the Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle.

—Geo. H. VanPelt has let the contract to Ed. Stafford to tear down the building on Bridge street, across the alley from the postoffice, to permit the erection of his new block. Mr. VanPelt could have sold the building, but he thinks there are buildings enough at that coast on the street already.

—A party of young folks picnicked south of town on Memorial Day. Those who composed the party were Misses Sarah Levinson, Merle Felts, Ruby Emory, Sherlock, Lou Jackson, Mae Felts, Mary Ketchner and Marion Harris, and Messrs Harry Dodge, Dr. Barney, Clay Felts, Geo. Crozier, Hollie Lewis, Meyer Levinson, Harry Cook and Fred Gilbert.

—A leasing dispatch says prosecuting attorneys in many counties are telephoning to the governor's and the attorney general's office for information as to whether the two liquor bills of the session—the Warner-Cranston and the Dickinson search and seizure—were given immediate effect by the legislature. The answer is that they were not. Neither goes into effect until 90 days after adjournment, which means September 19.

—The drama "My Boy Jack" will be presented at the Charlevoix Theater on Tuesday June 8th by Fred G. Conrad, and Mr. Eugene Moore will take the leading part as last year. The play is backed by Mr. Conrad and is given this guarantee by both himself and the theater Manager, that "If you are not satisfied after the first act go to the box office and get your money back and do your talk from there." The play pleased well last year and expect to see a good house on the 8th of June. Tickets will be on sale Saturday June 5th at Chapel's Drug Store. The theater patrons will please notice the change of place to Chapel's Drug Store where it will be through the next season.

—State Oil Inspector Neal calls the public's attention to a few changes made by the present legislature in the so called "Red Can" Gasoline act. The new law, which goes into effect September 1st next, provides that can, buckets, barrels, etc., which are to be painted a bright red, may be "lettered" with the word gasoline instead of being "stenciled" as heretofore. It also provides that retail merchants must have their barrels or tanks in their stores, from which they sell, painted bright red and lettered thereon with the word gasoline. The delivery to consumer, and to dealers as well, must be made in receptacles frame, buckets, tops, barrels or whatever the delivery is made in that are painted bright red and lettered. Tee tanks or cans on peddlers wagons must be painted and lettered and the tank wagons of wholesalers must be labeled if containing gasoline. The person who purchases gasoline says Hinsdale Inspector, is free if he has it in anything but the proper red can. For cleaning purposes gasoline can only be sold in bottles, properly labeled, and not more than one quart in quantity.

—Forest Bartholomew, a born and bred Charlevoix boy, who is making rapid progress toward the front as a Chicago architect, has been in the city a few days. He is the architect of the new Van Pelt block, to be built this summer on Bridge street, and he came on business connected with that work.

—Capt. H. C. Plum on Tuesday qualified as master of the steamer Searchlight. The boat will "run wild" for a time, making special trips that may be required, until a regular run develops somewhere later in the season. She went to Boyne City Tuesday evening with a Modern Woodmen excursion.

—Saturday of this week the S. S. Missouri begins a schedule of two trips per week, up to June 26th. The Illinois will also come on this run for the same period. On one of her trips, however, the Missouri will only cross as far north as Grand Traverse bay. After June 26th the regular summer arrangement takes effect.

—The steamer Columbia, which came in from Escanaba with ore for Boyne City Sunday, threw more water than there was in the upper channel and swung her stern around against the island. In her struggles to get off the bottom she kicked the foundation from under a Chicago Club boat house and dredged away about twenty feet of the west end of the island. The club will hold the boat responsible for damages.

—The most unique and by far the prettiest booklet the Belvedere hotel has ever got out is that of 1909, a copy of which lies on our desk. The unique character of the brochure is indicated by a paragraph on the title page. "An Idyll of the North Land. Being excerpts from a diary without address found in Charlevoix by John B. Ring, and edited and designed into a booklet by him in a desire that the owner might be found." The story is told by a Belvedere guest, which gives it the force of impartiality. It is a story well and truly told. The half tone cuts are as perfect as photographs, and adorn the book as charmingly as nature and art adorn the beautiful grounds of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association. The booklet itself is a faithful counterpart of its entrancing beauties of this famous summer retreat, proving conclusively that Manager Foley possesses the artistic trend.

County Normal Notes

Miss Maggie Mitchell, class of '04 and Mrs. J. Crandall visited the Normal Thursday afternoon.

Rev. A. D. Grigsby of East Jordan called on the class Thursday morning. Mr. Grigsby gave a brief talk and told some very good stories which were interesting to the class.

Clare Finneran went to Traverse City Wednesday, returning that evening.

Some maps relating to history have been made by the members of the class.

Miss Susie Sheldon, a member of this year's class who was obliged to give up her work on account of illness, visited the Normal class Friday afternoon. Miss Sheldon is feeling much better.

In our work in physiology the common house fly has been studied in connection with various communicable diseases. The following is one of the papers prepared on this topic.

THE FLY

The fly, whilst is found all over the world, lays its eggs freely in horse manure and decayed substances. The eggs, which are elongate in shape and white in color, hatch in six or eight hours after being laid. The larvae which develop very rapidly, reach full growth in four or five days. A single fly lays about 150 eggs and the enormous number of insects is accounted for when we consider the number of uncared for piles of horse manure, which furnished food for the larvae.

The flies are very annoying to live stock, but especially dangerous to people, because one fly can carry as many as 1500 germs of disease. Tuberculosis, the most prevalent and destructive of diseases, affects both mankind and animals and is especially communicable by flies. Among farm stock, cattle and swine, are most often affected and unfortunately people prefer to feed the carrier of this dreaded disease rather than keep their stables in the proper condition. It is said that, from a quarter of a pound of manure from the center of a pile 160 larvae and 146 pupaia of the house fly were taken. If horse manure was put daily in a pit and treated with chloride of lime, the number of horse flies might be greatly lessened. It is to be hoped that diseases will decrease in the city, as horses are being supplanted by the motor cars. But there is not much hope for the country people unless Boards of Health insist on the proper disposal of manure.

Could Not Be Better.

No one has ever made a salve, ointment, lotion or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Its the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Salt Rheum. For sore Eyes, Cold Sores, Chapped Hands its supreme. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at F. BUSINESS IMPROVING

The Commercial Agencies Put Out Encouraging Reports of Conditions

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade issued Saturday said:

Almost every development except the lengthening debate on the tariff is favorable and the gains made in spite of the tariff disturbance are a fair indication of what may be expected when this is out of the way. The domestic agricultural conditions throughout the country are excellent and yet the prices of farm products continue to advance. The area of improvement in iron and steel is rapidly widening and a notable event of the week is the restoration of wages by the independent producers. The reports of the railroads are of steadily increasing business and the latest earnings show a gain of 14.9 per cent over last year, the decrease as compared with 1907 being 12.8 per cent.

Women Who Are Envied.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or kidney problems show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

How People Lose Their Money
By counting it about their person; by allowing it a way in mugs, jugs and jars; by sewing it up in skirts and ticks; by tucking it under the counters and carpets, in cupboards and bureau drawers; these are some of the ways by which people lose their money and sometimes THEIR LIVES.

How People Save Their Money
By depositing it in a good reliable bank. Confident that this bank fully meets that requirement and the public's needs, we tender its services to all who believe in keeping on the SAFE SIDE. Four (4) per cent interest paint on deposits. Compounded semi-annually.

—Miss Edna Sue Green is visiting friends in Chicago.

—Well, Antrim county has swelled our library fund some anyhow.

—Read the new ad. of the Kalamazoo Furnishing and Tailoring Co. in this issue.

—Sam LeFevre, for a year or more past living in Oklahoma, is here for the summer.

—Miss Mattie Bedford is home again from South Carolina, where she spent most of the winter.

—The good weather's steamer Chase S. Osborn, with deputy warden Eddy on board, was in port Monday.

—S. Orlowski & Son are erecting a fine residence on South Bridge street, opposite their store, which the family will occupy.

—Now you know what a saloon excuse like from a distance. It is so far and yet so near that it lends no enchantment to the view.

—Johnson's ice cream factory is now in full blast, and is turning out barrels of fine goods. The factory has just installed a new 44-quart freezer.

—Capt. Geo. Weaver and engineer Emory Baldwin, of the steamer Lou A. Cummings, have moved their families to Boyne City for the season of navigation.

—The Majestic Theatre is putting up excellent entertainments six nights in the week. The moving pictures are first class and the vaudeville numbers are star attractions.

—E. S. Mossallem, the well and favorably known oriental rug man has leased the north store in the Charlevoix Theatre building, and will open up the place about June 18th.

—Bridge Theatre Friday and Saturday Junius and Cutting—Comedy Acrobats, The Jones Brothers, "Hunky Tonks," Minded Lefloy character changes. Souvenire to the ladies Friday.

—Novak, the enterprising Charlevoix cigar manufacturer, has nine people at work in his factory. The shop is turning out a very fine line of goods bearing the "Chicago Club" brand.

—The Underhill & Wilkinson bowling alley, next door south of the Sentinel office, starts out with a rushing business. On Thursday evening of this week ladies are free at this popular place of amusement.

—The cemetery board complains that flowers and plants placed on graves at Brookside cemetery Memorial Day were taken by some unknown persons last week. No punishment short of hanging is too severe for such degenerates. We hope the perpetrators will be apprehended.

—John Dougherty and wife of Hurlbut Avenue, will leave next week for a trip to the far west and northwest. They will go by way of Oregon to Victoria, B. C., bringing up at Seattle, where they will see the big Pacific Alaska Exposition. They will not return home until some in October.

—At St. James Mrs. C. C. Gill lagoon has opened, across the street from the foot of McCann's dock a very neat and fully equipped restaurant, that will be pleasing to many Charlevoix visitors to the beautiful Island. An elegant marble soda fountain has been installed, and Johnson's famous ice cream goes over by about every trip of the boat.

—Michigan is the greatest sugar beet state of these all. This is good news for those interested in the beet sugar industry. Careful estimates from observations made show that Michigan will have an increased beet acreage over 1908 of from twenty to twenty-five per cent. It is estimated that over six million dollars will be paid farmers in Michigan for their beet crop in 1909.

—We are in receipt of the wedding announcement of Dr. E. A. Stripp, formerly of this city, to Miss Montana Mills Tschudy, at Billings Mont., June 31, Dr. and Mrs. Stripp will be at home after September first at Laurel, Mont., which indicates that the young people are on a wedding trip. The SENTINEL considers itself empowered to extend the congratulations of this entire community.

—The old settler, is passing along three street where the old "cropolers" wood yard was, will have hard work to recognize the old Amos Fox home that stood under the bluff. In place of the old house, which was considered a mansion forty years ago, there is now a fine modern residence, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Campbell—the marriage gift of Capt. and Mrs. D. D. Campbell. A wing of the old house has been de sided and converted into a pleasant little cottage, such houses have been leased to reporters for the summer.

Power in Silence.

Here is a hint to those women who forget and fret and fuss. Go into the silence at certain times of the day. One need not necessarily pray for formal prayer. "He who is in the path of duty need not pray" said a wise oriental. But in the silence you will find the source and strength of prayer. In withdrawing from the pressure of things and getting in touch with the great sources of power, you will absorb power.—Ella Wheeler, in Red Book.

Capital Punishment in Germany.

Although little is heard outside Prussia of capital punishment in the kingdom, the law is by no means a dead letter. In seven years there were between 29 executions, ten of the condemned being women, and the list with 21 executions, followed by Brandenburg, Posen and Saxony. Only in exceptional cases, pursuant, passed the Mackay Bill, forbidding under a penalty of $10 or 30 days, the serving of anything eatable in a barroom, except crackers and pretzels. The senate passed the bill several weeks ago.

Merry Humans.

A Whitewater magistrate has decided that a cow has precedence over an automobile and does not yield to it. The cow was on her tail when standing in the road a sights motorists usually observe her end. Humans in cases apparently must take their chances.

A Consistent Deceiver.

"What are you going to do with all that counterfeit money?" asked the prisoner. "My dear," answered Annabia, "I am going to pay my dues in the distinguished club that bears my name."

ISLAND POMOLOGY

The Adaptability of Beaver Island to Fruit Raising—Possibilities That Exist There for Big Profits.

The "McCann Boys,"—Michael J. and John—of St. James, have, the past winter, made an exhaustive study of pomology, the San Jose scale and the parasitic pests that infest the apple orchards, and are doing good missionary work among the island farmers who have orchards, with the result that there is an awakening interest among them in the proper care of the few orchards that the island possesses, and there are many serious thoughts about planting apple trees on the hundreds of acres of island land that can certainly be made "gold mines."

The McCanns, who have considerable lands on the island, propose to demonstrate the truth of the proposition, and set out forty acres of apple trees next year, with a good acreage of plums and peaches. The wisdom of this decision is self-evident. Pomology in Northern Michigan is no longer an experiment, and Beaver Island possesses every element requisite to successful and profitable fruit raising. Its soil is highly adaptable, and it possesses the same climatic conditions that are the pride and boast of the famous Grand Traverse peninsulas. This is abundantly proven by the success of the few small orchards now on the Island, notwithstanding the manifest lack of care and cultivation.

The question of market is already solved. Chicago buyers are greedy for northern Michigan fruit, and they take it from the farmer in his orchard. There is no crop that involves so little labor in the fall. That an orchard requires careful attention is undeniable; but even counting this, the labor is more remunerative than that required for any other crop. In driving out through the splendid fields of of Beaver Island, as the writer did last week, one is absorbed in regret that all these years have been allowed to pass without the creation of large apple orchards. And the force of the proposition is that profitable crops of potatoes can be raised between the trees in the betterment of the orchards itself. What thousands of Beaver Island need is an awakening to the opportunity that exists there for greater profits and increased value of their acreage. The fishing industry there has been a great source of profit for the past fifty years, but pomology can be made to beat it. Fish, apples and potatoes combined can put the Island on easy street."

There is no reason why Beaver Island apples cannot be made as famous as Old Mission apples, and just as profitable. We are glad that a start is about to be made in this direction, and sincerely hope that the Island's second city, Michael's Harbor, will continue their "campaign of education" along the lines so intelligently begun.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hachow, at their beautiful Park Avenue home are giving a house party all this week in honor of a number of relatives and friends. The guests are: A. C. Oliver, cashier of the State of Mexico, Mich; Judson Kingsley, of Traverse City; Owen Gleason, of Copemish; Vincent Langley and Miss Lena Langley, of Toronto; Miss Florence Gregory, of Fife Lake; Miss Mary Smith, of Bellaire, and Miss Ella Sara S. Cornell, of Copemish. On Monday evening a dancing party was given in honor of the guests at the Beach Hotel, to which a number of the young people of the city were invited.

Epworth boxes has been considerably in evidence in Charlevoix recently, and the police court revenues have been increased thereby. The fair sex will fear drunks have been on the carpet before Justice Collins, and every one of them got $10 and costs for their foolishness. In every case it was Ellsworth goods that did the business. The court and the police propose to be specially stringent in abating this nuisance, and will give the offenders the full force of the law, which is $10 and costs for the first offense and ninety days in the Detroit house of correction for the second offense. The city proposes to enjoy the full benefit of the local option law, therefore strict enforcement of the law will be the order from under. If you do not want to feel the full force of it.

THE MILWAUKEE MERCHANTS

They View the Beauties of the Town and its Environs—From Land and Water—All Highly Delighted.

Seventy five representatives of the Milwaukee Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association came down from the north Tuesday noon, in a special train of eight coaches, remaining here an hour and thirty minutes.

The steamer Searchlight, having on board Mayor Wilmer and a delegation of citizens, met the party at the railroad dock and steamed down through the upper channel, from which vantage point the visitors saw the resort splendors on either side; then veered the bottom and through the lower channel to Lake Michigan, where the boat turned about and passed up to Wilson's dock.

Upon landing the party proceeded to the Charlevoix Theatre, where Mayor Wilmer fired an address of welcome at them, to which President John H. Moss, of the Association very pertinently responded. Then—Lemonade scattered along Bridge street, pinning badges on the coats of our people and imbibing the pure, bracing ozone—which was all we had to offer them. At 12:45 they went aboard the boat again for transit to their train, all giving free expression to their admiration for "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

A pleasant feature of the trip is the presence, as members of the Association, of several of the best singers in Milwaukee, including some of the prominent church soloists of that musical city. On the trip down from the train they enlivened the quarter-hour with German songs.

As the boat passed the flag-decorated life saving station Capt. Kent caused Old Glory to be twice dipped in salute, to which the visitors responded with the "Star Spangled Banner" as it was never sung before between those two banks.

The Milwaukee merchants are all jolly good fellows, if the samples sent out represents them as a whole, which is most likely.

NEW PEST HERE

Large Cutworm Despoiling Gardens and Orchards at Alarming Rate.

Traverse City Eagle: The farmers and fruit growers of this section, who are promised such bountiful crops this year, have discovered a source of trouble from an unlooked for quarter that promises to do a great damage the present season unless a remedy is discovered to curb its depredations.

The pest in question is the old fashioned cutworm of gigantic proportions and immense appetite that is working havoc among the orchards and gardens. It does its work in the night and cuts down young garden plants close to the ground and attacks and destroys the young fruit trees by girdling the bark in some convenient place, generally around where the young lines and limbs are located. Like all other insects it does not crawl above a band of cotton when placed on the tree, but gets in its work below the protection and girdles the tree near the ground, in such case destroying its usefulness or killing it outright.

An effective remedy has not been discovered for exterminating this pest, but unless one is found soon the damage will be great, as thousands of young trees have been set out this spring in this region.

This worm is apparently the same that has appeared in different parts of the state the past few years, but this time it is larger in size and more voracious in appetite. The results of other sections have been that it only lays one season and does not appear in the locality again for years, but in the case of the second year the Charlevoix entomologist, Hampton, Mayne, Emory, Durgan, Paddock, Sesbe, Hayes, Smith, Kane, Brady, Hastings, Nettleton and Crane.

The result of this annual attack seems to be a justifiable local pride, not only in our barky, brainy boys, but demonstrates the wisdom in the school training as an adjunct of a healthy mental growth.

AN EASY VICTORY

Charlevoix High School Track Team Breaks Half-Mile Record in Northern Michigan Track Meet at Petoskey.

At Petoskey last Saturday the Charlevoix High School track team, in one of the most spirited contests in its history, easily won the banner and most of the blue ribbons. The record stands: Charlevoix 73½ points; Petoskey 28½; Pellston 14; East Jordan 11½; Harbor Springs 6. Bright, sunny weather and the faces of our boys up to this writing.

The record for the half-mile was lowered from 2:18 to 2:15, the former being held by Myers of Petoskey, with Mayne of Charlevoix not more than six inches behind him and fast overtaking him.

The Charlevoix relay team also won that race. Charlevoix High School has two fine banners coming from the meet, which will be sent by Petoskey at some date. Results of the Charlevoix won the greatest number of points by getting 17 Moody at Pellston, the only one from that place, and the second was The Charlevoix entries were—Hampton, Mayne, Emory, Durgan, Paddock, Sesbe, Hayes, Smith, Brady, Kane, Bridge, Hastings, Nettleton and Crane.

The result of this annual athletic event amply justifies local pride, not only in our barky, brainy boys, but demonstrates the wisdom in the school training as an adjunct of a healthy mental growth.

HIGHWAYS LAWS

Important Sections of the Statute That Should Be Read.

Parts of sections 1, 9, 10, 16, 17 and 18 read as follows:

Section 1. The highways in every organized township in this state shall be laid out, improved and maintained by two money taxes; one tax shall be known as the road repair tax, and shall be assessed on all property in the township outside of the limits of incorporated villages, which tax shall not exceed fifty cents on each one hundred dollars valuation according to the assessment roll of the last preceding year, and the other tax shall be known as the highway improvement tax and shall be assessed on all taxable property in the township, including that within the limits of incorporated villages, which tax shall not exceed fifty cents on each one hundred dollars valuation, according to the assessment roll for the last preceding year.

Sec. 9. The road repair tax shall be expended for labor, material and other necessary expenses, under the supervision and by the direction of the township highway commissioner, on the highways and bridges which will directly benefit the property taxed, not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one mile of highway, unless otherwise directed by the township board. Should the highway or highways or bridges directly adjacent to any property taxed, be in good condition so that no repairs are necessary thereon, then the tax raised on such property may be expended by the highway commissioner on other highways or bridges in the township where it may be needed: Provided, if there be a surplus after the highway or highways or bridges directly adjacent to the property taxed have been repaired and put in good condition, such surplus may be expended by the highway commissioner on other highways and bridges in the township wherever any improvement may be needed.

Sec. 10. The highway improvement fund shall be expended by the township highway commissioner under the direction of the township board in laying out, building and permanently improving or repairing highways and bridges and in the employment of labor, purchasing of material, tools or machinery to be used thereby.

Sec. 16. All work hereafter done upon roads and bridges, except such work as may be required for repairs, shall have in view the permanent improvement of such roads and bridges. Before beginning such permanent improvement on any highway, or survey of the highway shall be made by a competent surveyor and a profile of such survey shall be made and placed on file with the township clerk. This profile shall show the grade lines of the center of the highway and the bottom of the ditches, and there shall be indicated upon the profile a grade line showing cuts and fills which, in the opinion of the surveyor, should be made in order to establish a good grade. All turnpiking shall be done according to this profile before gravel, clay gravel or stone on the highway, unless it can be clearly shown to the township board, and agreed to by the board, that the grade established on such profile will be impracticable and inadvisable when completed, in which case a new grade shall be indicated on the profile, which grade shall be satisfactory to said board. Before proceeding to permanently improve any highway the commissioner shall set grade stakes not more than one hundred feet apart, on the side of the highway to be improved, to which the grade shall be made to conform. The highway shall be constructed in such a manner as to form a turnpike, sufficiently crowning to shed water, with gutters or ditches adequate for drainage. The width of the turnpike shall be not less than eighteen feet between side ditches.

Sec. 17. After any such turnpike shall be used for one year, the rate shall be fixed, after which it shall be graveled or macadamized in cases where gravel or crushed stone can conveniently be obtained. If it be advisable to put on gravel or stone when grading has been completed the turnpike shall first be thoroughly compacted. In graveling or macadamizing any highway, the gravel or stone shall be placed in the center thereof, in a mass not less than nine feet wide, and not less than six nor more than twelve inches deep, in the discretion of the highway commissioner.

Sec. 18. The work specified in section seventeen of this act shall be continued until all the highways in the township are made equal to the requirements of said sections.

With the exception of that portion of the law in section one and also which relates to road repair, the law contemplates permanent work. The old law under the pathmaster system allowed pathmaster to undo the work of another, resulting in but little progress from year to year. Under the present law (section 16) if followed, means continued progress, and at some future time every mile of road will be properly graded, crowned and ditched in fit condition, with but comparatively small expense to the township to merit a reward of $500, as designated in the state reward. This law, section 10-b, reads as follows:

"For every mile of well graded road on which the steepest incline shall not exceed six per cent, and the width of which shall not be less than eighteen feet between side ditches, and which shall be properly drained and have a wagon way or travel track not less than nine feet wide, and which shall consist of not less than eight inches of compacted gravel, which must be applied in not less than two layers, each layer to be rolled separately: Provided, that both shoulders and metaled track shall be properly crowned so as to shed water quickly to the side ditches, shall merit, if approved by the state highway commissioner a reward from the state of five hundred dollars a mile and pro rata for extra miles and fractions thereof in excess of the first mile."

By a careful study of the law it will appear wise from a practical standpoint and in the end economical.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey is now planning to secure a rubber overshoe factory.

Glen Arbor fruit grows have put out 8,000 trees this spring.

Boyne City is talking a bond issue to provide more room for her schools.

The Northwestern Michigan Macabees Association will meet this year in Traverse City on Monday June 21. All the lodges in the northern part of the state will doubtless be represented.

The East Jordan Herald says that J. C. McIlwraith, of the U. S. Department of agriculture, is inspecting the farming lands of northern Michigan to obtain data for the information of immigrants.

Last Friday afternoon the magnificent palatial steamer City of Cleveland landed at Harbor Springs, bearing about 400 members of the Detroit Board of Commerce and two musical organizations, who were on their annual cruise of the lakes.

The St. Ignace Enterprise reports that W. G. Smith of Milwaukee, has located the wrecked steamer Elder Ward in the Straits of Mackinac in about 135 feet of water and that the cargo of corn will be pumped out and shipped to Chicago where it will be used in the manufacture of starch.

Traverse City Record: The Chicago Times-Herald says that Charlevoix has been put in the best of shape, and she is now as fit as a fiddle for her season's work. She will announce her regular summer schedule to Charlevoix and points on the bay until July, but in the meantime will be open for charter and will make wild cat runs about the lake.

Traverse City Eagle: The entire building of the Smith Sidle Lumber company, through Receiver J. O. Crotser and Attorneys Smurthwaite and Alway, were sold Friday to T. H. Preston at Traverse City for $96,006.78. The sale was made upon the order of Judge Mayne of the circuit court, subject to the confirmation of court on June 5.

One of the most prominent fruit growers of Grand Traverse county says. The indications point that the farmers of East Bay will realize a good income from their fruit. The indications are that there will be the most bountiful fruit crop that ever was raised in Grand Traverse county. Many persons have written in regard to the prospects for grapes and other fruits.

Sheriff Kittle of Antrim county has received a thoroughbred blood hound pup from Grand Rapids. The pup is very finely marked and after thorough training will substitute for a dog of which anyone might be proud. Mr. Kittle's bloodhound, "Tom," is known nearly all over the state, and is getting well along in years, and this one will take his place when he is no longer fit for duty.

Petoskey Record: Last Thursday evening at about 6:30 o'clock the large Pere Marquette water supply tank, situated in the park near the passenger station, containing about 1,500 barrels of water, burst, wrecking the tank and throwing the goods for many feet, wrecking the tops of some trees and uprooting others. The nodded enhankment was partly washed away and the park is greatly around it tank was badly damaged. The rush of water carried boards nearly to the bay and scattered debris about the east end of the park. The tank will be rebuilt immediately.

Elk Rapids Progress: A good part of the business before the circuit court at the present term is from Elk Rapids, and are "whisky" cases. By the people the net profits in the saloon taxes won't amount to much, and are nowhere near what some people claim that figure all the costs in a case from the initial arrest to the end of his prison sentence—if the poor unfortunate happens to draw from thirty days up. Do this with all the cases that come up during the year and see what is left to be applied toward a reduction of taxes.

Petoskey News, 31st. Today Dr. J. J. Heycraft, mayor of Petoskey, was to begin a 15 day term in the county jail. Over a year ago he was convicted of assault and battery on another physician, the quarrel being the culmination of the competition between two hospitals. The Mayor appealed the case to the circuit and then to the supreme court but the sentence stands and he will go to jail as a matter of principle rather than pay what he considers an unjust fine. Last night he was to address the people at the opera house giving his side of the story. LATER—The Mayor relented, and paid his fine.

On Wednesday of last week the Michigan Supreme court decided the case of The City of Petoskey vs. Robert Grant, involving the validity of the transient traders' city ordinance which, in 1897, fined of a combination of Armenians, Japanese and American transient merchants combined to resist as to payment of the license fee ordained by the mayor and common council. There four were promptly arrested, tried and convicted, Justice Worden holding the ordinance valid. They appealed to the circuit court, where Judge Shepard sustained Justice Worden's decision as to the validity of the ordinance. One of the merchants then appealed to the state supreme court. It was contended that the ordinance was invalid as being excessive, oppressive, indefinite, uncertain and unjust, and that the city had no proper authority to so enact. City Attorney Halstead carried the case successfully through all the courts, collecting the license fee from all of the merchants, and establishing satisfactorily the authority of the city government.

Trouble Makers Quieted

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and indigestion fly, but nervous headaches, poor appetite, loss of strength, liver and kidney troubles work right too at 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

IF you'll think about a minute you'll see that paying $10 or $12 for a suit may be really extravagant or even wasteful, where paying $20 or $25 may be really economy.

You're not sure of all-wool fabrics at $10 or $12; that's certain; and all-wool is what you want. Because all-wool is the durable quality, and economy is in durability; a suit at $25 that you can wear two or three summers is a good deal cheaper than one at $12 that's worn out of shape in one season.

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes cost more than the cheap cotton-mixed goods; but they're worth more than they cost; they hold shape, because they're all-wool, tailored right.

We want you to economize in buying clothes, in the Hart Schaffner & Marx way.

Suits $18 to $40.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made and executed by John Gaunt and Alvina Gaunt to R. Ashcraft, dated January eighteenth, one thousand and nine hundred, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on the twenty-ninth, 1900 in Liber 29 of mortgages, on page 500 which said mortgage was duly assigned by said R. Ashcraft to Charles Ashcraft, by an instrument in writing, on the eighteenth day of February 1900, and recorded in the same office in the aforesaid day of February, 1900, in Liber 31 of mortgages on page 500, on which said mortgage there is now due, at the date of this notice, the sum of Twenty-five dollars and the sum of four hundred dollars to be due and unpaid on said mortgage, and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee, stipulated for in said mortgage, and which is the legal amount stipulated to be due and unpaid on said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been brought to recover the said sum remaining unpaid on said mortgage, or any part thereof, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, I will on the 26th day of May, 1900, at the premises therein described at public vendue, at the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the 26th day of July, A. D. 1900, at two o'clock in the forenoon of that day, which is the place of holding the Circuit Court in said County of Charlevoix, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the amount of said mortgage, and all legal costs and charges, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The Southeast quarter of the Southwest quarter of section twenty-six (26) in Township Thirty-four (34) North of Range Eight (8) West, excepting and reserving from said premises the following described parcel of land, to-wit: Commencing at the south east corner of said quarter section, thence north on the east line of said section twenty-six (26) one hundred and eight feet south, thence west parallel with the south line of said section twenty-six (26) one hundred and eight feet, thence south one hundred and eight feet to the south line of said section twenty-six (26), thence east on said south line of said section twenty-six (26) one hundred and eight feet to the place of beginning, Town ship Twenty-four (24) North of Range Eight (8) West, containing about one acre of land, more or less, in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

THE GRANGE LEADERS

Farmers of the Country Must Come to the Front.

Organization Necessary For Their Material Welfare—They Must Take Their Rightful Places in the Government

[From the Lewiston (Me.) Journal.]

The grange today is the most powerful organization in the country. Its influence extends into every section, and as a factor in the education of the masses it has never had an equal. In this respect it stands by the side of the public school, only with a broader outlook and wider influence. Its membership includes the best blood among the farming classes, and this has a more substantial meaning when we consider that the rural telephone, rather our authors, postal delivery, have practically wiped out the distinction between country and city life. It means that today the average farmer is fully the peer in intelligence and energy of experts of the professional man. It means that he is as much of a citizen and possesses culture as well as a tiller of the soil. It means in fact that he is a man in all that name implies and therefore fully capable of being a leader among men.

This great change has all been brought about during the past few years. A generation ago and only the weakest mentality in the farmer's family was selected to follow in the footsteps of his father. The brighter boys were allowed to go into other sections of the country to try to find out their fortune as opportunity might offer. The wealthy remained at home and succeeded in the ownership of the old farm.

All this is now changed. The agricultural colleges with its experiment station has raised farming to the dignity of a profession. To now succeed as a tiller of the soil the man must not only be well educated, but he must also have fine executive capacity. Incompetent farming is the order of the day. No longer has any place on the modern farm, and slowly but surely all such are being eliminated from the business.

In this great transformation of the agricultural industry the grange has been the most potent factor. Its members have been the men of most pronounced intelligence in their respective communities and contributed their full share in the uplifting of the order. They have brought the wave of keen intelligence, high morals and most excellent judgment which are always natural leaders, and on all moral questions their influence has been unimpeachable.

On the other hand, it is equally undisputed that in all matters pertaining to government, state or municipal, leadership their influence has been practically nil. This is a great mistake and allowed the village and city lawyers to handle control of their affairs and make all the boss. Organized through the grange for action on moral questions, they have remained unorganized in all that pertains to their material welfare. This is the one weak spot in the grange today, and it is here that the order needs the greatest strengthening. There is no good reason why the farmer should be compelled to pay the merchant and the professional man whatever price they choose to place upon their goods and their services, while he is compelled to take whatever they may choose to give for the products of the farm. There is no equity in such a system, but for this condition no one is more to blame than the farmer himself.

PARCELS POST NEEDED.

New York State Master Says This Is the Most Important Question.

[Special Correspondence.]

If there is any question more important than another in national legislation to the people of the United States and that the grange should strive for it is the enactment of a parcel post system for the whole country. I know of no other matter that would be of so much benefit to the people and I firmly believe would be of great profit to the postal department.

There seems to be a sentiment among country merchants that it would be a detriment to their business. This I do not believe would prove true, for with a reasonable parcel post rate and one fact that merchandise could be sold at a lower price than is now possible and yet leave a profit to purchase of local merchants instead of sending long distances for their goods. A well managed parcel post one not long ago that it would be of so much benefit to the people and I firmly believe would be

John turned out the light, and while they waited for the elevator to go for them Warry finished the coins and keys in his pockets before he hunted up his hat. "Look here, John, I'm an undesired, low person, and so not worth a cent to the friend I had just say hain't me all you like, but one thing I'd like to know—and you can tell me when you have passed on this afternoon—make any comment or anything? You know I despise myself for asking, but—"

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Yes, she did, but I don't know that I ought to ask it. It's really pretty confusing. She said, 'Miss Margaret has a lot of money, don't you think?'"

"Is that all?" demanded Hartlide, stepping into the car.

"That's all. It wasn't very much—but it was the way she said it, and the look she gave me when I reached a fly from the barter with the whip, and she did it very carefully."

In the corridor below they met Wheaton coming out of the office of the club. He had been for weeks, he said, Hartlide's aide in the management of the club for a game of billiards, but he should sentimentally add he was relieved to be off.

The three men walked up Varney street together. They were men of widely differing temperaments and qualities, but circumstances, in themselves natural and harmless, had brought them together in a way of all three were to be influenced by the outcome of one of them. Warry said he was to be profoundly affected by contact with all of them. It is not unlikely that a man who had never been touched hands with, and even break bread with, for three days, is to thinking of being so self. The electric light reveals nothing in the club's back which was not disclosed of old to those who pondered the opposite by twilight and moonlight.

Wheaton left them at the club door and went on in the blackness, which was only a step farther up the street.

"How do you like Wheaton by this time?" asked Hartlide, as they entered the club.

"I hardly know how to answer that," Slater answered. "He's treated me well and seems to want to be. I'm always trying to find some reason for not liking him, and I can't put my hand on anything laughable."

"That's the way I feel," said Hartlide, hanging his coat in the billiard room. "He's right, some way. There's no letup in him. I suppose he shows as a fellow some people just on general principles, and I'm not ready to call him you and I don't matter."

CHAPTER IX.

After the excitement of quiet that Lent always brings to Clarkton, the spring was welcome. There was a renewal of social activities which ran from dances and tea parties to gatherings. Trees in bud and in the full bar experience at hand, the land plowed into the proud man, the men of the town with a little embalmed through her eyes, and the girls gave a little pedantic or literary. She was glad that she had gone to college, for she did not wish the life of her life to be the haunting ghost of her days, and by the end of the winter she felt that she had pretty effectually laid it.

In June Mr. Porter began discussing summer plans with his family. He could not leave Clarkton, he said, but they might go away, he said, but there was little to be comfortable in the hot weather at school in New Hampshire, and Evelyn protested that it was time for her to be out of the intense heat of a Clarkton summer. Mrs. Porter was not over fond of travel with a trifling illness, and the doctor took the opportunity to tell her that she was so thin that it was imperative for him to order her away. Evelyn was delighted to spend the summer. He and Wheaton went to Lake Michigan for a week or two, they agreed Porter, and he finally yielded. Evelyn had a hotel on the Massachusetts North Shore which seemed well in the direction, she said. They agreed to it. Then they reached Orchard Lane he lined it better than he had expected. Every night he sat down with a letter telegram, and consumed from Thompson's stations in the day's business in the bank. He received daily from New York the closing quotations on the stocks he was interested in, and as he walked up the long avenue to his office he made a congratulation of relief which did him back in his social circle in the Clarkton National.

In August Warry Hartlide squared accounts and threw himself into the gaieties of the piney for a fortnight. Mr. Porter asked him to sit at their table and marveled at the way Evelyn snubbed him, from the extent of running away for three days with some friends who had a yacht and who carried her to Newport for a dance. During her absence Warry made a few other girls show the place happy; they were sure that "that man Porter" was keeping Evelyn away until their hearts went out to him. Warry was a little disappointed at the way he had an interview between dances at a moonlit eight.

He sought for recognition as a lover, she had not seen him since the night of the coaching to which he approved by dilemma asking to which he took care to take large account was to be changed hands.

"But, Evelyn, I am doing differently. I know that I ought to wait for years as you say, but I'm a slave of jaka and energy. Indy hadn't anything to do with it. You know—I want to feel that I'm doing it for you! Don't you know that would help me and steady me? Won't you let it be for you? Don't you know I'm close and stand with his arms folded, but she drew away from him and looked at him quizzical.

"Oh, Warry," she cried, wearily, "you poor, foolish boy! Don't you know that you must be all things for yourself?"

"Yes," he returned eagerly. "I know that; I understand perfectly—but if you will let me feel that you wanted it—"

"I want you to succeed but I can never do it for any one, if you don't do it for yourself."

He went home by an early train next morning to receive Easton's congratulation on the success of the club. Wheaton was there, and Hartlide was there, and Hartlide was there, and Hartlide

But that privilege is now legally restored.

—Mosquitoes in unusual numbers for this season of the year are reported in the townships, and campers are kept busy applying the best known preventives of injury from the bite of these avaricious little creatures—because Tenderpinfoots—That is the last time we prefer to use the word "avaricious" applied to a mosquito. "Carnivorous" is the proper word, Brother Adams. This fault is all that prevented the legislature from putting mosquitos into the class season list, along with skunks. The mosquito (f. mosma) is in the zoological class with wolves and hot-cats. They thrive on human blood, that of others having the preference. Like wolves and hot-cats they prowl mostly at night. Their howl may be heard almost any all night. Their bite is combined fatal and painful. [illegible] free. Genuine [illegible] by F. G. Hines & Co.

INJURY TO ANKLES.

How to Treat a Sprain by Simple Methods and Avoid Trouble.

If possible, as soon as an ankle is sprained put it under water as hot as can be endured, alternating with cold water. The easiest way to manage this is to lay the foot under the bed and cold water spiled.

This treatment often allays the swelling and stops further trouble. It is well to summon the doctor at once in case of a bad sprain. If he is long in arriving, bandage with antiseptic adhesive or with adhesive plaster. For the former wrap it around the ankle and the middle of the foot alternately in the form of an eight, cut the adhesive plaster in about strips and interlace them from side to side of the sprain, pulling tightly to hold the injured parts in place.

Making a slow of medicated clay frequently reduces the inflammation. This should be renewed as fast as it dries up.

Rest the foot in a horizontal position, or, better yet, have it higher than the hips. When the ligaments are torn and the ankle joint is rested on a pillow, most of the strain will be relieved by keeping the foot beyond the edge of the pillow, which is doubled up under the ankle.

When a sprain is bad, necessitating inaction for a long time, the circulation should be kept up by massaging frequently from the knees to the ankle, more particularly the calf of the leg. The massage movements should be upward. If this is kept up some time a day from the time of the accident, there will be no pain in walking, even after weeks of closed confinement.

There is apt to be weakness for months after a bad sprain. To avoid further trouble one should wear a support of some kind. This may be a woven stocking made of rubber or silk or a leather anklet that laces up the front and slips over the heel.

How to Pot Plants.

New or dry pots should be soaked in water before putting plants, so as to fill the pores, or they will absorb moisture from the soil and dry out the roots. It is a good plan to protect pot rim plants with covers or set them in saucers of a second pot to keep plants from drying out. The roots near the sides of the pot are easily dried in sun or draft. Covers or drains you shade them. Covers can be made of tin, nothing and various other material, or pot covers can be purchased ready made. Plant round cuttings in two and two set in a half inch pots and repot into larger ones as the roots fill up with roots. Small plants should never be put into large pots, but advanced as they gain size and strength. If overpotted the soil becomes sodden before the plant grows large enough to require room. It grows slowly and often makes a complete failure. In repotting turn the pot over, face down, placing the fingers across the top to hold the plant, and gently rap the edge of the pot on the edge of the table or putting bench. The plant will slip out easily, and the roots may be examined and plant shaped back if the roots are pulled on, as desired. If the roots have reached the outside of the ball and formed a network around it the plant requires a larger pot.

How to Freshen a Shabby Gown.

The method not that now comes by the yard be a wonderful time saver to a busy girl. She can finds in the morning that she gown she intends to wear that afternoon is hopelessly shabby or rusty and needs hand not all to mend, but with a yard of this ready prepared goods and an hour's time can have her gown freshened up quite the new. By using the old sleeves for a pattern it is surprising how quickly new ones can be cut and run together by hand. This set comes with tucks of various widths in white, cream and black. Then there is not that in tucked in groups of threes, with two or three inches space between each group, which is filled with colored dots embroidered in silk. This is not also good for yoke, but also makes up very prettily into shirt waists. No trimming of any kind need be used on these. They also come to faster down the front set with either crochet buttons to match the dots or with tiny rhinestone ones.

—Hope Officers: Capt. Weaver of the Cummings has been battered with a mouse about his cabin door considerable, and he resolved to play Tenny. The crew likewise thought they would play a joke on the genial captain. Capt. got out his blunderbuss and put it in a convenient place to reach if he again saw Mr. Mouse. Then it was the crew got busy. They got some brown cotton batting, the color of a mouse, and put it near the captain's door. Soon the captain spied Mr. Mouse. Heading cautiously for his trusty carbine, which shoots as many times as you pull the trigger he let Mr. Mouse have three charges of buckshot as quick as he could pull the trigger. The mouse was there just the same. The crew all went on deck to view the slaughter, and as the captain tip-toed towards the mouse he realized the crew had played him a joke. The cigar were on the captain, and he paid up if they would keep quiet about it. Just ask the captain if he has been hunting lately.

A Thrilling Rescue.

How Bert H. Lewis, of Cherry, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled our expert doctor. Then I paid $10 to $5 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." For Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Croup and Whooping Cough it supreme. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co.

Common Council

The meeting Tuesday night was chiefly devoted to sidewalk construction, and the city dads did a good job, with another night's work ahead of them on the same question.

The following sidewalk petitions were granted: L. D. Bartholomew, John Nicholls, Floyd Hettie.

Acting on report of sidewalk committee the following cement walks were ordered: North side Antrim street, fronting half of lots, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10 and 11, and south 73 feet lot 8 block 11; south half lots 5 and 6 block 14; lots 1 and 4 and south half of lots 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, and west 25 feet lots 11 block 16

On north side of Mason street lots 9, 10, 11, 12 and west 41 feet lot 13 block 7; Lots 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, block 13; lots 2, 3, 4 and 5 block 15. On south side of Mason street, north 54 feet lots 1 and 2 block 8.

On block 4 Mason's addition, west side South Bridge street; west side State street, block 2; north side Petoskey avenue on block 3 and 4. The evening of June 29th is set for a hearing.

Base Ball Notes.

Last Saturday at Petoskey, Boyne City defeated Petoskey in base ball on poor grounds, by a score of 11 to 5. This means that the Charlevoix H. S. team must play Boyne City for the Northern Michigan championship. The game will probably occur at Boyne City next Friday; so keep your eyes open for notice of an excursion.

Next Saturday C. H. S. plays Bellaire H. S. on the home grounds. The game will be called at 2:00 p. m. and will be the last regular H. S. game for the home team. The C. H. S. team has the good standing of 337. Watch them close this week.

Women Who Are Lovely.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or kidney poison shows in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

J. L. CRANE
The Leading Dry Goods and Carpet House in Charlevoix County.

THE fact that hammocks are used only in summer, is no reason why a hammock should be made to last but one summer. Fashions don't affect hammocks very much; a hammock is easily stored, and, if well made, ought to be better the second summer than the first—the favorite easy chair is always an old chair.

In the Vudor Reenforced hammock we have produced a hammock that lasts. Instead of the usual, slighted, skimped, flimsy, one-season-goods construction, we put these hammocks best designing, material and workmanship that we can obtain. The result is that Vudor Reenforced Hammocks last several times as long as ordinary hammocks, and reduce the yearly cost of porch furnishing, at the same time giving far better appearance, comfort and general satisfaction.

—State Game Warden Pierce is about to have the spark arresters of locomotives running through the forest county of the state inspected as to their efficiency. An inspection will also be made of the right of way of the lines to see whether or not they are littered with inflammable material.

—Traverse City Eagle: This is the time of the year when certain people and publications take their stand against the use of the word "commencement" in connection with the graduation exercises from the schools and colleges of the land. But the agitation will probably not amount to any more than the spasm for the simplified method of spelling during a few years just passed.

—James C. Gallagher, of Beaver Island, was in the city Tuesday.

—E. B. Ward took in "Merchants' Week" at Grand Rapids last week.

—Next Wednesday is Northern Michigan Maccabee day at Traverse City.

—D. C. Nettleton returned from Beaver Island Saturday, where he was engaged in surveying most of the week.

—New moving pictures and new vaudeville attractions at the Majestic Theater. No state number in the program. Good houses every night.

—Fifty dry counties in Michigan after April, 1910, is the prediction of Dr. Samuel Dickie of Albion college, at the state meeting of the W. C. T. U. last week.

—W. H. Woodley, former superintendent of schools, left with his family Tuesday for his father's home at Benton Harbor, where they will remain for the summer.

—There will be an ice cream social at Barnard M. E. church Tuesday evening, June 22d. Charlevoix male quartett will furnish entertainment. Admission 15 cents. All are invited.

—The cement sidewalk people are enjoying a boom. Lee Howland is doing work on the south side of Park Avenue, at the west end, that will clean up all planks walks on that fine street.

—Resorters are now coming by every boat and train. Confidence multiply that this will be the biggest resort season in the history of the best resort town in North ern Michigan—Charlevoix.

—Grant Harrison, the Petoskey lumber inspector, is in the city measuring a cargo of lumber for the Charlevoix Lumber Co. Mr. Harrison now has seven inspectors in his employ, and will, on Saturday night, have handled 400,000 feet of lumber this week.

—A Christian Science Society was organized in Charlevoix May 24, 1900. Miss Mabelle A. Denton has been chosen at First Reader and Mrs. Kate as Second Reader. Regular services will be held in the K. P. Hall until further notice as follows: Sunday morning at 10:45 and Wednesday evening at 7:45.

—The new VanPelt building on the alley in the rear of the postoffice, to be occupied by Powers the plumber, will have a healthy plant installed in its basement, from which heat will be supplied to the Powers establishment and Christian Science Hall in the second story, the postoffice, the new VanPelt building on Bridge street and a one story cement building yet to be erected in the alley west of the Powers store, to be occupied by the Courier.

—Saturday afternoon an unhitched farmer's team became frightened and ran from a point near the Round Hotel the entire length of Bridge street and across the bridge. At the north end of the bridge they turned towards Lake Michigan, as I to looked the line to see whether or not they were littered with inflammable material. They were cut-yard before they reached Dixon Avenue. There were many teams and people on the street, and it is little less than a miracle that there was not a serious accident. There is an ordinance in full force in Charlevoix prohibiting leaving horses unhitched on the streets. When such thing is killed or injured it will probably be enforced for a time.

—Geo. Carr, of East Jordan, was in the city Sunday.

—Mrs. F. N. Chapel and her two sons returned home from Seattle, Wash., on Tuesday.

—Gale Hines, who has been taking a course in Pharmacy at the Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, is home for the summer.

—As we close our columns (Wednesday afternoon) the eleemosinly Manitou is expected here from Chicago on her first trip of the season.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davison were married Saturday by the death of their only child, a daughter aged six teen months.

—Mrs. Jones McCrory, of Greenville, S. C., arrived Saturday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Carpenter, and will remain most of the summer.

—The X. L. Produce Co.'s creamery shipped 1,000 pounds of gilt-edge butter to Chicago Saturday. The extraordinary local demand will prevent further shipments until fall.

—The schooner Oliver Mitchell, Capt. Wm. Holme, now in port, is awaiting a lumber cargo for a lower lake port. After discharging cargo there she will proceed to salt water to remain.

—Mrs. E. L. Hollingworth and Emmet L. Hollingworth, arrived in the city this morning to spend the summer season in this vicinity. She has been a regular summer visitor to northern Michigan for 27 years, coming from Hamesher, Ind. Petoskey News:—The News is careful not to state that Mrs. Hollingworth has been for 27 years a summer resident of Charlevoix, having a cottage on the Belvedere grounds.

—Cadillac News: We want to say right here that in our opinion Traverse City is carrying the summer resort attractions idea entirely beyond reasonable bounds. One of the papers of that city comes to us this morning with an announcement of women bathing without even taking time to provide themselves with bathing suits. We can just promise you that Cadillac won't compete with any such peculiarities and we don't believe that Charlevoix or Petoskey will dare to. For ways of its own in attracting attention that Traverse City stands alone.

—The shores of Grand Traverse bay presented a curious appearance this morning, being black with dead insects. Those who saw it first were of the opinion that the north wind yesterday afternoon had brought in a lot of cold sawdust but examination disclosed the fact that it was not sawdust but flies of some kind. The insects cover the beach for a space at least two feet wide and there are millions of them. The insects are black in color and have wings and bear a close resemblance to the carpet bug. Where they came from or what caused the death of such vast numbers is not known unless they were blown from the shore out over the bay and drowned and were then carried back in by the north wind. They began coming early in the afternoon and before long, the sand was discolored by the multitudes.—Eagle. On a recent trip of the steamer Heaver, 450,000,000,000 of these flies took refuge on the boat, and the white wood-work was black with them to the depth of an inch. Capt. Pete had the crew out with shovels and they were thrown into the lake, (the flies, not the crew or shovels.) These are undoubtedly the same colony that were thrown up on the north side of the Grand Traverse Bay.

AMID FRAGRANT FLOWERS

Beautiful North Side Wedding Tuesday Evening—Nuptials of Mr. Wilbur A. Cline and Miss Calla E. Wilbur—Notable Hymenal Event.

One of the most beautiful weddings in the history of Charlevoix occurred at the Wilbur residence, on Union Avenue, this city, on Tuesday evening of this week, when Mr. Wilbur A. Cline, assistant superintendent of the D. M. Ferry seed warehouse, was united in marriage to Miss Calla E., only daughter of Mayor and Mrs. C. E. Wilbur.

At the clock indicated the hour, to the inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bridal procession entered the parlors through an aisle formed by ropes of white lilacs held by six girl friends of the bride—Misses Helen Smith, Zilla Hogan, Hattie Harris, Alma Francis, and Loraine and Marjorie Washburne. The bride entered on the arm of her father, while, through another door the groom entered, accompanied by his best man. Meeting at the improvised altar, which was in the flower dedicated recess of a bay window, Rev. W. Bedford Jones, rector of Emanuel Episcopal church, of Petoskey, spoke the fateful words that united the young couple in holy matrimony. Then, as because the moment, the noble measures of the wedding march from Lohengrin transformed the scene from solemn, dignified ceremony to joyous mirth. Mrs. E. H. Green and Miss Edna Green executed the wedding marches with their usual skill and expression.

The maid of honor was Miss Charlotte Hemington, of Milwaukee; best man, Bert A. Wilbur, brother of the bride; flower-girl, Miss Elizabeth Chase, of Traverse City; ring-bearer, Master Wm. L. Chase, of Traverse City; ushers, Mr. Peter Vandermade and Mr. George Finucan. The ring was carried in the heart of a calla-lily, touchingly appropriate to the Christian name of the charming bride.

The bride was beautifully attired in white nunsubice trimmed with lace and hand-embroidery, and carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and lilacs. The bridesmaid's gown was a tasteful creation in pink sellesnil, and the young lady carried white lilacs and pink honeysuckles.

The guests from out-of-town were Capt. and Mrs. E. E. Chase and Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Chase and family, of Traverse City; Dr. and Mrs. Peter Kwaagy, of Idaho; Mr. George Cline, of Peru, Ind., father of the groom; Miss Harriet Hurley, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. George S. Danver, of Petoskey; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Rieggenger, of Boyne City. There were also present many Charlevoix friends of the contracting parties.

Many beautiful and useful gifts from friends at home and abroad testified to their loving interest in the popular bride and the home of which she will soon be the very capable mistress. The ceremony throughout was most dignified and touching, both in the solemn recital of the beautiful form of the Episcopal ritual and the manifest earnestness which characterized the bearing of the young couple. The sun will shine brightly upon the new home that thus, by Divine ordinance, is instituted and sanctified.

Mr. and Mrs. Cline left on the nine o'clock train for a wedding trip to northern Michigan and Indiana, after which they will be at home on the south terrace, in this city, where the fortunate and popular groom has already provided a pleasant and well equipped residence.

The SENTINEL extends its heartiest congratulations. May every wished-for blessing come to them, and happiness abide with them all the way to the final haven, where happiness is eternal.

Common Council

At the council meeting Tuesday night the sidewalk petitions of Peter Olsen, Harry Nicholls, Mrs. H. Knight, Mrs. Thyra Miller and Daniel Rissel baugh, were granted.

Finance committee authorized to borrow $1200 for 90 days.

On recommendation of the expert city engineer, Mr. Turnbull, it was voted to adopt a new system of bookkeeping and the clerk was instructed to secure the necessary books, etc.

Police appointed and confirmed:—H. Bertsch, E. L. Johnson, Geo. W. Cook, Chas. W. Howard, J. J. Gaskill, Andrew McCall, Lyman Reinhart, Robert Madill, Sam Brown, Sam Hamilton.

Weed commissioner, I. S. Webster.

THE NEW MACADAM

Adopted for Future Paving of Charlevoix Streets—Said to be Equal to Other More Expensive Street Material.

When the City of Charlevoix started out in the work of permanent street improvement it determined to start right, and, considering durability as the chief factor, to secure the maximum of results at the minimum of expense. Hence the paving of our main business street with bitulithic—introducing results that are the pride of every resident of Charlevoix.

Then came the paving with crushed stone of the residence streets, and four of such streets have been so treated. The recent action of the council in ordering the paving of Petoskey and Michigan Avenues involves a departure from the usual method of macadamizing, or, rather, adds to it by the surface application of a coating of Tarvia, a composition of specially distilled tar and asphaltum. It is a fact generally recognized that there is a steady and inevitable waste in the ordinary macadam stone macadam, in the carrying away by the wind and the wash of rain water of the dust that is ever forming, and there is also constantly grinding from the material. This steady deterioration means nothing less than ultimate disappearance. A coating of tarvia will often suffice to remove the top layer of a macadam street or road, exposing the larger grade of stone, which being deprived of its covering speedily ravels and goes to pieces. The cost of tarvialing, which is about 20 cents per square yard,—is more than saved by reduction of other maintenance expenses.

The department of agriculture has indorsed the process, in it has been taken up by a large number of cities for use in parks and on boulevards. several State highway commissions are also using it. Tarvia is applied much as the "finishing coat" is given bitulithic. It is put on when hot and liquid, and will gradually solidify to a hard rubber like consistency. Following closely this hot application a light coat of fine stone screenings is thrown upon the surface, and the roller does the rest. A feature of the Tarvia process that should not be lost sight of is that streets already macadamized may be treated with it, after a proper dressing and cleaning.

Tarvia is made and supplied by the Barrett Manufacturing Co., with offices in all the principal cities.

Base Ball Notes

At Boyne City Friday the Charlevoix H. S. boys played base ball team defeated the Boyne City High School team by a score of 9 to 6, and at Charlevoix Saturday they defeated Bellaire 17 to 6.

In the early part of the Boyne City game it looked bad for Charlevoix, for the opposing team scored four runs in the first inning, while the champions failed to score. Then Charlevoix began to play ball with the determination to win, and allowed Boyne City only two more runs, but long hard enough for the boys for themselves. Poole pitched the game, and, aside from the first innings, in which he was hit hard, he did fine work and passing out, he pitched an excellent game.

The Bellaire game looked like a walk away for the champs, but in the fifth innings, when Charlevoix had the visitors beaten by a score of 15 to 0, Charlevoix made enough errors to give Bellaire five runs on two hits. After that Charlevoix obtained two runs and Bellaire one, leaving the score 17 to 6 in favor of the Champs. Powers pitched a very good game.

There two games give the Charlevoix boys a title to the championship of Northern Michigan, which can only be disputed by Traverse City, and if they do so they will have to come and play them and win. Charlevoix has played nine games and won eight, giving them a percentage of 888.

—F. H. Brown, assignee of Boy City, Judge Brown, Geo. H. VanPelt and Frank Chabinsky, drove up to the city Saturday, had a narrow escape from a horrible death. In approaching the Petoskey road railroad crossing the track on the north is hidden by quarter. Hearing no crossing whistle, Mr. Brown, who was driving, did not be hesitatory in crossing the track; but as the team reached the track the party was horrified to see the 3.15 train but a few rods from the crossing. The rear wheels of the carriage had but just cleared the track when the train sped by at full speed. Many one in the party insists that no warning whistle was given. It is a very serious matter, and should be for a scrutinizing investigation.

Within a few days there were checks from Porter to Peckham passed through the mail—checks of the kind usually employed for the purpose of dividing the amount of cash check by the current operation on "Tarrion, Wheaton and Co." Like fellow Porter's purchases. The price had remained pretty steady. The weekly ship fell to thirty. He wondered what was happening, and the newspapers, which were confining their war on the cooperage, ran no hint of it to the effect that conditions in the franchise. Wheaton met Porter in Broadway one day, looking as hot as by intention, in the city one evening, and was asked to dine.

"Tarrion seems to be off a little?"

"Yes—I don't know what's got into him! I can't make out." I imagine that the fellows that were hanging out tried of attending the market, and have thrown a few bagpeles back to keep the wonders going."

"Might most might be a good time to get 'em, suggested Wheaton.

"I should call it a good key myself. I guess the trouble is that Tarrion didn't pick up a little" he said, very feebly.

"Tell him to come to the house. By the closing his words carefully, "Some out of town people have been inquiring about writing me that they'd like a little piece. If it came to a good deal of money, I might pick up a hundred-shares for anybody."

"He looked his certificate, when Horace got it for him, and he seemed to be in fault, and wanted the rebound which he felt, perhaps, was due to the price of the stock. His sale was to make a profit by the rise of the combination. Porter had bought Tarrion stock with a dollar. He paid, in fact, a little more than were the principal holders of Tarrion stock at so much, and he was afraid to make inquiry. A man who was as expertise as Porter could hardly had confidence of sources of information, and it was not safe to ask Porter advice. He was not a man to advise as to the market by which he had gained his knowledge of Porter's position. He knew that. Hence no harm to Porter.

CHAPTER XI.

Timothy Wheaton was, in common phrase, a good railroad man. He had advanced by steady promotion from the humbler ranks of those lowly manual offices which jobs, in the performance of their proper functions known as positions. Margraves was the son of the office of third vice president and general manager was too to his post. He had spent his boyhood in the road was getting too much out of him and that he must have a change opposite to a long, hard journey. The directors were good fellows, and they had certainly treated him well, and he was within the pale of legitimate enterprise for him to broaden his business a little, without in any wise diminishing his zeal for the'Pennsylvania'. To extent this way business was a good business, and Harkness, Vice-president, was a Republican, however, on its political side. It he expatiated the contrast and made himself the president so could greatly fortify and strengthen his place.

"Almost any day, he was told, the President would ask Harkness to come and put a position in charge of the company. Margraves, who was a good fellow, and a good fellow, and they were an excuse for pilings, and it was a regret of his life that he had never made his mot over fellow in his life. But he was not going into Tarrion Mindy. He wanted to know why Porter was interested, that he might avoid complications. William Porter was the only Lilu in Clarkson who could swing Tarrion, which accounted for his hold on the afoul of Porter. Margraves was a master of the art of pulling information, and he decided, on reflection, that the easiest way to get information about Porter was to ask it of Wheaton.

He sent a note to Wheaton "Jim." In remembrance of the early days of Wheaton's residence in Clarkson, when he had worked in his office. He had watched Wheaton's career with interest, he took he himself the credit of being his discoverer.

Wheaton was a man who could be made to commend; he knew nothing to Wheaton's discredit, and would go more have thought of criticising Mabel than of ordering dynamite submitted for one of the locomotives of his railroad. When he concluded that he needed Wheaton, he began pulling for him, but as if the caution had been a consciousness of a knowledge of the legislature or a tree shingue or any other fairy prey. He now regretted that he had so silious and sensational form of criticy known as the annual pass.

Wheaton accepted the pass as a tribute to his growing importance in the trade. He knew that Porter refused railroad passes, and that personal grounds, hoping that such favors were extended in the hope of reciprocal favors, concluded that Porter had a bother was better off without them. Wheaton, whose salary was not large, could see no harm in them. He had little use for passes to be used and used frequently. When travelling, he had always rovled mes who carried their "annuals" in little brass-bound books made for the purpose. He was sure it was late in the year and passes were nearly spent, and he felt that he had been the compliment seem much more direct; the Transcontinental had forgotten him, and had thought it well to rectify the error between seasons. He felt that he must see make too much of the railroad's money; he did not know to whom official in particular he was indebted, but he ran into Morgraves one evening at the club and decided to thank him.

"How's cooling?" he asked, as Margraves made room for him on the setter where he was reading the evening paper.

"Fair. Anything new?"

"No; it's the same routine with me pretty much all the time.

"I guess that's right. I shouldn't think there was much fun in building. Old get to keep the public too far away. I like to be against people myself."

"Bet you railroad people are not considered so very warm" said Wheaton. "The fellows who want favors seem to think so. By the way, I'm much obliged to some one for an annual pass carried in my pocket on the other day. I don't know who sent it to me—if it's you—"

"Pa?" Margraves affected to have been wondering in his thoughts, but this was what he was waiting for.

"Pa? Why, I don't know—never had with the pass business myself; I've got enough of my own."

"I guess I'll not use it very often," said Wheaton, "but it will be good to spend to the road for accepting it.

"Better come out with me in the car some time and see the road," Margraves suggested, as he folded his paper and rose to table.

"I'd like that very much," said Wheaton.

"Where's Thompson now? Old man's getting well enough to, isn't he?"

"He went back to Arizona. He was better when he left here. He's afraid of our winters.

"Well, that gives you your chance, said Margraves, affably. "There ain't anybody else to speak of. Why don't you take chance than you have, don't you? Thompson used to be a good thing for some one in Tarrion—stock, Porter and Peckham, I think. Good stuff, too. Didn't know that Porter was in, but he generally does."

"Mr. Porter has a way of keeping things to himself," said Wheaton, who felt that he was flattered by Margraves's friendliness, and anxious to be agreeable in return. "Vanity is not so usually assumed, a mere inclining to reticence, I suppose."

"I suppose," said Margraves, that's it. Reminds me of the time I got into a row at a low figure."

"Well, I'm much obliged for the pass, and I'm much obliged to you for the pass, and I'm much obliged to you for the pass, and I'm much obliged to you

Warner Will Support Kelly

Gov. Warner announces that he will support Pat Kelly for the governorship. In the Detroit News interview the governor says that he would be an ingrate if he did not stand by Kelly in view of Kelly's loyalty to him." The sentiment does the governor credit. Kelly executed much fluent elocution for Warner on the automobile trips, but Kelly was uppermost in Kelly's mind all the time Kelly was talking. He loved Cæsar no less, but he loved Kelly more. In reality, the Kelly boom was planted in Kelly's mind last summer, and Warner was just as much a party to it then as he is now. It was a mutual admiration society junket from the time the auto started out until it went into winter garage. It was a limited partnership for mutual political increment.

We have learned that it is bad politics for an editor to "hang" a pre-convention or pre primary candidate, or say impolite things about him, for the reason that it sometimes kicks back at election time and places crow in the menu. Sometimes the candidate you oppose wins the plum, and then the most and the least you can do is to dance him with faint praise. It is within the bounds of possibility, (and we say it guardedly,) that Mr. Kelley may carry the primaries, in which event we would loyally support him. As for Mr. Warner, he will soon have strutted his hour upon the stage, and is even now the dreamed politician in Michigan. "So much for Buckingham."

We consider it certain that a political crisis is imminent for the republican party in Michigan, and the responsibility for its outcome rests with the republicans of the lower peninsula. The political rights of the upper peninsula must be recognized in 1910 or there is likely to be a political earthquake. There is such a thing as political logic, and it does not require a very erudite mind to take in the situation. The upper peninsula presents Chase S. Osborn for the governorship—as able, true and honest a man as ever entered the political arena in Michigan.

His election will mean distinguished services to the State, something we have not had in many a year in the gubernatorial office.

New Highway Law

The Fox highway bill was passed by both houses of the legislature before adjournment. The new bill was the longest introduced in either branch of the legislature, covering 187 printed pages, and its provisions concern every farmer. There are a great many laws relating to country roads—more than 100 in all.

Some were enacted a half-century or more ago, and some contravene each other. The Fox bill repeals them all and re-enacts the best of them that are obsolete. In addition there are not many new provisions. The most essential ones are: All county roads are placed on a uniform system, and must be surveyed and monuments every acre and recorded in the permanent record in the town clerk's office.

Farmers are forbidden to drain their fields into the highways where the drainage would likely cause washouts. The highway commissioner is empowered to acquire by condemnation proceedings gravel pits for building roads.

Where there is a dispute over a road that is dividing the line between the township and the municipality provision is made for settlement by the highway commissioner and the mayor president.

When a street of a municipality extends into a township, the town must make the road the same width as the street.

All roads hereafter laid out shall be uniform width.

All culverts and culverts hereafter built must be strong enough to carry 12 tons.

Rural delivery letter-boxes must not be placed nearer than 15 feet from the center of the road.

Townships are allowed to have one to four overseers, to spend the repair tax, the township to definitely determine the number.

At the option of the overseer of highways a taxpayer may work out his road tax.

Township boards of fence viewers shall comprise the overseer of the district, the highway commissioner and two justices of the peace.

In the spending of highway money the township board and the highway commissioner must work in harmony with each other.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey is going to celebrate the national holiday, this year, on Monday, July 5.

Through the efforts of H. N. Hornbech, instructor in the science department of the Traverse City High school Traverse City will have a wireless telegraphy station.

Work will be begun on the new Beulah home for boys at Boyne City soon. Much stone is still needed and farmers in that locality are being urged to draw an occasional load to town as a donation to help along the good work.

Crescent, North Manitou Island, is the name of the village which has come into being, due to the lumbering operations on the island by the firm of Smith & Hull. The village is less than a year old and has a church and school, a base ball team and electric lights.

Friday F. P. Brown, in charge of the sales department of the Elk Rapids cement company, closed a contract with the board of public works of Traverse City for crushed stone to be used in the streets of that city. The contract will call for about 10,000 tons during the season

Boyne Citizen: Mrs. Elizabeth Willis, late of Advance died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Morrison of Wilson Township, last Monday night and was buried in the East Jordan cemetery on Wednesday June 2nd. Mrs. Willis was the widow of David Willis, a civil war veteran, who died eight years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Willis were among the oldest and most highly respected residents of this county, coming here nearly 40 years ago.

Boyne Citizen: Trundo Bros. of Cheboygan have arranged with the Arnold Transportation Company to run their big steamer, the City of Cheboygan, to Boyne City on Saturday, June 19th. The boat will leave Cheboygan at nine o'clock in the evening and make the run to this city in the night. She will lie in port all day Sunday, giving the passengers a whole day to inspect the city, and will leave for home again at 9 p. m. The craft will make half hour stops at both Petoskey and Charlevoix.

Traverse City Record: The sentiments of Judge Mayne, uttered in the court room at Leland on Monday, concerning the persons who are wards of the court, will be endorsed by all good citizens in Traverse City, which is a part of the jurisdiction for this dispenser of justice. He says that to twit any charge of the court with the fact is nothing more or less than contempt of court, and in the future anyone being properly guilty of such an offense will be punished by fine and imprisonment.

Traverse City Eagle: "Five hundred for Traverse City," that's the slogan of the Charlevoix county Tuberculosis League. If all the other groups do that well, in a few months, Traverse City will entertain one of the largest and best crowds that ever came here. All over the state, preparations are now being made for the great meetings, and while all the granges may not send as many delegates as our neighbor, Charlevoix will there will be representatives from practically all And Traverse City will extend a right royal welcome to all and endeavor to make them glad that they came.

Traverse City Eagle: All arrangements have now been completed with the railroad companies for the transportation of the crowds to come here for the big annual meeting of the Northern Michigan K. O. T. M. M. and L. O. T. M. M. association. From the per capita receipts already received from the various tents and hives a very large attendance is assured. It will be remembered that four years ago the crowds here exceeded anything ever before witnessed in Traverse City and the increase in the amount of the per capita tax and the number of tents and hives joining the association indicates conclusively that the 1909 meeting will eclipse any previous gathering in Traverse City.

Central Lake Torch: Floyd Parsons, aged six years, son of George Parsons, of Alanka was drowned. The young son of Ethan Jolliffe, Lois, little daughter of George Perkins, were actors yesterday in a near-tragedy. The children, who are cousins were playing about Parsons' tool house, and found a couple of dynamite caps in a tool box. One was given the little girl while the two boys tried the other on the grindstone Young Jolliffe, turning the stone, while Floyd Parsons held the cap, resulting in an explosion which shattered the stone. Floyd's hand was badly torn and his face severely burned and disfigured. Young Jolliffe was slightly burned and one hand injured but not seriously. Attending physician thinks Parsons boy will recover without losing his eyesight; though there is still a question about it. The little girl was uninjured. That all were not killed is a miracle.

IF all-wool fabrics were the rule in men's clothes there wouldn't be so much reason for talking about being sure of getting all-wool clothes. But all-wool isn't the rule; most of the men's clothes made today are made from fabrics with cotton in them.

This is true of practically all "cheap" clothes—we use the word cheap to mean prices; a suit at $10 or $12 or even $15 is pretty apt to be cotton. But even when you pay $20 or $25 you can always be sure of all-wool; because the weavers and clothing makers are certainly very skillful in the way they make cotton-mixtures look like all-wool.

The safe way, the best way, about the only sure way we know of, to get all-wool, is to get Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes. They use none but all-wool fabrics; you can depend on it every time.

You'll get the tailoring and style, too.

Suits $18 to $25.

NEXT TO THE POSTOFFICE.

Boyne Journal: True to the prediction of those who said local option would kill Boyne City, the quietness of the first five weeks already passed has proven to us beyond reasonable doubt the injury to some businesses. We note the Justices of the Peace have not in that time presented any fees for criminal matters to the council for drunk and disorderly persons. It has not been necessary for any complaints to be made by the Chief of Police since local option took effect in the city, the tax payers of the city have not been called upon to pay one penny caused by disorderties arising out of the sale of liquor, and from this we judge that more money is being saved in the family and as stated before, local option certainly will destroy the business of our rival county.

Boyne Journal: Yesterday's report from the Supreme court records the final settlement of two cases in which Boyne City parties are interested. They are the cases of Nicholls and Morgan against the Boyne City Lumber Co. and the same plaintiffs against the Boyne City Lumber Co. and the W. H. White Company. The cases have been in the courts for two years and grew out of the fact that years ago in settling off portions of land along the lake shore where the Boyne City Lumber Co's mill stands and where Mill No. 2 is located the plaintiffs overlooked a little three cornered piece in each locality. As the shore line was extended farther out into the lake these pieces grew larger and when large mills were built over and across the strips of land in question they grew more valuable. Suit for the title to the property was finally begun in the Circuit court and judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiffs but the defendants attorneys, Harris & Hargeagger, took an appeal to the Supreme court with the result that both cases were reversed and the title remains in the defendants. The cases were of considerable importance, not only on account of the value of property at the present time but also on account of the intricate legal points involved and Messrs Harris & Hargeagger naturally feel quite well satisfied to know the Supreme Court say that their position was right.

Women Who Are Envied.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poison shows in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

How to Make a Divan Comfortable.

Every one does not know that a wide divan is made more comfortable by having at its back two huge hard pillows that will support the softer ones. It is usual to heap up a great variety of these extra soft ones on a large divan so that any one sitting or reclining may arrange them according to one's comfort. These are needed, it is true, but they also need a support. The wall is usually too far back from the front edge of the divan to serve. The two large pillows made of the material which covers the divan are not only comfortable, but artistic. They may be stuffed with excelsior tow coarse manilla or tickling, then covered with the chosen fabric. They look better with a heavy cord around the edging. If the end of the divan is against the wall as well as its side a third pillow may be used to give an added francs-ers to the little pillows. This is not an expensive trick, but if a housewife ever tries it she will never let the divan go without this part of its equipment.

How to Doctor Sick Chickens.

The following is an excellent remedy for sick chickens, says a chicken fancier: One teaspoonful of permanganate of potash in one quart of water. Take other water away from them, and when they become thirsty they will be glad to drink this. It is a cure-all; I had two hens that were sick. They became very thin, and their combs were very pale, and in time they died. Another hen started to go the same way, when I heard of this remedy. In two days' time there was a slight improvement, and before long she grew strong, and the color in her comb became brighter. Since then I have had no more trouble with sick chickens. Try it.

How to Make a Good Filter.

A homemade and economical filter that will clear the water satisfactorily is made from a flowerpot and charcoal. Take a large, clean flowerpot and put a sponge or a piece of clean moss over the hole in the bottom. Fill the flowerpot three-quarters full of equal parts of clean sand and charcoal. Over this lay a cloth large enough to hang over the sides of the pot. Pour the water into the cloth, and it will come out of the hole in the bottom of the pot clean and free from germs.

NEED OF THE HOUR.

A Closer Union in the Work of Grange Lecturers.

The Lecturer of the Michigan State Grange Suggests Specific Methods For Improving Present Conditions, value of Directed Effort.

[Special Correspondence.]

"What in your opinion would strengthen the grange and grange work most?" I ask.

A closer union among the various lecture departments, national, state, pomona and subordinate, is the answer that the greatest mission of the grange is educational and that the history accepts the premise of a social charter based on such New York state strong constructive plans for exploring and presenting the full possibilities of the lecture hour. The system with which its educational work is conducted should be made coordinate with that of other similar institutions devoted to co-operative and mass social uplift. As a whole, we will do our best under an aggressive, stimulating and directing force, emanating from the highest and permeating every degree of the order.

Some of the specific methods by which this closer union might be encouraged are:

First—Through communications and advising by correspondence the general lecturer with under lecturers.

Second—Through up to date printed matter relating to grange history, accomplishments, progressive methods and personal models, made available for distribution from the national and state offices.

Third—Through a few broad topics to be used in the lecture hour for uniformity in program work and to secure concentration of discussion throughout the order within a given time.

Fourth—Through lecturers' conferences (a) at national sessions, which will atone grange, and offer receiving a charter from the state grange the national and state lecturers, (b) at pomona and subordinate granges should encourage and sometimes assist their lecturers to attend; (c) at pomona sessions, which subordinate granges should encourage their lecturers to attend.

JENNIE BUELL,
Lecturer Michigan State Grange.

THE GRANGE NEEDED.

It Must Aid in Keeping the Young Men on the Farm.

The drift of young people from rural homes to the city has shifted a border London to the shoulders of those who remain, says a writer in the Farm Journal. We are to blame, we have the old methods of entertaining the young people in the country that were common forty years ago, when every school house was a lyceum, school and literary society. The spoons and moving picture shows are only in the towns. The bowling alleys, billiard halls, pastrooms and card tables are there also.

There is no better method of overcoming all these difficulties than to have in every community a good, live grange. It encourages education, it promotes social relations. It aids the church. It broadens the horizon, it elevates the morals. It teaches thrift and economy. It promulgates the best ideas and demonstrates the themes. It develops a progressive farmer who is equal to them in any other calling. It makes of farming a professional calling with scientific foundations established. It dignifies labor and raises its fellow laborers to a higher plane than he ever before has occupied. It is no new thing. For forty years it has been the friend of the farmers. It is no untried thing. Its demands have been heard by congress and state legislatures. It seeks no secret work. All its part has been marked by widespread benefits.

Dimit, Nat Dimit.

In seeking honorable dismission from a grange it sometimes happens a card known as a "dimit." This word is often applied incorrectly "dimit," for which there seems to be no valid reason. A writer in the American Agriculturist gives the correct definition of the word as from the Latin dimittere, to send away. Webster defines it as to dismiss, let go or release. Dimit is derived from the Latin dimittere, to send or bring down, to lower. A dimit from an organization does not lower one, and no person should accept to leave from its committee with such spelling in the text.

These senators and congressmen holding down the grange's demands for parcels post, postal savings banks and the grange good roads bill will be heard in our monuments raised by popular subscription, says the Nation at Stake.

National Secretary Freeman was one of the speakers upon the agricultural special train over the C. H. and D. line in Ohio. Other speakers were Master Harmon and Secretary Sanders of the Ohio state board of agriculture.

Pennsylvania state grange will meet in the auditorium of the State college, Dec. 21-24.

Noisy.

"De man dat makes de most noise," said Uncle Eben, "ain't de man dat does de most work."

English Imports of Timber.

Of the timber England imports, 87 per cent is pine and fir, three per cent oak and ten per cent teak, mahogany and other furniture woods.

GRANGE INCORPORATION.

Extract From a Special Act Passed by the New York Legislature in 1874.

There is considerable inquiry among members of the Order as to the effect of incorporating a grange and how to proceed in the matter. The following extract from the law governing the incorporation of granges will be of assistance only to such granges as are located within New York state, since it is a special act of the New York state legislature.

Any number of persons, not less than fifteen or more than forty, eligible to membership under the provisions of the constitution, bylaws, rules and usages of the subordinate of Patrons of Husbandry, as indorsed and promulgated by said New York state grange, may organize a subordinate grange in accordance with said constitution, bylaws and usages, and on receiving a charter issued by said New York state grange or reorganized by its secretary any subordinate grange so organized may file articles of incorporation with the town clerk of the town where it is located, duly signed and acknowledged by its members or a majority of them, setting the name and number of the grange, the names of its officers and executive committee and specifying a desire to obtain the benefits of this act. And on filing such articles of incorporation with the town clerk, subordinate grange shall become a legal corporation under the laws of the state of New York and shall possess all the powers and be subject to all the duties and liabilities conferred and imposed by laws of this state and under the constitution and usages of the order of said New York state grange, and any bike, bowling, billiard, pool, tenpin, card and personal, and shall have and may use a seal and may sue and be sued the same as plaintiff. But the total net income from the real estate held by any such grange shall not exceed $200 in any one year.

Any number of subordinate granges may unite in the formation of county or district grange under such constitution, bylaws and rules of the said Order as adopted and promulgated by said state grange, and after receiving a charter from the state grange the officers of such county or district grange or committee under such constitution, bylaws or rules of the county or district grange may file articles of incorporation in the manner provided for subordinate granges and all the duties of the office or duties of the clerk or clerks of the county or district corporation within their jurisdiction and shall thereupon be and become a corporation with authority to sue and be sued and shall have and use a seal and may alter or renew the same at pleasure and shall have and exercise all powers not in conflict with the constitution, bylaws and rules of the state of the state of New York or the constitution, bylaws, rules or usages of said state grange, and shall have all powers not in conflict with the constitution, bylaws and rules of the state of the state of New York or the constitution, bylaws, rules or usages of said state grange, and shall have and exercise

TAFT OPENS BIG FAIR WITH ALASKA GOLD KEY

President Sends Sparks Across Continent Starting Pacific Exposition.

JAMES J. HILL WARNS NATION

Magnate Sees Danger and Pleads for Law Enforcement Instead of Law Making.

President Taft, in the White House, at 3:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, opened a golden key of Alaska gold and sent a spark across the continent that put in motion the wheels of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle, loosed the waters of its fountains, unfurled its banners, started its bands playing, released showers of daylight fireworks, called upon the sitting sons of the American and Japanese fleets, set all the steamers in the harbor and all 114 locomotives in the railroad yards whistling and brought forth universal rejoicing from all Seattle.

Big Fair Is Complete.

The exposition is the world's fair grounds preceding the President's signal were carried out with military precision. The exposition gates were opened at 3:30 o'clock. At 5:30 troops from the United States army and navy, from the Japanese cruisers Aso and Soya and the State militia paraded, though the grounds, under the command of Colonel T. C. Woodbury, U. S. A., and the column was reviewed from a stand at the head of the court of honor by exposition officials, visiting governors and Admirals H. Uhlell and Uriel Sebree.

The ceremonial exercises were held in a vast natural amphitheater sloping to a lake. Invocation by Rabbi Jacob Kohn followed a glee club selection by Edward J. Gilmartin, chief of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, and I congratulate the people of the great Northwest on the courage and enterprise they have shown in bringing it forth. The exposition, designed as it is to exploit the natural resources and marvelous wealth of Alaska and the development of trade and commerce on the Pacific slope, should appeal not only to the people of the Pacific slope but to the people of the country at large. I trust it will fully meet the expectations of those to whose untiring energies it owes its birth and that it will prove a source of instruction and education to its thousands of visitors. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

President Taft and Senator Piles then made brief addresses.

QUAKER CITY STRIKE RIOTS.

Mobs Beat Imported Crews in Philadelphia—Trouble Spreads.

Carsstrike riots were renewed in Philadelphia Thursday, following an outbreak the previous night, in which nearly 100 persons were injured. This disturbance was in northeast Philadelphia, the scene of the riots, when a crowd attacked two trolley cars which were manned by imported workmen. The windows in the cars were broken, the car crews were seriously beaten, and many persons in the crowd were hurt by flying bricks. Several arrests were made. As the result of the disturbance in Kensington Lieut. Sykes, commander of the police in the district, was suspended from duty and will be tried before a police board on a charge of failing to lead his men against the rioters. Sykes, it is said, did not leave the station house during the rioting. All of those injured in the serious rioting will recover. About 100 are under treatment in hospitals. The station house were filled to overflowing with persons arrested for rioting. The elevated and subway system of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, which has been a bulwark of strength for the company since the strike began, is came fled up by a partial strike of its employes Thursday. The trouble started when a west bound train reached the 46th street station. Here the crew decorated their trainmast the 69th street terminal. The company's officials would not discuss the situation but the ticket windows were closed and the crowds on the platforms took to the streets.

FRANCE'S BIRTH RATE GROWS.

Vital Statistics for 1908 Show More Are Born than Die.

The vital statistics of France, which for 1907 showed an excess of 10,000 deaths over the births for that year, a fact which lent to the most gloomy predictions for the future of the French race, have now been published. The official study brings to light more reassuring official figures and shows an excess of 41,411 births over deaths for that year. The total of deaths decreased 18,295 in 1908, while the births decreased 18,868.

Boxing contests of not more than thirty minutes' duration received a strong endorsement in the Wisconsin Assembly when that house, by a vote of 52 to 34 ordered the bill to a committee.

150,832 LEAVE U. S. FOR CANADA.

Exodus of Settlers Over Border in Past Year Breaks All Records.

The report of the immigration department for the fiscal year was issued from Winnipeg Man., Monday. The year closed March 31. The report combines statistics for the whole of Canada, and shows that immigration into Canada via ocean ports from Great Britain and European countries decreased 117,581 persons from the preceding fiscal year. This decline is attributed to restrictive legislation aimed at indirect or somewhat undesirable immigrants. It has not seriously affected the stream from the British Isles. The immigration of settlers from the United States, however, not only shows an increase over the last fiscal year, but it breaks all records for immigration from across the southern border. In the twelve months prior to March 31, 150,832 settlers from the United States came into Canada, bringing with them money and effects the estimated value of which was $50,000,000.

ASK ACREAGE IN DESERT LAND.

Big Rush at Phoenix—Railroad Representative Jarred by Ruling.

The rush at the Phoenix, Ariz., land office Thursday resulted in the filing of seventy-three applications on a tract of over 20,000 acres of desert land at different points adjacent to Agua Fria River, twenty-five miles west of Phoenix. The line had been formed for twenty-four hours preceding the opening at 2 o'clock. Well toward the head of the line was a representative of the Santa Fe railroad. The Santa Fe Railroad with a large quantity of railroad land scrip. The registrar and receiver promulgated a ruling that no one applicant could make more than one filing, or 320 acres, at one time. The railroad representative refused to file. Later in the day, after the line cleared, the railroad represented a filing on 2,700 acres with forest scrip.

FLOOD DAMAGE IS $500,000.

Fourteen Inches of Rain Falls in the Black Hills, Tying Up Railroads.

For the first time in seven days Deadwood, S. D., has a telegraphic connection with the outside world. A conservative estimate of the flood loss in the Black Hills is $500,000. Both the Northwestern and the Burlington roads have sustained very heavy losses. Neither road has a train into Deadwood for three days and will be obliged to bring in mails by team for several days. Fourteen inches of rain was taken in the Black Hills, breaking all records. Many mines have been forced to suspend.

REVOLT IN PERU IS QUELLED.

President Captured and Freed, Defeats Are Relied Forces.

The palace of President Leguia in Lima, Peru, was attacked by revolutionary forces and the loyalty of the troops was all that saved the chief executive from being deposed from office. The revolutionists, after hard fighting, succeeded in entering the palace and making the President prisoner, but the loyal soldiers, after recovering from the panic into which the unexpected attack threw them, advanced upon the rebels and rescued Leguia unharmed. The President, restored to power, immediately took charge of put ting down the disorder. The fighting lasted for some time, but resulted in the complete routing of the revolutionary forces. Later Leguia rode through the streets, which were closely guarded by cavalry, and assured the townspeople and tradesmen th e danger was passed.

BUSINESS MAN IS SUICIDE.

John W. Spoas, Leader in Commercial Affairs, Shoots Himself.

John W. Spoas, a prominent business and club man, committed suicide at his home in Kansas City by shooting. He had been in ill health and was despondent. U. S. SECRET CODE USED.

State Department Lends Aid to Prevent Wedding in Paris.

The State Department in Washington has been asked by a prominent Washington clergyman and a woman well known in social circles in New York, Washington and Newport to prevent, if possible, an impending international marriage between a relative of the woman, possibly her sister, and an alleged nobleman, said to be an Italian, the marriage having been arranged to take place, it is said, in Paris.

The clergyman is Rev. John B. Quinn, rector of the Church of the Ascension, and his companion, Miss Trayman, a Gramercy park New York and Washington. Their visit to the State Department was to get the department to send a cipher message to the relative of Miss Garwood, who it is said, is now in Paris arranging for her marriage to the nobleman in the case. The cipher wished to use the State Department secret code, so that the message could be delivered to the Italian embassy in Paris for delivery and the embassy would then inform the Italian nobleman does not see it.

It is stated that the message warned the young woman that the person she was about to contract a marriagemay be an adventurer who is not an Italian citizen and never had been. Instead, she was told, he was born in the city of birth and had resided in New York for twenty or twenty-five years. Further information concerning the man was that he was a physician and surgeon of skill and ability, a man of ability and the head of a hospital; that he was married and had a family and that who are said to be living in New York.

HUNDREDS IN FLOOD PERIL.

Life Lost in the Rive of North Platte River.

One life has been lost and heavy property damage has been done in the flood in the North Platte River and its tributaries. The North Platte is 2 feet above danger mark and still on the rise at the rate of half an inch an hour. Hundreds are marooned in fields and roads in many places are impassable. While attempting to cross a torrent at Casper a gasoline launch in charge of Jack Ca Pante creek, near Douglas, Wyo., Ben Wadsenbarr, his sister and her 4-year-old child, who were driving in a wagon, were upset and lost into the water by the breaking of the bridge. The child was drowned. The horses and wagon were swept away by the current and the animals drowned, continually the gulch over the bridge runs in a dry bed. A heavy rain fell again at Fernie, B. C., and all trains were held back inside houses, lumber mills and schools and carrying away an immense amount of cut lumber. Many boons went out last night, carrying logs down the river by thousands. The streams in Kootenay are in flood, breaking all records. The Kootenay River is the only track was washed away in many places. The passengers are being bundled in boats.

FIND SUNKEN TREASURE SHIP!

Dredgers Near Fort Mifflin Discover Traces of Wealth.

Government officials are agitated over the discovery of an obstruction in the Delaware river, in the vicinity of Fort Mifflin, which they think may prove to be a treasure ship which went down in 1812. It is known that there is a boat at the bottom of the river at that point and war equipment of value, as well as gold and silver, is supposed to be within the hold of the ship. While the government officials in charge of the work in the vicinity the obstruction pump broke down and the obstruction was brought to the surface it was found to contain several large and costly fireplaces, such as were worn by the English soldiers, and quantities of silver and earthenware. This discovery has led to the belief that it is one of the boats of the English government fleet which sailed up to this country to pay its soldiers during the war of 1812, and which was sunk at this point.

SENTENCED FOR MINING FRAUDS

"Two Queens" Promoters Get Prison Term in Missouri.

Frank M. Horn, R. H. Snyder and Raymond P. May were sentenced to serve a year and a day in the United States prison at Leavenworth, Kan., and to pay a fine of $500 each, and John E. Horn was fined $500 in the Federal court in Kansas City for fraud in promoting the "Two Queens" mines in Arizona. E. S. Horn, the other defendant, was collapsed when the verdict was returned on May 13, was still too ill to appear for sentence. He will be sentenced later. The United States District Attorney made a plea to the court for leniency on behalf of John E. Horn, who is only 22 years old, saying his youth should be considered as an extenuating condition. The judge accepted this suggestion and said the young man's punishment should be only a fine and costs, provided the other three friends.

High Tribute is Paid to Retiring President at Ann Arbor.

"The most inspiring thing given us to know is the fine streak of human wisdom purified by old age," said Professor H. W. Wasder, head of the department of philosophy in the University of Michigan, addressing his students the other day on the subject of the impending retirement of the vacancies created by the resignation of James B. Angell. "Dr. Angell graces the fast thinning ranks of the leaders who made the nineteenth century what it was," said Professor Wasder. "You will not meet real greatness often in your future careers. All the more necessary, therefore, to assure yourselves that it has moved familiarly among you and met you face to face unobtrusively during your student days. The resignation of President Angell constitutes an epoch in the history of the institution we love so well. After all is said and done, human experience roots in character. This world, drab enough otherwise, is a proud place because men like this men of Dr. Angell's quality relieve its commonday and give evidence that our humbler spirit ever dull, leaden circumstances." At the university dinner to Dr. Angell last night, the fare was well of the student body, he was presented with a silver loving cup from the students.

STIFF SENTENCE FOR BURLETSON

Former Banker Given Eight to Twenty Years at Iowa Reformatory.

William Burletson, former financial magnate of Parma village, cashier and manager of the banks at Parma, Pittsford and Hanover, Mich., was given a sentence of from eight to twenty years with a recommendation that the maximum term be ten years. Wife of Burleson was asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, and he answered, "Nothing at all." Judge Parkinson said that falsifying the entries in the books of the banks and making false returns to the banking commissioner constituted a very serious offense, and the sentence should "be not only punitive, but serve to deter others from such conduct.

LIGHT ON "TILT" FROM QUAKE

Scientists Expect to Get Data Now from Coal Mine Explosion.

Wednesday's earthquake in Michigan has stirred up scientists, who are discussing the theory that Michigan possesses a "tilt" line running across the state from near Saginaw or Port Huron to Milwaukee. It is their view that north of this imaginary line the earth is gradually tilting one way and south of it tilting the other. The shocks felt in Lansing and the quakes of Wednesday may be furnished data regarding the "tilt." This shock was felt in all parts except when the tremor came. The last previous shock felt in Michigan in 1884. No serious change in the topography of Michigan is taking place, at it is estimated by the scientists that the tilting is about at the rate of six inches in 100 miles in 100 years.

BYRON ELEVATOR BURNED.

Large Quantity of Wool Also Destroyed—Loss, $40,000.

Set on fire by sparks from the locomotive of a passing freight train, the large wool and grain elevator of E. E. Close & Co. was burned to the ground in Byron, together with the contents, including about 100,000 pounds of wool and 1,000 bushels of beans. The flames spread to the Ann Arbor railway station, which was burned, and a quantity of freight but the office supplies were saved. The station agent was prostrated in preventing the fire spreading to the lumber yard of Ice & Schwerk, which was saved. The E. E. Close & Co's loss is estimated at about $40,000 and that of the railway company at about $500.

Political Comment.

The Tariff in Conference.

Even a bill that is reported from the Finance Committee of the Senate does not take rank as a prospective law. Neither is a bill, as passed up to the House from the House, necessarily a near-law. Nor is the bill which the Senate will pass a sure law.

The conference committee appears to be the court of last resort as concerns the making of a tariff law, and the President, it appears, recognizing that truth, is exercising his influence for the conference that finally will mold the schedules of the Payne Aldrich tariff. The President will apply pressure at the strategic point and the psychological moment, so to speak.

This is indicative of what a conserver of energy and judge of distance the President is. He is after results and not eager for spectacles. He wants schedules which, taken all in all, will redeem the pledges of the party and satisfy the lowest moiety of the people, but he has no desire to split the party, to engender bad blood, or to humiliate any leader.

The old constitutional regard for the separate and distinct functions of legislature and executive has ceased to counsel it. In fact, it is not only constitutional, but also expedient. The Senate is a proud body, rightfully insistent on the prerogatives that, under our institutions, it has maintained these hundred and twenty years. The House has the privilege and right to pass a tariff bill in accordance with its views of what is good and wise.

Mr. Taft carefully refrains from telling the Senate what it ought to do. He expects that body to take hold in the manner which he has indicated. He has opportunity to express their view of what the new tariff should be, the President, as a co-ordinate factor in making of a tariff law, will tell what is his view.

The House of the Senate, the House and the President "to get together and to frame up" the final measure is naturally in the Conference Committee. Therein the three co-ordinate branches will make the national law. They can present their respective views, can compromise, can report out a final formulation.

Mr. Payne has his view, but he is not the Republican party. Mr. Aldrich has his view, but neither is he the party. The House of the Republican party eventually will be responsible may be something which, although it will not be whole loaf, will be another Congressman or Senator.

It has been the disposition of the President has chosen the constitutional and political method of influencing tariff legislation. Congress is responsible, and it may be he will largely get his way—Minneapolis Journal.

The Party of Mist.

The question, "What is a Democrat?" was a conundrum for a time, but today. Five-or persons with courage and conviction could easily give to answer a definition that existed on March 1. The Democrat is more a creature of fog, an illusion, a figure modeled for a passing moment from the substance of mist and shadow.

Washington has had the experience of viewing the disintegration of the Democratic party in America, and in Britain would grandiloquently be "spectator of the disintegration." Pro-gressions attending this crumbling have been parallel in nearly nearly amazing partly a thing for a good man to sorrow over. Senators, labeled in the conventional dictionary as Democrats, have cast their votes exactly contrary to the platform of the national platform for which they spoke so loudly in the late campaign. They have demanded that their constituents desired in contradiction of that action. Some of them, the "Tariff for revenue only." Standard Democrats have voted with the Republicans against the revisionists only by the aid earnestly proffered by the Democrats. Some Democrats, because the records of a lifetime, have been ignored by the majority, have had a high share of protection as possible.

Few statesmen have beheld go into the scrap heap of useless issues. Antiimperialism lived its ricketty period and snapped its feeble spirit. Anti-sow. "Tariff for revenue only," the one remaining issue of Tilden and Cleveland, has been banished. "What is a Democrat?"—Toledo Blade.

Gold Treatment Fails.

The discovery of gold in California increased the production of this precious metal enough, according to a bulletin just issued by the department of commerce and labor.

Up to the year 1850 the average yearly yield of the mines of the world was worth about $12,000,000. The fresh of 49 and the finding of gold in Australia increased the production over $100,000,000 a year. In 1853 the 150 million line was crossed. In 1856, 200 millions entered the world's markets, and last year 427 million dollars' worth was dug from the earth.

Experts now estimate that since the discovery of America 25 billions of gold have been produced, of which 2 billions have disappeared utterly. In spite of the fact that gold is more jealously guarded than any other product, the supply seems to be the shortest in recent years, and the world's supply of gold is now 25,000,000 short of what it was two years ago.

Gold Cure Fails.

Fifteen years ago, when the world was kinkaid, the fine father from the land of his grandmother, Mrs. Jane Hill, worth of California, N. Y., and brought to Holland, will be taken East by Chief Kanderbek and restored to his mother. The boy has promised to give him a fine home and education.

THE PRESIDENT AT PETERSBURG

Is reunited and a common country was the theme of the President at Petersburg. He spoke to men of the South and of the North commingled, to veterans who had worn the gray and veterans who had worn the blue.

"The common heritage of heroism" Judge Taft celebrated—that heritage which is all the country's, that heroism by whose virtue the enduring good of one whole country was brought to pass.

Before the lines of Petersburg in 1865 were wrought the deeds that in April resulted in Appomattox and the death of the Confederacy. From the Wilderness to Petersburg Grant moved consistently by the left flank, and Lee endeavored always to have his army interposed between Richmond and Grant. This strategy of the two great commanders, marked by a succession of terrible deathlocks from the Rapidan to the James, finally ended in the grim, stark struggle around Petersburg.

Following the bloody battle of the Wilderness, Lee expected the Army of the Potomac would retreat as after Chancellorsville, and after Fredericksburg. But the Army of the Potomac had a new commander. Grant ordered an advance by the left flank. That advance never ceased. Grant battered Lee on every opportunity, knowing "that he could afford to lose three men to Lee's one, and willing to accept any punishment in order to inflict punishment."

The heroism of the common soldiers of the two armies in that one campaign has never been surpassed. The men of the North charged works they knew were impregnable—at Spotsylvania, at Cold Harbor. "The bloody angle" was one of the results. While the men of the South, in rags, half starved, fought in the lines by day and marched by night to new defenses.

Grant grappled, hung fast, worried his enemies, bulldog fashion. He played the game of war without fear and without mercy. He made war for the war, and to end the war he knew must spend the lives by the tens of thousands. He poured out blood like water. From the Wilderness to Petersburg he saved his war with human lives, and those lives were cheerfully offered up in the name of his country's sake.

It has been the fashion to depreciate somewhat Grant and to overrate a little Lee. The campaigns on Grant's part were that of a great captain. If Lee made an admirable defense, it must be considered that it was on interior lines, behind a system of defenses he had been erecting for four years. Grant, notwithstanding, assumed the initiative from the start and never let go. Lee never let Lee, never relinquished the advantage. He moved diagonally nearer and nearer to Richmond, and finally retreating his base from the Potomac to the James, crossing the James assaulting Richmond from the southeast, and edging ever farther south and west, until Lee's defense became impossible and Petersburg with Richmond must be evacuated.

But neither Petersburg nor Richmond contented Grant. He was not after cities, but after the army of Lee. With Sheridan he hurried on Lee's trail, preventing Lee from falling the western mountains, and forcing Lee to surrender at Appomattox courthouse.—Minneapolis Journal.

No Partners Wanted.

Secretary of War Dickinson and Secretary of the Navy Metcalf have just returned from inspecting sites for the fortifications of the Panama Canal.

Mr. Dickinson is reported to have stated that the fortifications will cost $20,000,000, but that, by getting an international agreement to neutralize the canal zone, we may save the money.

The suggestion that money be saved by such a method prompts some questions.

What are we building the Panama canal for? Primarily, of course, for commerce, but also partly and largely to enable the efficiency of our navy—to be able to meet attacks on other fronts with the same ships.

Our battleships fighting ships of line are represent an investment of $150,000,000. Our total active investment in the navy is probably $400,000,000.

By spending $200,000,000 or more on the Panama canal we expect, among other things, to double the value of this investment—to make the $400,000,000 worth $800,000,000 as a public defense plant.

When we can do this alone, and are doing it, what is the sense of admitting partners merely to save $20,000,000?

It would be like a man able to have a $5,000 automobile giving half his concern, to save the price of auto horses.

We admitted a European partner at Panama once. Then we spent forty years to get rid of him before building the canal.

Why, then, reverse ourselves now? Why duplicate

FROM ARTHUR BEATTIE

Marion Farmer, Enroute to the Far West, Writes Interestingly of His Journey to North Dakota—Moving Westward.

FARGO, N. D., June 5th.

To the Charlevoix Sentinel:

As I promised, I write you these few lines descriptive of my trip thus far. I left Charlevoix June 3d. Had a very pleasant trip across the lake from Ludington to Milwaukee. Left Milwaukee soon after arriving. I found Wisconsin a very fine country until I reached the middle of the State; there the soil looks poor and the country is hilly and marshy. Where the country was level the soil seemed to be very sandy.

At Lacrosse we crossed the Mississippi river into Minnesota, and all the way from there to St. Paul—nearly 200 miles—the railroad follows the river closely, and all I could see was brush and river. I asked a passenger who was familiar with the country if there was any good farming land behind the hills and brush. He answered that there was, and wanted to sell me 10,000 acres at $50 per acre. I told him I would not have time to look it over this trip.

I found St. Paul to be a very fine city, where I remained two days and saw the splendid new capitol building, which cost over $4,000,000. It is built entirely of granite and marble. Leaving St. Paul the country is fine and level Soil looks good, crops coming on nicely, but no farther advanced than in Michigan. I stopped off in Minneapolis to see the large flouring mills and the great water power.

From Minneapolis west the country is very fine as far as Little Falls, then it gets sandy and brushy, with some good land in streaks. My next stop was here, of which place I will write in another letter.

Respectfully yours,
ARTHUR BEATTIE.

HILLSBORO, MONT., June 9, 1909.

I will now continue my "spoof" wester from Fargo. I found Fargo a very thriving city, it being a distributing center for all kinds of harvesting machinery and most every known kind of threshing machines. From here west the country is very level for 300 miles, and thousands of acres of growing grain can be seen from the car window. The farmers all drive four horses side by side. I saw several steam plows working. They claim to plow 40 acres per day and harrow it at the same time, the harrow being hitched behind the plow.

The soil is a dark sandy loam with blue clay subsoil. The crops are looking very good, having had plenty of rain. I was told that the winters are very cold, 40 below zero being a common thing. Nearing the western part of the state the country gets very rough, embracing what is known as Pyramid Park, or the bad lands of North Dakota. Near the little Mississippi river, and just before the train passes out of North Dakota is where Mr. Roosevelt once owned a cattle ranch. A large sign board marks the spot, and a small sod house seen near by is where lived for a time.

My next stop was at Glendive, Mont., where I got the first sight of the Yellowstone river. This is a small town of about 3,000 population. About everything is range stock here—cattle, sheep and horses—and the ranchers are very jubilant over the prospects for the season. They are having plenty of rain, the grass is good and the prices paid for stock were never higher. The railroad here follows the Yellowstone Valley, near the river most of the way. The valley is from five to ten miles wide. The soil is very fertile and of a dark grayish color. Billings is the largest city in the valley, and is quite an industrial center. It has a beet sugar factory of 1200 daily capacity, and the growers claim to get from 15 to 24 per cent sugar tests.

The most of this valley is under irrigation or preparing for it. The government has several hundred acres already under ditch for sale at $30 per acre. Good non-irrigated land can be bought for from $10 to $15 per acre, but it is back in the hills. There is plenty of good government land here yet

My next stop will be at the Yellowstone National Park, of which I will write next. N. B.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The statue of Father Marquette, which is made possible through the generosity of the late Peter White, has reached New York from Italy. It is 10 feet high, and will stand on a granite base of the same height. It will be placed in the state park in front of the fort at Mackinac Island, which is called Marquette place.

While riding on the rear end of his train while backing up, at Boyne City one day last week, Conductor Frank Gibbs, in some unknown manner fell off the train and several cars and an engine passed over him before he was missed. The train was taking several cars of logs to mill No. 3, and he was directing its movements from the rear end. He fell off at the frog just beyond the switch and being behind the logs was not missed until the engine got to him.

Boyne Citizen: The election called by the school trustees for the purpose of voting a bond issue for the site and erecting of a new school building, was held in the High School building this Friday night. The proposition as outlined by the school board, calling for the $12,000 issue was defeated by a vote of 43 to 31. The next proposition was the voting of $20,000 for the erection of a new school building on the site of the old white brick building on Park street, and this proposition was carried by a vote of 56 for and 15 against. This will call for the erection of a new building to contain 16 rooms.

East Jordan Herald: The officers and directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society held their annual spring meeting in this village Saturday last and made some preliminary arrangements for the Twenty fifth Annual meeting, which takes place at East Jordan, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Sept. 28-29-30. Some changes were made in the Premium List and an amendment was made to the By Laws providing that all exhibitors must purchase membership tickets or that such tickets must be held by the head of the family. The finances are in excellent shape and the quarter-centennial anniversary promises to be the banner number. Robert Price is president of the organization and Att'y A. B. Nicholas Jr, is secretary.

A Thrilling Rescue.

How Bert H. Lean, of Chesy, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor. Then I paid $10 to 15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." Forest Service and Good Roads.

Realizing that with thinner settlement and increasing use of the national forests good roads will become more and more a serious necessity, it has been arranged that the office of public roads of the department of agriculture shall cooperate with the forest service in drawing up plans for comprehensive systems of roads and trails in the national forests. Hitherto the funds allotted by congress to the forest service for permanent improvements on national forests have largely been used for road and trail building, but the amount is too small compared with the total area of the forests to make possible more than a small beginning. Building each year under the new arrangement can be done with reference to a carefully worked out plan, energying the danger of undirected effort. The roads, trails, telephone lines and fire lines already constructed in national forests are proving of great value both in the work of fire protection and in serving the convenience of the public. The further this work can be carried the greater will be the usefulness of the forests to the surrounding regions. This is only one of the many ways in which the forest service is promoting the interests of the people.

How to Hang Tablecloths.

Tablecloths if hung properly are much easier to iron than if they are hung carelessly. The proper way to hang tablecloths is to fold the two ends together and hang them on the line with pins close together. When the cloth is taken from the line it should be folded carefully, so that it will not have any of those great long creases that it is sure to have if thrown carelessly into the basket. If these simple precautions are taken the tablecloth will iron easier and will look much better.

How to Give Ferns Steam Baths.

Ferns may be kept fresh by giving them a steaming of three hours. Once every week or so they should be put into the bathroom, shutting all windows and doors of the room to keep in the steam. The bathtub should then be filled with hot water. It will generally be found that the room should not be cooled down before this is done. By treating the ferns to this bath it is not necessary to wash and spray the leaves, which do not give so satisfactory a result.

How to Cleanse Sponges.

Soften sponges in the following fresh and by rubbing the juice of a lemon well into them, then rinsing several times, first in hot water and then in cold. An occasional sun bath is excellent, and a thorough washing with ammonia water every few weeks should not be omitted.

Cuticle Not So Bitter.

No one has ever made a salve, ointment, lotion or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. G. Hines & Co.

Land and Nautical Miles.

In considering the speed of a steamship, it must be remembered that a knot, or nautical mile, is a very different thing from a land mile. A mile is 5,280 feet, while a knot is 6,086 feet and a fraction. Therefore, when a vessel makes 23.05 knots an hour, she passes over very nearly 27 land miles.

Oh, Nonsense!

J. L. CRANE
The Leading Dry Goods and Carpet House in Charlevoix County.

THE fact that hammocks are used only in summer, is no reason why a hammock should be made to last but one summer. Fashions don't affect hammocks very much; a hammock is easily stored, and, if well made, ought to be better the second summer than the first—the favorite easy chair is always an old chair.

In the Vudor Reenforced hammock we have produced a hammock that lasts. Instead of the usual, slighted, skimped, flimsy, one-season-goods construction, we put into these hammocks best designing, material and workmanship that we can obtain. The result is that Vudor Reenforced Hammocks last several times as long as ordinary hammocks, and reduce the yearly cost of porch furnishing, at the same time giving far better appearance, comfort and general satisfaction.

How People Lose Their Money
By concealing it about their person; by stowing it away in mugs, jugs and jars; by sewing it up in skirts and ticks; by locking it under the couches and carpets, in cupboards and bureau drawers; these are some of the ways by which people lose their money and sometimes THEIR LIVES.

How People Save Their Money
By depositing it in a good reliable bank. Confident that this bank fully meets that requirement and the public's needs, we tender its services to all who believe in keeping on the SAFE SIDE. Four (4) per cent interest paid on deposits. Compounded semi-annually.

They were on board the steamship Manitou, on their way to the Soo. They were here about two hours, and were taken about town in automobiles and carriages, expressing great admiration of "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Several also expressed a determination to take summer residence here hereafter.

—That Michigan's two-cent fare law is a success is now a pretty well established fact. Earning reports by the railways have failed to show the reduction which the pessimistic railway managers declared they would show once the law went into effect, but instead have shown a gain, and now the railways have re-embarked in the excursion business which they announce during the winter of 1907, they had abandoned forever, as a means of reprisal against the people of the state for forcing them to sell tickets at two cents a mile.

Trustworthy Toilet Preparations

Don't make the fatal mistake of using strange toilet requisites, without any guarantee as to their quality. If you do you're taking big chances of ruining your complexion. Bad toilet goods are worse than none, for they not only do no good, but often contain ingredients that are actually injurious to the skin.

We can recommend all the toilet helps we sell as being pure, fresh and excellent, containing only elements of high nutritive value to the skin.

A HAPPY EVENT

Another North Side Wedding of Interest—Charlevoix Girl Comes Back to the Scenes of Her Girlhood to Wed.

MANISTEE, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Meech, Lindsay Park, Charlevoix, Thursday evening, June 17th, by Rev. W. Bedford-Jones, Mr. Harry Woodard, of Minneapolis, to Miss Ethel Keith Smith, of Charlevoix.

No prettier setting to a wedding scene ever presented itself to the eye than that which revealed itself to the assembled guests at the Meech home last Thursday evening, when Rector Bedford-Jones, of Emanuel Episcopal church, of Petoskey, garbed in surplice and stole, gave the final blessing to this happy young couple kneeling before him as husband and wife, the white gown and veil of the bride mingling with the white lilacs that encircled her, the robe of the priest contrasting strikingly with the deep green of the bank of palms and ferns before which he stood. He had spoken the words—"In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost," and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodard stood radiant amid the throng, and smothered in the avalanche of felicitations that fell upon them.

It was the venerable Fred J. Meech who led the bride to the altar and gave her away, entering between floral ropes held by Misses Marion Harris, Nita Mayne, Mayfred Stacks, Sarah Levinson, Alma Francis and Mattie Bedford. Little Miss Jessie Meech led the way, as the flower girl, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Marie Mayne. From the right came the groom, attended by his best man, Mr. Irving C. Royal, of Minneapolis. The procession entered to the strains of Lohengrin, sweetly sung by a chorus of young ladies, with Miss Helen Smith at the piano. After the repast the bride and groom departed by automobile for Petoskey and home, and, "well it not in Gath, whisper it not in the streets of Ashelon," they were compelled to steal away, like a thief in the night, to escape the heroic demonstrations that Charlevoix young folks most generously give the newly married friends whom they love. The parents of the groom, Dr. and Mrs. Woodard, of Minneapolis, were present.

There is a shade of romance in this manifestly happy union that is pregnant with interest to Charlevoix people. The bride is a graduate of the Charlevoix High School of the Class of '02, and was known as one of the brightest students now numbered in the membership of the local alumni. She was a favorite who spent her girlhood days in Charlevoix with good friends, studiously and industriously applying herself to the performance of tasks that fell to her in the development of her marked intellectual powers. After her graduation she went to Minnesota as a teacher, where she first met the sterling young gentleman who came and took her hence last Thursday.

It was a most promising testimony to the womanly worth of Ethel Keith Smith that she should meet her affianced at the altar in a home, under the roof of which she had no kin save that born in the kinship that ever warms the gentle heart of "Aunt Polly" Meech toward the mothers of God's household.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodard were the recipients of wedding gifts in abundance. They will establish their home at Madison, Wis., where Mr. Woodard holds a responsible position with the Washburn Crosby Flour Mill Co., of Minneapolis.

Traverse City Eagle: A number of persons have expressed a desire to visit Indian Home at Hog City and now comes the opportunity. On Tuesday, June 22, the steamer Chippewa has been chartered by the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church and the trip will be made, leaving Traverse City at 7:30 in the morning.

"ONLY A RESORT TOWN"

The Common Expression of Some of Our Neighbors—The Resort Business An Industry of Large Magnitude and Growing Apace.

People in some of the "industrial towns" of this region are fond of referring to Charlevoix as "only a resort town," thereby conveying the impression that its habitues depend largely for a living upon the summer solstice.

The epigram does not offend; it only amuses. Charlevoix is an industrial town. It has manufacturing plants and will have more of them; but an industry that overtops them all, and, in fact, any other one industrial plant in the Pine lake region, is the resort industry. It is considered by many as only a three months' summer picnic, with orchestras, bands, frog's legs and ice cream. As a matter of fact it is an industry of nine months duration, and in which the dinner-pail is very much in evidence. The prosperity and growth of a town depends altogether upon its income. It matters not how the money comes providing it is honestly earned.

We have many times referred to the large number of people employed as a result of the enlargement of facilities to meet the greatly increasing demand. There is another very important feature of the business—a feature that equals in financial benefit the industrial benefit. There is one citizen of Charlevoix who has leased his residence three months annually for five years at an annual rental of $1,000. We know of another who gets $800, while there are many who vacate their furnished homes for from $250 to $500. Where do the owners go during this period? Some of them live in comfortable bungalows on the premises, while others secure smaller quarters in the suburbs. Some build inexpensive cottages "beyond the ends" for themselves, and retire under the shade of a maple has as much enjoyment in it for the resident as the well furnished residence has to the Chicago or other millionaire.

This is why Charlevoix is able to pave its streets—something that the aforesaid "industrial towns" do not seem to be able to do with all their dinner pails and smoke-stacks. If the three months' summer income could be averaged over the twelve months with that which accrues from the handiwork of the artisan and laborer, Charlevoix would be classed as a prosperous industrial town.

And the important feature of it is, the industry is every year increasing. There is no element in it that time will diminish. The timber will go, but the clear water, the beautiful scenery and the bracing Lake Michigan air will always remain with us.

Common Council

At the council meeting Tuesday evening petitions for sidewalks were granted as follows: S. Orlowski & Son, W. E. Parmelee, Sarah Merriam, James Gaskin, E. B. Ward, Minnie Vettew, A. J. Hamilton, Mrs. J. M. Park and Mrs. Ella Sefton.

A crossing walk was ordered on Grant street at intersection of Park Ave.

Chief of police was instructed to notify dealers that sale of giant firecrackers is a violation of law.

Street commissioner was authorized to expend not to exceed $250 for grading and filling on Bridge street.

Petition of Wm. L. Johnson, bridge tender, was approved.

East Jordan Herald: For some time past A. M. Haight, Manager of the East Jordan Cooperage Co., has been making plans looking toward the installation of a skeid barrel factory in addition to their keg industry. The matter has been finally arranged and on Thursday, J. H. Noble of Cleveland Ohio, representing Grief Bros. who control this plant, was here and closed up the deal. One of the present buildings will be remodelled, new machinery will be added, and barrels will be turned out at the rate of 500 per day after July 15th—when they expect to commence operations.

AT Beaudoin's parlor Saturday you can get chocolate ice cream for 25 cents per quart.

"You bear me." "I've taken the slight-est pains to inform the other shareholders and the company is thoroughly rotten to the core. Jim, you've got to jump like a bullet up to your eyes. And they'll yanked. Mr. Blake's waiting for us down the river."

"Why, you don't have to get me out of money scrapes," said Porter.

"Why do you always bring that up?" asked Fenton.

"I say after a reverse—a close call like, I'll make it all right."

"Well, I wish you'd try to remember that I haven't given you any advice at all in this business. I'm doing it, and I'm doing it my way. Now, I don't know anything definitely about Blake's notes and I don't know that Margraves is gambling your lines in this business."

"Why will you say that?"

"He's this way," said Fenton, in his most confidential tone—"I don't know anything about it, but I know enough to be a lawyer asking me about Margraves. I understand it seems that my friend has a client who owns a block of Bellmont stock, and that stock went to Baltimore and Philadelphia, you understand, and I think that Margraves is after it."

"Why, you don't mean that away out to us?" shouted Porter, pounding the table with his fist.

"I'm sick of this morning, and here's his answer. I got it just before I came out. Margraves seems to be anxious and wired them in usual certification, with the usual threats, to come on. I'm fairly certain that Mr. Porter had not been at the bank. I wanted to see what was doing at 10 o'clock and found the president's desk clean."

"Where's the boss?" he demanded.

"Why, I'm sick this morning," said Wheaton. "Miss Porter telephoned that he wasn't feeling well, but he expected to be down after luncheon."

CHAPTER XIII.

Porter's disclosures published in the first edition of the afternoon papers, while Wheaton was at his desk, been hurried to publication and when he read the printed account of the matter in the office of Chicago National Bank was confined to his house by illness, he felt that Porter must be very sick; and he naturally turned the fact over in his mind to see how this might affect him. The directors came in and chief with their heads together, but Mr. Wheaton, very sick, and he saw Porter's doctor, who confirmed the president's story and suggested that Thompson, the banker, be called in. Porter was delirious. The others acquainted, and they proposed a retreat to Thompson at Thule, suggesting his immediate return, if possible.

"Fenton, spent the afternoon in court. He intended to call at the Porters on his way home, and pulled up at the door before going to his office, thinking that the banker might be there; but the president's desk was closed.

"How sick is Mr. Porter?" he asked Wheaton.

"He's pretty sick," said Wheaton. "It's typhoid fever. I spoke to Miss Porter over the telephone a few minutes ago, and she did not seem to be alarmed about her father. He's very strong, you know."

Her Fenton was not listening. "See here, Wheaton," he said, suddenly, "do you know anything about Porter's private affairs?"

"No, very much," said Wheaton, guardedly.

"I guess you don't and I guess nobody does, worse luck! You know how scrupulously sensitive he is, and how he shies from publicity—I suppose you do," he went on a little grimly. He did not like Wheaton particularly. "What he has done Thurlow struck the annual meeting in bold language and I've got to be responsible."

"He never told me of it," said Wheaton, truthfully.

"His shares are probably in his bathroom, or, if not under the bed at home; I'm sure we've got to get them if he has any, and I don't know that he has his wits half probably rip and send word to me." Fenton's voice was low and hard. "Miss Porter telephoned me to come on some business matter, she said, and I doubt that's what it is."

"Then I wouldn't go, now, but I'll see you here as soon as you get down town. I'll be at my office in the Chicago National Bank." he added, deliberately. Fenton was a powerful man when he was aroused.

"I'll come directly back here," said Wheaton. "I'm doubtful the papers are where we left them in one of Mr. Porter's private boxes."

"Are you get into it so-slip?"

"Yes; it's in the vault where we keep our valuable papers. I'm sure that Margraves is gambling your lines in this business."

"Why will you say that?"

"He's this way," said Fenton, in his most confidential tone—"I don't know anything about it, but I know enough to be a lawyer asking me about Margraves. I understand it seems that my friend has a client who owns a block of Bellmont stock, and that stock went to Baltimore and Philadelphia, you understand, and I think that Margraves is after it."

"But it might do me some harm! Now, you don't want those shares, Jim. You're entitled to a profit, and I'll pay you a fair price."

"I can't do anything to hurt Mr. Porter," said Wheaton. He remembered just how the drawing-room at the Porters' looked, and the kindness and frankness of Evelyn Porter's eyes.

"Yes, but you've got a duty to me. You can see your life that if it hadn't been for you, I'd never have been in this pickle. Come along now, Jim, I've got a lot of new railroad people to go in on this. They depend absolutely on my judgment. I'm a ruined man if I fall to show up at the meeting to-morrow with a majority of these shares. It won't make any difference to Billy Porter whether he wins out or not. He's got plenty of loose in the fire. I don't know as a matter of fact that I need these shares; but I want to be on the safe side. How much shall I make the check for, Jim?"

"You can't make it for anything. Mr. Margraves, and I want to say that I'm very much disappointed in the way you've tried to get it from me. I can't imagine that those few shares of stock I hold can be of real importance in deciding the control of this company. I don't say I won't give you these shares, but I won't do it now."

"Margraves's face grew red and purple as Wheaton walked toward the door.

"Mayse you think you can write your name out of Porter then you can out of me, too! I'm sick of the lot of you and of him, too, if I go broke doing it."

THE COMPENSATING WAY.

Denied Her Daily Reading, She Finds Other Amusement.

Cousin Leslie left the doctor's office, the doom of his warning ringing in her ears. For he was a great specialist and knew.

"Alone all things, Miss Leslie," he said, "you are physically strong to use your eyes daily at your profession, you must quite these all additional strain. You must not read at night; you must not rend on the cars. I only wish you could get them the complete rest of."

"The complete rest." How could there come to a busy private secretary whose salary, every penny of it, was needed at home? And her eyes, was she, with her active mind, to stand the long evenings without her book, the daily, draining car ride without the companionship of reading? All this she thought of, brooded over, until at last she spoke her confidences grief to her dearest friend, a woman 15 years older than herself, and full of the keenest, quickest sympathy in the world.

"I feel like a cowardly wretch to be complaining this way," she ended "I know it's a positive mercy that I have any eyes left at all. Only—"

"Only you have to read so much, and all the rest of it, Carol dear. I know. But you must let the discouragement master you. I'm sure, wise little virgin that you are, that it is some sweet compensating way."

"Compensating way! Have's Heaven's sake, what do mean?"

"Why, I don't know what you're driving at, but I want you to stop blaming anything on your eyes and tell me that you have had one manifested. I never knew anyone who had a great loss in connection with Tuesday that I didn't see that it was a blessing in disguise. It is only sometimes I wish we weren't saying anything to you at all; but I know that you are a friend of mine. If anybody's been deceived, I'm the one."

"Let me tell you something, Haven't you known all these weeks when I've been worried over every few days a letter, and at my house several times?—the deal on the second floor, as if it be beneath of hospitality on Wheaton's part? Had been a serious offense—Haven't you known that the old man was chasing over the country in his car—sleeping in his clothes, Porter had, in fact, contempt for lawyers, though he leaned on Fenton more than he would admit; Fenton, on the other hand, was constantly fearful lest he—lose blood—and take suffering for the sensitive nostrils. He had difficulty in getting at the facts—no, of how even when they were imperatively required.

The next morning Fenton was at his office early and sent his boy at once to ask Mr. Porter if he could see him. He reported that Mr. Porter had not been at the bank. Fenton waited two days longer 10 o'clock and found the president's desk clean.

"Where's the boss?" he demanded.

"Why, I'm sick this morning," said Wheaton. "Miss Porter telephoned that he wasn't feeling well, but he expected to be down after luncheon."

THE POPULAR PULPIT

THE BLESSED FOOLS

Rev. Henry F. Cope.

"The walk by faith."—II. Cor. 5:7.

The fools save the world; the practical people and the world. Jesus simply keep it going. The wise, who never go forth without a few fools in hand, first laugh at the fools, then pity them, then imprison and kill them. Then God sends to Jesus and to Calibos, and to every other one who talked of a kingdom that could not be laid off with their measuring sticks.

Probably to a horse a mile is the greatest foot imaginable; he rushes around, he does so many things that seem to have no significance; he wears himself off out and often gives neither oats nor a stall; at the end of the day the man wants for ends that are before him. Invisible often; the horse works only on the spur of that which is behind him. The man is a mere idealist; the horse a practical man.

Almost any person can see the moundbuilder, but it takes only a few get the significance of a mound, yet the one is as real as the other, and the truth is this plain old world of ours is covered with a good deal more by those who don't know how to use it than by those that skip deeper than the senses.

The philosophy that uses all life only as so much animated and unless the richer and unlimited meaning of life. To see only things is really not to see anything. It is as if one should think of a book as made up of the impressions or of a song as only so many black dots on paper. Life lies deeper than its outer forms and considerable of our time must and drink and eat and breathe.

Yet through all our money making, our pleasure seeking, our business and our rushing to and fro, the toll and turmoil of our world rains a fine, silent, great motives and ideals. It manifests itself in love of truth, devotion to national purposes, tender care of those for the weak, silence for the needy, sympathy for the sick and helpless, and goodness and helpfulness it is seen, and the name of this spirit is religion.

Churches are only organized, social forms of its expression; creeds are only attempts to analyze its phenomena; meetings, services, and preaching are only more or less formalized methods of stimulating and feeding the soul. Lack of them all lies this vision of the great spiritual realities of life, and in ing, this that makes some count not their lives dear to themselves, makes them forget their principles and of gold and silver, and to court the favor of the world, the burden of life quickly becomes heavier, and its difficulties are multiplied.

In every century Satan and his agents have been busy inventing unnecessary burdens for the backs of faithful Christians. When the devil cannot tempt a good man outright into sin he does what from the standpoint of the devil is next best thing—makes him foolish or fanatical, and so loads him down with distracting ideas or imaginary duties as practically to paralyze his power for good in human society. For the overburdened man cannot in the fullest degree be the efficient man. The soldier who fights at his best when overweighted with knapsack and blanket. So the Christian roman must proceed to the fray is light marching order, laying aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset him, if he is to do his best work as a spiritual combatant.

The unnecessary burdens taken many forms. Six itself is the greatest burden that suggests itself of this kind of needless burdening. God does not mean that a man should spend his life struggle along under the load of unforgiven sin. Rather, the glad testimony of every child of God should be, "As the cross the burden of my sin was gone, and I walk straight gate is too narrow to allow of a heavenbound soul carrying the weight. It is a great pack of unforgiven iniquity, nor can even the sin of yesterday not be taken out through to-day. The pilgrim must confess and forsake each day's sin, and so be cleansed from all sin as he goes along.

DR. E. E. HALE IS DEAD; END COMES SUDDENLY

WAS AN AUTHOR OF NOTE

Born in 1822 of Revolutionary Stock and Showed Precocity as Child —Ordained at Age of 20.

Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States Senate, died at his home in Roxbury, Mass., Thursday. A week previous he was passing at a celebration in honor of the 100th birthday of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, she commented in behalf of the reform movements with which both had been identified for more than fifty years. At the bedside were Mrs. Hale, Philip L. Hale, a son, Mrs. Jones, a daughter, and the family physician.

As an advocate of world peace and a humanitarian whose activities have "many and forefold," Dr. Hale, who was pastor emeritus of the old South Church of Boston, which publish he was president from 1856 until 1903, had a career of usefulness that is unique in American history.

Born in Boston April 3, 1822, Dr. Hale came of a long line of Revolutionary stock. His father, Nathan Hale, was a nephew of the patriot whose name he bore. "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country," was the sentiment ascribed to the patriot's struggle for liberty. His mother was a niece of Benjamin Franklin, for whom her son was named.

It has been said of Dr. Hale that "he was a prodigy from the first. The literary bent showed itself early. He was a precocious child. At 10 years he contributed his relation to the Pope and it has been accepted.

St. Paul chapter, Knights of Columbus, will contribute $7,000 to the Knights of Columbus fund for the Catholic University in Washington.

At no time in the history of the university has there been more than a few students who showed signs of spiritual awakening as at the present time.

Hev. P. R. Campbell, recently pastor of the Christian church at Hastings, Neb., was ordained at St. Louis, in company with Miss Josephine Studley, a student of the church.

Rev. Mr. Beal, rector of the Episcopal church at Elgin, Ill., has asked his congregation to contribute to his support while he is absent from his parish, and if they regard his services as worth more than the stipend they should worry. The real question is, "Are we giving to our one's own shoulders or on those of others?" Mr. Beal is a man who believes that life is more than meat, and that the body is more than raiment.

AGONIZING ITCHING

Eczema for a Year—Not No Relief Even at Skin Hospital—Is Despite Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scaly skin on my ankles, feet, arms and scalp. Something made it worse. Thousands of small red pimples formed and then caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital to diagnose the skin. I did so, as the other surgeon saying "I never saw a bad case of eczema." The surgeon's treatment gave me no relief. Then I tried many accredited remedies, but found no bad that I almost gave up in despair. After suffering agonies for twelve months, I was induced to try Cuticura Soap, and Cuticura Ointment. Within after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment, I continued to use, combined with Cuticura Soap, and Pills, and I was completely cured. An Obliging Caller.

When M. Clemenceau was in the United States he was offered a lecture for some reason the idol of the working classes. He was unwilling to give up to the course of nature, brought its penalties. He was hedging, by all accounts, in the matter of answering questions, and sometimes they were of quite the most trivial sort.

He was originally a doctor and used to give advice for nothing on certain hours of the day. One morning a workingman entered his room, and Clemenceau said without looking up from his writing:

"Take off your coat and vest, sit down and wait for a minute." Then minutes later he turned to the "Do you want to be free and independent States?"....British fleet arrived at Charleston, S. C., to begin the campaign for the South.

Work of Congress

Senator Dolliver, assisted by eight or nine other progressive Republicans, valiantly spent Thursday in secure some concession in the wool schedule of the tariff bill. All their amendments were voted down by the usual majority. The wool schedule was debated all day and Friday, it passed late until 8 o'clock, when the discussion was suddenly cut short by the usual adjournment.

Jerome tax shared with the wool schedule the attention of the Senate during Friday's sitting of that body, and after discussion of an hour or more in further consideration was postponed until June 15. This action was the result of a motion made by Senator Aldrich, which followed a charge by Senator Bailey that undue influence was being brought to bear against the proposed income tax amendment to the tariff bill. Mr. Aldrich declared that he knew of no influence, but he pleaded for the postponement of the question until the schedule should be disposed of. The Senate was in a more tractable mood of 59 to 8 to recommit the wool schedule to the Committee on Finance on motion of Mr. Cummins and thus finally concluded the consideration of a subject which has caused the most aggressive Republicans suggested the motion, thinly disguised by the politic that Senator Aldrich had lost the control of his party in the Senate, upon which a leader should have, Mr. La Follette made a determined fight to secure some of the concessions to the wool schedule which were Thursday denied to Senator Dolliver. There were two dozen or more of them, and all were in the nature of a compromise. Bacon forced votes on two amendments reducing to 50 per cent ad valorem the duties on the coarser wool goods, but he failed to obtain the support of any of the Republican Senators, even the progressives refusing to follow him. The House was not in session.

Having completed consideration of items of the tariff bill that had been passed over under objections by Senators during the second session of the government of the Senate Saturday last, it was expected that the real progress of the measure. When the bill is again taken up it will be upon the schedule of wool, the consideration of items upon which the most pronounced objections have been made. In completing the second reading of the bill, words of earlier, the Senate agreed old, and collections illustrating the progress of the arts over one hundred years old, which were placed in the free list by the committee on finance, were restored to the dutiable list. Interesting debate by a vote of 57 to 15. The starch industry received protection by a vote of 37 to 35. The starch industry received protection by a vote of 37 to 35. OCEAN LINER IS WRECKED.

The transatlantic steamer Slavonia of the Cunard line, bearing 410 saloon passengers and 300 steerage passengers, was stranded Friday off Flores Island in the Azores group. The vessel is practically a wreck and it is thought the wreck will be immoveable. The vessel was bound from New York to Naples and Genoa.

None of the passengers was lost in the wreck of Friday, owing to the quick work of rescue which was done by the liner Princess Irene of the North German Lloyd line and the Hamburg-American liner Batavia. These two vessels, summoned by wireless from the Slavonia, stood by and took off all of the passengers, the saloon guests being taken aboard the Princess Irene and the steerage passengers being taken off by the Batavia. The list of cabin passengers as given out by the Cunard line contains but few prominent names. The first class passengers are practically all American.

The weather conditions were not mentioned in the dispatches, but it is surmised that the sea was calm and that the grounding of the Slavonia was due to fog weather. Flores Island is the most westerly of the Azores group, and presents great perpendicular cliffs. The island is about 30 miles long and nine miles wide. It is thickly populated, the inhabitants raise cattle and poultry and wheat for the Spanish markets.

The Slavonia was a sister ship of the Ultonia, Pannonia and Carpathia and one of the best liners in the Mediterranean trade. It was a steel ship of 10,000 tons gross and 500 feet long. It was valued at about $750,000.

ARSENIC IS FOUND IN BREAD.

Rich Indiana Woman Thinks Poison That Killed Farmer Was for Her.

The presence of arsenic in the bread sample sent to the United States laboratory of the State Board of Health for forensic examination by Dr. Chesney of Salliuay, Ind., has been established by a test just completed, and the strength of the deadly poisonous arsenious are being made to investigate the sudden death of Henry Dunn of Springs, living in Haddon Township, Sullivan County. In addition to the bread sample, a sample of flour was sent to the laboratory, but this has not yet been tested. Surgeon and Sana and Howard Wightlord are said to have been poisoned May 3, the symptoms being those of acute poisoning. The two Whitfields recovered, but Springs died.

Mrs. Flora Haddon believes the poison was placed in the bread in order to cause her death. Springs lived on the farm of Mrs. Haddon and had received three anonymous letters recently. One were pictured a skull and crossbones, telling her to leave or she would be killed. Mrs. Haddon has recently defended in a suit brought by Frank Crawford, postmaster in the Hawaiian Islands, involving land valued at $200,000. The jury decided in her favor.

WANT TO EXPEL PROF. FOSTER.

Baptist Ministers Say Educator's Views Problem Him Unfavorable.

The efforts of the Chicago Baptist ministers to expel Prof. Gustavus Herman Foster from the church and if possible from the faculty of Chicago University have stirred up the biggest row the church there has been in many years. The ministers declare that Dr. Foster's views, as laid down in his latest book, "The Function of Religion in Man's Struggle for Existence," are so unorthodox as to be impious. They say he is a Unitarian and has insulted his fellow clergymen. In a letter he wrote, and which he says he is a "Typical old-fashioned Baptist, of the blind faith kind, bled and died for human freedom.

Dr. Foster's Unorthodox Congress Prompt added humor to the serious situation by his action when he defended his views at a consultation of ministers. He insisted on discussing the question in the book, not in the mail," saying it was against the constitution of this government to restrict a man's thoughts.

FLAMES DESTROY 100 HOUSES.

Maine Village Swept by Fire and Loss Estimated at $300,000.

The entire northeasterly section of Presque Isle, Maine, comprising the district where were situated the most prominent residences, was swept by fire, a high wind carrying flames and embers from street to street until 100 dwelling houses and the Congregational Church, the Masonic Hall and several other structures had been reduced to ashes. The Canadian Pacific Railroad and two large warehouses for potatoes were burned. The total loss is estimated at $300,000.

OCTOGENARIAN SLAYS.

Aged Farmer Shoots Brotherin-Law Over Land Deal.

A murder and suicide, remarkable because of the great age of the two principals, occurred on a farm in Derry township, near Honesdale, Pa. Thomas Dunn, aged 87 years, was murdered, presumably with a shotgun, by his brother-in-law, Mark Van Dussen, aged 86 years. Van Dussen then ended his life.

An Old London Cookshop.

Medieval London, known being a "city of taverns," was famous for its cookshops, such as the place on the river bank described by Fitzstephen in the thirteenth century: "There every day ye may call for any dish of meat, roast, fried or sodden, fish both small and great, venison and fowl. If friends come upon a sudden wearied with travel to a citizen's house and they be loath to wait for cooking, meats and dressings of fresh meat by the nearest run to the water side, where all things that can be desired are at hand." This particular place of public cookery apparently did not last long as well as an outdoor trade, for Fitzgerald's further description is being used both day and night by "multitudes of soldiers or other strangers who refresh themselves to their content on roast goose, the fowl of the air and the rare product of India." But what were the two last mentioned viands?—London Chronicle.

BUILT OF WRECKAGE

Fifty Years Ago There Was a Settlement Where North Manitou Town Now Stands.

Tradition says that the present village of Crescent on the North Manitou Island, is upon the site of a former settlement, a settlement which was founded, flourished and disappeared 50 years ago. Crescent is located at the only point on the west shore of the island where it is easy to penetrate the interior from the beach. Here several valleys coming down from the interior high land meet and break in the line of bluffs furnishes opportunity to build a town that will be but little above the level of the lake. This is a matter of great importance in the bringing in of supplies and the shipping out of the manufactured timber.

The facts regarding the first settlement made at this point were furnished by a man past 60 years of age. He visited the new town when it was just getting started and told Jesse Wells, the logging jobber, that when he was a boy of nine he lived on the island with his parents and that the land which Mr. Wells was then clearing had been used by his father as a corn field. He said that there were about 50 families living there and that they were engaged in cutting cordwood to sell to the passing steamers, in raising cattle and growing crops. It was a prosperous community at first, he said, and the outlook was bright. But one fall one of the pioneers who had gone to Chicago with 65 head of cattle failed to return with the money he was to collect from the steamboat men for cordwood and with the winter supplies that were to be purchased with the cattle money. The winter following his departure was a hard one for those in the settlement. They were compelled to make bread from corn ground in a coffee grinder and were only saved from starvation by getting food from a settlement on the South Manitou. When spring came the spirit of the settlement was found to be broken, the discouraged families moved away and wild nature was allowed once more to reign supreme.

Two shipwrecks played a part in the early history of the settlement. The lumber and shingles used in the erection of the first shanty in the present village came from the beach where they were picked up after a hard storm had washed them from a vessel that found the constant battering of the waves more than it could withstand. Prior to the washing ashore of the lumber the settlers, who were woodsmen, had been living in tents.

The second wreck occurred while the first load of building supplies for the village to be were being unloaded. The coasting schooner, Josephine Dresden, was caught by a gale while it lay at anchor off the point chosen for the new town. The elements drove the vessel onto the beach and dashed it to pieces. Those pieces are still to be seen along the shore and are monuments to the early effort to settle Manitou. Broken spars, bits of deck and planking stick out of the white sand and tell the story better than words can.

But shipwrecks were only incidents in the history of the settlement. The first wreck helped along the village, the second only delayed it in its growth for a short time. Most of the cargo from the wrecked Dresden was reclaimed from the angry waters and was eventually used in getting the first frame buildings up.

AN INDIAN WINDFALL.

How $1,000 Invested at Interest Grew Into a Big Sum.

Horace B. Durant, a special Indian agent, has finished his arduous job of tracing down all of the 6,000 descendents of the Ottawa and Chippewa tribe of Michigan, who are entitled under the law to share in $130,000 which grew from the $1,000 worth of stocks originally held for them by the government immediately after the treaty of 1837. A roll made before was lost by the destruction of the fire in 1871, and Mr. Durant's task, which he began last August has been no easy one.

Under the treaty made in 1837, $1,000 was invested in stocks for the benefit of the "Ottawa and Chippewa Tribe of Michigan," so called to distinguish it from the Ottawas farther south and the Chippewa farther north. This new tribe consisted of five bands composed of those who had strayed or seceded from the larger tribes—the Sauk St. Marie, Mackinac, Little Traverse, Grand Traverse and Grand River bands strayed northward and settlement, respectively, from their ancestral homes, they made common cause in his treaty of 1837 and thus their descendents are entitled to share in the present distribution.

Figuring Shaman shares among 6,000 people, it looks like $22 apiece, or thereabouts.

BURIED WITH POMP

Joe Cornstalk (Shagawa) a Prominent Island Indian Goes to Happy Hunting Ground.

A visitor to the Beaver Island lately reports a rather unusual funeral at St. James to the Traverse City Eagle.

"While at the village of St. James we were treated to a most unusual spectacle in the shape of an Indian funeral ceremony and procession, which presented features that is the lot of but few people to witness. An old Indian, Joe Cornstalk by name, had died on the island, and it was to properly commemorate his name and place it on the role of immortals that probably 100 Indians had gathered.

"Upon the streets of St. James they had a general pow-wow, then all took launches, large fishing tugs, owned by themselves, and went to Garden Island, about two and one-half miles distant.

"On the first launch heading the procession was placed a rude casket, which was set athwart the bows. Then came three more launches of the same type, each bearing a load of Indians. Arriving at Garden island the casket was removed and placed upon the shore, when the chief preached a sermon.

"The mourners made the trip to the island about 8 o'clock in the morning, and it was late in the afternoon before they returned, as an Indian burial ceremony is anything but short, and it was lengthened considerably because of the fact that the deceased was a very noted red man.

"There is a large burying ground on Garden island to which all of the smaller islands round about contribute their dead. Over each grave is built a little house which remains until the elements destroy it. Time was when the funeral procession consisted of canoes, the change to launches showing the evolution which is going on and which is acknowledged by even the original desirous of the country."

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Antrim County Soldiers and Sailors association will hold its reunion this year at Bellaire. The dates will be announced later.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that on Saturday, July 3, 1909 and examination will be held at Central Lake, Mich., for the position of fourth class postmaster of class (b), at Eastport, Michigan. The compensation of the postmaster at this office was $186 for the last fiscal year.

A new feeder for the Pere Marquette Railway is contemplated in the extension of the Wiedman branch from Wiedman, in Isabella county, to Farwell, in Clare county, there connecting with the Pere Marquette. This extension will place this northern section in direct connection there with much territory in Isabella, and adjoing counties heretofore reached by a roundabout way.

John LaVean, aged 62, a resident of Torch Lake village and a veteran of the Civil war, fell dead from dropsy in the L. T. Hall grocery store at Eastport one day last week. Deceased with his wife had gone to Eastport, taken with them the pension money which they received on Monday, to pay the three months grocery bill. LaVean was talking to some friends in the store and just telling a funny story when he fell foward, dying instantly.

Hiram B. Hudson died at his home in Manistee last Wednesday, at the age of 74 years. Deceased had been a practicing attorney for fifty years, 27 of which he spent in Antrim county, where he was widely known and respected. Mr. Hudson was prominent in democratic state politics several years ago and was on two occasions the nominee for lieutenant governor. In spite of the fact that his party was in the minority, Mr. Hudson was elected prosecuting attorney of his county and president of the village.

A Boyne City real estate man writes the Journal as follows: "What effect does local option have on real estate in Boyne City? This is a question that is often asked us and I will say in reply, that as far as our experience goes we find collections much easier. Where before we had trouble in collecting rent, now we have none. We have not found it necessary to serve any notices to quit for non payment of rent since local option took effect. In fact, some of my tenants are already planning to own homes of their own. While we as yet see no material change in the price of real estate, both sales and collections are much easier. There are very few empty houses in Boyne which goes to prove that the exodus which was predicted before election has failed to materialize."

Elk Rapids Progress: The directors of the Citizens' association held a meeting Friday afternoon. The chief and most important business transacted was outlining F. M. Bosworth to construct a tramway between the river, above the dams, and the bay. His instructions are to have the rails run into the water at either end until a sufficient depth is reached to float the largest launches, and to procure a carriage of some sort that will safely transport pleasure craft around the dam and between the bay and lakes. The complaint of launch owners in the past, making a tour of the bay and Lake Michigan, and wanting to get into the inland lakes, has been something fierce, and it begins to look as if Elk Rapids might become income from the curses of outsiders in this respect, even if we are suscepti-ble from other sources.

Boyne Journal: An expert from Grand Rapids has been here for a few days to install the dynamo and other electric machinery for the new Cocoa-Cereal factory which is about ready to be put in operation at the Beulah Home. The whole plant will be driven by electric power and every spot and place about factory will be absolutely clean and pure. It is expected that they will be ready to begin the manufacture of the product at once and at the start will probably turn out about two tons a day. Orders for a large quantity are already on file and there is no question but that the business will start off with a rush.

Women Who Are Envied.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poison shows in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

How to Candy Sweet Potatoes.

The southern method of cooking sweet potatoes has gained widespread popularity in the north, but few cooks, amateur or professional, know how to get these rich, Creole dishes. Even at high priced restaurants, where one pays a neat little sum of money for sweet potatoes in southern style, one does not get the toothsome dish that is served almost daily from Richmond to Tallahassee. The potatoes are there, but the juice, the candy, the softness, are all left out. Sometimes this is from carelessness as well as ignorance. Cooks will not take the time to do the work slowly and well. The correct recipe is as follows:

Boil together a half cupful of sugar and a pint of water until it spins a heavy thread. After the sweet potatoes are boiled tender in their skins take them out, peel them, slice them and lay them in a baking pan with the fat side up. Pour over the potatoes the sugar and water. Place these in a hot oven until the potatoes are slightly warm. If brown sugar is used instead of white the candied effect will be much better and more palatable. This should be served in the pan in which it is cooked. Therefore it is wise to use one of the brown and white earthen dishes.

How to Wash Dress Shields.

Many think it is impossible to wash dress shields in other than cold water. They should first be dampened with cold water and covered with white soap rubbed into the covering. Put them into a basin and pour very warm water over them and let them stand until the water begins to cool, then scrub with a stiff brush. Rinse in cold water and let them gradually dry away from artificial heat. Do not attempt to press them.

How to Mend Rubbers.

This spots in rubbers or wading boots can be mended at home by applying a cement made from 5 cents' worth of mastic dissolved in benzine or chloroform. Keep the bottle containing the cement tightly corked. Wet first with benzine or an inch or more around the hole and scrape until clean and a new surface is exposed, then apply the rubber with a brush as quickly as possible that it may not harden.

How to Make a Floor Filler.

To make a good floor filler put one pint of broken glass in an old tin bucket and cover with one gallon of boiling water. Put the bucket into a second vessel of water, and the glass will dissolve without burning. When it boils add enough sifted sawdust to make a good putty. Fill the floor cracks with this and smooth with a steel wood scraper or thin bladed case knife.

How to Keep Palms Thrifty.

To make palms thrive in an ordinary sitting room sponge the leaves once a week with lukewarm water to which a little milk has been added. Then stand the plant in lukewarm water, deep enough to completely cover the pot, until the water stops bubbling. This is the proper way to water palms.

How to Render Flannelette Safe.

After flannelette articles have been washed they should be rinsed in water in which one ounce of alum or sal ammoniac has been dissolved. This little precaution will make them nonflammable and may be the means of saving many little lives.

Garbage in London Port Office.

Not always is the percent cost in England a thing of delight. Hunters who shoot woodcock and quail and fishermen who have a successful day send the trophies of their sport to friends at remote distances on the little island called Great Britain by parcels post. In the holiday season, when there is the vast mass before it can be delivered, and there is a rush of package mail and garbage wagons to clean it out.—New York Press.

Currency Hard to Carry.

In California one rarely sees a bank note. The money in circulation is all gold and silver. It is common to see a collector walking along the street with a bag of gold on his back. Curiously, the very weight of the money—one person can hardly carry more than $40,000 in gold—often acts as a deterrent feature to embezzlement.

Sustaining Power.

Were it lies for love the heart would break.—Irish Proverb.

Manhood's Supreme Test.

Brother: The highest manhood comes in impulsive, not in mere intellect.

One thing we want to impress on your mind; it's more important to us, for the present moment, than to persuade you to buy your clothes here; because if you get the idea we're driving at, you'll buy them here, not because we want you to, but because you'll want to.

It is that this store is a quality and value store; and that whatever you buy here is guaranteed to be right, satisfactory in every way; and if you don't find it so, you are to come and tell us, and we'll do whatever we need to do to make it so; money back, new goods in exchange, or anything you say that's fair.

We sell Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes because they're the kind of goods that justify that kind of a guarantee; and we mean to have everything else up to the standard.

PRESIDENT PENNA IS DEAD.

News of Brazilian Ruler's Demise Received in Washington.

President Penna of Brazil died at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning, according to a dispatch received at the State Department in Washington, D. C., from the American Ambassador at Rio de Janeiro.

Alfonso Penna was born in Santa Barbara, in the Brazilian State of Minas Geraes, May 20, 1847. He was graduated in 1865 from the Academic College, where many of the prominent men of Brazil received their education. He graduated from the law school of Sao Paulo in 1871. He affiliated himself with the Liberal party of Brazil and was elected to the provincial legislature in 1874, serving two years, and twice re-elected to fill the same office. His great talent and service in behalf of his party attracted the attention of leading politicians of his own party, and he was chosen as representative from the province of Minas to the National Assembly, where he remained until the fall of the empire in 1889. He was a member of the Assembly that passed the law freeing all slaves over 60 years of age, which was a prelude to the law of 1888 abolishing slavery. He became President of Brazil in November, 1906, and his term would have expired in 1910.

SHOWS DECREASE IN SMALLPOX.

Government Surgeon Urges More Care in Vaccination.

"The experience of Germany, where compulsory vaccination has been in force for thirty years, seems conclusively that smallpox is existing in the United States in a modified form," Epidemiol, this is the conclusion of Henry S. Mathewson, passed assistant surgeon, Public Health and Marine Hospital service, in a bulletin just issued by Washington. The decline of vaccination and revaccination cannot be too strongly urged. Dr. Mathewson has collected official data to prove that during the past five years smallpox in the United States has been on a steady decrease. In 1902 there were reported 21,000 cases, with 1,500 deaths, during 1906 there were reported 12,652 cases, with 90 deaths. The latest figures available show that the total of cases in this country from Dec. 26, 1908, to June 11 last, was 11,701, with a death rate of only 52.

FIND BLACK HAND LAIR; GANG IS RUN TO EARTH

Postoffice Inspectors Discover Band Whose Operations Extend Over State of Ohio.

BOMB HAD NOTE PINNED TO IT

Arrests Made of Men Said to Be Chiefs of Italian Blackmailing Organization.

In several arrests made in Columbus, Marion and Dennison, Ohio, Tuesday federal inspectors and detectives who worked in conjunction with them in the case believed to have led to a result of months of effort they have unearthed the biggest and best organized branch of the Black Hand in this country. Marion, Ohio, being probably the head of the organization. Chief Postoffice Inspector Charles Holmes of Cincinnati is authority for the statement that evidence has been secured showing that the gang operating from Marion and with lines reaching into a number of big cities of the country, has flowed Monday, present in his and other States out of thousands of dollars in the last few months by the application of Black Hand methods.

The men arrested were San Lima and Joe Lima, both at Marion; Antonio Ciarolo, at Columbus, and A. Marfia, at Dennison. Lima is said to be the chief of the band. Inspector Holmes said he was expecting word from Indianapolis, Ohio, of two more arrests, and that, he said, would be of vital importance in connection with those already made.

Bottle Big Bomb.

Inspector Holmes says that the gang which conducted its operations in Marion was composed of Italians and worked exclusively upon their countrymen. He has obtained evidence that as late as two weeks ago they sent from the Marion postoffice money orders aggregating $1,300 to confederates in Italy, this being the dividend of blackmail funds in one case. Many such bits of evidence, it is claimed, are in possession of the inspectors.

Among those who refused demands for money were John and Charles Ambrosi, Columbus commission merchants. The sum of $10,000 was sought from each. In January Mrs. John Ambrosi found, to the rear of the house, a dynamite bomb and fuse, wrapped with one of the letters demanding payment from her husband. Several Columbus Italians are believed to have paid $1,000 each. Two Italian murders in Marion are generally charged to the gang, but there has been no proof. The gang also is charged with assassinations in Belleconte and Dennison.

800 CANAL IS WRECKED.

Force Ships and Many Lives Are Endangered by Accident.

With all the weight of Lake Superior behind it, an unpowered torrent of water now rushes through the $4,000,000 Canadian canal built to carry vessels around the impassable falls of the Saint Mary's River at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. The entire fall of approximately twenty feet is concentrated in the lock which was wrecked Wednesday when the steamer Forest P. Walker of the Gilchrist fleet rammed her bow through the lower gate.

The upper gates were open when the Walker crushed open the lower gate and the tremendous power of the rapids was given instant play. The steamer Assiniboia, a big Canadian Pacific passenger liner, moored within the lock chamber, was torn away from her moorings. Riding on the crest of the flood, she jammed the Walker against the wreck. Assiniboia's bow chafed against the wreck in the lower chamber, the Walker's bow in the upper chamber. The force

BOY CITY MATTERS

Preparatory Work for Juvenile Community Actively in Progress—Camping Grounds Ready for Tents.—Administration and Other Buildings Being Erected.

Landscape work on the grounds of "Boy City" is nearly completed including the street grading. Work is now in progress on the several rustic buildings, which include the city hall or administration building, which will contain the mayor's office and the Boy's Exchange Bank; the woman's building, intended as a rest room for visiting ladies; the Camera Club building, supplied with running water, for the development of kodak pictures. A fine rustic hand stand is also being built, and the restaurant building is in process of construction. A well has been sunk, and a fine quality of water was reached Friday.

Contrary to the belief of some people, Boy City is in no sense a reformatory or a place of terrestrial punishment for sins committed, but exactly the opposite. It is not a pick-up of waifs and gamins, but is intended as a summer vacation outing place for boys of good families and good breeding, where they will govern their own community, thereby giving their young minds their first lessons in political economy, and where they will be surrounded by wholesome moral influence. Its effect is intended to be physically and mentally beneficial. The Chautauqua course of entertainment embrace both amusement and instruction. Mr. Hahn, widely known as the "King of Boyville," is already on the ground, adding his experience and geniality to that of manager Brown in making this very commendable enterprise a success.

Boy City will open July 23d, but the first day for the admission of the public will be the 25th.

Johnston—Fox.

Mr. Earle H. Johnston, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnston, of this city, and Grace E. Fox, of Manistique, were united in marriage Wednesday June 16th, at the home of the bride in Manistique.

Nina Fox, sister of the bride, and George Johnston were witnesses, together with thirty live guests. The wedding created at 6:30 p. m. Mrs. E. W. Miller played the wedding march, and Rev. Shoemaker, pastor the Baptist church officiated. After receiving congratulations on shower was served. The home was richly decorated with carnations, lilacs, paralesy, roses, ferns, palms and other plants and flowers.

The bride and groom arrayed themselves in their traveling suits and intended to take the evening train west and come through to Charlevoix the next morning, and thus avoid a few hags of rice etc., but when preparations were interrupted by the guests, the happy couple could do nothing less than stay in Manistique. They arrived in Charlevoix on Thursday.

The bride spent her entire life in Manistique, having been in the employ of Temple & Bonham real estate dealers as book keeper and stenographer for the past two years. Mr. Johnston is very popular here, and is known to be an honorable and worthy young gentleman. Among the gifts were silver, linen and cash.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside in this city and their friends wish them a long and happy life.

—Bellaire will celebrate the Fourth of July this year, and neighboring villages are invited to participate. Bellaire, with a practice of not tackling enterprises unless its people intend to do things up in first class shape, has not had a celebration of the national birthday for a number of years; this year the business men and citizens are working together to make what is proposed to be a screecher, and neither work nor expense is being spared in getting together attractions that will make the occasion a red letter day for the citizens and the visitors who come to share the good time to be provided. The celebration will be held on Saturday, July 3. The usual games will be provided with liberal prizes—but a complete program will be given next week. The display of fireworks in the evening, in particular, will be something grand and spectacular.

Coming—The Musical Hoyles

The Musical Hoyles, who will appear at the Charlevoix Theater on Friday June 25, are without a doubt the finest light orchestra in the northwest. It is a company of artists in every sense of the word. Miss Hazel Hoyle, the reader, is one of the best on the platform. She has a large and varied repertoire, including the work of the best authors, along both humorous and dramatic lines. The programs presented by this company are always full of happy surprises, are varied and artistic, yet popular, and assure an evening of rare entertainment to all. Reserved seat sale at Chapel's Drug Store Thursday morning. Prices 35 50 cents.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

Frank Dunlap, Fred Pidgras, James Donlevy, W. W. Boyle and Oscar Martin were fishing at the "Little Lake" at the south end of Beaver Island. They had good luck, Donlevy catching four (4) pickerel and Pidgras rowed the boat.

Surprise party at Donlevy's, in honor of Frank Dunlap and his friend Fred Pidgras of Chicago. There were a host of friends there. The evening was spent in dancing and singing also reciting by Miss Rachael Donlevy. Refreshments were served afterwards. W. W. Boyle presented the present to Mr. Dunlap.

Mrs. Marie Enright of Chicago, sister of Mrs. James Donlevy is a guest at their home.

W. S. Stephens left for Manistee on the Str. Waste this morning.

—The San Francisco Call notes that Prof. Harlan has discovered that ordinary black ants will remove scale from fruit trees without injuring the trees, and that the ants clean the trees of scale far more thoroughly than spraying. Prof. Harlan's process is described as follows: Place a plate sprinkled with sugar near an ant hill, and, when the sugar is covered with ants lift the plate and place it in a convenient fork of a scale infested tree. The ants will presently leave the sugar and go at work on the scale. As soon as the ants have left the plate, put the plate down at the foot of the tree. The ants, after cleaning off the scale, will go down the tree, and finding the sugar there will again assemble upon the plate, which may then be set in a fork of another tree. Those who have tried this scheme say that it will be worth millions to fruit growers in districts where scale exists.

Petoskey News: Prof. M. O. Graves former proprietor of the Petoskey Normal School and Business college, left this afternoon for the west on a visit a indefinite length, and will probably locate at some western point. He will go first to St. Paul, then to the west coast, and down into the southwest to Denver and other points. Mrs. Graves will remain in the city for a couple of months, but will join him at the close of the summer.

A Thrilling Rescue.

How Bert H. Lean, of Cheoy, Wash. was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a dreadful lung trouble that baffled six expert doctor. Then I paid $10 to 15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." Father of Trouble.
Inoculation is the father of most of our troubles.

Traverse City Record: From all about come predictions that Grand Traverse will have a bumper fruit crop and that the crop of potatoes will be larger than usual, while berries and small fruits give excellent promise. Good prices are also a part of the cheering prospects and the Grand Traverse grower or farmer who is not optimistic, is a very uncommon citizen, indeed.

—Carl Hines is home from Chicago on a visit.

—Attorney E. N. Cline, of East Jordan, was in the city Sunday.

—L. S. See, the grocer, is out with a fine new delivery wagon.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cline returned from their wedding trip Saturday.

—Mrs. H. O. Smith and young son, of Owosso, are with "Daddy" on Park avenue for the summer.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Burr, of Central Lake, spent Sunday in town as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Crouter.

—Hon. Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio, and family, are at their cottage on the Chicago Club House grounds.

—Rev. C. W. Barber, of Hainwell has been spending a week with his Kalamazoo College classmate, H. W. Kane.

—Collector of Customs Walter I. Little, of Grand Haven, was in the city Wednesday and inspected the local customs office.

—By every boat and train the resorters are swarming to Charlevoix, and the indications are that the season is bound to be a record-breaker.

—At the Majestic Theatre the entire show is changed twice a week. The best of pictures, vocal and instrumental music, and the best vaudeville performers of the circuit.

—John Ackert and wife, of Cross Village, spent a few days in town last week. Mr. Ackert is in the employ of the Burnett Lumber Co. at that place.

—Commercial fishing is being resumed here and at the Island with fairly good catches. At the Island pounds of fishing is now the chief source of supply.

—On June 16th, the steamer Theodore Roosevelt communicated with Chicago by The DeForest Wireless Telephone a distance of 500 miles. This is the longest distance yet recorded on the Great Lakes.

—The steamship Missouri, which entered this port Sunday, came out of Chicago with the largest load of freight she has had on in two years. It required three hours to discharge the Charlevoix freight.

—Remember the play, "The Brookdale Farm," by the "Jolly Amateur Club," of Petoskey, Friday evening of this week, at the Charlevoix Theater. This play is to be given under the auspices of the Charlevoix Catholic ladies, and is said to be a pleasing comedy drama.

—An exchange records the fact that in an Ohio town a movement is on foot to abolish the ringing of church bells. This is a mistake. We would not wish to live in a town where the church bells do not ring. The bells have a language that is understood best by those who have heard them from childhood, and morally nurtured under the droppings of the sanctuary they sing the song of redemption. The call to worship of the muezzin is the proper thing for that Ohio town, or else no worship at all. When the town we live in silences the church bells we want to move out.

—Dr. L. M. Newman, of Central Lake, was in the city Sunday.

—Mr. Harry Parker, of Owosso, is here visiting W. A. Smith and family.

—The council is doing heroic work in street improvement and cement sidewalks.

—Lee Howland has the concrete foundation wall of the new Van Pelt block about half completed.

—Mrs. Starr, of Ludington, is spending a few days in the city as the guest of her brother, A. B. Fletcher.

—The Majestic Theatre is doing business and lots of it. Crowded house every night, and everybody pleased.

—Deputy collector of internal revenue A. L. Coulter has been spending the past week at his home in this city.

—Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. & A. M. next Tuesday evening, July 6th. Work on M. M. degree.

—R. A. Emrey, L. S. See, Lisle Shanahan and Dr. Swinton left Friday for Seney, upper peninsula, on a trout fishing expedition.

—Lou J. Graves, well known to many of our people is here visiting his brother, Chas. Graves. Mr. Graves is in business in Reed City.

—The new steamer to be built by the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. will cost one million dollars and will be the finest boat on Lake Michigan.

—W. S. Stephens, manager of the Beaver Island Lumber Co., after a week at Manistee and other points, returned home by the Beaver Tuesday morning.

—Wm. Coulter and wife, of Harbor Beach, are here this week visiting relatives. Mr. Coulter has charge of the I. M. Ross pony seed warehouse at Harbor Beach.

—Mrs. Clara Dennis invited a few lady friends to a six o'clock dinner at the Bartlett house Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Flora Bellinger, of Maple City who is visiting here.

—The Donald Robertson Theater Co., with the talented Wm. Owen as a star, is booked for the Charlevoix Theatre August 25th. This will be a great amusement attraction and should insure a full house.

—The Mackinaw City steamer Algoman came in at eleven o'clock yesterday with two decks swarming with Sunday school people of Petoskey and Harbor Springs, on a Beaver Island excursion. A large number came here, and a fine time is reported.

—The Fountain City House, Mrs. Bennett proprietor has been thoroughly renovated and improved, and is booking guests. The good old Fountain City House is located in one of the most desirable points in the city, near Lake Michigan and the entrance to the harbor.

—The steamer Stirling, freight boat of the N. M. T. Co. line, is on the route again, on, could here Monday morning. The Stirling is commanded by Capt. W. E. Stuttleham, formerly for several years master of the steamer Sarnoff, and brother of Capt. J. A. Stuttleham, of the Illinois Ave Smith, of this city, is mate of the Stirling.

—Mr. G. A. Scottos, of St. Louis, drove on the steamship Manitou on the run from Chicago to this port Sunday. Deceased was ill and was on his way to Mackinac accompanied by his sister. The body was landed here and taken to See's undertaking rooms. It was shipped to St. Louis the same day. Heart failure was the immediate cause of death.

—Amateur sight every Wednesday at the Majestic Theatre.

—Frank P. Geiken, and wife, of Pellston, spent Sunday in the city.

—Walter Small is here for the summer and will be employed at the swimming pool.

—Leon Miller, just clear of Ann Arbor graduation, is home for the summer.

—You miss a good thing if you do not take in the Majestic Theatre moving pictures and vaudeville show.

—M. J. Fox and wife, of Boyne City, were guests at the Park Avenue home of Mrs. W. H. McCartney over Sunday.

—"The Brookdale Farm," at the Charlevoix Theater Friday evening of this week under the auspices of the Catholic ladies.

—Dr. G. W. Crouter, agent for the Brick automobile, has sold a five passenger machine to Charles Arnold, who will use it in the public service.

—Warden Miller reports more cottages occupied or booked for occupation on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds than ever before in its history.

—On the occasion of the Hoyne City 3d and 4th celebrations the steamer Cummings will make his regular trips at 50 cents for the round trip.

—The Pere Marquette train No 3, which left here at 9:11 Monday evening was stopped at Fletcher and forced to wait two hours for two cars of wood and burned up. The wood cars were on a siding and were entirely destroyed.

—Do not forget the celebration at Bellaire July 3d. If you miss the first train jump on the next, and do not forget to get off at Bellaire. The day will begin at sunrise, and continue till every one is tired out. All the sport will be free to everybody. No admission charged to see the horse races, boat races, ball games, foot races, swimming races, in fact every thing we can think of to make a full day's entertainment. Be sure to be water that blows. Liberal prizes will be given the winners of every race. For those that prefer something quiet, we have provided launches which will make trips around the lake. A fine program has been provided for the fore noons as well as the afternoon. There will be plenty of chances to get all you want to eat and drink. Three hotels, two good restaurants, and two church dinners. The town has been put in first class condition—our water works system is first class, and two thirsty people will supply every thing needed in their line. As soon as it gets dark enough, one of the largest displays of fireworks ever seen in Northern Michigan will be exhibited in front of the court house in the heart of the city. If business interferes with your pleasure, quit your business, let nothing prevent you from coming to Bellaire July 3d.

A Matter Requiring Attention

A prominent official member of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association who is a friend of Charlevoix and a lover of decency, makes a complaint that should meet the prompt attention of the city authorities.

He says that about every night in the week the grounds are overrun with rowdies who make it very unpleasant for cottagers and Belvedere guests who pay for the quiet enjoyment of the attractions of that beauty spot retreat. At times the music

GOSSIP AT THE BRIDGE

"What is New On the Rialto?—An Eptomized Collection of What We Hear Down By the Railing.

How near the bottom of the lower channel with the keel of the big new N. M. T. Co. boat lie when she comes out? The same question was raised when the Manitou came out, and it was answered by the engineers sending a dredge here. A 100 foot million dollar boat will be a big argument for a larger harbor appropriation next winter. Billy Finucan will bring her in all right.

It would be interesting to know how many vehicles of all kinds cross the bridge during the day. Some very pretentious blockades occur occasionally when the bridge is turned for vessel passage, and it looks very much like business. We have also heard language that was anything but polite on occasions.

If you want to bite off marine, municipal or resort information in big chunks just go down to the bridge any pleasant evening. In fact you can learn almost anything but Latin and cube root. About everybody has a jotting for the reporter, if the reporter keeps his ears open.

A beautiful gasoline boat was passing and a leading citizen of a neighboring town was ruminating aloud. "If I ever change my residence as a permanent thing there is not a town that I know of anywhere that I would as soon move to as Charlevoix. It has the finest streets and more different kinds of beauty than any town of its population in Michigan. It is rightly named Charlevoix the Beautiful."

A gentleman who narrowly escaped having his launch run down by one of the local steamboats lately remarked that something should be done to stop fast running through the channel. This is a matter for the harbor master to correct, and he has behind him the running regulations prescribed by the harbor engineers. It certainly calls for somebody's attention.

Another matter calls loudly for attention. There is a certain captain of a certain big lumber barge with a bigger whistle, who cuts his whistle loose as soon as he reaches Wilbur's dock corner, going up. The whistle is so big that it is a wonder that when it is blown it does not step the engine. There is an ordinance on this subject.

It would be hard to find a better equipped, neater or handier engine room than that on the bridge. But engineer Johnson has required the habit of looking down on everybody. The captains on the steamer bridges are the only ones he recognizes at his level. Johnson should correct this habit.

ALLOAT ON RAFT

Two Beaver Island Boys Adrift in Lake Michigan All Night On Two Railroad Ties.

A Two Beaver Island boys, aged nine and ten years, had a narrow escape from death last Friday night. They live near Sand Bay, and were playing on a raft that consisted of two railroad ties. They were paddling it about in the shoal water, the wind being off land. They suddenly found themselves in deep water and rapidly drifting out before a brisk breeze. They drifted near enough to a pound net to grasp it, and for a time hung to that, but were forced to let go and drifted rapidly eastward.

They were missed in the early evening, and their situation became known to the neighborhood. Word was sent to the harbor and the tug Elliot and other boats started out to search the lake. The boys drifted all night, and early in the morning cable messages were sent to Charlevoix and Cross Village to keep a lookout for them. About seven o'clock the Elliot came in with the boys, having found them ten miles out in the lake.

They had eaten nothing since noon the day before, and were weak from hunger, exposure and fright.

They were sons of John C. Gallagher and Patrick McDonough, respectively.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Dr. J. B. Thielen the Victim of an Automobile Accident—Machine Ditched and Doctor's Shoulder Dislocated.

That Dr. Thielen is not now a dead man is due to his customary good luck, as few with his last Sunday's experience have survived to tell the story.

The Doctor was returning from a country trip, driving his own machine, with his chaffeur sitting at his left. In coming down the narrow sandy slope of the Wakefield hill the machine got the better of him and ditched itself.

The chaffeur, being on the high side of the auto, jumped and saved himself, but the Doctor could not. The machine rolled over twice, landing bottom side up in the ditch, with Dr. Thielen under it. The chaffeur secured help and the physician was extricated from his perilous situation. A rig was secured and he was brought to his home. Doctors Armstrong and Montague were summoned, and it was found that he had escaped with a bad wrenching and a dislocated shoulder.

The Doctor is doing well and says he will be out again this week. The machine was considerably injured.

THAT MING LAW

What a Traverse City Editor Thinks About It—Benefits Nobody, Not Even the Fish.

From the Traverse City Record.

The Record has interviewed a number of local fishermen in regard to the new Ming law and has found that the law is not at all satisfactory. In fact, there are more unsatisfactory points therein than satisfactory ones, according to those engaged in the business.

Just one example will be enough to show those who are not in close touch with the industry that some of the complaints are well founded. Everyone knows that the sucker is not a desirable fish, it feeds on spawn of other fish and most people scorn to eat it. Anyone having a liking for suckers as a diet, should go to the mouth of the Wallington street sewer, stand on the bridge and make a few minutes' observation.

It is also well known that when the suckers are cleaned out, other fish become more plentiful. Since a number has been provided for these fish and it has been profitable to take them, thousands of them have been removed from Grand Traverse bay by fishermen. The result was that trout and white fish have multiplied greatly, even though the time has been short. Now the new law comes in providing reasons for exterminating the sucker, actually protects this class of fish by prohibiting their sale. Make any mesh 13 inches in length! Why that clause was inserted is not known and apparently that one point, good as it is, that comes from protecting the sucker or mullet will please step forward. It is true that they are shipped now in great quantities as a relish by the poorer class of residents, but if the suckers are removed, these people would be able to get better fish because they would be plentiful enough to be sold at almost as low rate.

Another section of the law that is objectionable in regard to the small fish. One section of the law provides that nets of certain mesh may be used and it is up to the fishermen to keep the small trout or white fish out of these. If the fisherman have these small fish in their possession, they will be arrested and if they throw them in the bay they will be violating the law and liable to arrest. How will they dispose of the fish that die in the net?

Again, the spawn question is a serious one. Only a few fishermen can successfully strip a trout or white fish, and there is always the liability of the spawn spoiling before it is used. What the fisherman want is an absolute closed season for at least 30 days.

Taken as a whole, the law seems to contain certain clauses which protect neither the fishermen nor the fish.

A Night Rider's Raid.

The worst night riders are calomel, croton oil or aloes pills. They raid your bed to rob you of rest. Not so with Dr. King's New Life Pills. They never distress or inconvenience, but always cleanse the system, curing Colds, Headache, Constipation, Malaria, 25c at F. G. Hines & Co.

CHAPTER XIV.

The man who whistled Wheaton to the Porter home let him alone between the dressing room and the library, and he chose the latter indifferently, as less formal and more appropriate for an interview based on his dual social and business relations with the Porters. Whatever lowered the wires of Evelyn's skirts in the hall with a disappointing heaviness, her black gown indicated her fairness, he had never seen her in black before, and it gave a new tongue to her beauty as she turned upon him.

"It was a great shock to us down town to learn of your return home," she said, as if he had seen us yesterday.

"I had just time to—" begin the lady, and some one else came home last evening. He has been working hard, and I fancied you would be glad to see him." He was sincerely sorry, for her brother, and he had to see to it that Tomo was something approaching her unusual calm, lest she lose her hold upon the man he had wanted on his.

"I have asked me to send for you this afternoon, Sir E. I just grows so ill in a day," she said, in a tone that suggested of one dying. "But something in particular has happened since I saw you yesterday. Will you please read these? They are in the box at your elbow. I wish you would pass the key to me." It was something almost imperious in her unusual calm, the tone of her voice was pleasant, and he had to do what she wanted.

"Thank you. Now, Sir Edward, I want you to be my adviser in this affair. It is very important and has to be done at once. Mr. Porter's brother, Evelyn, will arrive in Chicago to-morrow morning, and I want you to be there to meet him. He is a very peculiar person, and I feel the responsibility very heavily. I have telegraphed to Mr. Porter's lawyer, Mr. Fenton, to be there, and he will be glad of your help, too. I shall be very, very grateful to you if you will do this for me. I am so sorry to trouble you, but I know of no one else to whom I can turn with such confidence. Mr. Fenton will be glad to see you, too, and you will find him a very agreeable man

Concerning the Senior Senator.

There are everywhere and always in this grand country of ours aspirants for senatorial honors, and it is a commendable ambition, providing the possessor of such ambition sizes up to the standard that is set for occupants of the sacred office.

Michigan has men—congressmen and others—who are casting wistful eyes toward the seat now held down by James C. Burrows. There will undoubtedly be an active canvass by at least one distinguished congressman soon after the round up J. C. Burrows will be discovered through the smoke serene and victorious.

Senator Burrows is one of the intelligent men in the upper house of congress, and that is where the people want strong representation. The senator is seventy two years old, and there are those who use the fact as an argument against his re-election. Allison, Pettus, Morgan, Morrill, are older when they died than Burrows is now, all dying at sessions, and all were, in their old age, powerful in their influence upon legislation.

There is no doubt but that Senator Burrows regards his next term as his last. He has rendered the State and Nation distinguished service. Michigan never had a more faithful or able representative in the senate—indeed his record stands far above that of any Michigan senator since Chandler. Burrows is not, yet conservative when conservatism is wisdom, true to every principle for which the republican party stands, he has met in combat the ablest of his opponents of north and south and emerged from the combat unscathed. To the time honored doctrine of senatorial dignity he has added the principle of senatorial respectability in putting into action his conception of senatorial efficiency. There is not a blemish on either his personal or political record.

Michigan once, in a hysterical moment, displaced the stalwart Chandler with a mugwump. The mugwump was deeply versed in the law, but he was a dilettante in statesmanship. After six years of penance Michigan returned Chandler to the senate, and he died a senator. There is no danger of a mugwump in this county, whatever the result may be, but Burrows is displaced Michigan will make a mistake that it will regret no less than it did when Chandler was made the victim of a mugwump opinion.

The conspicuous public service rendered by Senator Burrows has not been illustrated by spectacular movements, false gallery entertainment, but he has never been found lacking in courage when courage was called for, nor in discretion when discretion was a virtue.

Senator Burrows is an honor to the Senate and to the migest body of which he is a member. He is ripe in those qualities of statesmanship that crown true former greatness. Chandler has never asserted him from the course that judgment, experience and party loyalty have marked out for him. He is at the zenith of his power in the Nation's councils, and will doubtless continue to be through another term.

Michigan should not repeat the Chandler blunder.

The Soldier's Exemption Law.

The tax laws were amended by the last legislature to exempt from taxation homesteads of soldiers and widows of soldiers as follows:

"All real estate used as homestead not exceeding in value one thousand two hundred dollars of any soldier or sailor of the federal government who served three months or more during the civil war, and in all real estate used as a homestead not exceeding in value one thousand two hundred dollars of any widows of such soldiers or sailors; Provided, that any soldier or sailor or widow of any such soldier or sailor desiring to secure the benefits named in this section as to the exemption from taxation shall make and file with the supervisors or assessing officer an affidavit, stating under oath that he was a sailor or soldier of the federal government during the civil war for a period of not less than six months and in case it be the widow of a soldier or sailor making such application, said affidavit must state that she is the widow of a soldier or sailor of the federal government at the present time, who served not less than three months as such soldier or sailor during the civil war. Any person making a false affidavit in any particular, for purpose of evading taxation shall be deemed to be guilty of the crime of perjury and punished accordingly: Provided, however, that this exemption shall not operate to relieve from the payment of taxes any of the persons hereinbefore mentioned who are the owners of taxable property of greater value than twelve hundred dollars."

At Traverse City last week, B. F. Linger was convicted of selling for food the carcass of a sow suffering with cancer.

ALLIE MOORE STILL CHAMPION

The "Charlevoix Boy" in an English Race Again Defeats Harley Davidson.

Our Allie Moore has won the English cup in another roller skating contest. A London paper has the following concerning the race:

"An excellent company patronized the Palace Rink, Old Trafford, Manchester, last evening, when the great attraction was the second of the three heats in the two miles match between the American champions, Allie Moore and Harley Davidson. Either in the week the men met over a mile, and after a grand contest Davidson won the rubber. The first tie of the two miles race resulted in Davidson winning by a narrow margin, but last night the verdict went in favor of Moore.

"The spin of the coin resulted in favor of Davidson, and he allowed his rival to take the inside position. From the crack of the pistol Moore was first away, but before a lap had been traversed Davidson spurted to the front. He did not retain his position long, for at the fourth circuit Moore took the lead, and he quickened the pace. Moore continued to act as pacemaker until the thirteenth lap, when Davidson changed the positions, and he led until two circuits from home. Then Moore spurted to the front, and from this point they raced practically locked together. Turning the last bend for home they were practically level, and although Moore was on the outside he got the best of the dash home and won by barely a foot. The time was 6 min. 51 sec.

"The men meet tonight to decide the rubber, and judging from previous results another great contest will be the outcome.

"The Editor of the Sporting Chronicle" appointed Mr. J. Hepworth referee and starter, and Mr. F. W. Sinclon timekeeper.

"The exhibition given by Moore has proved a rare treat, and the company enjoyed a most interesting night's entertainment.

"The craze for roller skating has by no means died away, even with the approach of summer, for new rinks, are opening every week all over the country. Next winter even may see far greater interest taken in speed skating, and we should not be at all surprised to find one or two bankrupt rinks laid down in London and the provinces, purely for racing purposes. As a sport, however, roller skating has not in England reached the level it has occupied for many years in the States, though the advent in this country of such fine speed skaters as Allie Moore and the brothers Davidson has done much to popularise the game from a spectorial point of view.

GOOD TIME ON DRINK PROFITS

Club Campers From Ohio and Pennsylvania Recreate in Michigan.

"We brought about 8,000 club campers to Michigan last season and expect to do even better this season," said Hugh Gray of the Pere Marquette lately. "The clubs are mostly of Pittsburg and Columbus and Toledo, and these camping parties are for men only. Liquor laws in Pennsylvania and Ohio are enforced with comfortable rigidity, especially as to the closing hours and on Sundays and holidays.

"To evade the laws these clubs have been organized. Membership in the club carries with it the privilege to drink at any time the thirst is on. The members pay the customary price for their drinks and the profits go to the outing fund. The club meet to go the New England lake regions or to the seashore for their annual picnic, but last year we got them headed toward Michigan, and this year there will be more of them than ever. The average membership is 250 members and the camps last from a week to four weeks.

"The outing fund, that is the profits from the drinks, pays a large share of the expenses. The favorite camping district is almost anywhere between Traverse City and Petoskey."

In August these clubs will run up against the Michigan "search and seizure" law.

Men Matter Grew Young.

"It would be hard to overstate the wonderful change to my manner since we began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick of Dublerth, Ms. "Although just 70 she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered untold misery from dyspepsia for 20 years. At last she could neither eat, drink nor sleep. Doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health. "They invigorate all vital organs, cure Liver and Kidney troubles, induce sleep, impart strength and appetite. Only 50c at F. G. Hinz & Co.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

A Frankfort mother was forced to watch her 11 year old son drown the other day, being unable to do anything to save him.

Hoyne City Journal: James J. Brown has opened branch law and real estate offices in the Wenzel block in Hoyne City, in connection with John H. Fleming, under the name of Brown & Fleming. The latter will have charge of the offices in Hoyne and Mr. Brown will remain here, going to Hoyne whenever his services are required.

A boy by the name of Bernard Emmer, residing at the Samuel county farm near Pelston, supposedly met his death from grasping a guy wire of a pole supporting an electric light wire. The ends of two fingers were burned off and one leg was also partly burned. It may by the roadside in full view of passers by for four hours, says the Petoskey Evening News, without being noticed by anyone.

Petoskey News: Frank Tubassah, of Cross Village, left here Monday morning for Kalamazoo to attend the 20th annual re-union of the 1st Michigan Sharpshooters, and also the G. A. R. encampment. Frank and his brother Joseph are the only members of the company now residing in Emmet county. The company when enlisted numbered 130 Indians, all going to the war as sharpshooters.

Traverse City is now assured of the annual convention of Michigan Elks for next year, as the result of the vigorous fight made from the moment of their arrival by the representatives of that city at Calumet, where the Elks' convention is now in progress. This makes it certain that the president of the state organization for 1911 will be a Traverse City man as that office is always elected from the city to which the convention is held.

Boyne Citizen: Boyne City—this is our cognomen as registered on the archives at Washington, official notice of which was received by Postmaster Newville yesterday, and hereafter it will not be Boyne, but will be Boyne City. Postmaster Newville received official notification Saturday night that his official position as postmaster of Boyne, Mich., ceased at sun set. Later he received another telegram that he had been appointed postmaster of the new city on the official map of the government Boyne City.

Traverse City Eagle: William Harting of Leland, was arrested by Deputy Game Warden G. A. Smith for having in the possession 64 whitefish and 2 lake trout under the legal size. He was brought before Judge Nellinger today and when asked to plead on the charge stood mute, but he afterward changed his plea to guilty when he found that the law fully covered his case. He was fined $25 and $12 costs, which he paid. The fish were seized from the Averill canneries office at Leland, where they had been sent for shipment.

Traverse City Record: United States Senator William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, will be the guest of Mayor W. D. C. Grenville for several days this summer, just when, however, the senator cannot admit. While the mayor was in Grand Rapids recently, Senator Smith stated that he was very much interested in Traverse City and especially in the matter of securing a breakwater for this city. He stated that he was closing late this summer to look over the surroundings in order to have them at hand for following up his sounding of an appropriation for a preliminary survey, and the mayor asked him to be good, the invitation being accepted. Senator Smith will go into the local situation thoroughly during his stay here and the information secured will be used for the purpose of pushing the matter after the preliminary survey is completed.

Boyne City Journal: Elmer Stanford has a satisfied smile on this morning caused by the letter he received yesterday from Mr. Pierce, the state game, fish, and fire warden, notifying him that he has been appointed Deputy Warden for this territory. This is some evidence of the strength of our Congressman Hon. Wm. J. Pearson of Hoyne Falls. There were only two such jobs in the state and Mr. Pearson's influence was sufficiently strong to land one of them for our townsman. Mr. Stanford came to Boyne City about seven years ago when there were only about 800 inhabitants in that place, and engaged in the grocery business. He latter sold out his business and for a long time was with Herron & Son, which position he resigned when he was appointed Four Commissioner for the county. Mr. Stanford informs us that he will resign his office as Four Commissioner and also as Chief of the Local Fire Department before entering upon his new duties, which commence July first.

Life Prolonged Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. To day the danger, so strong by A. W. Broom of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To cure Sore Lungs, Colds, obstinate Coughs, and prevent Pneumonia, its the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by F. G. Hinz & Co. Trial bottle free.

PIANOS TO RENT
Let Us Send One to Your Summer Home

No matter how far away from our store your Summer Home is located, you can have a Piano for the Summer if you wish. We make a special by of Renting Pianos to Resorters and we supply hundreds of homes every summer.
There is no entertainment like music for evenings and stormy days, when outdoor pleasures are impossible. With a piano you can have a Dance or Concert at a moment's notice. It will help to pass away, in a most delightful manner, many an hour that would otherwise be dull.
If the family contains students of music, a Piano in the Summer Home becomes a positive necessity. Where practice is neglected during the summer, the cost of extra lessons to make up for those forgotten will more than offset our moderate rental charges.
We are prepared to furnish any grade or style of Piano, from a $1,500 STEINWAY GRAND, or a magnificent PIANOLA PIANO to a low priced upright. None but reliable Pianos furnished and satisfaction guaranteed. Having twenty stores in Michigan and Ontario, and connections with reliable Piano movers everywhere, we can take entire charge of delivering and returning instruments without trouble to our customers.
A SUGGESTION—The most ideal outfit for the summer home is a Player-Piano with a nice selection of music rolls. With such an outfit any member of the family could furnish most delightful music for any occasion. We have a limited number of Player-Pianos to rent. Get our terms.
To insure good selection and prompt service orders should be placed now. Careful attention given to 'phone and mail orders.

FERTILIZER FROM ROOSTS.

Scientific Tests to Ascertain Value of Poultry Droppings.

The average farmer does not appreciate as he should the value of the fertilizer made in poultry. This may be mainly due to the fact that many times it is not properly stored, so that much of its chemical constituent material is lost.

Professor Morse of the New Hampshire experiment station, after referring to the loss of fertilizer value and answering the question how best to receive the best materials for this purpose are glycerin of last plaster, acid phosphate and kainit, a cheap potash salt. Each of these chemicals has the power to form new compounds with the ammonia as fast as it is set free from the original combination. Wood ashes and slaked lime should never be used, because they cause combine with ammonia, while they deform it out of its compounds and take its place. Plaster is apt to produce a dry, lumpy mixture when used in large enough quantities to arrest the ammonia, while kainit and acid phosphate produce the opposite effect of a moist, sticky mass.

Bulletin 56 of the Maine experiment station says that, using their results as a basis of calculation, the weekly droppings of a flock of twenty-five hens when scraped from the roosting platform should be mixed with about eight pounds of kainit or acid phosphate and a half peck of sawdust. If one desires a balanced fertilizer for corn and other hoed crops a mixture of equal parts of kainit and acid phosphate could be used instead of either alone. The same authority tells us that "good dry meadow muck or peat would be equally as good as sawdust, if not better, to use as an absorbent."

Fresh poultry manure at the present values of fertilizers would be worth 60 cents per hundred pounds. Figures from different experiments show that would give the product of twenty-five hens for the winter season of six months as 375 pounds for the room droppings only.

Poultry manure is squeamishly adapted as a top dressing for grass because of its high content of nitrogen in the form of ammonia compounds, which are nearly as quick in their effect as nitrate of soda. A ton of the manure preserved with sawdust and chemicals would be sufficient for an acre when compared with a chemical formula for top dressing.

On the same basis of comparison 100 fowls running at large on an average about in a summer season of six months have added to the fertility the equivalent of at least 200 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 100 pounds of high grade acid phosphate and sixty pounds of kainit.

CHEVROLET WINS CUP IN MOTOR CAR RACE

Crowd of 35,000 Persons Cheers Victors in Wind Swept Big Automobile Meet.

MATSON TAKES INDIANA TROPHY

Daring Drivers Defy Curves at Death, and Machines Reach a Speed of Nearly 100 Miles an Hour.

Amid plaudits from shrieking thousands, Joe Matson, a Western speed maniac, on Friday won the Indiana Trophy stock chassis race, the first event in the West's big twenty automobile meet. He drove his 225-horse power Chalmers-Detroit car over 252.74 miles on the Crown Point-Low course in 4:31:21, or at an average speed of 54½ miles an hour. He was sixteenth and last in the race and third to cross the tape. The redoubtable George Robertson, winner of the Vanderbilt cup race last fall, was second in the Locomobile, covering the ground in 4:32:06. In third place was Al Moloney, in a Marmon car his time being 4:42:03. Terrific forces of speed were made at times over the best portions of the roadway, Matson in a flurry making one lap spread the 23.2-mile course in 26:41, near enough to be a mile a minute to call it such.

Not a racer was spilled and not a car turned turtle. The pilots went around the curves discreetly instead of precipitately. They had been cautioned by their managers against being foolishly reckless and they took no more chances than needed at treacherous spots.

Chevrolet Wins Cobe Cup.

Out of a field of twelve speed demons Louis Chevrolet Saturday won the Cobe Cup race—the West's premier auto prize—driving his Buick car over 205.66 miles on the Crown Point-Lowell course in 3:01:39, or at the rate of 67.5 miles an hour.

"Billy" Bourque, in the Knox, came second, beats first place by a margin of .01:06, while George Robertson, in his Locomobile, got third place, his time being 3:14:39. Because he strained tenth and was crowded closely in the final lap, Chevrolet followed Bourque over the tape. In spurts of speed nearly 100 miles an hour were reached.

The following table shows the record of each car and order of time

Order.	Car.
1	Buick	Chevrolet
2	Knox	Bourque
3	Locomobile	Robertson
4	Pic	Depew
5	Buick	Chevrolet

At the conclusion of the race Chicago Auto Club officials announced $60,000 had been expended on the event and that they were still unable to make a statement of receipts or deficit was given out.

The first ambitious effort of the Chicago Automobile Club to present a Western automobile "classic" which might compare with the Eastern Vanderbilt cup races was a success from the automobile racing point of view.

10,000 TO STRIKE JUNE 30.

Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to Fight "Open Shop" Order.

More than 10,000 skilled workmen, members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, who are employed by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, will quit work on the night of June 30, at which time the "open shop" order of the company becomes effective. Many unskilled workmen also will be affected. The decision to take this action followed a special convention held in Pittsburg. It occasioned little surprise as at a previous meeting, held by the advisory board, resolutions were adopted strongly recommending that the union notify the company's order. In the Pittsburg district a majority of the plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, which is a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, are nonunion. The combined plants in which a strike order will be effective total 172 mills capacity in the tin trade and fifty-one mills in the sheet steel trade. By States the mills are grouped as follows: Pennsylvania—Sheet and shearing plants, New Castle (tin), 50 mills; Sharon (tin), 20 mills; Connellsville (tin), 8 mills; Ohio—Martins Ferry (tin), 22 mills; Bridgeport (sheet), 23 mills; Canadian (sheet), 11 mills; Piqua and Struthers (sheet), 10 mills. West Virginia—Wheeling (tin), 16 mills; Indiana—Elwood, Anderson and Gas City (tin), 42 mills; Muncie (sheet), 7 mills.

TAFT ASKS 2 PER CENT. TAX ON CORPORATIONS

President, in Special Message, Recommends Easy Upon the Net Earnings.

WOULD INVITE AID OF STATES

Congress Advised to Seek Constitutional Amendment Allowing Assessment on Incomes.

Recommending legislation looking to the placing of a 2 per cent tax on the net income of corporations and also the adoption of an amendment to the constitution providing for the imposition of an income tax without an apportionment among the several states, President Taft Wednesday sent to Congress a message embodying his views on the subject. This action followed a protracted special meeting of the cabinet.

In his message the president speaks of the apparent inability of Congress to agree to an inheritance tax, and so regards an income tax, he refers to the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Pollock vs. the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, in which court held the tax to be unconstitutional unless apportioned according to population. "It is, says the president, 'undoubtedly a power which the government ought to have, it might be indispensable to the nation's life in great crises.'"

The amendment, therefore, he declares, is the only proper course. Such an amendment to the constitution, he continued, was celebrated in the opinion pronounced of reviving a law judicially held (241 U. S. 399) unconstitutional. The amendment which he proposes should be made in the tariff bill provided for the imposition upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, (except national banks otherwise taxed), savings banks and building and loan associations, of an excise tax of 2 per cent on the net income of the corporations. This, it is estimated by him will bring an annual revenue of $25,000,000. "This is a tax on privilege and not on property," he says, "and is within the federal power without apportionment according to population."

The president points out that so other tax is the tax on corporations is the federal supervision, which will give to the government, the stockholders and the public knowledge of the real business transactions and the gains and profits of every corporation in the country. The adoption of the amendment, he says, will make a long step toward an efficient supervision of corporations which may prevent a further abuse of power."

Raid in Cincinnati Held Important in Ohio Crusade.

In a special raid made by postoffice inspectors and city detectives a patrol wagon full of Italians was rounded up in Cincinnati Tuesday night and taken before Federal Commissioner Hurd. The party arrested comprised an even dozen men, and two of that number, Vincenzo Arrigo, fruit dealer, and Frank Sisbero, saloon-keeper, were held on warrants charging them with conspiracy in connection with an alleged attempt to extort money from John Amicon of Columbus, Ohio, by Black Hand methods. Inspector Oldfield, who led the raid, said the Harry Amicon affair was that proof had been obtained that Sunday a week ago was the time for a local president of the Society of the Banana, who represents the company in Italy, in the raid a large amount of literature was captured, which the inspector said proved the Black Hand was bearing on the cases of the Black Hand letters received by citizens of Marion, Columbus and other Ohio points.

Wyoming Wool Record Broken.

Wyoming this year will produce 6,000,000 pounds of wool, for which the growers will receive 18,000,000 gross, according to conservative estimates. The clips average close to eight pounds a fleece and some of the wool has sold for 25 cents a pound.

Joseph Massaro, formerly of Chicago, who was found guilty in Toledo, O., recently of "black hand" practices, was sentenced to fourteen years in prison.

Business shows prompt response to the more reasonable weather and broadening of demands in the leading industries. Heavy financial operations in past account for the sustained high level of payments through the banks, but there is a notably better absorption of money for commercial use, together with a discount rate, which favors enterprise. Less complaint arises as to the course of dealings in the prominent retail lines, there being improved absorption of light weight apparel and general merchandise, and an adequate reduction of stocks here and in the country. Wholesale dealing is well maintained in the staples, bookings showing further increase for fall deliveries of dry goods, footwear, suits and clothing. Improvement is also seen in the buying of furniture, carpets and draperies.

The general demand for food products, jewelry, cut wares and sporting goods shows a satisfactory advance. Heavy contracts are booked for future delivery in iron, steel, wood and leather working, the principal products now drawing upon capacity close to the normal, while further progress is made in machinery and hands employed. Fire adds materially considerable tonnage for the rail mills, quite a portion being for Pacific Coast orders. The demand for light rails is the best in almost two years. The conversion of plants into rails indicates expansion and the prices are very firm for pig iron, lumber, minor metals, hides and wool.

Bank clearings, $282,667,745, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1908 by 25 per cent and compare with $243,241,134 in 1907. Failures reported in the Chicago district number 26, against 21 last week, 23 in 1908 and 19 in 1907. Failures with liabilities over $5,000 number 9, against 4 last week, 9 in 1908 and 9 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK.

The tendency is still toward improvement, in general the situation, manufacturing industry and bookings for fall showing further gains, but irregularities in weather and retard the fullest development of retail trade and thereby affect re-order business with jobbers.

In industrial lines the tendency is toward further expansion of operations. Numerous early cuts in wages have been restored and employmental is more widely diffused. The building trades probably lead in volume of activity, but there are still complaints of unfavorable weather and retard the fullest development of retail trade and thereby affect re-order business with jobbers.

JOE MATSON, VICTOR IN THE INDIANA TROPHY RACE, AT THE WHEEL OF THE WINNING CAR.

Winning a Goddess

"Celebrate? Of course we can't celebrate in the office. Don't you know nothing until we get together?" Postmaster Hanson threw away his cigar in impatiency and turned to the group of villagers.

"Maybe that's so, but it ought not to be. Just because the cattlemen live in the north end and the land owners in the south they ought not to quarrel," replied Harry Morse, son of a banker dance, and just home from college.

"We'll get up our own men," suggested somebody, "and let's meet tomorrow night. Fourth of July will be here in a week."

Harry on his wheel met Lot Norton, the son of the owner of the six ranch, on horseback a day later and the two young men rode side by side across the level plain for a time. Harry told his companion of the arrangement.

"That's all right," was the reply. "The north end is going to celebrate, too. These old fogies may fight if they want to but we won't let them. We can't help it, of course, but let's go in for some fun out of it anyhow."

"I'm with you. We also to have a goddess of liberty in a flag dress and a golden crown. You can't guess who it is to be."

"That homely Miss Lyons, of course. She always forces herself to the front."

"Wrong—Miss Dorine Vandale."

"Why, her father is worth half a million."

"Well, she will do anything for me," with a wicked grin.

"Oh, ho, that's it. Is it?" and the cat. the kingdom rode away. In the heart was a little bitterness, for Dorine was to him something better than the rest of the girls of the town, even to south, and he did not like at all the tone of his companion's expression.

So North Maryville prepared for its parade and speeches, and South Maryville did the same. Harry grew more often and exchanged notes as to the progress of the work. It was to be a very bitter rivalry.

For days the two sections of the town were excited. The tales of the doings of "the other side" were related with great exaggeration. Dorine heard them and wondered if her party was to be so very much ashamed.

"They tell me that they are getting up a chariot of fire," she said to Harry.

"They would not dare," was the eager response. "If they did I would punish the author myself."

"Who is in charge of the other side?"

"Lord Norton, of course."

Dorine's color heightened, but Harry did not notice it. He was at last regarded by securing her promise that she would act the principal part in the parade. He was away wondering how he could arrange it so that he might be near her on the glorious occasion.

On the eve of the important day there was a gathering in the back room of the Cattlemen's Club. Around the table sat six of the largest owners of stock on the ranch. They talked of the coming parade.

"I am in favor of knocking them out once for all," Lord Norton was saying. "That side of the town has got to be wiped out or everything in our property will be worthless. Let's scare their old parade out of state and do it then or we will be never running the town."

Some objection was raised, but in the end the worthies were all satisfied with a plan that presented itself. It was to hire a stalking horse, that only the six cattle barons knew of, a man the morning before, and then return on Western ponies does not permit of much confidence or exchange of confidences.

There was another conference that night, but the cattlemen did not know of it. Harry went to it—Harry and Lad. When they parted it was with a laugh and a merry call from the former: "I will be on fire all so much independence day dawned with the beauty of the prairie skies shining over the upper table, complained of a so young as robins in and for the old to be thankful for." Harry was early at his office and there was not a resident who did not feel that he was interested.

waist. With a quick motion he brought her to the saddle and then turned his horse back toward the center of the crowd.

"She jumped into the arms of a north ender!" exclaimed a dozen of her friends, "for shame!" But Dorine seemed not to care. She smiled at him from her side and with Lad's arm around her, and Harry was glad that he was on to ride the team and was not those to see.

"That was a smart trick of yours," said Mr. Norton to his son, a day or two after.

"Not so smart as that of yours and the rest in trying to frighten and break up the south senders parade. Why, it was the talk of the town in two ways: it won me a wife and put the two towns on a friendly footing."

"What do you mean, sir? A wife—and friends?"

"Miss Vandale promised me to marry me as we rode back from the runaway and the people were so thoroughly united by the fright that they will quarrel no more. A marriage between the two leading families will help straighten things, too, don't you think?"

Mr. Norton did not say what he thought—perhaps he did not think anything fit for expression. As for his son, he was more than satisfied. He had won a goddess, as he got it, and had heeded a neighborhood quarrel, and that was glory enough for one Fourth of July.

The new Fourth of July game of "abbreviated shot" calls forth lively competition. A prize is given for the most correct list of the following questions:

MINISTERS OUST FOSTER.

Expelled from Chicago Conference on Account of Heretical Views.

Professor George Burman Foster on Monday was expelled from the Chicago Baptist Ministers' Conference because of the alleged heretical beliefs expressed in a recent book on "The Function of Religion." After a long and heated debate, in which the German indulged in bitter personalities, the organization at its weekly meeting decided by a vote of 49 to 10 to drop the University of Chicago professor from its membership. The action does not affect Professor Foster's standing as a Baptist minister, but simply advocates disapproval of him and takes from him the right of fellowship in the conference. The resolution finally passed was stripped of all unnecessary verbiage, and in such form was able to command the support of a number who disliked the sort of tactics pursued by the foes of Professor Foster. As introduced by Rev. Johnston Myers, leader of the anti-Foster forces, the original resolution recited the various accusations against Professor Foster and declared his retention in the association injurious to the denomination. It also called upon the trustees of the University of Chicago to dismiss Professor Foster from the faculty of the institution. With the consent of Mr. Myers the resolution was amended and simplified until its final form, as passed, was as follows: Resolved, That the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Chicago drop Professor George Burman Foster from its membership."

FIRE KILLS 3 MEN, 68 HORSES.

Origin of Blaze Mystery and Burn Damaged $30,000 Worth.

In a fire of unknown origin Saturday afternoon five men and sixty-eight horses were cremated in the barn of Grace Dyer Barb in Duluth, and damage was done to the building to the extent of $30,000. The building was owned by Barrett & Zimmerman, horse dealers of St. Paul. The fire that the men had lost their lives was not known until after the fire had been subdued, because frames in building through the ruins discovered their charred remains near the rear of the stable through which they had tried to effect their escape.

FARMER SLYS FATHER IN ROW.

Chicago Man Shot Down by Son Who Claims Self-Defense.

Emil Tiller, aged 32, shot and killed Gray-haired Ferdinand Tiller, on the son's farm, three miles south of Benton Harbor. The younger Tiller fired three shots when, as he alleges, his father had attacked his wife after the old man had partially stunned both with blows from a heavy stick. Tiller said: "I killed my father in self-defense. The lives of both my wife and myself were in jeopardy. Father had struck me and then turned on my wife. Partially stunned with a blow over the head, he was about to strike the second time when I fired." During the quarrel between father and son Mrs. Tiller attempted to separate the two. Turning on her, the old man, so Mrs. Tiller told the officers, all the feline her with a blow. His weapon was raised aloft for a second as he was when her husband, half a dozen paces away, fired point blank. The bullet entered the parent's mouth and lodged in his brain. He died immediately. According to the son and wife their lives had been threatened a number of times by the father. The slain man leaves a widow and four children, three of whom live with their mother at 1218 South Albany avenue, Chicago.

FREE TOLL LINE SERVICE.

Barry County Phone Users Working on Scheme to That End.

One of the most important movements single since telephones have existed in Barry County took place Saturday, when scores of farmers met in the court house in Hastings to devise some means of establishing a system whereby the 2,000 patrons of independent rural telephone lines may talk with each other free through any of the seven exchanges owned by the Citizens' Telephone Company, from which the lines owned by the independent rural companies radiate. There are thirty-five independent rural telephone companies in the county, operating lines at exchanges in Hastings, Nashville, Woodland, Middleville, Bradley, Lacey and Freeport, toll being charged between all these exchanges.

USES GASOLINE; IS BURNED.

Owosso Woman Victim of Explosion in Wash Boiler.

Mrs. E. H. Odell, of Owosso, was severely burned on the face and head when a wash boiler full of clothes and boiling water exploded. She had first soaked the clothes in gasoline, which had not entirely evaporated when she placed them in the steaming water. The heat generated gas and caused the explosion. Mrs. Odell had gone out of mind enough to telephone the fire department before she fell to a room. She was rescued by a neighbor and the flames were quickly extinguished.

ROUND AND LOCKED IN CAR.

Van Buren Farmer Robbed, Frees Himself and Cuts Way Out.

Bound and gagged and then locked in a box car, where he had been dragged after having been robbed, and left to be carried away to Toledo, William Gardner, a Van Buren County farmer, succeeded in freeing himself and cutting a hole in the side of the box car from which he escaped to Kalamazoo. Gardner said he was relieved of a considerable amount of money, the exact amount of which he did not know.

LOST WOMAN FOUND DROWNED.

Mystery of Disappearance of Woodsman's Wife Is Unsolved.

Mrs. Kate Latham, who mysteriously disappeared while returning from a visit to a camp ten miles north of Grayling, several days ago, was found drowned in Little Lake, near Naters. The woman never reached her home. Mrs. Tilley attempted to separate the two. Turning on her, the old man, so Mrs. Tilley told the officers, all the feline her with a blow. His weapon was raised aloft for a second as he was when her husband, half a dozen paces away, fired point blank. The bullet entered the parent's mouth and lodged in his brain. He died immediately. According to the son and wife their lives had been threatened a number of times by the father. The slain man leaves a widow and four children, three of whom live with their mother at 1218 South Albany avenue, Chicago.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

WILLARD A. SMITH EDITOR.

FROM ARTHUR BEATTIE

The Maiden Farmer Writes of His Impressions of the Far West.

LIVINGSTON, MONT., June 29, 1909.

To the Sentinel.

I will continue my "non'wester." A little ways from here I make a side trip to visit a relative, twenty-five miles north-east into the range country, where thousands of cattle, horses and sheep are raised.

The Bitter ranch consists of 900 acres in what is known as the Duck Creek country. The soil is good where it is not rocky. I can see mountains covered with snow on all sides. This is a cattle and horse ranch. About 200 head of cattle and 100 horses are on the ranch. The horses are good sized draft stock, and are a credit to any county. They were breaking some of the four year-old colts while I was there, and it was a surprise to me to see the cow boys handle their cattle and horses.

I left Livingston June 15th for the Yellowstone National Park. This is a grand park. Leaving Livingston we go fifty miles by rail through Yankee Jim Canyon to Gardner. Here we meet the various companies that carry people through the park. There are three companies, with as many prices. They charge $55, $40 and $30. This includes board and lodging. The views shown us are all the same, the difference being in the sleeping accommodations and living.

I will not try to describe this wonderful country, but would advise all who can to see it for themselves. I thought before I saw it that it would be difficult to tell anything about it, but it is far grander than anything I expected to see, therefore I can only give you a small idea of its wonders.

The first company has five fine hotels in as many places about the park. They drive the tourist around the park with fine four-horse coaches, and show them everything there is to be seen. The second company has permanent tents at many places about the park, and they board and lodge the tourist in them. The third company also has tents, but they but three of the four are taken down every morning and moved on large wagons to the next camping ground. The two last mentioned companies have good easy riding covered wagons, and are very obliging to their guests, showing them everything of interest. It takes five and one-half days to see it all.

The companies all have offices in Livingston, where it is best to make all arrangements for the trip. They meet tourists at Gardner, then all charges cease until they are returned to Gardner. The government has built fine roads and bridges all through the park, and have soldiers everywhere to see that the animals are not disturbed or anything in the park injured.

My next stop will be in Idaho, where I will stop to-morrow morning.

Yours truly,
ARTHUR BEATTIE.

The Dougherty Golden Wedding

The Charlevoix party—Judge and Mrs. Mayne, Mrs. H. Bedford and Mesdames John Nicholls, Allastie and Merriman—have returned from Elk Rapids, where they went to attend the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dougherty.

They all left the same story, that it was a festal day for the Dougherty and their many friends, who came also from Traverse City and other points. About 150 people were present. The trouble began at six o'clock in the morning, when the bells appeared on the scene and ascended the good old couple.

But the evening was devoted to the celebration, and it must have cheered the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty. An orchestra played in a secluded nook, and there was song and story and joyousness. The lawn was illuminated by electricity and Japanese lanterns, and the house was profusely decorated with flowers.

Letters and telegrams from far and wide testified to old companionships and undying friendships. It was a great event—an event that can occur but once in a lifetime, and there never was a happier one than this. There were many beautiful and appropriate gifts.

"Blest be the tie that binds" was what the departing guests sang as they departed, in which those of the household joined. The hearts of the editor of this paper and his wife were at Elk Rapids all the time, circumstances making it impossible for them to attend.

APPLES A STANDARD CROP

This Section of The Apple Belt Especially Favored by Nature.

L. M. Keating, an eminent agricultural writer as follows to the Michigan State Board of Agriculture, and it backs up what the SENTINEL recently said on the subject:

"Given equal knowledge and perseverance, just as much money, probably more, can be made from Apples in Michigan as in the west, and the lands cost only $15 to $25 an acre now.

"Five acres is better than $5 a day is the slogan of the irrigation farmer, and he is right. When one considers how much of useless expense the small farmer eliminates by producing so many of his own necessities at home, so there is no transportation charges, and no middleman's profit, he is a poor farmer indeed who cannot make and save more money on five acres than on a $5 a day job.

"And five acres set out to apples and scientifically cared for will yield for an average of a long term of years more than any land now being cultivated for crops in this state. The Michigan apple grower can wax rich on just what it costs the Oregon producer to ship to the Chicago market."

Quoting Professor Keeling, the News continues:

"Lake Michigan is a buffer to the hot winds that come off the prairies in the summer, for the prevailing winds are from the southwest; also to the cold storms of the prairies in the winter, and the arctic winter winds from the northwest. When these winds strike this great body of water they absorb a large amount of humidity, so the temperature is also changed by them, and the effect is felt all over this strip of land lying along the east shore.

"In the summer time Lake Michigan is a cooler of the temperature that comes into this section, and cool nights are the result, with more or less fog or dew. In the winter time it is a thrower off of heat, so that often the temperature is above zero in this section, when forty to sixty miles inland it is to be found 10 to 15 degrees below zero. In fact, as you leave the interior of Michigan and come toward this east shore, the change in the climate is perceptible on the cars as soon as you get within the fruit belt section.

"Except in Africa there is no large continental area of land that has big lakes to it like these Great Lakes of the United States. Here is a strip of land, of differ soil, extending from New Buffalo to Mackinaw along the east shore of Lake Michigan, a distance back of from twenty to forty miles, that has peculiar climatic conditions. There is nothing like it elsewhere in the United States.

bridges and walks are obstructed by young men from the town, and many of them are boisterous, vulgar, and profane.

Last Sunday evening a young lady of the resort was insulted by a "member," and instances are not infrequent when ladies are improperly accosted by these loafers. Rugs are taken from the porches and left in some of the way places, and bridge railings defaced.

There are respectable gentlemen and ladies of Charlevoix who enjoy an evening stroll through the beautiful grounds, and such have always been made welcome by the resort people, but it is quite natural that they must share the criticism that is due to outsiders who are too low in the scale of manhood to behave themselves.

These grounds are inside the corporation, and the summer residents therefore entitled to protection from the class of ruffians of which we speak.

Common Council

At the council meeting Tuesday night sidewalk petitions were granted as follows: Ann C. Shaw, Andrew McCall, John Kelly, A. Fisher, John Burns, Marie Lyman, Arthur Wait, John Hull, H. S. Harsha, May Allison, J. E. Redmon, Emma Campbell, Mary E. Hixson and J. A. Hawkins.

George Reinhart confirmed as chief of police. The council voted to appoint a day policeman at $40 per month, services to be from July 1st to Oct. 1st. W. J. Weikel appointed and confirmed.

Permission granted L. E. Benton and W. B. Scroggie to erect a frame building on the north side of Block 3, same to be removed on or before Sept. 19th, 1909.

Special paving assessment roll for Dist. No. 7 was confirmed.

Tortured On A Horse

"For ten years I couldn't ride a horse without being in torture from piles," writes L. S. Napier, of Ruglessa, Ky., "when all doctors and other remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me." Infallible for Piles, Burns, Scalds, Boils, Boils, Fever-Sores, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Corns. Guaranteed by F. G. Hixes & Co.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

There are many improvements be made around the Harbor.

James Gordon leaves for Pittsburgh this week with the tug Badger.

John Vincent, of Garden Island, is taking bath treatment at the Petoskey hospital.

A least eighteen children will receive their first communion on Sunday, July 11th.

Ben Gallagher has returned home after attending the K. O. T. M. M. celebration at Traverse City.

The Very Rev. Peter Engler, Visitator of the Sacred Heart Province, made his annual call on the Fathers recently.

Six boats loaded at the docks of the Beaver Islands Lumber Co. last week taking 900,000 feet of lumber and 2,000,000 shingles.

Miss Ida Gibson of Harbor Springs, and Miss Sarah Bailey, of Mackinaw Island are visiting friends on the Island.

Father Norbert is having the grounds around the new St. James hall graded and nicely sodded, making a fine improvement.

James R. O'Donnell has a large snapping turtle on exhibition in the Harbor. The turtle weighs 60 lbs. H editor Smith was on the island he would say it weighed a ton.

M. J. McCann and W. J. Gallagher have made quite a lot of improvements to their premises. Capt. John McCann expects to have his new gasoline boat ready for launching this week.

C. B. Hill, former chef on the Manitou, was a guest of John McCann for a few days this week. Mr. Hill goes to Mackinac Island to take charge of the Island House for the summer as chef.

Frank Dunlap and his friend Frank Peppers returned home to Chicago after a two week's visit to friends on Beaver Island. James Donkey and W. J. Gallagher escorted them to Charlevoix.

The new St. James hall has been leased by outside parties for the season, and the Islanders will be able to enjoy some good entertainments in the line of moving pictures, vaudeville and other special attractions.

E. F. Kleckner, who has been the efficient foreman for the Lumber Co. for a number of years, will leave the Island this week, their field embracing Oregon. The best wishes of many friends go with them.

Yes, St. James has a band, and, mind, it is a good one, considering the time it has been organized. The fifteen or more instruments are well balanced, and, with practice, they will soon be able to make life on the Island worth the living.

As these items are mailed we learn that John Vincent (Vaness) died Tuesday at Petoskey. His remains will be brought here and buried at Garden Island. Deceased was a French Indian half breed fisherman and boat builder and an old resident.

Hoyne City Journal: Yesterday while fishing at the Hoyne City Lumber Company's wood dock a man discovered the body of an infant floating in the waters of the lake. Chief Tolice Beach was notified and he, with Sheriff McWain and Dr. Marshall, the coroner, repaired to the spot and secured the body which was taken to the Slackus undertaking rooms where, later, an autopsy was held. The examination disclosed that the child, which was a male, had not been drowned but had probably died by strangulation and the body was afterwards thrown into the water. The remains were that of a newly born child and the only thing in the way of identification was a woman's waist which was wrapped about the body. It is a black waist with five white pearl buttons down the back. An effort will be made to discover the parents of persons who are guilty of the cruel and inhuman act and they will be brought to justice.

A LIFE FOR LOVE

An Affair of the Heart Causes William McFarland to Shoot Himself —Goes to Bay Shore Dance to Commit the Deed.

William McFarland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McFarland, of this city, shot himself through the heart with a 38 caliber revolver bullet at Bay Shore at about 8:30 Friday evening. Every circumstance connected with the case goes to show that the deed has long been contemplated. The evidence (which includes the two letters published below) that it was the opposition of his parents to his intention to marry a young girl named Eva Maitland, and his insane jealousy of the girl, that drove him to suicide.

In company with Eva and a young man named Henrickten and his girl, they drove to Bay Shore Friday evening, with the avowed intention of attending a dance at that place. The girls alighted from the carriage in front of the hall, as did also young McFarland, while Henrickten started to drive the team to the barn. As he moved off he caught sight of McFarland as he staggered and fell near the back end of the store. It is a strange fact that no one heard the report of the revolver. He immediately went to the spot and found McFarland dead, with a bullet hole through the heart. The clothing and flesh bore powder marks and the revolver had several yards from the body, indicating that he had staggered that distance before falling.

On the way to Bay Shore McFarland and the girl were heard talking in tones that were too emphatic to be merely earnest. That the deed has been long contemplated is proven by the fact that McFarland nearly two weeks ago tried to borrow a revolver from Lee Scroggie "to shoot a dog." Lee finally gave him permission to go to his home and get it. This is the revolver that was found on the ground at Bay Shore.

Under-Sheriff Weikel and Coroner Wilkinson were on the spot soon after the deed was committed and took charge of the body, bringing it to See's undertaking rooms. The inquest is in progress as we go to press. Funeral occured at the McFarland residence Monday afternoon. It has developed that Miss Maitland had recently shown McFarland letters that she had received from other boys, and seemed to cause frenzied jealousy.

We print below two letters that were found on the body.

July 2, 1909

DEAR EVA:

I will write you a few lines for the last time in my life. You will never know why I took my life. You are false to me. I love you, Eva, remember it, will you. Don't show this to anyone. You you will have a chance to go with some one. If I had lived you would have been my wife—that is, if you were willing. Tell your mother I am good bye. I will choke off for the last time. I'm good to myself, and I'm going to be good, as good as you can. From the best friend you ever had, or ever will have.

WILLIE MCFARLAND

DEAR MOTHER:

I will write you a few lines for the last time. I want you to forgive me for anything I have done to you. I think you for what you have done. I know I did not do right by you folks and I am sorry. You you are little but be still. Live a life so you will see where I will. As for me marry her Eva Maitland, you see I am not going to, see that I did not this time. I would have asked you if I had. But I love her better than I did. Give me back how as Pauline not Englebert, and to all of my friends. Well, I will bid you all farewell for the last time. Don't think where you go I am good time the same as if I were with you. From poor me

WILLIE MCFARLAND

Deceased was a quiet, steady and industrious boy, and is well spoken of by all who know him. He had for several years been employed in Englestow lumber and drag line. He was 23 years of age. The letters and the few known facts involved in this tragic ending of a life, prove the motive as insane jealousy, but there are unquestionably details that will never be known.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN The Charlevoix Sentinel

The Beulah Home

The Traverse City Eagle has the following concerning the recent Chequamegon excursion from that city to Beulah Home, and the laying of the corner stone of the new building:

"The boys are as polite as possible and were eager to wait upon their guests; the pitchers of ice-cold water which they kept constantly supplied and from which they refreshed each guest served as an expression of this feeling which all appreciated.

"The ceremony of the day, that of breaking the ground where the corner-stone of the new building is to rest, occurred at 3 o'clock. The Beulah boys gathered in a group about Mr. Swift, sang "The Sunny Side" and "In Heaven," incidentally Mr. Swift remarked that he preferred "to sing now" instead of "to sing in heaven."

Mr. Swift made a few remarks about the pleasure it was to have the guests and especially the Congregational ladies who had planned and carried out the arrangements for the excursion, present to break ground for the longed-for new building.

"Rev. Demas Cochlin addressed a brief but earnest talk to the boys, trying to convey to them some idea of the real affection which exists in the heart of Traverse City people for them.

"After Mr. Cochlin offered a prayer for the Divine blessing upon the building and the boys who were to occupy it, Mrs. F. H. Barnum, president of of Ladies' Aid society, dug the first shovelful of earth and all the ladies who cared to follow her example. Not to be outdone, as soon as their wives showed signs of lagging energy, the gentlemen seized the implements and "showed how a man would work," with the result that a wagon load of sand was ready to be hauled away.

"It was now time to say good-bye to the home and its happy inmates and hurry down the long hill to the landing, only stopping for a moment to patronize the enterprising young ladies who were serving popcorn, ice cream and cake and ice cream cones at the little church by the road. When all were once more on board they said good-bye to Mr. Swift so reluctantly that it was only by being true to his name that he managed to gain the dock which the boat had already left. With a parting Chautauqua salute to the man who is engaged in a work which he lover better than his life, and the boys who loved him so dearly that they obey his lightest command instantly, the crowd turned their faces toward Traverse City.

—Mr. Richard S. Jackson, for seven years with the First Commercial Bank, Pontiac, Michigan, has been engaged by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank, as assistant to the cashier. Mr. Strong who has been with the bank during the past year will shortly return to his home town, Lake Odessa, Michigan, where he will resume his former position. Mr. Strong has made many friends since coming to Charlevoix, and, while we regret to lose him, we are glad to know he is going back among old friends and to a village that is home to him and his family. Mr. Jackson entered the field of Michigan bankers some seven years ago at Pontiac, Michigan, the same city where Cashier Hachow started in a few years before him, and they have been in touch with each other ever since. Mr. Jackson is a native of Mr. Jackson since boyhood, and him coming well recommended as a strong and capable bank man, the change is a pleasure and mutually agreeable all around.

PITTSBURG CAR STRIKE ENDS.

Mayor Brings Men and Officials Together in His Office.

The strike of street railway men, which cost the city of Pittsburg over $100,000 in two days, was officially declared to be at an end at 10:30 o'clock Monday night. In the private offices of Mayor Magee articles were signed by officials of the Pittsburg Railways Company and an executive committee from the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes which will for years to come prevent another tie up of the 400 miles of street railway tracks in and about greater Pittsburg and Allegheny County.

The strike, it developed, was the outcome of only two points of difference between the car company and the motormen and conductors, one being alleged neglect upon the part of the latter "to operate the swing runs," and the other the refusal of the railway officials to reinstate discharged men without proper hearing.

All during the day Mayor Magee made vain efforts to bring the two factions of the traffic tangle together. Finally a conference was arranged and held in the Mayor's office. When the startling announcement came the Mayor suggested that the temper of the people seemed to indicate there would be some violence during or pre-longed traffic disturbances. Then, with slight modifications, an agreement allowing the largest men proper hearing was drafted. The agreement of the car company that the secretary would sketch "swing runs" to men and that the men in the union executive committee instructed the pickets at the car barns to call men for duty, beginning at 5 a. m.

Storm in Pittsburg Causes Injury of Twenty-three Persons.

A stroke of lightning in a severe storm which injured twenty-five persons known young men, two of them probably fatally, caused the disclosure of a gambling den in a cave in Leech Hollow, just off Beechwood boulevard. Lightning struck the cave and an appeal was made for aid for the injured. The police, in addition to finding nearly all the occupants more or less suffering from burns and shock, discovered gambling tables, poker chips, cards, and dice, and a large supply of liquor. The lightning struck a tree, which partly concealed the entrance to the cave. The men were sitting in a group and in some instances their clothing and shoes were torn off.

EDITH WOODILL KILLED IN BRAWL, SAYS LETTER

Supposed Murderer Dies in Fight with Posse or By His Own Hand.

WOMAN IS BLAMED FOR CRIME

Roberts, or Eastman, Declares Gage's Protege Was Struck Over Head with Wine Bottle.

Sensation after sensation has developed in the mysterious murder of Mrs. Edith May Thompson Woodill, protege of Lyman J. Gage, at St. Michaels, Md. The first was the death of Emmet E. Roberts or Robert E. Eastman, the supposed slayer, who was followed by a sheriff's posse on the black creek at 1 o'clock Friday morning and killed in a fusillade of bullets. Roberts died either by his own hand or the shots of the posse.

In his pockets was found a letter addressed to Miss Vinnie Hraxeams, care Klaw & Erlanger, New York, in which the writer asks the girl to come to Maryland to take charge of his body and property, as he intended to commit suicide. Roberts asked that he had been out in a boat with four other people, two men and two women, that all had been drunk except himself and one girl; that one of the women struck another over the head with a wine bottle and had killed her.

Mrs. Woodill's Graceful Career.

Some facts of the romantic career of Mrs. Woodill, in prose brief life, love and romance played such a great part, have been released by an intimate friend of the slain woman who said they were told to Mrs. Woodill herself. Mrs. Woodill said she was born in Minneapolis about twenty years ago. Her mother, who called herself Mrs. Ames, died when she was about 3 years old, leaving her in utter ignorance of her parentage or forbears. Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, of McDonough, Md., then took her and brought her up, telling her that she was Mrs. Thompson's niece. Her mother's intimate friend, but never disclosing to her the name of her father.

When she was about 12 years of age, they went to Washington, where they lived for some time in the house of Lyman J. Gage, who took a great interest in her. When she was about 15 he sent her, with Mrs. Thompson, to Paris, where she studied music. Mr. Gage paying all expenses. On her return from Paris she went to Boston to complete her studies and while in Boston she was married to a Mr. Carswell, who was an actuarial. When she was about 17, she went to Halifax to continue her studies at the Dalhousie university, leaving her husband. She was known as Miss Edith Thompson, concealing her marriage from all but a few intimate friends.

In a very short time thereafter she entered suit against Dr. Caswell for a divorce. She left Halifax and for a time a year ago, being engaged at the time to Henry Adams of Mount Vernon, N. Y. After a brief stay in New York she went to California, where in less than thirty days after her divorce from Dr. Caswell she married Clifford Woodill, of Los Angeles.

During her residence in Baltimore Mr. Gage sent her checks continually, some of them amounting to $1,000, and when she was married to Mr. Woodill gave her $5,000. At the time of her death Mr. Gage was also building her a house in Los Angeles, with the understanding that he was to come and live with her and her husband.

Story of the Murder.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Woodill left her home in California to visit at the home of Mrs. Thompson. She was often seen in company with Roberts, who took her for hunts ride on the river. On Saturday, June 19, Roberts told Capt. Thompson that Mrs. Woodill had gone to Baltimore and would be back in a few days. Suspecting that something was wrong, Capt. Thompson gave voice to his belief that the woman had met with foul play. Roberts heard of this and disappeared. A search was made for Mrs. Woodill's body and it was found in Back river, the skull cracked and the corpse weighted with an iron post. A search of Roberts' bungalow revealed a bloody bedroom, but everything indicated that the young woman had been killed outside and the body dragged into the room.

Strange and under what circumstances Eastman and Mrs. Woodill met is not known, but both are said to have been immediately attracted to each other.

The wheed diver of Mrs. Woodill was "Lame Ioda" Eastman, a Wall street broker, who failed in New York late July with liabilities of from $75,000 to $200,000. He was a broker in the firm of Weinstein & Eastman. Eastman left the city and was arrested in Chicago on complaints made by persons who had lost money through his operations. At that time he said: "I have been better a more complete failure than myself. Wall street never will succeed a more complete ruin."

The War Department in Washington intends to save $12,000 in the next three years and a proportionate sum yearly thereafter by changing the shade of the fatigue uniform or working clothes of the enlisted men of the United States army from brown canvas to blue denim. The latter material has been found in every way satisfactory as the former and the cost is about one-fourth less.

MRS. GOULD WINS HER CASE.

Granted Divorce and $36,000 a Year Alimony.

Mrs. Howard Gould won a sweeping victory in her separation suit against her millionaire husband in New York when Justice Victor J. Dowling from the bench granted her a legal separation and alimony at the rate of $36,000 a year, practically $100 a day. In voicing his decision Justice Dowling gave Mrs. Gould a clean bill so far as intoxication is concerned. He said there is no proof of excessive drinking had been introduced by Howard Gould's lawyer.

The court intimated that Mrs. Gould only all the circumstances had been indiscreet in her meetings with Dustin Farnum, the actor, even though there was no criminal relation behind them.

The decision of the court was that Howard Gould's abandonment so far as concerned the proof offered was not quite without justification in any degree, but without provocation. The only question which confronted the jurist was the amount of alimony. He declared that the case was without precedent so far as he knew, the husband's admitted income being in excess of $700,000 a year.

"The fact that Mrs. Gould had accepted $57,000 worth of jewelry at her husband's expense since the actual separation was taken into consideration by Justice Dowling. He said However Gould that if his wife returned to the stage, as was said that he did not think likely, Gould could reopen the case with an application to have the alimony decreased.

BOMB EXPLOSION IN CHICAGO.

Seven Persons Are Injured and Damage Aggregating $150,000 Done.

With an explosion which wrecked the rear of the Chicago Title and Trust Building, 100 Washington street, and damaged every structure in the block bounded by Washington, Clark, Madison and Dearborn streets, and the heaviest score, the series of gambling bomb outrages in Chicago Sunday night reached its climax. Seven persons were injured and a loss of $150,000 was caused. In the series it was bomb 21. In destructiveness it exceeded the loss of all the other outrages combined. The explosion, which occurred at 11:20 p. m., resounded like a thunderclap and was heard all over the downtown district. The nearby streets were filled with pedestrians, who were showered with the glass which came pouring down from windows for blocks around. Many were hurled to the ground by the force of the blast.

The possibility, which the police officials are convinced was the explosive used, evidently was placed in the lower at 141 Madison street. The room used by Mont Tenney, "king of gamblers," as the base of operation from which all his syndicate business was conducted and as his clearing house. was on the second floor just above the place where the fuse has been set off. At the opposite side of the alley is the Title and Trust Building, which houses the Central and Randolph exchanges of the Chicago Telephone Company. The full force of the blast struck the manhole of the main cable vaults leading to the exchanges, and twelve of the cables, each containing hundreds of subscribers' wires, were snapped apart like thread. Thousands of telephones in the loop district were put out of service.

The wreck and ruin wrought by the explosion were terrific. Heavy steel girders a year or two ago the Title and Trust Building were twisted as if made of straw. A heavy sheet iron ventilator pipe five feet in diameter leading from the kitchen of Thomas Jones's restaurant, was crushed like an eggshell. Many large plate glass windows on the west side of the business store facing in Dearborn street were blown out, while within street floor on their frames were undisturbed. Assistant Chief Schmettler laid the outrage to labor troubles.

TUCKERS AGREE TO DIVORCE.

Wife to Get $20,000 Property and Charles Colonel with Daughter.

Charles Colonel, in the domestic difficulties of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Logan Tucker, daughter of the late General John A. Logan, and Colonel William F. Tucker, U. S. A., reported several days ago to have reached a differences regarding the amount of money Mrs. Tucker was to receive in lieu of a alimony—has been reached, which will result in the latter applying for divorce on the ground of desertion.

When Colonel Tucker learned that the matter of Mrs. Myrtle Platt had been dragged into the case, it is understood he was greatly incensed and if any further charges were made against him he would retaliate. Fearing his wife would make good her former charges would result in a bitter exposure, the colonel decided to sue. Said, Mrs. John A. Logan brought sufficient pressure to bear to bring about a reconciliation between the two.

The agreement, according to friends of the Tucker's, Mrs. Tucker will receive property valued in excess of $20,000.

JURY CONVICTS A. P. HEINZE.

Brother of Copper King Found Guilty of Impeding Justice.

Arthur P. Heinze was found guilty in New York of impeding justice by inducing a clerk in the employ of F. Augustus Heinze, president of United Copper Company to evade a subpoena issued by the United States Senate committee investigating the affairs of F. Augustus Heinze in connection with the Mercantile National Bank of New York.

The penalty for the offense is fine of $5,000 and imprisonment in jail, or both. Sentence was suspended until the October term of court on the promise of the prisoner that he would do all in his power to procure the production of the books of the United Copper Company which he admitted he has caused to be removed from the office of the company at No. 74 Broadway. He began that task by going before the grand jury and telling where he sent the books and all he knows of the alleged attempt and the institution of them.

$250,000 PITTSBURG FIRE.

Police Hunt Incendiaries—Heavy Guests in Peels.

A quarter million dollar fire occurred in Pittsburg Monday night, but in a district which caused less fear at time that twenty times that amount would be lost. The Arcade Power Building on Penn avenue in the heart of the downtown district was burned down, and about twenty firms whose headquarters were in the building were homeless. The Pittsburg Athletic Club occupied the new Hotel, adjoining the fire on the rear, and hundreds of guests were in the hotel when the fire broke out in their night clothing. There is a rumor that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Heat Kills Twelve in New York.

Twelve persons were killed outright or died as the result of New York Tuesday night, and the mercury stood at least twelve more and more than a score of prostrations.

Horsed by Gasoline Blast.

Mrs. O. H. Hobbesser of Detroit, Mich., was probably fatally burned in Norfolk, Va., as the result of the explosion of gasoline with which she was cleaning a dress at the Meridian apartments, where she was a guest of member, Mrs. A. B. Elsinge.

Killed and Hurt in Panic.

Dispatches tell of an explosion and panic among the 1,000 persons who had in Dodeguar, Spain, in which at least twelve persons perished and fifty were injured.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL
CHICAGO.

The bank statements show the aggregate loans expanded $1,000,000 to $1,000,000 more than at any time hitherto, and the otherwise favorable condition of the principal items reflecting financial strength testify to distinct progress in business generally. The first half of the year is now virtually completed, a comparison with the same period of last year discloses gains in payments through the banks equal to 19 per cent, in bank clearings 12 per cent, in deposits 12.6 per cent, in loans 15 per cent, in value of new buildings 77 per cent and in value of business improvements 214 per cent. Commercial failures are also notably reduced in numbers, and in liabilities the amount is 23 per cent under 1908 and 22 per cent under 1906.

"All the comparisons with the great business year of 1906 exhibit more or less marked gains except deposits at the banks, which appreciated 12.2 per cent. The more recent comparison also indicates increases in the values of various commodities and remarkably high quotations for breadstuffs, the staples of life.

"The current developments continue to bring the view of sustained recovery. The Easter wave stimulated leading retailers to seasonable activity, sales comparing favorably with previous years in light-weight staples, food products and housewares. Advices from the interior reflect a gratifying reduction of store stocks and some moderate replenishment. Wholesale lines show a distinct and some continue rising in dry goods, footwear, clothing, men's furnishings, carpets and drugs.

"Railroads in the Chicago trunk roads indicate sustained improvement in the movement of heavy materials.

Bank clearings, $250,968,472, exceed those of the corresponding week last year by 26 per cent and compare with $225,541,969 in 1907.

Failures occurred in the Chicago district number 19, against 26 last week, 22 in 1908 and 20 in 1907. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 7, against 9 last week, 9 in 1908 and 8 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK

Improvement is more manifest this week in the volume of distributing betterment weather and crop reports and further expansion in the volume of industrial operations. Retail reports are still rather irregular, excessive cooling being credited with retarding distribution in some sections, but on the whole, sales of seasonable goods have been benefited by more seasonable temperatures.

Jobbing trade reports are slightly better, pointing to an improvement in wholesale demand, but by far the best reports as to distributive trade still come from manufacturers. Recent crop reports stimulating the placing of business for next fall and spring of staple goods. The industries led by iron and steel show expansion of operations, with further steel mill advances, and more confidence is expressed than at any preceding time since the movement began. The situation in leather trades is one of great strength.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with June 24 were 225, against 213 last week, 258 in the like week of 1908, 156 in 1907, 166 in 1906 and 183 in 1905.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 32, which compares with 28 last week and 31 in the like week of 1908.—Bradstreet's.

YOUNG WOMAN MURDERED BY A CHINESE.

ELSIE SIGEL

MISSION WORKER'S BODY FOUND IN TRUNK

Elsie Sigel, Granddaughter of Famous General, Murdered by Christianized Chinaman.

GIRL VICTIM OF YELLOW PERIL

Chung Sin Tells of Witnessing Crime and Fastens Guilt on Leon Ling.

Miss Elizabeth Sigel, mission worker in New York slums, and granddaughter of Gen. Franz Sigel of Civil War fame, was the victim of one of the most atrocious murders which has been committed in New York in years.

Her body was found jammed into a trunk in a Chinaman's lodging house at 782 8th avenue. The young woman had been missing from her home since June 9. The police learn she the body probably had been in the trunk nearly that long.

The Chinaman who had lived in the room where the body was found was Leong Long Ling, known among the English friends as William L. Leon. He was known to have been closely connected with mission work among his countrymen, and was educated. He is said to have acquainted with Miss Sigel and letters found in the room of the murderer even mention the girl by position the girl cared for him. Another letter, addressed to Mrs. Charles Leon, threatened trouble if the former did not cease his attentions to Miss Sigel's mother, who had been ill from the trauma for more than a week.

Wrote Letters to Mother.

Numerous letters signed Elsie, addressed to Leon and breathing the spirit of true love for the young man. These were also found various articles of jewelry, the identified as belonging to Elsie Sigel, and to render the clew to the identity of the murderer complete the hatchet with which he had killed the girl, and the hatchet, which he had used to behead the girl, and the hatchet, which he had used to behead the girl, and the hatchet, which he had used to behead

FROM ARTHUR BEATTIE

The Marion Farmer Writes From the Far Northwestern State of Washington—In Its Way Eastward Again.

SEATTLE, Wash. June 25th.

To the Sentinel:

Leaving Livingston, Mont., with two engines pulling our train, we are now climbing the Rockies, and there is nothing but mountains until Helena is reached. This is a pretty valley, the city lying in about its middle, where thousands of cattle and sheep are wintered. It is strictly a range country.

From here to Spokane it is a rough country. There is very little good farming land around Spokane. The city is built on a rocky foundation and has large water power. It is the distributing point for a large area of country. Eastern Washington is not what I thought it was. It is very hilly and rocky. From Spokane the wheat crop is a complete failure, owing to the lack of rain. Stock must suffer next winter as a consequence.

At Pasco we crossed the Columbia river to Kennewick, and I am now in the Yakima Valley, where everything is raised by irrigation. North Yakima has a population of about 13,000. It has wide streets and fine shade trees. All kinds of fruit are grown here, but frost and a late spring killed of the peach blossoms. The soil is a volcanic ash from six inches to two feet deep, the subsoil being round stones and coarse gravel.

Farm lands are very high, being from $250 for common irrigated land to $1,000 per acre for orchards. Leaving this valley we are soon climbing the Cascade Mountains, and a half day's ride takes you to Seattle, where everything is on the high boom. Real estate is higher than the fall tried growing on top of the highest mountains. There is no farming land within 15 or 20 miles of the city. Every thing is laid out to streets and city lots. The Alaska-Yukon show is very good—about like the Buffalo exposition. The attendance is good so far.

I will leave for home in about a week, by way of British Columbia and Canada.

Yours,
ARTHUR BEATTIE

CHARLEVOIX BOYS INJURED

Chas. F. Nettleton and Junius S. Dixon Victims of Chicago Auto Accident.

Two were hurt, one seriously, says the Chicago Record-Herald of July 23, when an automobile driven by Charles F. Nettleton, 100 LaSalle street, was struck by a car at Madison street and Wabash avenue, yesterday. Both Nettleton and his companion, J. S. Dixon, 92 LaSalle street, were buried more than fifteen feet. According to the story told by Nettleton, the machine was being turned from the car track to permit the car to pass, when the accident occurred. The automobile was upset into a shapeless mass, being pinioned between the car and the "L" standard. It is feared that Nettleton's internal injuries may cause serious complications.

Both are Charlevoix boys. Mr. Nettleton is one of the leading restaurateurs of Chicago, and a son of D. C. Nettleton, of this city. Mr. Dixon is a milk inspector, and an uncle of C. F. Nettleton.

AUGUST A. BUSCH INJURED

Prominent Charlevoix Resorter Breaks Through—One of John Lynn's Bridges.

"Gussie" Busch, as he is affectionately called by friends, and who spends his summers in Charlevoix, was quite painfully injured June 29th, but is due to arrive here any day. The following particulars we take from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

August A. Busch, eldest son of Adolphus Busch, the millionaire brewer, will be confined to his bed in his home 2 Disch place, for more than a week from injuries sustained by slipping through a defective footbridge on his country place, Grant Farm, in St. Louis County, Sunday afternoon. In her efforts to reach Mr. Busch's side, when informed of the accident by telephone, Mrs. Busch in a high-power runabout motor car, driven by her son, Adolphus Busch, Jr., made the distance from the Busch home to the farm, more than ten miles, in less than twenty minutes. Almost as speedy a return trip was made with Mr. Busch. He was treated by Dr. Eugene F. Hauck, the family physician, who had followed in the Busch touring car, driven by the butler. Mr. Busch was rushed into town, arriving home at 7 o'clock, just one hour and a half after the accident.

Every effort was made by the family to keep any rumors of the accident from being circulated, owing to the effect such news would have upon Adolphus Busch, who is in Germany, not in the best of health. After Dr. Hauck and Mr. Busch reached the Busch home, Dr. Willard Bartlett was called into consultation. Dr. Bartlett said last night that Mr. Busch's injuries while exceeding painful, are not of a very serious nature.

The accident occurred at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Mr. Busch had spent the day at the farm, making an inspection, Mrs. Busch said last night. While crossing a foot bridge over a small ravine Mr. Busch stepped upon a loose board and it slipped off, dropping him in between the two adjoining planks. Mr. Busch caught himself with his arms, and did not fall into the ravine. His weight made even so short a fall a dangerous one, and is responsible for his injuries.

It was thought at first that he had broken one of the ribs on his left side and had badly strained his back. On this supposition, Mrs. Busch was hastily summoned, and she broke speed ordinances in reaching his side, sending the butler in another machine for Dr. Hauck. Dr. Hauck arrived a short time after Mrs. Busch. Mr. Busch's bruises were hastily dressed and he was hurried back to St. Louis.

The doctors found that Mr. Busch had strained his back rather severely and had several ugly contusions on his left side and on his chest, but both physicians agreed that there were no bones broken.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Traverse City board of health will make an active and strenuous campaign against the common house fly.

The steamers Huth and Mabel are now in readiness for their summer trips on the inland lakes back of Elk Rapids, and the captains expect a good season.

Prof. L. A. Butler, of the Boyne City schools, formerly of Central Lake, will take a short special course in Chicago University during his vacation, says the Boyne City Journal.

The officials of the Pere Marquette railroad report that the tourist traffic is unusually heavy for this time of the year. On several of the north bound trains there has hardly been standing room for the passengers.

Elk Rapids Progress: Judge Mayne ordered the officials to investigate thoroughly and ascertain who had furnished liquor to a paroled prisoner whose conduct otherwise had been exemplary, if caught the parties will be dealt with according to the Judge's most approved method.

Old Mission seems to grow in beauty each year, The Michigan motto: "If thou seekest a beautiful peninsula, look around you," could well be applied to this little peninsula and it certainly was never more attractive than in its present summer garb. The hotels are open and the blinds have been coming down by the dozen, and now the cottage that is now open and ready for its tenants is a rarity.

Petoskey News: There was considerable excitement last Saturday afternoon at Comstock & Son's grocery store on the west side caused by the capture of five large tarantulas which had escaped from two bunches of bananas. The title of the tarantula is considered deadly poison and it is reported that one of them jumped out of its hiding place on the arm of the wife of the grocer but did not bite him. One of them was preserved in a can of alcohol and has been inspected by hundreds of people.

NEXT TO THE POSTOFFICE.

Cheboygan Tribune: The Anti-Saloon League has opened its campaign in Cheboygan. Sunday various prominent officials of the organization occupied pulpits in our city churches and in the evening there was a grand rally and mass meeting in the opera house. The various churches dispensed with their evening services in order that the pastors might lend their support to the movement. The indications are strong that Cheboygan county will go dry at the next election. The only question is, how big will the majorities be?

Hoyne City Journal: There is a little something out of the ordinary in the coming of Phillips and Newell who play at the Opera House the last half of the week. Mr. Phillips is the son of an Advance farmer and the father and son have not met in nearly ten years. This soon the Cincinnatian stopped over at Hayden's Point and left Mr. Phillips and Miss Newell, much to the wonderment of all on board for they started off up the county road as if they were in the habit of taking the same walk every day.

Petoskey News: When a lady reporter from Chicago got off Pere Marquette train No 9 at Charlevoix yesterday morning, a bit of thoughtlessness caused her a leave a small hand bag in the car. Arriving here the train was turned over to a force of car cleaners, one of whom found the handbag and turned it over to O. F. Edison. An investigation of its contents disclosed a fine diamond and considerable cash, which might have been lost easily had it not been discovered as it was by the railroad men. The lost articles were returned Tuesday afternoon.

Boyne City Journal: A diagram has been received for the installation of a chapter of Royal Arch Masons in Boyne City and the matter is to be taken up at once. There are ten chapters in Masons now residing in the city and as only nine are required for the organization of a chapter the work will not be delayed. There will likely be plenty of material to work on so that chapter will doubtless grow very fast after it is started. There is a strong blue lodge in the city and it is mostly composed of men who do not want to stop at the third degree but who will keep climbing up in masonry.

St. Ignace special: As the result of an accident at White Shoals, about 20 miles from this place along the shore of Lake Michigan, where the largest lighthouse on the great lakes is under construction, two men, John Johnson and Tony Jacobson, workmen, almost lost their lives. Johnson, from Washington Island, Green Bay, is now being rushed to Detroit to undergo an operation at Harper hospital in the hope of saving his life. He is suffering from internal injuries. His condition is precarious. Jacobson's condition is not so alarming. He had several ribs broken, both bones in his right arm, and, it is feared internal injuries. The lighthouse has been under construction since spring a year ago. The steel work is now completed up to the first tier of the lighthouse. The base of eight 60 foot columns was being swung into the air ready to place in position for construction of the work, and the men were busily engaged in various parts of the structure, when suddenly the hook on the hoisting block used in placing the columns broke. A column weighing over four tons fell. On either side of the column was a wing of steel about 12 feet in length. Before the two workmen could realize it the wing in its flight swept them from their vantage ground. The men were hurled with terrific force through space, landing on the deck of a barge among parts of structural steel, some 30 feet below. They were brought to a launch to this place for medical care. Peter Brost, of Detroit, is superintendent of construction of the new lighthouse.

Hoyne Citizen: Sunday the packer steamer Conestogo was at the lumber dock for the purpose of unloading a cargo of 248 tons of Myrabolams. This is stickier but Mr Tilsby of the Tannery enlightens us to the extent of saying that the Myrabolams are nuts. Just little nuts which are used for tanning purposes. They come all the way from far-off India and are brought the entire distance, clear up to the tannery dock, by water. An ocean freighter brings the cargo to New York where it is transferred and taken up the Hudson river and through the Erie canal to Buffalo. At the latter place the Conestogo took possession of the valuable load and brought it to its destination. The Hoyne City Tannery brings in supplies from all parts of the globe, the prices ranging from Hardi and other South American countries and from China and various places in Asia while Maagrove and other tanning barks are brought from Southern climes, mainly from Central American and South American countries.

PIANOS TO RENT
Let Us Send One to Your Summer Home

No matter how far away from our store your Summer Home is located, you can have a Piano for the Summer if you wish. We make a specialty of renting Pianos to Resorters and we supply hundreds of homes every summer.
There is no entertainment like music for evenings and stormy days, when outdoor pleasures are impossible. With a piano you can have a Dance or Concert at a moment's notice. It will help to pass away, in a most delightful manner, many an hour that would otherwise be dull.
If the family contains students of music, a Piano in the Summer Home becomes a positive necessity. Where practice is neglected during the summer, the cost of extra lessons to make up for those forgotten will more than offset our moderate rental charges.
We are prepared to furnish any grade or style of Piano, from a $1,500 STEINWAY GRAND, or a magnificent PIANOLA PIANO to a low priced upright. None but reliable Pianos furnished and satisfaction guaranteed. Having twenty stores in Michigan and Ontario, and connections with reliable Piano houses everywhere, we can take entire charge of delivering and returning instruments without trouble to our customers.
A SUGGESTION—The most ideal outfit for the summer house is a Player-Piano with a nice selection of music rolls. With such an outfit any member of the family could furnish most delightful music for any occasion. We have a limited number of Player Pianos to rent. Get our terms.
To insure good selection and prompt service orders should be placed now. Careful attention given to 'phone and mail orders.

MONEY IN TRUCK FARMING.

Profit of $10,000 in Seven Years in Iowa.

The most scientifical disclosure to agriculturists has just been made by Francis Sentler of Des Moines, Ia., a young man who has made $10,000 worth of permanent improvements on a thirty-three acre farm in the last seven years and paid for it all from the product of the soil. It is a demonstration of what application will do.

Francis Sentler is the son of a French stonecutter, who came to Des Moines in 1875 to work on the construction of the state capitol. But stonecutting is an unhealthy business, and one day he decided to quit it. He bought a farm within sight of the golden dome of the statehouse he had helped to construct and struggled along for years, paying off the mortgages and in the same time raising a family. Seven years ago he died, and his son, Francis, took the entire management. It is he who has worked the miracle of the soil.

He has turned his farm into a truck garden, which is now said to be the finest truck farm west of the Mississippi river. The legacy of his success is that market truck gardeners of the east, he does not have to spend great sums of money for fertilization. During all these years his fertilization has not cost him more than fifty cents an acre a year.

Among the permanent improvements built since 1901 and paid for from this small farm are an $8,000 house, under which is a modern cold storage, a steam pumping plant that draws water from the river a half mile away and lifts it 135 feet into a nearby reservoir and eight greenhouses.

Mr. Sentler by his management is making his farm yield a gross income of $700 or $800 an acre. Like every successful man, Mr. Sentler can handle some things better than others. Tomatoes seem to be his favorite crop. He introduced the method of raising tomatoes on poles and planted 3,000 vines to the acre, getting a yield of 720 bushels of perfect fruit which brings the highest price on the market. He makes an acre yield $2,500 on his farm in a year. Such figures for a thirty-three acre farm in Iowa are significant, to say the least, especially when they are made to come by the son of a French stonecutter who knew nothing of agriculture and who never attended an agricultural college.

CHAPTER XV.—(Continued.)

Winston's hand rested again on the jacket. Before him, he had finished in the tangled, but the collar closely died out of his face. It was very still in the room, and the watchman could be heard walking across the floor of the lobby outside. A jitney passed in the street with a great rattle and clatter. Winston had removed the brown parcel a little nearer to the edge of the table. Margrave had laid this hand on the first time he had seen Winston on the market. He was not half bad looking, with his black eyes, his cards a sudden movement around the table, the sort of Winston, who was between him and the door.

"Want you to find that paper, Jim?" he asked, shifting from his chair.

Winston did not answer. He had picked up the parcel and took a step toward the door. Margrave quickly crossing the floor, Winston rushed for the door, holding the package with his free hand.

"Don't touch me, don't touch me," he said, backing toward the door, his eyes wild. Winston's unengaged hand was nervously in his pocket. It was a bold, ai-like face. The sweat stood out on his forehead. It was a curious sight, all, dark and wild, in the quiet, well-lighted to his agitation.

Against the door Winston stood, his hands under one arm, and Margrave, big enough himself, was not afraid of Winston, who seemed better one.

"Big enough, aren't you, Winston?" he said. "Big enough to be a good boy. Come, sit down and be a good boy."

"Let me alone," said Winston, with a sharp, shrill voice, the voice of a child, he thought, but he was not. Margrave was a big man, and he was afraid to ask a question of him. Winston did not follow him to the door, and Margrave opened it, as he never leave. The watchman went forward to let him out at the side entrance.

"If he'd only been sure the gold man would have had to-night," he reflected as he walked up the street, "he'd have gone to his office, scientific like, and with this pleasant speculation. "If I'd got out of the hack with that package he'd never dared squeal," he presently concluded.

CHAPTER XVI.

John Sutton was a good deal the worse for wear as he swung himself from a sleeper in the Clarkson station and looked for a down-town car. Coal mining is a dirty business and there are limits to the comfort that can be crowded into a sun-case. He had been crawling through a dark coal seam in Kentucky and in the recess of the Sayonne Trust Company, and had been detained a day longer than he had expected. He continued to be in a good deal of a hurry, yet he stopped to look and to be looked upon the men which rattled under the dome as he spoke and said hard, hurry-hurry. He had not been rattling the conductor of the Clarkson Traction Company, who had seen in the image and then with more composure called his name.

It was half-past eight. He took from his memorandum book a telegram of the day: "If it be bad news I'am coming home." He had a newspaper concerning the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Clarkson Traction Company. The meeting was to be held at the office of the company, in the Exchange Building, on the second Tuesday last November, at the hour of 10 o'clock. Before coming to the city of Clarkson, The Exchange Building was a mere name to Sutton, though the adjacent office of the company were on the other side of the square

WIDE TIRED WAGONS.

Result of Experiments on Different Roads and Soil.

Some years ago, when the low wheel, wide tired handy wagons first began to attract serious attention, the Michigan Experimental experiment station at Columbia, Mo., became interested in wide tires and made a number of experiments. A report has been made on the experiments, with the following results:

Trips were made on macadam, gravel and dirt roads in all conditions and on meadows, pastures and plowed fields, both wet and dry. The draft was determined by means of a self recording dynamometer. The net load was in every trip the same—the 2,000 pounds. Contrary to public expectation to a large majority of cases the draft was materially less when three six inches in width were used than when the tires were but the width of standard width, one and one-half inches.

In all conditions of the gravel road, except wet and sloppy on top, the draft of the broad tired wagon was very much less than that of the narrow tired wagon. Average—six trips, a load of 2,082 pounds could be hauled on the broad tires with the same draft required to draw 2,000 pounds on the narrow tires. In this condition of road the broad tires show to their greatest advantage. As the road dries and becomes firmer the difference between the draft of the broad and narrow tires gradually diminishes until it reaches about 25 to 30 per cent on dry, hard, smooth dirt, gravel or macadam roads, in favor of the broad tire.

The report concludes:

"Under any number of tests on meadows, pastures, stubble land, corn ground and plowed ground in every condition, from dry, hard and firm to very wet and soft, some without a single exception a large difference in draft in favor of the broad tires. This difference ranges from 17 to 120 per cent.

"These statistics throw a strong light upon the question of draft and make statistics of the employment of wide tires. There is little reason to doubt that the opinion of people in the country would support the same proposition. Perhaps it would be better to provide for a gradual adoption of wide tires, but that they are certain to come there can not be doubted."

Corn Breeding.

The Illinois experiment station has just published the results of its efforts to breed corn for high and low protein content and for high and low oil content. Ten generations of corn have been bred for these different purposes by selection of seed having the desired quantities. In the effort to increase the protein content, the average has been changed from 10.62 per cent to 14.31 per cent; in the effort to decrease it from 10.62 per cent to 8.64 per cent. Individual ears have been found which contained as high as 17.75 per cent of protein and as low as 6.13 per cent, as high as 8.20 per cent of oil and as low as 1.60 per cent. But the high protein corn has been the very case less productive than any of the other three and in some cases decidedly so. It has also been less productive as a rule than corn grown for no particular purpose—just corn. The conclusion is reached from some plots that while this continued selection for a single purpose to the neglect of all other considerations has resulted in lower yields, yet this is not a necessary result. In four cases high protein corn has yielded well as compared with standard varieties bred for no particular purpose.

Boy's Essay on "Possum.

"There's this to say of the 'possum," writes a Georgia youngster. "He don' no lear, cause he's always gittin' like he was in a good humor with everybody. He just as if, when you hit him you was gobe to git him, an' crack him an' eat him for dinner he looked on it as a good joke—just took it for a laughin' matter. I don't know whether he is just good-natured, or was born gittin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

Talking All Languages.

It pays to be a good waiter in the old country and a man will often remain a lifetime with one house and even at one table, commanding the respect of those he serves. He always speaks four or five languages, and it is astonishing to the American stranger to hear his waiter chatting from table to table conversing easily in German, French, Italian and English.

A Doctor's Woes.

"The worst thing about owning people," sighed the woman, "is that it seems to give them the right to ask us such personal and impertinent questions about things that really should be none of their business. I never slave off my piano lessons, for even yet that he doesn't ask how it is that I can afford to pay so much for my flat."

English Prodigal of Matches.

More matches are used in the United Kingdom than in any other one country in the world. It has been calculated that English people use an average of eight matches each person per day.

B. B. Blair, of Charlevoix, has five acres of land on Mackinac Island. This land will be put out to berries this fall with facilities for irrigation, and Mr. Blair has been offered a market in the top most hotels at 25c a quart if he can furnish berries later than the normal season for this fruit.

Local people will remember the two steamers Iroquois and Chippewa which for one season plied the north end of Lake Michigan between Petoskey and the strait ports. A recent letter states that the two boats are making a few regular trips in that vicinity, between north American ports and British Columbia, but are more generally used for excursion trips.

War has been declared at Traverse City between the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. and the Pere Marquette railroad, by the latter's action in charging $20 a car dockage for all fruit landed there on the railway's property. Thursday the boat company and the Manistee and Northeastern railway combined in a new route to Chicago for fruit shipment. Previous to this the Pere Marquette had been handling most of the fruit and owned a side track running in on the dock which the Northern Michigan company used. After the company had refused to allow the Michigan company the use of it unless they paid the dockage demanded. The litigation may result in the fruit being shipped through by way of Grand Rapids, instead of Traverse City hereafter.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

W. W. Hoyle and Miss May Gallagher, spent the fourth in Petoskey.

Dan C. Gallagher, Hoyle Bros. and several others went to Kenosha on a visit this week.

Oscar Martin, Dhill Malloy and several others are at Cheboygan visiting friends.

There were about 80 people came over from Nashtawa to spend the fourth on the island.

Mrs. D. H. McDonald gave a dance in the new hall Monday night. About 100 couples attended.

On the evening of the 4th the band boys gave us a street concert. We also had fire works, and a fine time generally.

Died Sunday July 3rd at High Island Mrs. Pete Nimegan age 80 years, she was buried at Garden Island cemetery.

The ball game between the Beaver Island and Nashtawa boys was quite exciting yesterday. The score was 9 8 in favor of the Island boys.

The death, a few days ago, at the Petoskey Hospital of Mr. John Vincent 69 years of age, removes from our midst one of the Island's oldest and most respected citizens. The funeral service were held at the Holy Cross church, and the remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery following a requiem high mass by the Rev. Father Norbert. The respect and esteem in which Mr. Vincent was held in this community being manifested by the large concourse of citizens that accompanied the remains to their last resting place unmindful of the heavy down pour of rain.

Born in the vicinity of Cheboygan, Mich., he early learned the art of boat building from his father, plying his vocation for something at the above named place. In 1873 he took the contract to build the schooner Sophia Bonner for the late Capt. J. H. Bonner of this village, moving to Beaver Island in the fall of that year. After completing this contract he saw an opportunity for bettering his condition by establishing himself at the Island where the fishermen of this vicinity were in constant need of new salt-boats, the only kind of craft used in the fishing industry business in those days. Accordingly he opened up a shop on the north point of the harbor, and for several years carried on a successful business, turning out some of the best and swiftest boats that ever sailed the waters of the north end of the lake, not a few of which were purchased and used by the government in the Light House service. The advent of the fishing tug a few years ago put an end to the sailboat business, therefore Mr. Vincent sold out his interests here purchasing a tract of land on the north side of Garden Island where he engaged in farming and fishing. As soon as the gasoline boat came into general use for fishing purposes Mr. Vincent turned his attention to that line of crafts. The success and efficiency he attained in this direction was evinced by the fact that at the time of his death he was engaged in building a power boat for the government to be used on lake Superior. He was a very intelligent and well read man, and it was pleasing and instructive to listen to his discourses on scientific topics. His hobby was perpetual motion, contending that he would some day produce it. He did not spend all of his time brooding over his hobby, as the records in the patent office will show where he was the inventor of several labor saving devices. Mr. Vincent was married in 1875 to Miss Josephine Matty, daughter of Lewis Matty formerly of Mackinac Island, and, as a result of this union, eighteen children were born to him, twelve of whom including the widow, still survive him.

Life Insures Years Ago.

Scientists have found, in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. To day the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough. To cure Sore Lungs, Colds, obstinate Coughs, and prevent Pneumonia, its the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottle free.

The business section of the village of Sherman, which lies about 25 miles south of Traverse City, in Wexford county, was almost entirely wiped out the night of July 1st as the result of firing a bunch of firecrackers. The dry condition of the structures fed the flames, and the slight wind did its part in spreading the same through the village, the inadequate fire fighting apparatus being unable to stop their progress in the least.

How Clothes Can Have a Sweet Odor.

If bunches of wild clover blossoms found growing in the vacant lots in the city, and along the roadside in the country are picked, put into cheesecloth bags and placed in clothes chests and drawers, lovers of perfume will find that their clothes have a delicate, sweet odor. The blossoms can be changed each season.

Cultivate Agreeableness.

The happy gift of being agreeable seems to consist, not in one, but in an assemblage of talents tending to communicate delight; and many always out there, who, by easy manners, sweetness of temper, and a variety of other undeniable qualities, possess the power of pleasing wherever any visible effort, without the aids of wit, wisdom or learning, nay, as it should seem in their defiance; and the general applauding to know that they possess it.—Cumberland.

Always Time for Courtesy.

That there was always time for courtesy was a law of life joined with those rare and kindly spirits who belonged to the golden age of American life and literature, but in the storm and stress of modern life and money getting the situation is more so. Whether expressed it is his consideration of the epithalamium of the day: "I sometimes say with Shakespeare: 'O for some courteous ghost, but nothing ever comes to me.'—Vernon Morray.

The Advanced Idea In CORSETS
HALF of women's "nerves" are corsets ills—caused directly by the discomfort and annoyance of an ill-fitting corset. In the REDUSO, science and common sense have envolved a corset for stout women that adds shapely lines to the wearer, and lends itself to the support of the body.
The Reduso Corset is built and feels like any other type of corset. It is free of straps, harness-like arrangements and clumsily fitting contrivances.
REDUSO CORSETS are durable without being stiff—and valuable without being expensive.
The REDUSO accomplishes its remarkable reduction of the figure from one to five inches—entirely by its scientific principle of goring.

—I. D. Coulter and son Raymond, of Detroit, are here for a way of two weeks. Mr. Coulter comes to inspect the D. M. Ferry pea crops.

—The home of William Woods, near the north railroad crossing, Petoskey road, was destroyed by fire Friday night, with all its contents. No insurance.

—Regular convocation of Charlevoix Chapter No. 141, R. A. M., on Monday evening, July 19. Work on R. A. M. degree. Companions are cordially invited to be present. By order E. H. P.

—There are more resorters in Charlevoix to day than there ever was before in the history of the place. There is still room for more and when the time comes that there is not, we will extend the limits, and take in Norwork.

—What was very near a cloudburst threw itself upon us Monday afternoon, accompanied by a terrific southwest squall. Water fell in sheets, filling the gutters until the flood trespassed on the sidewalks. It did a power of good," and will re invigorate all nature.

—It is pretty hard to find anywhere a more complete or artistic window display than that of H. M. A. Johnston, the plumber. The display embraces a most elaborate range of bath-room and other sanitary supplies, while opposite is the most beautiful array of electric lamps and fixtures we have ever seen, all connected with the current, and, in the evening, illuminating the bridge approach equal to an arc lamp.

—The Rev. John Henry Hopkins, D. D., Secretary of the 5th Department of the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal church in America, will visit Charlevoix on Monday, July 19th, in company with Mrs. Hopkins. Mrs. Hopkins will talk to ladies of the church and their friends at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and Dr. Hopkins will talk on "Missions—Christ Episcopal church on the evening of the same day at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is invited to attend both talks.

—We do not suppose Olaf Nordrum wants every crony coon monopolizing around the Booth Fisheries Co. plant as the writer did yesterday when he swiped two of Joe Smith's whitefish catch, just in from Cat Head reef. But such a visit is a pleasure. Whitefish are "coming on" now, and the catches are bringing lure to the fishermen. Just now the "jumbo" whitefish are in evidence, and in one box we saw several that weighed, singly, ten pounds. We asked Olaf if he could explain the phenomenal growth of these Brobdignian denizens of the deep, and whether or not they were legitimate members of the ordinary whitefish family, and he replied that he thought their size was merely attributable to a life of sobriety and a knowledge of the eccentricities of the average Michigan legislature, an agreement that usually shortens life on terra firma.

—A large bank barn owned by Dowling & Teban was demolished, the immense warehouse formerly used by the A. Booth packing house, now used by the Petoskey Hog company, was put two feet out of plumb, shade trees were ripped out by the roots and split, the steamers Missouri and Petoskey Hart were reported ashore on the bay and a sailboat upset with three occupants, near Harbor Point, this afternoon by a squall, which was cloud which came from the northwest, ploughed through the city and passed out into the lake. There was great excitement as the whirling cloud was seen coming toward the city. It did little damage outside of a very narrow strip, but in this section scarcely a shade tree was left standing. The Cars of Darling & Behan was in course of construction and their loss will be heavy. The warehouse which was wrecked badly, is an old landmark here.—Petoskey special to the Grand Rapids Herald. The same thing passed through Charlevoix on its way to Petoskey. Having no deserved punishment to inflict here, it shaped its course, as an avenging Nemesis, toward "Hell" Rose's town, and hit it a crack that has been long due. Such little things do not count a ripple in Charlevoix.

LOOKING BACKWARD

A Glance at Charlevoix Events Forty Years Ago—The Stride of Four Decades.

The SENTINEL scribe only becomes reminiscent when the spirit moves him, as it did one evening last week, when dear "Aunt Lottie" Stockman hailed him as he was passing her pleasant Park avenue home. Our good pioneer friend imparted the information that she had some old copies of the SENTINEL that she would cheerfully contribute to our collection of relics. Of course we had the files which included the issues, but the files of that period are only approached reverently and ceremoniously. They are as sacred as the Hebraic scrolls.

Well, among "Aunt Lottie's" newspaper relics was a copy of the SENTINEL dated April, 20, 1869. It is Vol. 1, No. 1, "—the first issue. That copy is before us as we sit on the shady side, of the steamship Manitou, coming "around the horn" at Skillagalee, on a restful Mackinac trip.

The party who sits on the aforesaid shady side of the aforesaid Manitou printed that issue on a Washington hand press in an old building that stood where the now yawns at the north side of the bridge. The scribe had just passed the minority stage of his existence. He boarded with Dick Cooper at the Fountain City House, but his marital engagement was already recorded with the angels, and he soon left uncle Dick for the first home that he ever was enabled to even claim an interest in.

As we have remarked, a copy of that our issue of the SENTINEL lies before us. On the first page we read "Willard A. Smith publisher," and on the second page Major E. H. Green's name appears as editor. During that first year the Major's name and pen gave dignity and strength to the infant, while the publisher hustled for local news.

We read in the columns of the issue that "A Yacht Club has been out' 11,000 yards of propeller wound the past winter;" Cephas Smith of "Antrim City," contributes a thermometrical article, the "mammoth new store,—24x72, is completed. (Fred Myers is now doing business in the place.) We read that ten "propellers" are "wooded" at Pine River (Charlevoix) that season; that A. Fox & Co. are laying a plank road between their store and dock; that A. G. Aldrich has been appointed deputy collector of internal revenue.

Of matters political, we read that the Charlevoix county union convention was held April 17th, with William Harris as chairman and Willard A. Smith as secretary. Richard Cooper was nominated for sheriff, Jackson Ingalls for treasurer; M. J. Stockman for register of deeds; William Harris for county clerk, Philo Beers for judge of probate, E. H. Green for prosecuting attorney and circuit court commissioner.

There are too many interesting things in the old paper to review in one article, therefore we preserve the remainder for future use, and dissolve these precious memories of the past into the more vivid moving picture of to-day. And what an amazing transition!

We are on the good ship Manitou off St. Helena island at the precise moment that we write these lines. Our neighbor, Capt. "Billy" Finucan, president of the Shiffless Shipmasters' Society of Charlevoix, is on the bridge, as we look over; Steward Dick Donnelly and purser Catlin, famous in their respective vocations throughout the broad domain of fresh water navigation, are equally as watchful.

Down from the bridge comes Capt. Billy and reminds us of the time when we came around St. Helena in the Lawrence when he was first mate of that clear old boat. We went him one better and reminded him of the time, ten years earlier, when we rounded St. Helena with Capt. Gibson in the Fountain City. "Null said. Back we coast to the present again.

As we write these identical words we have just returned from the wireless telegraph office of the Manitou. The plant has just been installed, and the scribe has been accorded the honor of sending the first message. And so, with water all about us, and the coast line of St. Helena fast falling from view, we send a message of love to the dear ones at home. And as we see the flash of the instrument as it wields itself into the invisible etherial electric wave, we hark back again to the long ago when we rounded St. Helena with Capt. Gibson and only a little later rounded it again with the splendid chap who at this moment adorns the bridge of the Manitou.

And so, in harmony with the wireless clatter which we hear just inside, we mentally vibrate between the pioneer past and the marvelous to-day. In the old days we thought the Dean Richmond a leviathan because she carried two smokestacks athwartship. To-day, from the shady side of the Manitou we see "goo-footers" in the channel, bound up and down, some of them with the wizard wireless, flashing their daily coal consumption to their owners. Dotted here and there in the expanse of the blue water are some of the old time schooners, bearing burdens the carriage of which barely pays the sailors. They, with the scribe and his pioneer confreres, will soon disappear into a memory, but the child of the wireless telegraph and the enterprise of the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. will go on forever.

When will the glorious enjoyments of this trip permit us to return this page to our grip and do what we intended to do when we traversed the Manitou gang plank inboard yesterday,—rest?

As we are rounding the point into Little Traverse bay the wireless operator—a royal good fellow—has just received a message from the Missouri north bound, 115 miles south of us.

We are just sharpening a pencil as the wireless flashes to us from Charlevoix, via Mackinac, an answer to our morning message, "Greetings from terra firm." And in the ecstacy of the moment we recall the words of the good British tourer to the American president when the first Atlantic cable messages were exchanged:

"What Hath God Wrought!"

Miss Ninita Mayne's Recital

The interpretative recital of Miss Ninita Mayne at the Congregational church last Tuesday night was well attended, and her excellent work was appreciatively received.

Miss Mayne, who is a recent graduate of the Chicago College of Expression, has the true dramatic talent. Her readings were intelligent and soulful, disclosing the fire of a genius that but awaits the loom of experience in the making of the perfect fabric.

We were prevented from hearing the entire program, but we heard enough upon which to base an opinion, although, perhaps not a critical one. Miss Mayne has neither wasted her time nor mistaken her vocation, if she chooses this as her life work.

She was ably assisted by Miss Nicholas, of East Jordan, who is a talented pianist, and by Mrs Putnam, of this city, whose vocal numbers were well received.

Stanton, who had listened to the dark bill, referred to his sister-in-law.

"Nobody ever knew Mrs. Stanton. The lawyer dragged the bank of the door and shot out of the house. Stanton, "I'm sorry, Mr. Wharton—don't be the cause of your leaving the house." Stanton, seeing his shoulder against the door, he held the door time open from it, saying that he was sorry he had to be so much harder than the occasion at the same time prompted him to be. He said he had tried to yield to the gives crushed, and had to half of his strength, and he was within.

"Don't harass unnecessarily, gentlemen," said Fenton, coolly, smiling through the ragged smile of a man who knew that he was in the catch and equal and the end.

"Why, my dear Fenton," said Mr. Wharton, "we are trying to do the necessary nine-tenths of our business with the gloves on."

"Yes," said Fenton, "I'm sorry, Mr. Wharton, I'm sorry." Fenton, "I'm sorry." Fenton, "I'm sorry." Fenton, "

FROM ARTHUR BEATTIE

The Former Pioneer Continues His Description of the Great Northwest—Finds Old Acquaintances.

BLAINE, Wash., July 5, 1909.

To the Sentinel:

I think I told you in my last letter that the Exposition was very good. Since then I have seen more of it, and I find it to be in many respects an extraordinary exhibition. The Forestry building is something grand. One stick of hewed timber is 4½ feet square and 54 feet long. Think what a tree that must have been. Another stick of hewed timber is 18 inches square and 105 feet long, and shows but very small knots. I think this tree would have made a 200 foot flag pole.

The Alaska Exhibit is too grand to pen a describe. One table in the Alaska building contains gold bricks of all shapes and sizes, all valued at a million and a half of dollars. The table is enclosed by a heavy iron grating, and is covered into a burglar proof safe at night.

The country is rough and hilly north from Seattle most of the way to the Skagit river. There is a strake of fine country that is held at from $100 to $200 per acre. I stopped off at Bellingham, where I found my old neighbors, Wm. Hire and George Crane. The country here is good. The soil is a rich sandy loam. The heavy timber has all been taken off, but still the land is very hard to clear—costing from $60 to $100 per acre to clear it of brush and stumps. We told that it takes fifteen pounds of dynamite to blow some of these stumps out.

Leaving Bellingham the country is good, clear through to Blaine, where I found Jerry out townsmen—C. H. Whitford, Maurice Crane and Matt Dreggett. This town seems to me to be in the northwest corner of the United States, the corporation extending to the international line. Maurice Crane has a bear skin 10x12 feet.

I asked Maurice if there was much game back in the woods and he replied that there were very few deer but plenty of bear. So I asked him to go with me and try to get a cub to add house with me. We had not gone far over the hill before we spied a large bear. We rushed back to town and told Whitford and Dreggett. "Did you shoot him?" they asked. "Shoot him! no sir. I would not shoot at him for all the gold in Alaska, not on your life," said Maurice, "Come on boys," says Whitford and Dreggett. "Show us the bear that we dare not shoot at."

So over the hill we go, and sure enough, there was the bear, turning over rocks and tearing up the ground in search of food. Did they shoot him? Oh no they did not shoot him. Dreggett had a very important letter to mail, and Uncle Whitford had forgotten his cane. So, with equally good excuses we went back to town.

Then the game of the crowd came in full resale. Some one had told him that bear were very fond of mush; so he cooked a wash tub of mush and sugar and added about twenty pounds of dynamite with it, carrying it next day to the haunts of the bear, where he dumped it in the ground and awaited results. He had not long to wait, for soon the bear came along and got a whiff of the tempting meal. He was not slow in getting busy. The man who was concealed behind a rock took deliberate aim at the back board under which were the mush and dynamite were quietly resting, and fired.

Not Maurice's big yelt is not a bear-yelt, but just a piece of skin that I found on the bushes after the explosion.

My next stop will be in Vancouver, at which I will write to my next letter.

Yours,
ARTHUR BEATTIE

Traverse City Record: About 75 trail glowers from the Peninsula attended the meeting held on the Lena Spolstead at Old Mission Tuesday evening for the purpose of deciding upon ways and means of shipping their fruit this season. The meeting was called by George W. Lardie, who intended to ship his shipping from Elk Rapids after he found that he could not load at the dock, but after consulting with the growers it was decided to bring the fruit here on the boy and cart it to the cars, as it would be much more satisfactory than to ship from Elk Rapids, where the haul would be longer and the facilities not so good. This action will keep the fruit business at Traverse City, where the majority of the growers want it to be. The arrangement, which is the same as in past years, will be a little more expensive than if the car could be loaded at the dock, but it will put all shippers on an equal footing. All the bag stakes will be allowed to land at the dock as heretofore.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

An expert of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who examined lands in Wexford county, has made a very complimentary report.

East Jordan Lakeside: The work of rebuilding the barn of the county farm is almost completed and they now have a neat substantial structure sufficient for the needs of the institution for many years to come.

Central Lake Torch: Wesley E. Dawson is circulating the local option petition to the board of supervisors at their October meeting, praying for the submission of the question at the next election, April 1910. He reports that the petition is signed by about four voters to one who refuses.

Boyne City Journal: John Heller, of Advance, died this morning after a brief illness. Mr. Heller was 85 years of age and is one of Charlevoix county's early pioneers. He leaves five children, three boys and two girls, all of whom live in or near Boyne City.

T. E. Niles, of Mancelona, has been named as chairman of a committee to have in charge an exhibit of farm product and fruits of Northern Michigan at the state grange to be held at Traverse City next December. The exhibit will also include photographs of growing crops, farm houses and barns, churches, school houses and road scenes.

Boyne Journal: Boyne City added another spoke to the social wheel on Friday when George Armstrong, of Advice, grand high priest of the Royal Arch Masons and Horace S. Maynard of Charlotte, grand lecturer, came here and instituted a Chapter of the Royal Arch in this city. Ten candidates were admitted into the Chapter. L. A. Butler was appointed high priest; H. S. Holcomb, king; J. H. Chambers, scribe. An enjoyable evening was spent after the exercises. Dr. Chas. Gray, of Petoskey, assisted at the institution services.

Boyne Journal: Forest fires are again seriously threatening in the vicinity of Boyne Falls. Yesterday the fire department from there was called out to prevent the flames from reaching the Cobbs and Mitchell machine shops and round house. While the fires have not yet done a great amount of damage in this section, considerable timber has been destroyed in the section around Wolver lake and Vanderbilt; very nearly $10,000 damage was done last week. The flames there were started by sparks from a locomotive.

Traverse City Record: Building a house to accommodate cherry pickers for a few weeks during the summer is the latest feature in the peninsula, the big orchard of the Grand Traverse region. Guy Tompkins, who expects to harvest between 3,000 and 4,000 crates of cherries this year, has completed a house 24x50, which he erected about 50 feet from his own farm house to house the cherry pickers who will harvest his fruit. The house contains 10 bed rooms, and there is one large room in which the cooking and serving is done.

That southern Michigan farmers are beginning to realize the possibilities of this section of the state is evidenced by the fact that Thomas Hunsberger, a west-to-do Monroe county farmer has purchased 160 acres near Traverse City and expects to induce some of his friends to do likewise.

Traverse City Eagle: The barge J. S. Crane arrived this morning from South Manitou island with a load of 39 beef cattle for Ed Capp, which were unloaded at the Hannah & Lay company's dock. The Crane then took on a load of supplies for the island which will be handled by the Dean store.

Boyne Citizen: A Charlevoix county man, said to be named Wright but who found he was wrong, was arrested on a T. & W. car in Otto and fined $100 for offering his bottle to a friend on the car and asking him to take a drink. Otto is prohibition territory and the law seems to forbid treating, at least on the railroad car. Wright pleaded that he didn't know the law as he hailed from Michigan, but that did not save him, rather it increased the size of his fine.

Boyne Journal: The new mill is now running. This morning a trial run of several hours was made to adjust the machinery about the immense plant, the big saws were started in what is the most complete and will in the state. A representative of the Journal had the pleasure of going through the long lines of machinery this morning during the trials, and can safely say the plant has been surrounded by every safeguard for the protection of employees and is equipped with the most modern machinery that could be brought together.

Northport Leader: The Leland Electric Light and Power company started the wheels of their plant, revolving last Thursday night. Peter Wurzburg, of Northport, pressing the lever that sent the electric current pulsating through the northern part of Leelanau county, thus lighting up Suttons Bay and Northport with the electric light, and in a few days will have Provemont, Omena and the home of the plant, Leland, illuminated. The plant is thoroughly equipped with the most modern machinery obtainable, the dynamos two in number being from the Allis Chalmers company of Milwaukee, a firm that is celebrated the world over for high class machinery.

The citizens of Emmet county, Mich, who for 20 years or more have been occupying lands the title of which has been in contest between the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad and the government will have the assistance of the attorney-general's office in defending their rights against the railroad company. On April 19 of this year the title of the lands was settled in favor of the holders. The land involved now contains improved farms. On July 6 the holders were subpenaed to appear at Grand Rapids and defend their claim against the railroad company. Representative Loud of Michigan, took the matter up at once with the officials of the attorney-general's office and commissioners of the land office, with the result that the government will defend the settlers.

Detroit Free Press: Marine men along the docks gazed with surprise yesterday afternoon at a passenger vessel painted white which was going up the river. She was a sidewheeler and the name "Chippewa" was lettered on her paddle box. Few could recognize in her the old-time revenue cutter Fessenden, purchased last year from the government by George L. Craig, of Toledo. She has been rebuilt above the decks and modern feathering paddle blades have been fitted on her wheels. She will be operated in the passenger service between Cheboygan, Mackinac Island and Sault Ste. Marie. She will run for the Arnold line, and will replace one of the steamers sold two years ago to go to the Pacific coast. The boats were the steel steamers Chippewa and Iroquois.

A. I. Root, of Medina, O., in his magazine, "Gleanings in Bee Culture," has the following to say about Northern Michigan as a fruit section: "The Land of Fruit and Flowers is what the Pere Marquette railroad has to say of Northern Michigan. About a year ago I told you about their wonderful cherries up in Leelanau county and Traverse City, Michigan—not only wonderful in size and beauty, but wonderful in quality and quantity. In fact, I never before saw my cherries like them, and I very much doubt if there are any better in the world. But what made me think of these cherries just now is a statement in a pamphlet sent on by the Pere Marquette in regard to the cherry industry of that region. I knew cherries were going to Chicago, carload after carload, but I did not have an opportunity then to get hold of any figures. Well, what do you think of this? James W. Markham received $2145.60 for the cherries that grew on five acres. Guy Tompkins, of Grand Traverse county, has two cherry orchards. From one of these containing two acres he received $5118.80. From another orchard he received $4952. These statements were sworn to before a notary public. If you want further particulars address W. C. Seavey, 425 Madison St., Toledo, Ohio. Just a word more about the fruit in that region. I think the finest apples are grown there to be found anywhere; and, better still, they often get full crops there when we have very few around here futher south."

SCOURS IN CALVES.

How This Ailment Is Cured at the Wisconsin Experiment Station.

Calves at the Wisconsin experiment station farm are specially treated for calf scours. First, special care is taken to avoid scours by keeping the calves in clean, bright, well lighted and well ventilated quarters. They are fed regularly until four weeks old on two to six pounds of their mothers milk three times daily. Care is taken to have the temperature of the milk as near that of freshly drawn milk as possible and always to have the calf pails scrupulously clean.

In spite of all precaution, however, there are not and then cases of scours among the calves. For the past two years they have successfully treated such cases as follows: As soon as symptoms appear two to four tablespoonfuls of castor oil are mixed with one half pint of milk and given to the calf. This is followed in four to six hours by one teaspoonful of a mixture of one part salol and two parts salicylate of bismuth. It can also be given with one-half pint of new milk or the powder placed on the tongue and washed down by a small amount of milk.

The salol and salicylate of bismuth can be secured from any druggist mixed in the proper proportions at the time of purchase and then have the powder readily available for use at any time. As an additional precaution against contagious scours it is advised that the navel of the newborn calf be treated with a 1 to 20 solution of bichloride of mercury—corrosive sublimate.

Starting a Balky Horse.

A horseman who has had much experience with balky horses says: "I saw a bad case recently in my driver getting out of the wagon and setting the animal on the road for a minute. Then he picked up a stone, lifted up one of the animal's front feet from the ground and gave the patient top and a smart tap on the frog. Then he dropped the foot quickly, jumped into the wagon and told the horse to go, and he did."

See Mother Green Young.

"I would be hard to overstate the wonderful change in my mother since she began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick of Dalforth, Va. "Although past 70 she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered from kidney trouble and dyspepsia for 20 years. At last she could neither eat nor sleep, but since doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health. They invigorate as vital organs, cure Liver and Kidney troubles, induce sleep, impart strength and appetite. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

The murder was discovered when a neighbor went to the Christie house.

Mr. Christie was milking a cow in his barnyard Saturday morning when the unknown person approached him and before he could make a sound shot him dead. The murderer hurried to the house and, finding Mrs. Christie and her daughter and a boy named Hey Maine, who was visiting at the house, prepared to fight him, he began firing. The first shots took effect, and the two women and the boy fell dead at the feet of the murderer.

It is supposed that the man who committed the crime was acquainted in a certain extent with the Christie family and their habits, for few people who knew this Christie was in the habit of keeping large sums of money in his house. It is believed that he had cein to the extent of several thousands of dollars in his house at the time of the murder. Pieces of farmers were immediately organized and a hasty pursuit of the murderer was begun.

SHIP BURNS: 149 JAPS DIE

Victims of Disaster Near Assouri, Japan Include Many Women.

Unable because of a heavy fog to get ashore from the steamer which was nearby, 149 Japanese, including 135 fishermen, both men and women, were drowned or burned to death with the burning of the Japanese steamer, Nihonchiru, near Assouri, on July 28, June 24. Details of the disaster were received at Victoria, B. C., with the arrival of the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress.

The cause of the fire, which brought a panic among the fishermen and members of the crew, was not determined. The flames made quick headway and the fishermen and members of the crew, either dropped into the sea or took refuge in the rigging. The fishermen reached safety in the shrouds aloft and they were either burned as they tried to lash themselves to the masts and spars or fell into the flames beneath them.

Once the fire had lifted and people on the shore saw the awful scenes on the burning steamer. The steamship Hanzo-Maru put out from the village of Nowa, but could make little headway against the fog, and when it reached the Nihonkai-Maru only twenty-seven persons had managed to leap about to the sea. It was stated that there were no life buoys or rafts carried on the ruined steamer.

FOURTH'S DEATH TOLL SMALLER

Saner Celebration Brings Twelve Less Fatalities than in 1908.

More rigid laws and the growth of public sentiment for a saner celebration of the Fourth have had their result all over the country in reducing the number of killed and wounded in the annual holiday.

Full returns of the two-day celebration this year show a falling off in the number of killed of twelve from the record of 1908. There were forty-four fatalities reported at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, as against fifty-six at the same time last year.

There was a marked reduction of the accidents by the police of the larger cities and the extending of the country to more remote districts showed an apparent increase in the list of injured. Figures showed 1,561 injured throughout the country, as against 1,359 in 1908.

There also was an increase in the fire losses caused by the celebration this year, the total reported being $734,575, as against $587,960 in 1908. The greater part of the increase in fire losses is accounted for, however, by a single fire in Spokane, Wash., which destroyed property to the value of $250,000.

NEW QUAKE SHAKES THE ISLAND OF SICILY

Shocks in Messina Crumble Walls and Drive Out Many in State of Panic.

ROAR LIKE THE BOOM OF GUNS

Some of the Tremblings More Severe than Those of Disaster of December 28.

Sicily was the scene Thursday of another earthquake disaster which, in Messina at least, completed the destruction wrought by the shocks of Dec. 28, in which tens of thousands of lives were lost.

The instruments at the observatory registered a total of ten shocks of varying severity since 7:20 o'clock Thursday morning. Eight shocks were felt during the night. News that has come in there from the provinces shows that damage has been wrought there, but it is as yet impossible correctly to estimate the extent of the losses. The shocks both at Messina and at Reggio created a great panic among the people of these two cities.

Houses Full; People in Flight.

Walls of houses not completely demolished in the visitation of last winter were shaken down, and the inhabitants of the towns rushed from their houses toward the open country. A woman and a child caught under the wreckage sustained serious injury, the woman subsequently dying. The earthquakes have been becoming more serious recently, and Wednesday night they were sufficiently severe to cause alarm.

The shocks of Thursday morning were undulatory and vertical, and accompanied by deep roaring sounds. The first one was followed by an explosion like the roar of cannon and lasted between eight and ten seconds. It is said the shock was of great severity since the fatal one of the night of Dec. 28. The wooden houses put there erected for the accommodation of the people seemed to be thrown from one side to another. Often filled the air as the people fled into the road.

As on the night of Dec. 28, the first shock was followed by a circular movement of the ground. Five minutes later there came another quake, accompanied by further rearings. This completed the destruction. The remains of wrecked houses collapsed and the entire district was covered by a dense cloud of dust.

Details Lost Western Cable.

News of the latest shock in Messina brings vividly to mind the disaster of last December. Positive knowledge of the number of persons killed and the damage done to property was never obtained. It is known for certain that the dead exceeded 100,000, and dozens of cities and towns in Calabria and Sicily were left in ruins.

SPURNS H. H. ROGERS' FORTUNE.

Blacksmith Brother of Late Millionaire Wants None of Money.

"I do not want a penny of my brother's money," declared Edward Rogers, blacksmith and brother of the late Henry H. Rogers, of Standard Oil millions. A number of letters have been sent to Rogers by his brother's attorneys which Rogers has refused to take out of the postoffice. Rogers, who has been running a blacksmith shop at Watonga, Okla. for a number of years, has felt very bitter toward Henry H. Rogers. The estrangement dates ten years back, and occurred while Henry Rogers was on a visit to his brother's home. H. Rogers was not at home at the time. The blacksmith's son asked Henry Rogers for a loan for his father, which was refused. This angered Ed Rogers and he swore that his brother should never set foot in his home again. Rogers says he has been offered a government job at Fort Sill at $4 a month, with $15 a month for rations, and will probably take it.

Scores Injured and Many Buildings Wrecked Near Niles, N. D.

Scores of persons were injured and farm buildings within a radius of six teen miles were destroyed by a series of tornadoes which swept over Niles, Iroquois County, N. D., Tuesday evening. Unconfirmed reports from Leeds say eight persons were killed and a report was received from Minnewaukan that one woman was killed and a number were injured, and that the town was destroyed. These reports cannot be verified, as wires are down. The twisters followed at intervals of a few minutes. Between twenty and thirty farmhouses are wrecks and fifty telegraph poles are snapped off. The instruments at the Weather Bureau here show that the storm was at its greatest force at Niles, near Niles, were injured and Mrs. Lemmon was killed. The young girl child was found wrapped up in a bundle of barbed wire.

F. C. Williams, representative in Atlanta, Ga., of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, staring the face of Donald M. Bain, a leading insurance man, 68 years old and worth thirty years his senior. Within a few moments he was dead from a shot through the brain at the hands of Bain. The shooting took place in an office in the Prudential Building and was the result of a trifling practical joke. Williams had returned to his office to find on his desk a placard reading: "Out of town—in Milledgeville." The state asylum for lunatics is at Milledgeville and Williams resented the implication he saw in the placard. He went to Bain and slapped his author. The men quarreled and Williams was shot down. Bain gave himself up to the police.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL
CHICAGO.

Midyear conditions reflect steady progress and an encouraging outlook in commerce. July payments of interest and dividends cause very high total clearings and credits show further strengthening in a lower record of failures. Anticipations for the future course of business are based very largely upon good crops.

Wholesale dealings in the principal necessaries for fall deliveries exceed those recorded a year ago, notwithstanding prices stimulate more general demand for dry goods and collateral lines, buyers appearing in greater numbers than is customary at this time of year. Bookings show increases in clothing, woolens, silks, footwear and housewares. Furniture exhibits present an unusually active October and July sales are likely to surpass former records. Sales of foods show a fair volume compared with those in also an improved tone in jewelry, artware and other fancies. The demands of vacation and sporting goods has been exceptionally active, and orders for ordinary needs and for improvements on the farms assure increasing outlays. Consumption generally has attained a higher level and the purchasing power of the people is greater to sustained expansion in the principal branches of distribution.

Developments in the industrial situation include a greater volume of new domestic business and stronger offers to the capacity and hands employed. Furnace outputs show a material increase. Heavy contracts appear for track equipment, structural steel and steam shovels are active. Woodworking lines run upon a steadier basis and the production of the hard woods and pine. Shipments of leather reflect a wider use. Trade reports for the week ended those of the corresponding week in 1908 by 17.2 per cent, and compare with $248,653,965 in 1907.

Failures reported in Chicago last week numbered 20, against 19 last week, 25 in 1908 and 26 in 1907. Those with liabilities of $5,000 and over fell to 17, against 7 last week, 10 in 1908 and 9 in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Retail trade has been helped by steady but moderate holiday preparations and clearance sales, but there are still not lacking reports from many cities that the spring and early summer turn over is below expectations. Wholesale trade is of a mid-season small filling-in order character. Certainly the largest business stable is the Steel trade, which is very full, winter and spring. In this respect the demand for cotton goods remains good at hardening quotations, partly due to the strength of raw material, and partly because reports as to orders booked by woolen and worsted goods manufacturers for next spring delivery at very high prices are by far the notable feature of the Dry Goods market. Fall bookings larger than last year by various percentages. In industrial lines the demand represents orders mainly to be held.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with July 29 are reported by Bradstreet's as 200 in the like week of 1908, 135 in 1907, 194 in 1906 and 127 in 1905.—Bradstreet's.

STUDENTS IN WAR ON MOSQUITO.

Michigan Campaign Designed to Treat Stagnant Pools in Big Area.

A scientific war of extermination against the mosquito has been begun by students of the Michigan Agricultural College under the direction of Prof. Rufus H. Pettit, head of the entomology department of the college. An area of nine square miles is to be the scene of the campaign, with the college campus as central headquarters. Two students began last week an inspection of the district with the idea of making a map showing every stagnant pool. Later in the summer the ground will be covered with oil that pools that remain permanent may be classified. Next year the permanent pools will be drained if practicable and, where draining is not found practicable, kerosene and sunfish, which are known to be very fond of the larve of the mosquito, will be introduced into the more troublesome pools. Temporary pools will be treated with oil.

UNCLE SAM CAN HAVE LAND.

Has Right to Condemn Tract Near Lake Michigan if Wanted.

If the federal government wants a piece of Michigan territory free and cost it can take it from each way near the Soo for a big maneuver camp grounds, all it has to do is to take it. This is the opinion of the State land department after examining the laws of the State, which contain among others a statute which grants to the general government authority to condemn any land needed for its purposes. It is stated that under the act the federal government may appoint a board to view and appraise the land, either public or private, fix the price and take possession. The land near the Soo which Uncle Sam seems to be anxious to have the government secure is practically all State land, so no private interests will be injured, and State officials say it is up to the government to move if the property is wanted.

HELD FOR $200,000 THEFT.

Ironwood Bank Cashier Accused of Stealing Bank Accounts.

President H. P. Jahn, Cashier E. T. Larson and Assistant Cashier George H. Meadow of the First National Bank of Ironwood, have been bound over to the Federal grand jury, which meets at Marquette, Sept. 7. The bank had about $600,000 in deposits and the receiver has now in his hands about $100,000 in quick assets. It is not known what amount can be realized on other assets. The loss to depositors probably will be heavy, as it is alleged that Larson has in the last two years embezzled $200,000 of the bank's funds. The president is accused of aiding and abetting the cashier in falsifying. The assistant cashier faces a similar charge and also one of embezzling $1,500.

MICHIGAN IS NEARLY "BROKE."

State Treasury Practically Empty and Six-Month Stringency Feared.

The state of Michigan faces six months of financial stringency owing to the condition of the State treasury. Only $205,724 remains in the general fund at the opening of the fiscal year Thursday, and during the day $120,000 of this amount was paid out. The new taxes are not expected to come in before the first of next year. State officials are trying to find some way to bridge over the intervening six months. It is expected that arrangements will be made by some of the State installations to pay their salaries on credit until the first of the year.

FOR FARM EQUIPMENT.

Cheap and Efficient Helps For Country Life.

The successful management of a modern farm depends largely upon the efficiency of the equipment with which the work is performed. In addition to the outfit of tools obtainable from a hardware dealer, there are a number of special devices that may be made on the farm and that will prove of great assistance in general repair work. A workbench fitted out about will probably be the first essential. For the construction of a workbench like that shown in the first cut there will be needed four posts seven-eighths inch thick, twelve to fourteen inches wide and about twelve feet in length. The length of the bench, however, will depend upon the size of the shop or other space that may be available for use as a workroom. Two pieces of 2 by 4 inch scantling, each sixteen feet long, will be needed to construct the framework of the bench. All lumber entering into the construction of the workbench should be thoroughly seasoned and dressed to uniform width and thickness.

A clamp for holding materials should be constructed from a piece of hard wood and attached by the aid of a carpenter's inch screw. This clamp should be provided with notches or pins in the lower end so that it can be used to hold materials of any thickness. Along the front of the bench two or three holes should be provided, into which pins may be set for supporting boards or other materials that are too long to be held rigid by the clamp alone.

A "stop" for holding materials that are to be planed can be inserted in the top of the bench, near the left hand end, as shown in the cut. If a regular stop is not employed the place may be taken by a small piece of one-inch board nailed on top of the bench.

A pair of trestles or sawhorses, each of a height of from 2 to 4 feet or 2 by 4 inch timber, about four feet in length, supported upon four legs, as represented in the second figure, are very convenient for working upon work too long for the bench, being portable. The sawhorses are as necessary in the workbench and should be constructed at the same time. The cost of the materials with which to complete both the workbench and sawhorses should not exceed $5. Among the conveniences to the workbench there is no device that will give greater satisfaction than a good miter box. As is useful for sawing small wood moldings either square or at an angle. For the construction of a miter box three pieces of board one inch thick, six inches wide and three feet in length should be selected and nailed together in the form of a square trough, taking care that the sides are even, well out toward the edge of the board, and that the cuts are sawed through the sides to the bottom board to insure the miter box being the best it is possible to make. Near one end a cut is made at the right angles with the length of the box and is used in making square cuts for making bevel cuts for a right angled miter joint the sides of the box should be sawed down on oblique lines running at an angle of forty-five degrees with the length of the box.

For the benefit of those who contemplate the purchase of tools for use on the farm the following combinations are suggested:

For a two dollar and fifty cent outfit—a hatchet, a handsaw, a small square, a screwdriver and a pair of pliers.

For a ten dollar outfit—a hatchet, a hand ax, a twenty-six inch handsaw, a twenty-four inch steel square, a Stanley rule, a brace and six bits (one-quarter, three-eighths, one-half, five-eighths, three-quarter and one inch), a pair of pliers, a screwdriver, a cold chisel, a twelve inch flat file, a monkey wrench, a jack plane, two chisels (one half and one inch), a steel punch, a riveting hammer, a leather punch and a small oil can.

Other outfits, according to the articles desired, can be had for from $20 to $25.

In order to love mankind we must not expect too much of them.—Helvetius.

SOME HOLSTEIN QUALITIES.

Every breeder of dairy cattle has his particular choice, but this does not preclude the recognition of strong qualities in other strains. Some prefer the Jerseys, some the Ayrshires and many the Guernseys, while there are many other breeds that are well liked. A Massachusetts dairyman whose children in the Holsteins tells why he prefers them, as follows:

"Holsteins excel in milk production. The breed is also superior for veal production and valuable for beef. For generations the natural conditions under which these cattle have been developed have been most favorable for this combination of qualities. Looking upon one of its model cows, the trend bids and cusp seem just the places for the growth of the finest quality of beef and the fit support of the capacious udder. The straight quarters and well rounded body enmass distract from milk production. The calves are large at birth and grow and fatten with great quality. The breeders in Holland have always avoided inbreeding. In proof that this breed has maintained a high standard of vital force I point to its use in almost every climate, including that of northern Europe, its nearly up to the arctic circle. Here in America the breed is as hardy as our native cattle, and calves are raised without difficulty.

"There can be no profit in animals that consume only the necessary food for support. The more they can consume, digest and assimilate above this the more profitable. The other characteristic is in the fact that dairy products should by no means be chosen in the quality of their food. Cows that will freely consume the forgiveness of our farms and transmute it into valuable products—milk, butter, veal, beef—are more valuable than those that require the costlier commercial foods. These cattle from cultured ancestry are by no means choice in the quality of their food.

"Quantity of production and persistency of milking during long periods are well known characteristics of this breed. Dropping her first calf at about two years old, an average cow of this breed, if well cared for, will produce from 6,000 to 8,000 pounds of milk in ten months, and she will increase this production each and every year until at five years old she will give from 7,000 to 10,000 pounds. The quality of this milk will range from 3 to 4 per cent fat and from 8 to 10 per cent solids not fat.

"In 1880 the cow Aaggie made a record of 18,001 pounds of milk within one year from date of calving. This record was almost universally regarded as an impossibility. Among those that joined in this view was Professor

A FAMOUS HOLSTEIN.

Long of England, then publishing a large work on dairy husbandry. In August, 1885, the owners of Aaggie commenced a record of the cow Colantha. They invited public scrutiny of this record during its full progress. A number of persons interested themselves to be in order to learn the amount of food consumed. Dr. Sturtevant, among others, were testing men connected with dairy publications. At different periods, including one during the last week of her record, she was under the official care of the superintendent of the Holstein advanced registry. Her record for the year was 20,062 pounds of milk.

"Hon. Theodore V. Ten Eyck's weekly test produced 125 pounds butter, or a daily average of 3.25 pounds.

"Philip Gossamb's 4-day weeks' test produced 125 pounds, or a daily average of 3.25 pounds. That the Holstein is unsurpassed by any breed of cattle in the production of large quantities of milk no one will deny."

Improving the Herd.

I find the important points in improving a herd are proper feeding, keeping complete and accurate records, breeding to registered bulls and culling without mercy, says a prominent dairyman. I have no sympathy with the idea of weighing the milk one or two days in the month in order to secure a record of the cow's work. If it is worth doing at all, and it certainly is, it is worth doing well, and I say weigh every milking and record it. The time required is infinitesimal if things are arranged as they should be, and the results will pay a hundred-fold. It is the man who knows what his cows are doing who is making money out of the dairy business today.—American Cultivator.

High Prices For Mules.

At a public sale in Missouri $2,810 was paid for a jack, and thirty-one head brought an average of $405. Two mules in this country and one state in old Mexico were represented by buyers. There was a crowd of a thousand at this sale, all of which gives evidence of the wonderful prosperity of the mule industry. The high prices being paid for jacks are due, of course, to the prices now ruling for mules. There is a country wide demand for hybrids that is almost insatiable. The supply of mules today is not equal to the demand.

BOY CITY

The Juvenile Municipality Nearly Ready for the Swarm of Kids That Will Soon Begin to Howl On Pine Lake.

The first visit to the grounds of the Boy City is at once a revelation and a pleasure. Especially is this true if you go up over the sparkling waters of Pine Lake by one of Capt. Geo. Smith's ferry boats and return by auto or carriage.

On the grounds all is yet bustle and hustle. The several rustic buildings, heretofore described in these columns, are almost completed. They stand about the city square, under the green spreading branches of the maples, as if to challenge Nature itself to competitive adornment. Mr. Shacks has a force of men and teams grading the streets and the public square, while converging from the main highways are paths meandering through the beautiful groves, and these paths are unique in being constructed of the dry red product of decayed logs. Thus even the dust of Nature's dead is made to contribute to the beauty of Nature's second birth.

The big restaurant, the city hall, the bank, the ladies' club house, the printing office, all will soon be teeming with busy juvenile life, and the woods will ring with the merry lullabaloo of the festive kid. Even the plumber is present, laying water pipes and fitting up lavatories and hydrants. At the well will be an elevated water tank, which will be kept full with a gasoline engine, and down near the dock there will soon be in operation an independent electric lighting plant, which Jim Martindale's force is already wiring. The tents of the white city will soon be here, and will be erected within a week.

But the charm of the place is in the magnificent and extensive groves of second growth maples and beeches that extend in all directions. The tents will occupy the near-by clusters of these shapely trees, while beyond are the expanses of shady nooks, cool and inviting. It is a beautiful spot, and its permanence for the humanitarian purpose to which it will soon be dedicated, cannot be doubted.

We emerge from the shade of the woods into the road, loth to depart, down past the golf links and the pleasant suburban homes, envying the happy lads their mid-summer outing. Boy City is a happy inspiration. The boys who come to Boy City are the best lads in the country. Clubs from Y. M. C. A's, church clubs, high school cadets, boys from the best of homes where parents are anxious to have their boys get into a big game. The game of square deal.

Life 100,000 Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger, from wild beasts. To day the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If it had not been for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which I used, I could not have lived," he writes "suffering as I did from severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To cure Sore Lungs, Colds, obstinate Coughs, and prevent Pneumonia, its the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottle free.

The season, according to the new law passed by the recent legislature to take effect next year, will be from May 1 until September 1, and all fishermen should take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

—Our George cannot keep still; he must be doing something or somebody all the time. Now he has an ad. in the Chicago Record-Herald and Chicago Tribune "For Sale—18 Charlevoix, Michigan, summer cottages large and small. Expensive and cheap. Also farm property." If every one would work for Charlevoix as George does, it couldn't help growing. The only time we know of his having been beaten was when he ran a foot race with the Editor of this paper more than twenty years ago. Jerome $2.00—and George Van Fett lost out and paid. His new building in the rear of the post-office would be a credit to Bridge St. and the one now in course of construction, will not have a superior in the state for its size. He is an enthusiastic friend of Charlevoix but not of our automobiles. He says his old black mare Jenule beats all the autos ever made.

—Mrs. Margaret J. Brown, wife of George Brown, of Antrim street, this city, died at her home Friday morning after a protracted illness. The funeral was from the M. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

—The government chemists are reported to have been ordered to secure samples of all "near beers," possum brew," and the like in Michigan and to analyze the same to determine what per cent of alcohol is in these drinks in violation, if at all, of the pure food law. Uncle Sam is busy with these investigations in the south and is reported to be preparing to make a raid on Michigan.

—Evidently our friend Archie Dougherty, of Big Rapids, thinks he is "it." M. J. Stockman, of the city, has a good joke on him. Morris recently received a postal card from Archie in which, in referring to his own recent golden wedding, expressed the hope that Uncle Morris and Aunt Sally would live to celebrate the half-century mark in their home. The joke is that our Uncle Avenue neighbors celebrated that event five years ago.

—Rev. C. F. O'Leary, of St. Louis, will give a stereopticon lecture on "The Beauties and Glories of Ireland" in the Catholic church of Charlevoix, on the evening of the 27th inst. The object is for the benefit of the church fiere. Speaking of Irish scenes of surpassing beauty Lord Macaulay of Trevelyan, never in my life saw anything more beautiful, I might say, so beautiful." And Thackeray, referring to these scenes, says: "The fact is, and Eldon's care to own it, they are too handsome."

—For the benefit of those who still contend that local option has been a detriment to the resort business in Charlevoix we have gone to the trouble to investigate the matter somewhat carefully, and have dug up the following facts: Manager Foley, of the Belvedere Hotel, testifies that up to this date his business has increased 25 percent. At this late business has considerably increased. Local "all the year" hotels report an increase. Warden Miller says more cottages are occupied on the grounds of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association than ever before. Investigation also shows that there are more cottages and residences in various parts of the city rented to resorters than ever before. The records of the Western Union telegraph office show that up to date the receipts have increased 20 percent over those of last year. There is no more certain barometer than this. Building and other improvements have greatly increased over that of last year. Both banks are asked how their business this season compared with that of last year. One answered: "We have no reason to complain;" the other stated that there is a marked increase of deposits over any previous year. Everything taken together shows unmistakably that this is the heaviest resort season Charlevoix has ever had. There is no mistake about it.

THE FINISHING TOUCH

Charlevoix County Joins the Western Michigan Development Bureau —County Clerk Payton's Good Work.

At the Frankfort meeting last week Charlevoix County was added to the membership of the Western Michigan Development Bureau. It was County Clerk D. S. Payton who did the business. He went to the meeting with credentials from the several boards of commerce and granges, and returned jubilant over the results of his mission.

The object of this organization is sufficiently well explained in its name and style. It proposes to compete with the much lauded west and northwest in gathering in the eastern home seekers. It proposes to demonstrate the fact that in natural resources and climate, especially with reference to horticulture, Western Michigan is a "top-liner." To this end it will make an exhibit of its products at the Coloman Stock Show to be held in Chicago this fall. It will incet the irrigated fruit exhibit of the west with a display of fruit that will be the unaided product of nature.

Hundred of barrels of apples will be given away, Grand Traverse county alone pledging 300 barrels. Charlevoix county apples will be there, and probably other products of this fair north country. At the Chicago Stock Show 1,500 square feet of space has been secured, and will give Charlevoix county a fine section of the territory represented will be there to impart information to those who seek to better their condition.

As its name implies, the Western Michigan Development Bureau is "An Organization for the Advancement of the Mutual Interest of a Great Region—Agriculture, Horticultural, Industrial, Rural, Municipal." It has for its watchword "A Farm For Every Forty." Although Charlevoix county is the last to "ship in," let it not be the least of the renowned counties of the Grand Traverse Region in the display of its products.

Mr. Geo. E. Rowe, of Grand Rapids, a member of the executive board of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, who is taking up the work of lining up the counties constituting the territory of Western Michigan, and welding them into a homogeneous organization, was in the city Monday, going from here to the upslake towns. Mr. Rowe is a prominent fruit growers, and had charge of the Michigan exhibit at the Pan American Exposition, at Buffalo. It is a great satisfaction to know that he considers the Grand Traverse region one of the richest fruit sections in the United States, and knows of no reason why Charlevoix county should not enjoy a greater share of Grand Traverse renown than now comes to it.

The Potato Crop.

Potato shippers of Michigan have lost more money the last season than in any like period in the history of the business.

This was largely due to the high prices which have prevailed for months and the disposition of so many holders of stock to hang on to their supplies for still higher prices.

The average for the year will be enormous and the outlook now is for an exceptionally large crop in this state. What other states will do cannot be said, but in view of the big prices growers secured in 1909 there has been quite general planting all over the country. On the face of things this would indicate much lower prices when the potatoes are ready for marketing.

All the reports from men and correspondent at different points is of splendid indications for large returns from the present crop. This will be a little late owing to the backward growing weather, but the weather we are getting now is just the sort to produce a big yield, and this is what all dealers are anticipating. The new crop will be getting into the market along in August.

—Mrs. Chas. E. See is entertaining her mother and sister, Mrs. A. B. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. R. M. Bogardus of Plainfield, Iowa.

BOY CITY AFFAIRS.

The Opening—Boys Already Coming. Excursions From Everywhere.

Although Friday is technically the opening day at Boy City, Sunday next will be the first real better day for visitors, as Chautauqua numbers are on for both afternoon and evening. Excursions by rail and boat from about all Northern Michigan towns have been arranged.

To day (Thursday,) a special excursion of 300 Petoskey boys is expected; also excursions from Boyne City and East Jordan. This morning there will be a parade of Traverse City boys in that town, headed by the Manistee Boys' band, all on their way to Boy City. They will arrive here at four o'clock, in time to meet the Petoskey boys, who will be on the ground.

There is great interest in the opening day, Sunday. It is expected that the farmers will drive in, and with the influx of outsiders there will be a great crowd.

The program is one of the heaviest for a Chautauqua course, and, taken in connection with the Boy City, with its hundreds of boys, the days of Judge will be novel, entertaining and instructive.

One of the largest wards in the city will be the Charlevoix ward, as arrangements have been made whereby the boys of Charlevoix, many of whom have employment during the day, may become residents of the city, making their home there at night and at other times when they are not otherwise engaged. Judge Brown has taken a special interest in this arrangement, and will give the Charlevoix ward his particular attention.

The Courtenay-Morgan Co.

The Courtenay-Morgan Co., which is playing six nights this week at the Charlevoix Theatre, are having good houses, and are "making good" on the many complimentary things that have been said of them elsewhere. It is certainly a most excellent dramatic organization.

For the remainder of the week the repertoire will be as follows: Thursday, that laughing piece, "Too Much Tompkins." Friday, the great costume play, "A Woman of Mystery," produced with special scenery and appointments. Saturday matinee, "Happy Jack," an excellent comedy drama. Curtain 2:30 sharp. Saturday night, another long, loud laugh in three acts, "A Wife Wanted."

"South Haven Daily Tribune:

E. C. Bacon, [Ned] is preparing to open his new grocery office at Grand Rapids, through which he will sell nearly everything that a wholesale grocery has got in the principal lines will be those of the Havenmyer Sugar interests, and of J. H. Inderwiden Co. of San Francisco, dried fruits and nuts, and he will have about fifty other accounts. He represents the Havenmyers throughout Michigan, Ohio and Detroit, and is already assured of a large business in that line. Although Mr. Bacon will have his office at Grand Rapids, he prefers to continue as a resident of South Haven, and his family still remain here. He will be obliged to travel much of the time, and is arranging for a competent office force to look after the multitude of his business. Through his traveling for the canning trade, Mr. Bacon has an extensive acquaintance among the wholesale grocers, and the announcement of his new line of work will be greeted with pleasure by his friends both in his home city and elsewhere.

Boyne City school bonds for the sum of $20,000 for a new school have been sold to the First National bank of Detroit for par, accrued interest and a premium of $622. The bond will draw 5 per cent interest.

The adjourned term of the circuit court for Benzie county opened last Tuesday with Judge Fred S. Lamb presiding. Owing to the late arrival of the new judge the session was not begun until late in the afternoon. The first case was a plea for guilty, the charge being a violation of the local option law, which went into effect in this county on May 1. W. W. Cheesbrough was charged with giving liquor to a friend while on the Ann Arbor train passing between Honeymoon and Frankfort. When he understood the law Cheesbrough entered a plea of guilty, but on account of Prosecutor Dash, who preferred the charge, having asked for leniency, it was expected that the sentence to be imposed today will be light, but he was given a fine of $20 and 20 days in the county jail; in default of which he is to serve 20 days more in jail.

CHAPTER XVIII

The affairs of the Trenton Company proved to be a severe but timely tonic. Its contract was signed and sealed, a copy in a safe of books for the company, while its goodwill was the subject of the choicest speculation of the property. The company's offices were in Hampton and a branch office was established in what he could do better in marking long hours and keeping his hand on the pulse of Hampton society. Hampton society had been a Hamton society since the Civil war, and was now undergoing the process of being made over into something else.

Hampton was a place of two hundred days of sunshine to the year, and the Hamptonians had lately gone to Florida for small bags sometimes or for months, and had found it a place of greatly increased charm. Winston's property was the most conspicuous and important and proper in view on Winston's arrival in Hampton, and he was glad of Foster, which were much less conspicuous in the general prospect.

Foster had been dedicated to Mat Morgan and Mat Morgan laughed in the Brothers' room the night of the business meeting of the Trenton syndicate. He had "thought he was a good thing these summers" and he knew and everybody else knew that Foster was a very attractive for the bank. Winston had expected to get Foster in the trade as Foster owns a Special," but foster refused to let the Special go, preferring checks into his arms as nearer, he explained to Foster, the Company had usually given up with only a same sting. Mat Morgan was a big man, was slow, which he labled in a tricky and lazy way, which was true, and was the fat Company's tricky.

John was a Company one the 1.4 of the late amalgamation of the company one evening while Hampton read a newspaper aloud to Foster. Harry was a boy in those days. Sutton was not quite so proud to call Mat Morgan "Mat." Mat Morgan's success on sharply in on Harry's heels by the time Harry was feeling while he waited for the Transcontinental to whisper his Hampton (Mat Morgan) come to trial. Its Prince's suggestion Sutton had for Mat Morgan's business matters pertaining to the receivership, and Morgan was a good deal of an interest of idleness and carelessness.

"You see, Mat," Sutton would say, dully, He had that day unexpectedly come upon the Morgan's office in the company, and was now examining the company's books. "Mat, I'm sick of this. I'm tired of the business. I'm tired of the company and I'm tired of Hampton and I'm tired of Mat Morgan."

"Tut, tut," said Foster, smoothly.

Sutton came and talked to him of the business, general times, and Foster listened but heard little. Sutton was tired of the business." Foster suggested. Sutton was very patient under his complaining. Sutton was very patient under his complaining. Sutton was a good business man, and Foster knew it. He was a good business man, and Foster knew it. He was a good business man, and Foster knew it. He

CHAPTER XVIII.

The affairs of the Traction Company proceeded to a crisis in rapid angle. Sax Sim employed an expert accountant to go over all its books for the company, while he gave the immediate attention to the physical condition of the property. The company's service was a byword and a lineage in the town, and Sax Sim, who could do better in, working long hours, but enjoying the labor it had been a sudden inspiration on Fenton's part to have thrown into his lap. He had spent the days at Chetlaw he had taken legal advice of Fenton in matters which had all results been favorable to the Sax Sim party by the bank, but most of these had long been chosen, and he had hitherto failed to furnish her very keen amusement as he noted the manner in which Fenton's friendly remarks sidetrack Wharton's appointment with the president. Sax Sim was amused and pleased at times by the surprise that the young man showed at the sudden turn of affairs, and he was not displeased by the manner in which Fenton's offer of the presidency of the Traction Company was made, for he knew that Fenton had wanted the place himself, and was not a little amused at the manner in which Fenton had sidetracked Wharton, who had been the lawyer's friend and intimate, and had been the lawyer's partner, and who had been counsel for the company for years. Sax Sim was not a little pleased with

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Annual School Meeting School District No. 1, Charlevoix, Michigan July 12, 1909.

The annual school meeting of District No. One of the Township of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan was held in the McKinley building July 12, 1909.

Meeting called to order at 7:30 p. m. by G. W. Crozier, president of school board. F. J. Merch, director, read the call and notice of the annual school meeting, together with an affidavit of posting said notice.

Thereupon R. W. Kane offered the following resolution: Resolved, that School District number One of the Township of City of city of Charlevoix, in the county of Charlevoix and State of Michigan borrow the sum of nine thousand ($9,000.00) dollars for the purpose of paying and retiring a like amount of said outstanding bonds of said district in the amount of nine thousand ($9,000.00) dollars to draw interest at a rate, not to exceed 5 per cent per annum in such amounts and payable at such dates respectively as the school board may determine, not to exceed, in any case, ten years from the date of issue of such bonds:

And Resolved Further, that the Board levy an annual tax upon all the taxable property thereon of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars to provide a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of such bonds when they shall respectively fall due, commencing with the present levy for the year 1909 and that at each annual school meeting commencing with the present one, so long as said bonds or any of them remain unpaid, a sum be voted by direct tax upon the taxable property of said District equal to the interest on the bonds then outstanding and unpaid as a fund out of which to pay such interest.

And Resolved Further, that the sum of four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars, out of the money now on hand in the sinking fund of the 10th, which is appropriated to the payment of the aforesaid issue of bonds now outstanding and unpaid.

And be it Further Resolved, that the school board be, and they are hereby authorized to issue, negotiate, and sell, deliver said bonds for the best price obtainable therefor but at not less than par.

Thereupon the chair announced that the vote upon said resolution must be by ballot in accordance with the provisions of chapter six of the general school laws. Upon motion, William Cock was appointed by the board directors present to act as clerk of the election of said election and Albert F. Bridge and Harvey L. Iddings, members of the school board of said District being present, were also appointed and acted as inspectors of said election, which Board of Inspectors so constituted as follows: Harvey L. Iddings, Albert F. Bridge and William Cock. Harvey L. Iddings was chosen chairman of said board. Thereupon a suitable ballot box was provided by said board, and the polls in said district were duly opened, by the chairman of said board, given by the chairman of said board of election inspectors, at the hour of 7:45 p. m. The inspectors supplied a poll list and compared the same to be kept. Upon which was entered the name of each person voting at said election. Said ballot box was kept open for two hours and voting was done by ballot provided by the inspectors.

The minutes of last annual meeting were read and approved.

Report of treasurer was read by Jonathan A. E. Bridge. Motion of R. W. Kane was accepted and adopted.

Secretary's report was ready by the secretary and on motion of Mr. A. Fitch was accepted and adopted.

Moved by Mr. R. W. Kane that a tax of eight (8) mills on the assessed property of School District No. One of the township and city of Charlevoix be spread on the tax rolls for the purpose of defraying the general expenses of said district and for the accounts thereof, including the payment of any bonded indebtedness of said district which may be paid during the ensuing year. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Chapel that drinking fountains be installed in school buildings of the district. Carried.

On motion of R. W. Kane, the meeting proceeded to the election of two trustees to succeed A. F. Bridge and G. W. Crozier. Chair appointed Edith Washburn, Raymond Bentley and H. S. Harsha tellers.

On ballot for first trustee, A. F. Bridge, received 44 votes. A. M. Wilkinson 3, A. L. Fitch 1. A. F. Bridge having a majority for all votes cast, was declared duly elected.

On first ballot for second trustee. No choice.

On second ballot for second trustee. No choice.

On third ballot, A. M. Wilkinson having received a majority of all votes cast was declared duly elected.

Moved by Mr. Fitch that reports of secretary and treasurer be published in City papers, this week preceding annual election. Carried.

After the expiration of two hours from the opening of the polls and at the hour of 9:45 p. m. the said election was closed by the announcement of that fact by the chairman of the Board of Inspectors. Thereupon the said Board of Election Inspectors proceeded to canvass said vote, first comparing the number of ballots found in said ballot box with the number registered upon the poll list, which numbers agreed. After canvassing said vote, the chairman of the board announced the same as follows:

Yes and for the resolution, 40.
No and against the resolution, None.

Whereupon said resolution was declared carried.

On motion meeting adjourned.

F. J. MERCH, Sec'y.

He talked too much, and some of the fellows who listened closely hurried off to Traverse City that night and bought the land and made the big profit on it which Col. Hudnut had boastingly allowed he was going to make. That was more than thirty five years ago, but the lesson that was then given Col. Hudnut on the folly of telling to other people the things he should have kept to himself has not yet been learned here or elsewhere.

Traverse City Eagle: The stretch of hilly land between this city and Grand Rapids was mainly instrumental in the future of the wireless operator on board the Missouri reaching the Furniture City with his instruments Thursday evening, although he tried for some time in an endeavor to pierce the distance with the waves of air. It is thought that the one kilowatt machine which is installed on the steamer is not adequate for making the distance under such conditions as it would probably require two or three kilowatts. It is also believed that the mast of the boat is not high enough to set the waves in motion to carry the distance. An attempt will be made next Thursday while the boat is in this city to connect with the steamship Manitou, she having been telegraphed to Manistee Thursday too late to make the trip. If the boat could have been caught by telegraph Thursday and the operator apprised of the intention of making a connection between the two boats, it might possibly have been done, and it is hoped that the attempt will be a success next week.

STEAMERS COLLIDE: 14 DROWN.

Ore Freighter Sinks in Three Minutes—Crashes with New Boat.

Three minutes after the steel steamer Harry M. Scott and John R. Cadle had collided in Lake Superior early Monday morning, about a mile and a half off Whitefish point lighthouse, the Cadle had gone to the bottom in fifty fathoms of water, carrying with it fourteen members of its crew. The Scott, although badly damaged about the bows, put back to Sault Ste. Marie, where it arrived in the afternoon with part of the crew of the Cadle.

A heavy fog was responsible for the collision. The Scott, a new boat on its maiden trip to the head of the lakes, had just passed the light at Whitefish point and straightened out its course up the lake when suddenly the John R. Cadle loomed up through the fog broadside on to the Scott and only a few feet away. The Cadle was downbound with 9,500 tons of iron ore in the hold.

The ships were so close that it was said to be impossible to avoid a collision and the Scott crashed into the side of the heavily laden Cadle. Fifteen feet the bow of the Scott penetrated the side of the Cadle. Tons of water rushed into the great opening.

Immediately after the collision a flare was thrown from deck of the Scott to the forward deck of the Cadle and three members of the crew escaped to the deck of the upbound boat by this means. The rest of the crew who were saved jumped from the sinking steamer into the lake, some without life preservers, and were picked up by the Scott and the steamer Goodyear, which went to the assistance of the Scott when the collision happened. Capt. Rogers of the Cadle was one of those who were rescued by the Goodyear.

BLAST KILLS AT CHURCH.

Bomb for Fireworks Display Ends Religious Fete with Tragedy.

Three persons were killed and a panic among the worshipers followed in a disturbance caused when a bomb was exploded at a celebration of the Holy Trinity church in Kansas City. One of the parishioners constructed the bomb by filling a section of gas pipe and plugging up one end. The crowd witnessing the fireworks expected a bomb when he lighted the fuse. Pieces of pipe flew in all directions, striking the three victims and stunning two policemen. Windows in the church adjoining the place where the celebration was held and in many houses were broken.

SUFFRAGISTS PICK ANNA SHAW.

Minister Elected President of National Association at Seattle.

The national convention of the National Woman Suffrage Association in Seattle elected the following officers:

President—Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Moylan, Pa.

First Vice President—Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, Swarthmore, Pa.

Second Vice President—Mrs. Florence Kelley, New York.

Corresponding Secretary—Miss Kate Gordon, New Orleans.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Ella S. Stewart, Chicago.

Treasurer—Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Warren, O.

First Auditor—Miss Laura Clay, Lexington, Ky.

Second Auditor—Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Boston.

Secretary Gompers accepted reelection unwillingly, with the understanding that he should resign within a few months. The national leaders hope that Prof. Frances Squire Potter may be induced to leave the University of Minnesota and give all her time to the office of corresponding secretary, as the New York headquarters to be established.

TO BUILD 10,042-FOOT CAUSEWAY

Galveston Will Spend $1,222,000 to Link Island and Main Land.

Announcement is made that Galveston County, Tex., has let contracts for the construction of a causeway connecting Galveston island and the mainland of Texas in a permanent structure 10,041 feet long. This work is regarded as equal in importance to that of the sea wall. The contract calls for 1,070 feet of direct roadway 52 and for 2,472 feet of concrete arch bridge averaging in cost $1,222,000.

—Chicago Journal.

IT'S TERRIBLY HOT IN THE SENATE CHAMBER.

TAFT'S ITINERARY ANNOUNCED.

President Will Visit Many Western Cities, but Not Alaska.

President Taft has given an outline of the tentative itinerary for his trip through the West and South this fall. The President has abandoned all idea of visiting Alaska this year, largely owing to the fact that Mr. Taft will not be able to go with him.

As soon as the tariff bill has received the action of the President, Mr. Taft will leave Washington for Beverly. He will remain there until Sept. 15—his fifty-second birthday—when he hopes, if Mrs. Taft continues to improve, to begin his Western journey. The President will bind direct from Beverly to Seattle, stopping for brief visits en route at Denver, Salt Lake and Spokane. After visiting the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition the President will swing down to the Southwest, stopping for a time in Portland, where he will be the guest of Senator Bourne, and proceeding thence to San Francisco and Los Angeles. San Diego will be the next stop and then will come a trip into Arizona and New Mexico. The President will stop for a time at El Paso, where he expects to meet President Diaz, of Mexico.

Stopping places will be San Antonio, Fort Sam Houston, Austin, Dallas, Charles F. Taft's ranch near Brownsville, Houston, New Orleans for the day, with a stopover, if time, you Tecko country of Louisiana, Jackson, Montgomery, Birmingham, Macon, Augusta, Savannah, Wilmington, N. C., Richmond and Washington.

ODDS & ENDS OF THE SPORT

The annual rowing races between Yale and Harvard on the Thames were won by the crew of Yale, which last year won on the Hudson.

The boat club of the University of Wisconsin has about decided to abandon the sport of rowing, as has been planned.

Mississippi boasts it four straight over Indianapolis for the series between the two across the home grounds in the twelfth inning, 4-3.

The spring meeting of the Montreal Jockey Club was a banner one for that year. At the closing events a motor-car of the Indianapolis speedway was entered.

The frequent rains have retarded training throughout the country, and as a result the trotters and pacers are at least three weeks late in their "prep" for the races.

Lou Dillon is creating quite a stir on the Berlin tracks. After being retired for nearly four years she proves that she has lost none of her fine speed. The mare has paced a mile in 2:02 3-4.

A novel experiment has been tried in Cincinnati. It has been demonstrated that base ball can be successfully played by electric lights. Northwestern University, Evanston, is considering the attempt a success.

The New Zealand rower, H. Arnst, defeated W. Weik, in a contest on the Wanganui River, N. Z., which victory was the result of a wager of a champagne dinner. Arnst, who is a Canadian, is a resident of New Zealand.

The Chicago Automobile Club have announced issues amounting to $20,000 as a result of the recent show, and they have decided to drop auto races from the schedule for 1910. If the races are given they will be conducted on vastly different lines.

A few years ago the three best, every inch a race, plan found many followers, and for a time it seemed that the system would take the place of the other, but it is gradually being discarded, and there will be few races of that character this season.

The fourteen stakes to be decided during the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association's thirty-seventh annual meeting at Lexington, Oct. 5 to 15, inclusive, have closed with a total entry of 589 horses, an average of forty-two nominations per race.

TEACHERS SHUN BOOK FIGHT.

Refuse to Elect Man Committed to Contest for Price Reform.

The election of James Vardaman, ex-governor, as president of the National Educational Association of North Carolina, as president of the National Educational Association in Denver, is regarded by his supporters as a victory in their fight against the regulation of the prices of school text-books. Mr. Joyner was elected over Ben Blewett, head of the St. Louis schools, and Dr. J. H. Phillips of Birmingham, Ala.

The association went on record against the existence of fraternities in high schools in a resolution which declares such organizations to be opposed to the spirit of democracy. In also decided to "investigate" the feasibility of simplified spelling, but took no decided stand either for or against it.

Irene Shepherd of Winona, Minn., was re-elected secretary, A. H. Chaney, berlain of California was re-elected treasurer, and Lorenzo D. Harvey, the retiring president, was elected first vice president. Miss Shepherd was selected as the next meeting place of the National Education Association, Milwaukee and Boston contended for it.

NEWCOMB, SCIENTIST, IS DEAD.

Military Funeral for Noted Astronomer in Washington, D. C.

Prof. Simon Newcomb, astronomer, mathematician, author and scholar, retired, retired, who died at his home in Washington, D. C., was buried with military honors in Arlington Cemetery Wednesday. High officials of the government attended and the honorary pallbearers included prominent men. Prof. Newcomb is survived by his widow, a daughter of the late Dr. Hassler, surgeon, U. S. N., and three daughters, Dr. Anita, Newcomb McGee of Washington, Mrs. Francis Wilson, and Mrs. Edward Whitney, both of New York. Simon Newcomb was the recipient of more degrees than any other scientist and more than any other American man of science. He was the first American to be honored by the institute since Benjamin Franklin, and was decorated by Kaiser Wilhelm with the order "Pour le Merite for Vissenschaften und Kunsten." He was a writer on political economy as well as in his own peculiar department of learning, that of astronomy.

Explosion Bars 50 Engineers.

The Schenectady plant of the American Locomotive Company has received from abroad from the Chinese & Nyrin Western Railroad for sixty-five locomotives for delivery in October.

Cashier Kills Fleeing Negro.

Earle J. Litzler, assistant cashier of the Security National Bank in Oklahoma City, shot and fatally wounded A. G. Hudson, a negro, who had been charged with forgery and who had fled from the bank with Litzler after him.

Incendiary Fire Kills Five.

Mrs. M. Lecumber and her four children were burned to death by an incendiary fire in the village of Ste. Agathe, Manitoba, a boarding house at a mining camp near New Edna, Col., early. The girl recited her struggles to escape from the burning shack might have inflicted upon her by the two women and a man, who later came, and how she finally was released at midnight half clad after her money had been taken from her.

STORY OF GINGLES GIRL.

Irish Lacemaker Tells That She Was Beaten in a Chicago Hotel.

A queer story of an alleged plot by two women and a man violently to force her into white slavery was told on the witness stand by Ella Gingles, young Irish lacemaker, on trial in Chicago on a charge of having stolen valuable laces from Miss Agnes Harper. The girl detailed the events she alleged preceded her discovery by the police, dragged, gagged and tied to a bedstead in the Wellington hotel last January. The witness three times was overcome. The girl's testimony was given as proof of her earlier charge that she was a victim of a bold plot, in which Miss Agnes Harper and Mrs. Cecilia Kenyon, the latter now dead, conspired to make it appear that she was a thief.

On the evening of Jan. 4 last, she testified, Miss Harper asked her to come to the latter's room in the Wellington hotel, with the understanding she would be paid money due her. In the room, she testified, the women, assisted by Miss Kenyon, locked her in a room. The women, she said, removed her clothing. Then, she testified, they choked and beat her repeatedly. The girl recited her struggles to escape from the torture she alleged they inflicted upon her by the two women and a man, who later came, and how she finally was released at midnight half clad after her money had been taken from her.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Two hundred and seventeen girls have graduated from Smith college.

At Harvard it was announced that forty students had been found guilty of dishonest practice and the alumni fund in his honor reached $100,000.

Dr. Frederick Lynch, president of Carleton college, has resigned to become secretary of the Congregational board of education.

The Oregon school board has decided to abolish Latin and algebra in the public schools because of the lack of study, making it more practical. A number of other boards of education for girls is to be established.

In the recent examination of forestry in the University of Michigan, Wilfrid W. Morris received the mark of 1.773, the highest mark ever in the recent forestry examination in all the universities of the country. He has been almost wholly self-supporting while at the university.

The feature of the Manchester College commencement, aside from the formal announcement that the endowment fund of $150,000 had been raised, was the special gifts by the department of music.

The Minnesota Indian School at Morris, Minn., has been given by the State for an agricultural station for a year. The government has appropriated $17,000 to maintain the Indian school until the State takes hold.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

Sustained heavy shipments through the banks, an absence of large failures, favorable crop reports and strengthening demands for factory outputs and general merchandise reflect the heavy position which banks now occupies. Hint cost is responsible for a similar surge of heavy tariff, but forwardings of iron and steel, lumber and street products, raw materials for entry contributed to shade worse exhibit, considerable gain. There is also very heavy passenger travel and continued recovery in the earnings of Chicago steam roads.

While vessel capacity is not yet wholly employed, lake traffic is much better than at this time last year and rates obtained average higher. Prompt sales of lumber during the harvest are foreshadowed by the advance inquiry for cars and this causes orders to be issued for additional cars, since much old rolling stock being found useless. Further demands in the prominent industries testify to confidence in the outlook, and plans presented include extensive additions to capacity at Gary and Indiana Harbor. Other enterprises now in course of completion for terminals, railroad and track elevation, building construction, improvements with the fire weather and there is remarkable consumption of structural materials of all kinds. Local jobbers report requests for lumber, brick, stone and cement.

Bank clearings, $252,362,451, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1909 by 12.7 per cent, and those with $263,404,291 in 1907. Failures reported to the Credit Clearing House number twenty, against twenty-three last week, twenty-five in the week ended June 18, 1907. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number three, against five in 1907.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade.

NEW YORK.

Future trade continues good; confidence is unimpaired. Hopes are centered on the winter wheat belt. Big crops, prospects for lofty prices and growing sections, are encouraging. Country trade promises to be heavy on supplies in market. Industrial lines are becoming more active, calls for harvest hands absorb a large part of the surplus supply of labor and the long-drawn out discussion regarding tariff matters promises to be soon ended. On the other hand, the general situation is marked by many drawbacks. Price cost or raiway weather has retarded retail trade over a goodly part of the country, particularly in the central West, South and Southwest, where floods have also deferred railway traffic and injured crops and country trade. At the same time, commodity prices are pretty general and these tend to stimulate trade where normal weather conditions prevail. In wholesale and jobbing lines current trade is a mixture of encouraging and adverse features. Moreover, the tariff revision has prevented forward buying and suspended small profits on many manufactured goods. Collections are fair to poor, though the general sales lines which report prompt settlements.

Political Comment.

Resolution Through Taxation.

President Taft is insistent regarding his corporation-tax proposal. He wishes the enactment into law not to be delayed until next winter. It is obvious that he is thinking ahead for next winter.

Nevertheless, the President, in his insistence, is not dogmatic. While he has had the tax bill drawn up with care by the attorney general, he is pressed to submit to amendment in Senate and House, provided the gritty style be established.

He will even accept a lower percentage as the tax rate, inasmuch as the 2 per cent rate would probably produce much more revenue than was at first estimated. While revenue is his direct object, he indirect object, to obtain some supervision of the financing of corporations, he regards as important.

The government has succeeded in establishing close relations and some supervision of those businesses which are subject to the internal revenue laws. Distilleries, breweries and tobacco factories are subjects to stringent regulations. Similar relations in regards stringency are not contemplated by the proposed tax on corporations.

A scarce precedent can be found in the case of the national banks, whose financial transactions are scrutinized by examiners and reports made upon them. But even such a supervision is not contemplated by the President and his advisers.

What they desire is the power to look over the books of corporations, to verify their reports and see that no evasions of the tax are being made.

The law will be framed as an excise measure, but the compulsion upon the corporations to do what the law regulations will operate to eliminate some of the abuses in corporate management. For example, the ordinary net receipts of a corporation are subject to the federal tax, will not be allowed to be dissipated by the payment of enormous salaries, bonuses, fees and by the conversion of stock into interest-bearing bonds or debentures.

And, in general, the knowledge of supervision methods, earnings and the like, which will be compulsorily disclosed if enforcement of the process of enforcement of the excise, will prevent many characteristic injuries to stockholders, will render it easier to raise capital in the market. Industrial lines are becoming more active, calls for harvest hands absorb a large part of the surplus supply of labor and the long-drawn out discussion regarding tariff matters promises to be soon ended. On the other hand, the general situation is marked by many drawbacks. Price cost or raiway weather has retarded retail trade over a goodly part of the country, particularly in the central West, South and Southwest, where floods have also deferred railway traffic and injured crops and country trade. At the same time, commodity prices are pretty general and these tend to stimulate trade where normal weather conditions prevail. In wholesale and jobbing lines current trade is a mixture of encouraging and adverse features. Moreover, the tariff revision has prevented forward buying and suspended small profits on many manufactured goods. Collections are fair to poor, though the general sales lines which report prompt settlements.

THE TARIFF OUT OF THE TARIFF.

Democrats Take It Out by Deserting Their Leaders in Tariff Revision.

For years many Republicans and Democrats have been anxious to "take the tariff out of politics." Nobody, however, expected to live to see that done. Yet the Democrats have done it in the past few weeks in Congress. They have done it by deserting their traditional position on that issue and voting for high duties. On the proposition to put iron ore, lumber, hides and other raw materials on the free list, a majority of the Democrats was voted in the Senate voted no. The Democrats changed the House bill, which reduced nearly all the duties that it touched, and gave the changes to the House conferees. Under the leadership of Mr. Aldrich, the Democratic Senators tore up the lines of platform put roundabout Cleveland, Bryan and every other leader of their party from the days of Robert J. Walker down. Samuel J. Randall's protectionist leanings surprised Republicans as well as Democrats in his day, but Randall was a free trader compared with Senator Bailey, Hughes, Bacon, Bailey and other Democrats who have always been in the forefront of the tariff party, and all of whom supported Bryan in all his campaigns.

Take will present the Democrats from saying anything on the tariff in the congressional campaign of 1910 or in the Presidential canvass two years later. As Senator Aldrich said, the Democrats will have given the tariff bill the ultra-protectionist label, because of the duties fixed on only one important proposition, but Mr. Aldrich hopes to make the Democratic party, and just as well on principles. He was beaten because his Democratic colleagues caused the duties he desired to have the Republican party stand for. Mr. Aldrich on one side and the bulk of the Democratic Senators on the other was an odd spectacle, but the country has had much of it. An amendment by Taliaferro, of Florida, to put the duties on lumber, amounts to 125 per cent above the Dingley rate was opposed by Aldrich, and voted for by the Democrats and by some of the Republicans but the Democrats made the amendment and it will stay in the bill unless the House conferees insist it out. Senator Bailey, of Texas, who has voted for a duty higher than Aldrich thought was necessary, deserted his party and swore other Democrats abandoned their allegiance to the party. He thought he was getting to be a free trader. That the Democrats defeated themselves and the Republicans gained that issue.

Senator Root declared that what he called "the economic and altogether unwarranted increase in the duty on pineapples" Senator Aldrich proposed to make it, was both unfair and unnecessary. But as the Senator from Massachusetts voted to broke away from him on this division they were able to defeat him.

Whatever the effect of the tariff measure turns out to be when the Democratic Senators deserted their party, if the Republican party will be responsible for it, that as all the tariff in dutiee which it will be in the bill have been placed there by Democratic votes, the Democrats will be prevented from making an issue out of it. Tariff will be a issue, to be silent about the measure. "No Democrat dare vote for a duty higher than Aldrich thought necessary," said the Senator from Rhode Island, the author of the protection policy of this country, thinks is desirable," said Senator Rayner, of Maryland, to his Democratic colleagues in the Senate on pineapple cases. Yet a majority of his Democratic friends went right ahead and did this very thing. Probably Rayner thinks now there is no hope for a Democratic party, and perhaps he is correct. But men who will put themselves between the people in the present session, gone farther than the most zealous Republican. Despite the blame which will attach to Mr. Aldrich and his party for the action of the Republicans for such advances in duties as may result in the bill when it goes on the statute book, the Democrats dare not assail the bill with any hope of success, because they helped to make it. The only fault which the Democrats can find, in sending duties upward, he did not, in all cases, go far enough to please them. The result is that the tariff issue now a party issue can be made out of the tariff again, unless the Democrats take the high protectionist side, and attempt to make the Republicans vote for free trade. The Democratic national convention will ever be able to frame any tariff plank which, like that of 1908 and of all the preceding Presidential years. As a tenet in the Democratic creed free raw materials and free trade are as dead as slavery and secession. At the time tariff was taken out of politics—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The President Gives a Hint.

While the President stands firmly on the constitutional division of the government, he recognizes that it is a government operated by parties and that operation involves responsibility. At Yale he gave a hint of this, when he said that if the Republican party wanted to be a party, it would have to will be relegated to the rear as an political factor.

This statement may indicate an awakening sense of leadership in the President. It may have been because of the widespread dissatisfaction with the Aldrich bill, that he felt so oblivious of the fact that people are ready to follow into battle against Aldrich has his way. He must be aware that the party is no living thing to what is expected of it in the matter of the tariff.

The President has an unpleasant task ahead of him. He must either be a good conciliator of some of the monstrous schedules, or veto the bill. The veto would be more spectacular, but a good deal would be better for the country. The President is evidently thinking it over.—Minneapolis Journal.

Insurgents.

Insurgents—I understand that Joseph is the leading force of his town, insurgent—Yes, he is always the mainspring of the civic gratitude.

WILLARD A. SMITH EDITOR.

FROM ARTHUR BEATTIE

The Marion Former Writes From the King's Dominion.—His Impressions of That Part of the Great Northwest

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 6, 1909.

To the Sentinel:

After leaving Blaine the country is good, with the exception of a few hills thirty or forty miles out. I found Vancouver a very busy and thriving city of about 100,000 population, lumbering, fishing and shipping being the chief industries.

From here I made a trip to Victoria, on Vancouver Island. The bottom of the ocean here did not seem to be very level, which caused the boat to sway, reminding me of the street cars at Seattle, where they run about fifty miles per hour. Thus far the trip has been truly an enjoyable one. The weather has been fine and the scenery too grand for pen to describe

As we got further out from land the wind increased, causing a high sea. All went very well until the rudder-chain parted, and for two hours the steamer went around and around like a fly with one wing pulled out. The captain and crew were running about the deck giving orders and making repairs. When the ship got into the trough of the sea it was very interesting, as one ships and suit cases shot out from under the bunks against the door, and at the next roll of the boat they would come jumping back at us, and I had to laugh at that bearhunter from Charlevoix, for he got terribly sick.

Victoria, B. C., has a very pretty harbor. The people here are nearly all English from the old sod, and the English "brogue" is spoken with all its peculiarities. They were having their annual horse races when I was here. I was surprised to learn that they have no trotting races, but all running, and it was interesting to me to hear the jockeys and people talk. I went out on the island a ways to see what the country looked like. It is covered with a very good growth of timber, but is very rough and mountainous, making it very hard to remove the timber. What farming land there is looks very good and is cheap—from $5 per acre up.

From Vancouver I took my tour toward home. The railroad follows the Fraser river and valley well up into the Selkirk mountains. This is a fertile valley. Some of the best farms of the Northwest are here, dairying being the principal industry. After climbing the Selkirk range of mountains we went in the Kootenay valley, which is narrow and not very good. There did not seem to be much of anything but stock raising. To get up over the Rockies our train of ten coaches had two engines all the time, and three at the worst grades.

After leaving the foot-hills on the eastern slope we soon get into Calgary, Alberta province. This is a very fine country,—slightly rolling, with a chocolate-colored sandy loam soil. Stock-raising and farming are about equally divided. They are having their annual fair the week I was there, and it was a good one. I saw some very fine stock of all kinds. Even dogs get premiums here. There were about 200 on exhibition here, from the smallest poodle to the stalwart mastiff. From Calgary to Saskatoon is an extensive prairie, with some small hilly places, called coolies here.

From Saskatoon I went thirty-five miles southeast to Elstow, where I visited Lew and Wm. Trimble, also Dave Walker and James Hayes, my former neighbors. I found them all busy plowing summer-fallow for their next spring's crops. These Charlevoix farmers are hustlers. Since they have been here they have become the owners of 320 acres each, and will each harvest 200 acres of wheat and oats. The crops all look good in this country, and if nothing happens from now on there will be a bumper crop. The soil is a dark heavy loam, very fertile, and only for the cold winters is an ideal country.

A good deal of the first breaking is done by steam, three dollars per acre being the price paid. A threshing engine will haul a gang of ten plows, and ten acres is called a fair day's work. I counted thirty of these steam rigs in sight of where the Trimble boys live. The price of land here is from $10 to $20 for the wild land and $15 to $30 for the improved farms. There is some government land here yet, but it is back from the railroad quite a ways.

My trip home from here is through the northern part of North Dakota, which is pretty well settled up. Northern Minnesota has quite a little timber land, and is more like Northern Michigan. Hoping that my account of the trip has not been tiresome to you, I will close.

Respectfully yours,
ARTHUR BEATTIE.

Life 100,000 Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. To-day the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes "suffering as did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough. To cure sore Lungs, Colds, obstinate Coughs, and prevent Pneumonia, its the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by F. G. Hines & Co. Trial bottle free.

We will pay good salary. "Liberty" Manufacturing Association, 12-14 State Street Chicago.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Cadillac News and Express publishes a statement made by Bruce Odell, operating the Morningside farm within the southern limits of that city, where she has a four acre field of alfalfa from which he has already this summer cut two and a half tons per acre crop of forage, and from which he expects to cut a second crop about as large in August, and possibly there may be a third crop in October. The soil is light sand. The field was manured about the same in quantity and kind as is usually used by farmers for any ordinary crop. The cutting of the August crop will give a yield in money this summer of fifty dollars per acre. Mr. Odell says the crop is as good as the best field of forage anywhere in Michigan, and he declares his belief that alfalfa can be profitably grown on the average light sand lands of northern Michigan. The Cadillac paper is convinced that "even the lighest soil in that section of the state can be made to produce crops equal in money value to the best meadow lands of any section of Michigan."

Traverse City special: Running a big mogul engine onto their sidetrack alongside the Northern Michigan Transportation company's dock, the Pere Marquette late this afternoon, with the help of a log chain and the big engine, snaked out the piles which had so fenced in the railroad's siding that the fruit steamers couldn't land, and the war between the railroad and the Northern Michigan Transportation company was on again. It took the Pere Marquette but 20 minutes to yank out the piles. One of the road's dispatchers in his launch sided by placing the chains about the piles. Then two big refrigerator cars were shoved onto the siding, all ready for tomorrow's shipment of cherries Half an hour after the train crew had retired the steamship company had a piledriver setting in place new piles, so as to effectually block any steamer that might attempt to land there. The piles were secured by two inch chains and mammoth padlocks. The Manistee & Northeast railway will run a special fruit train tomorrow to handle the Northern Michigan company's shipments. The Pere Marquette will also have a special fruit service and the steamer Knoblesh will make a special trip from Old Mission to handle the same. Heretofore all picking has stopped Saturday morning because of no Sunday service. The arrival of boats tomorrow will probably bring interesting developments, but the steamship company again has the upper hand.

Petoskey News: At 7:30 Monday evening, Henry A. Hollins, one of Petoskey's oldest settlers, in point of the length of his residence here if not in years, passed away, terminating a period of suffering that has been with him almost constantly during the past two years. The death occurred at his home, 414 Woodland avenue, where he had lain an invalid, totally unable to help himself, for a long time past. Had he lived till September, he would have been 61 years of age. Mr. Hollins was an able energetic citizen, with a business integrity that won regard, and the highest compliment possible is paid him by his mates. He was a member of the K. O. T. M. and the B. P. O. Elks, taking prominent places in both fraternities previous to his last sickness. He leaves no near relatives except his mother, Mrs. Helen M. Varney, who has made her home with him. His only sister, Mollie G. Hollins, died about seven years ago. He was ever devoted to them, making their lives as cheerfully as possible. The funeral services will be held from the Episcopal church, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. Bedford Jones officiating. Henry A. Hollins was born at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1848, where he lived until four years old, when he decided to follow the advice which Greeley afterwards gave other young men, and came west,—to Chicago. As the country was new, he did not come alone, but, his father having died, made his home with his uncle, Charles Davidson, who at that time was engaged buying fur throughout the northwest. In 1870 Mr. Hollins came to Emmet county, entering his uncle's store at Little Traverse. Mr. Davidson died soon after, and Mr. Hollins continued the business, which was the first store on Little Traverse Bay, until the fall of '76. He was county clerk and register for eight years, and deputy register for four years. In the early days, Mr. Hollins was the "whole county," as you might say, as he not only transacted the business of his own office but looked after affairs for the other county officials to a great extent. Mr. Hollins came to Petoskey in 1888, and has since that time been engaged as steamboat agent and railway ticket broker.

The Art of Being Happy.

"Cheerfulness," says Ruskin, "is as natural to the heart of man in strong health as glow to his cheek, and wherever there is lightness of heart there must be either bad air, unwholesome food, immoderate severe labor or certain habits of life." If children were taught that one of the great ills in life is to unbend the fun-loving side of their nature, the humorous side, they would not be so many restless, so many unhappy, discordant, intolerable people, so many failures in the world. —Success Magazine.

As a Steadily Flowing Current.

It seems to me that to be quiet and be serene, or rather, to be quietly alive, constantly going on with untiring energy, and yet not hurrying or scarcely to be perceptible, this seems to me to be an approach toward perfection. And this lesson we learn from Nature, which is ever busy and yet imperceptibly, obeying her laws. —From the Memoirs of Anne J. Clough.

Do Not Split it with an Ax.

To split an infinitive is not a mortal offense, but the Columbia State quotes one to a two colored landlord in a point type. No one is justified in torpedoing an infinitive.—Charlotte News and Courier.

A Waste of Time.

Most men fool away so much valuable time trying to be like somebody else that they have no chance to amount to anything as themselves.

Local News.

—George Walt and wife, of Carson City, are in the city visiting relatives.

—Ash Heron of Boyne City, the good old scout, was in the city last Monday.

—The masons have begun work on the foundation of the Carnegie library, and construction material is accumulating.

—The local option fight is on in Otsego county. There is but little question about both Otsego and Antrim counties going "dry" next spring

—Dr. McDonald, the specialist, will be at the Elston Hotel on August 10th from ten o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock in the evening for consultation.

—Chas. E. Sax, nameake and uncle of our own Charles E., is here visiting his relatives. Mr. Sax was for many years a resident of Charlevoix, but he now lives in Chicago.

—C. A. Butler, lighthouse superintendent for Lake Michigan, was here several days the past week. Mr. Butler was for nine years keeper of the Charlevoix light, and he has many friends in these parts.

—Captains Wilbur and Campbell last week sold the steamer Searchlight to the Edward Hines Lumber Co., of Chicago, and the boat left here Monday for Muskegon. She will be used as a tender for a wrecking outfit.

—Judge J. M. Harris, of the probate court, and his wife and daughter, took the train at Charlevoix Tuesday morning for his boyhood home in Canada. While away they will visit some of the famous summer resorts of eastern Canada and Northern New York.

—There will be a regular county fair held in Boy City Saturday August 7th. There will be the regular county fair sports, greased pig, races, greased pole climbing, boys race, fat man's race, prizes for the best stock and to the housewife for the best bread and pies etc. There will be a horse show. Prizes for best driving team. Best riding horse, best farm team and many other prizes. The farmers in the county should plan to make this one of the biggest days of the year.

—Eugene Moore's latest play "The Tiger and the Lamb" is classed as one of the "six best sellers" of the dramatic season. To those who read and admire the stories of Mr. John Fox, Jr., (and there are many) "The Tiger and the Lamb" will strongly appeal. It is not a dramatization of any of Mr. Fox's novelettes, but the characters are very similar and the locality is the same. Col. M. J. Wargrave has first play a production that is complete in every detail, under the personal direction of the author, and will be at the Charlevoix Theatre Aug 9th.

—Only a dog! Yes only a dog, but he filled his place in the world, and lived it well. Yesterday he gamboled beside his master, his beautiful blue eyes speaking words of affection that his tongue could not utter; today he lies beneath the sod under the cherry tree. Only a dog, yet always true. Only a dog, but with a fidelity that transcended human fidelity, because it was changeless. Only a dog, yet endowed with instincts that almost amounted to character. Only a dog, yet he never did a mean thing. Only a dog, but he was incapable of treachery and deceit. In even the life of a dog there is a lesson for men.

—Mrs. A. J. Suffern, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is visiting Mrs. Dr. Montague.

—The Boyne City band was here Saturday evening and gave us a very enjoyable street concert.

—The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, will hold a cake sale on Bridge street, Wednesday, August 4th.

—Rev. Father Norbert Wilhelm, of St. James, was in town Monday, on his way to Petoskey to spend this week at the Franciscan monastery.

—It is gratifying to note that the common council favorably considered the SENTINEL's suggestion and has officially named the postoffice alley "Van Pelt Place."

—Geo. H. Van Pelt has ordered green and pink terra-cotta trimmings for the front of his new Bridge street building at a cost of $1,150. We can find buildings on Bridge street that did not cost more than that amount.

—Both fire companies went to the north side again Friday to put out a fire. It was the Eslow house, now owned by Williams of Harbor Springs. But small damage was done, and that was confined to the woodshed.

—Petoskey News: Again the howl raises from a number of people to the effect that there is "nothing doing" at Petoskey this year. President McMahon of the Cushman House, states that he is doing a ten per cent better business than last year and the railroad officials are most optimistic about the season and state that they are all doing well, the neighboring resorts send in good reports of full houses. It doesn't look very dead.

—A crowd of boys who have been serving as cadies on the golf links, following a strike that seems to have been unsuccessful, were foolish enough to demolish one of the field refreshment stands. The authorities were appealed to and on Monday County Agent Madison and undersheriff Hughes summoned about fifteen of them and secured a good lead on others. It looks as if somebody would have to pay damages. It is a serious matter, and the authorities are compelled to give it stern treatment. Charlevoix cannot permit such things to pass unnoticed.

—The American Passenger Association of the state has started a movement to change the school year so that the resort season will run two weeks into September. This would be a great thing for the resorts of northern Michigan. It is well on towards the middle of July before the tourist business is flourishing and in six weeks there is a general exodus just at a time when the weather is most perfect up this way and the cities still sizzling. "I dread to go back to the city but the children must be in school," is the lament of nine-tenths of our summer guests as they take their departure the first of September.

—Deputy Collector of the Internal Revenue—A. H. Gilbert, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was at Petoskey last week and superintended the drawing off of 400 barrels of beer, the left-over stock of the Grand Valley Brewing company of Ionia, as a result of local option. This is the largest cleanup in this part of the state so far reported. The loss is something over $2,000. The beer was dumped into a creek which runs into Grand River. Not a drop was sold in good repute. The brewery was forced to go out of business for lack of patronage. It was a beer drinking town and all the beer made was consumed locally. The brewery was a big concern and employed a large number of men. It was a big thing for Ionia when it was in operation.

—The Harold, one of the Booth Co's large gasoline boats, broke down at St. James Wednesday and was towed to this port by the Beaver.

—Francis McDoherty, of St. James, has been in town the past week receiving treatment for a severe acute throat disorder and visiting friends.

—William Withers has his left arm in a sling. In going up State street last Monday on a load of hay he slipped off the load, striking the ground with such force as to break his wrist and dislocate it.

—Mrs. Christine Dougherty, wife of John Dougherty, died at her home on Antrim street, this city, Tuesday morning, at an advanced age, of dropsy. Besides her husband, she leaves one son and one daughter, Geo. Dougherty, of Norwood township and Mrs. Richard Gregory, of Petoskey.

—The "open door" policy of the theatrical managers' association will now bring to many cities some of the plays they have never been able to get before, the first of them will be Col. M. J. Wartrig's production of Eugene Moore's latest play "The Tiger and the Lamb." This play was one of the greatest dramatic hits of last spring and will be produced here at the Charlevoix Theatre August 9th with its full scenic investment "The Tiger and the Lamb" in an intensely absorbing comedy drama, it has excited great interest and is drawing capacity houses.

—It is settled beyond all question that the Anti Saloon League will make a fight to put Kent county into the local option column. Up to the present no city in the United States the size of Grand Rapids has been placed under prohibition through resort to local option laws. Whether it can be carried is a question, but there are some things that point toward a temperance victory. The saloonists have gone on record as favoring the stringent enforcement of the law. Mayor Ellis, a game sport, vetoed a large number of licenses are granted a saloonist who has a bad police record; no new ones are granted licenses, and about thirty are out of business and there are that many less than last year.

—State Highway Commissioner Ely is having a busy time of it in directing the township highway commissioners in regard to the new road law. According to Mr. Ely fully 60 per cent of the highway commissioners in the different townships of the state are newly elected and most of them are farmers and unfamiliar with the road laws, and with the new revised road law which will go into effect in September it keeps him busy instructing them. The new revised law was compiled at great pains by the joint committee on roads and bridges from the senate and house and there are also a great many new features in the new law upon which the highway commissioner should become posted. Commissioner Ely is having the law printed in a condensed form which will be mailed out to the supervisors.

—Geo. H. Van Pelt is erecting on Bridge street in this city a building that would be a credit to any town of any size anywhere. And, be it said to the credit of the enterprising builder, he is erecting it without any positive knowledge of who or what is to occupy it. He has been entertaining the hope, however, that the good sense of the people of Charlevoix and the government could be brought jointly into action toward the lease for a new postoffice. Nothing is better known than that the present quarters, both as to office room and the public lobby, are, especially in the summer, entirely inadequate. The needs of the city demand a larger office. Mr. Van Pelt stands ready to install an office that will be second to none in the country. A petition has been generally signed by our people asking for the department's favorable action, and the common council, at a recent meeting, adopted a resolution of that tenor. This official action, when in line with the general sentiment of the people, should be shot into the blides of the powers that be with a good big charge of dynamite behind it. The summer business of the city is growing apace, and the protection respite of all the months of the year are yearly increasing. "It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us." We must have a larger postoffice, and an opportunity presents itself to get a much better one, but we must grasp the opportunity before we are shut out by some up-to-date business man who has sense to know a good thing when he sees it.

BOY CITY BOOMING.

The Community of Youngsters On Pine Lake Organized.—Last Sunday a Big Day.

We doubt if ever an organized community sprung into existence more quickly or with more absorbing public interest than has our Boy City, up on the shores of Pine Lake. The individual American boy in the aunt of that agregation that we are pleased to classify as "Young America," and public interest cannot be diverted from any enterprise in to which vigorous, brainy, noisy American boy enter as the dominating factor. Some people under-stand boys; others do not. Such fine, genial, patient chaps as Judge Brown, his brother Fred, Mr. Hahn, and Mr. Swift (of Beulah Home), have an intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the boy nature, and they can, by a smile or caress, make a boy climb a forty-foot telegraph pole quicker than the ordinary mortal could do it with a club or a threat. None but this inspired quintet, or the few others like them, could carry these juvenile enterprises to such success.

Boy City sprung into a real and lively fact last Sunday, which was the opening Chautauqua day. There were about 150 boys on the ground, but more have come since, and they are still coming. In the afternoon and evening the two "Minnie" ferry boats, the steamer Searchlight and many autos and carriages were kept busy carrying people to the grounds from Charlevoix, and the Boyne City and East Jordan boats brought crowds from those towns, while the Pere Marquette "dummy" dumped several car loads. Fully 2000 people were on the grounds, and fully as many in the evening.

At 3:30 the Manistee Boy Zouave Band, forty strong, swung down through the public square to the cadence of a lively quickstep and into the big circus tent. This interesting organization opened the program with three numbers, and the Dixie Jubilee Singers followed with several characteristic negro melodies—music that is always enjoyed and always will be. Judge Mayne made the opening speech, Judge Brown talked interestingly, and the Jordan boys and girls sang sweetly. Boy City was suspiciously planted where but a few years ago the Indians lighted their elevated camp-fires and worshipped the "Mishela-Manitou" under the stars and the rustling maples and ironwoods.

The public buildings are all open. Mr. Turnbull, the expert accountant, has started the bank going and has charge of the city finances. The postoffice is ready for business, for the issue of the "Boy City Daily News". The restaurant is in operation and it is a good one. Electric lights the buildings and grounds, and the dust is laid with garden hose.

As we close these columns the city election is in progress. We are unable to say at this writing whether or not the boys are imitating their fathers in personal conduct around the polling places. An hour ago strange noises were coming from that direction, but it proved to be a Pere Marquette freight train crossing the bridge. Inauguration of city officers will quickly follow, to which ceremony Hon. Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio, and other grave and reverend signeurs," will add their solemn and dignified presence. Then the common council will enact laws and ordinances. All these municipal details are, as Judge Brown expresses it, "up to the boys." And it is interesting to hear Judge Brown talk to the lads. He will advise and counsel, but he always ends with "Boys, it is up to you." Popular government rules in Boy City, and "pure and undefiled democracy" of the non-political sort is the basis of its economy.

Last Sunday was such a day as would delight any school boy. The cadence of a lively quickstep and the rattle of the drums, and the boys are yearly increasing. "It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us." We must have a larger postoffice, and an opportunity presents itself to get a much better one, but we must grasp the opportunity before we are shut out by some up-to-date business man who has sense to know a good thing when he sees it.

THE NAVAL MIDSHIPMAN

Interesting Letter From One of Uncle Samuel's Naval Cadets.

NAVAL ACADEMY, ANNAPOLIS, M. D., July 16
DEAR MR. SMITH:

As I promised you when in Charlevoix, I write you the routine of a midshipman's life at the Naval Academy:

The morning gun and reveille comes at 6:30 o'clock every morning. Breakfast at 7:05 o'clock. Beds have to be turned back during breakfast. Breakfast is over and sick call sounds at 7:40. At 8:00 comes the first drill. The time between 7:40 and 8:00 is usually utilized in making beds and sweeping rooms. The first drill is seamanship. The midshipmen are taught to handle cutters under oars and sails.

Every morning a dozen or more cutters can be seen on the Severn river under oars and sails. Sometimes the period is spent in the sail loft, where the midshipmen learn to splice ropes and the different knots, and some times are instructed in the names of all parts of a sailing vessel.

The first period ends at 9:30, and recreation is enjoyed until 10:00 when the second period begins. This period is spent in drills,—one day infantry and setting up drills are scheduled; another day rifle and sword drills. Later in the summer artillery drills begin. This period closes at 11:30 and the dinner comes at 12:30, after dinner recreation is enjoyed until 3:00 p. m. From 3:00 to 4:00 p. m. comes marine engineering and steam launch drills. Each midshipman takes his turn at running the launch. At 5:00 o'clock all companies go across the river swimming. Supper is at 6:55. Sick call at 7:40 p. m. From 8:00 to 9:00 p. m. two companies have gymnasium, while the other two go to Recreation hall to have a general good times. The next night they alternate, and so on through the week. Recreation is granted Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. On Saturday p. m. liberty in town is granted, but no one is allowed to leave town without permission. Plenty of tennis, base ball and sailing occupy the spare time.

Track work is started during the summer. Once a week each company goes to the government rifle range across the river. There are four companies here this summer,—about 200 midshipmen.

The discipline is very strict and the conduct of midshipmen is placed upon the "Daily Report of Midshipmen attached to the U. S. Naval Academy." This report is commonly known as the "pap sheet." Demerits are given, ranging from 1 to 75, as the offense is valued. They are given for much as all things as: clothes not brushed, shoes not shined, bed not neatly made, room in disorder, floor not properly swept etc.

Chapel is held every Sunday morning at 10:30, and is compulsory. The life is the chance of a lifetime. Every one is always healthy and lives out of doors most of time.

—Of all the despicable creatures that pollute the earth the dog-poisoner is the meanest. Beside him the ghoulish body snatcher is a gentleman and seeks chief an ornament to society, and a robber of the sacredly an upright citizen. The dog-poisoner is low down, cowardly, a disgrace even to the mother who bore him and the father who begat him. We would feel like offering a lump sum pin and consider it an honor before we would behow a crust on a dog poisoner to save his worthless life. We would exclude a dog poisoner from our petitions to the Throne of Grace for divine clemency. We would not grant him a drop of water with which to cool his parched tongue were he suffering the torments of Hades. And there are dog poisoners in Charlevoix. We always held these viewer, but we have never before given expression to them because we owned a dog. We have no dog now; he is dead.

JURY FREES ELLA GINGLES.

Acquitted of Theft, but Verdict Declares Stories of Attacks Untrue.

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Ella Gingles, not guilty. We further find the charges made against Miss Agnes Harrette to be unfounded and untrue." With the foregoing doubtle-tipped verdict the jury in Judge Brentano's court in Chicago wound up the famous Gingles case—the case of common larceny which swelled into one of the greatest psychological puzzles in legal annals and made reputations tremble with awful charges of "white slavery" and amazing stories of psychopathic nature.

The verdict at once was a release for the girl from the charge of stealing lace and a vindication to the million taken by the State, which was that Ella Gingles lied in her terrible story of mistreatment at the hands of Miss Harrette. Her accuser, and Miss Harrette's counsel. The decision was reached after seven hours of deliberation, during which five ballots were taken, the first being eight to four for acquittal. From the time the verdict was in the jury room the jurors were agreed that the story told by the girl against Miss Harrette was untrue.

The point upon which the four jurors who at first stood out for conviction turned in their voting was a doubt as to whether Ella Gingles really made two pieces of lace valued at more than $10 which Miss Agnes Harrette said the girl took from her fresh lace stock in the Wellington hotel. The decision resulted in attorneys for both sides rejoicing as the fruits of victory—a situation novel in any court.

TARIFF MUST BE LOWER IS TAFT'S ULTIMATUM

President Tells Standpatters He Intends to See That Downward Revision Wins.

STATEMENT AS THREAT OF VETO

Executive Meets Opposition of Congressmen by Declaring Party Pledges Shall Be Kept.

President Taft clarified the tariff situation Friday by issuing his first formal statement on the subject. This statement, made after a conference with twenty-two Republican and one Democratic representative who demanded a high protective tariff, follows:

"Mr. Young of Michigan opposed free ore. Mr. Nicodell opposed free coal or reciprocity with Canada and free hides; each on the ground that the policy would injure the interests in his State, and a discussion was participated in by other representatives, who urged that the doctrine of free raw materials was not a Republican doctrine.

"The President replied that he was not committed to the principle of free raw materials, but that he was committed to the principle of a downward revision of the tariff which he had promised, and that he was obliged to look at the matter not from the standpoint of any particular district, but from the standpoint of the whole country, and also from the standpoint of responsibility for the entire Republican party.

"He said the question in each case was a question of fact, to be determined by evidence, as to whether the present duty was needed for protection or whether the rates was excessive, so that a downward revision, or putting the article on the free list, would not injure the industry.

Taft Defines the Issues.

"He repeated the platform of the Republican party and said that he had always understood that it meant a downward revision in many instances, though perhaps in some few instances an increase might be needed; that he reached this construction of the platform on what he understand to be the principles of protection and its justification—namely, that after an industry was established it was duty equal to the difference between the cost of production in this country, including a fair profit to the manufacturer, the energy and enterprise of American business men and capitals, the effectiveness of American labor and the ingenuity of American inventors under the impulse of competition behind the tariff wall would reduce the cost of production, and that, with the reduction in the cost of production, the tariff rate would be proportionately high and could to be reduced.

"This was the normal operation of the tariff as claimed by the defenders of the protective system—not in every case, but as a general rule—that of course a revision of the tariff could not be perfect, must have defects and inconsistencies, but in so far as his influence went, when called upon to act in connection with legislation it would be thrown in the direction of performing the promises of the party as he understood them; and that if iron ore and oil and coal and hides were not need protection and the conditions were such as to enable the ore producers and the oil producers and the coal producers and the producers of hides to compete successfully, without reduction of wages, with the producers from abroad, then they did not need a duty and their articles should go on the free list.

"It was a question of fact which he hoped to make up his mind with reference to one such evidence as was available to him in order to carry out what he understood to be the promise of the party to the whole people. He said he felt that his position as the other head of the Republican party and as President, with the whole people as his constituency, gave him a somewhat broader point of view than that of a single member of Congress in respect to articles produced in his district. He felt strongly the call of the country for a downward revision within the limitations of the protective principle, and he hoped to be able to respond to that call as he heard it, as well in the interests of the party as of the country."

LAND FILING IN WASHINGTON.

200,000 Applications Expected for 3 Indian Reservations in West.

Twenty-five thousand men and women are expected to file applications for lands in the Coeur d'Alene, Spokane and Flathead Indian reservations. In one week alone 7,000 applications are expected, while the list at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, may exceed that number. It is estimated that 100,000 men and women will file for lands, most supplying for all three reservations, making a grand total of 200,000 applications. Approximately 15,000 to 20,000 applications from veteran soldiers and sailors are expected. It is believed that one applicant in fifteen will be able to secure a homestead worth taking up.

BREAK COL. SNELL'S WILL

Jurors for Second Time Set Aside Last Testament of Millionaire.

The third contest over the will of Col. Thomas Snell, of Clinton, Ill., the eccentric old man who died leaving an estate of $2,000,000 and cutting his only son off with an annuity of $50, was ended Friday when a jury decided that Col. Snell was insane at the time he made the will. The first action was made to the bequest of several thousand dollars to Matsella Snell McNamara, the aged colonel's wife. The jury was out a little more than an hour and took not one ballot, which resulted eleven to one for the contesting son, Richard Snell. The Sangamon County jury changed his verdict of the formality of a second ballot.

The first trial of the contest resulted in a verdict that Col. Snell was insane, but a higher court set aside the verdict and remanded the case for another trial. If the will had stood the small heirs would get the bulk of the estate, all told, amounting aggregating $2,000,000, and not exceeding $100 in any single one, while the widow of the former would have been held to a solid trust agreement for life and upon her death the part for a final distribution. In the terms of the will she received nothing.

BIG ARMY ON STRIKE AS INDUSTRY REVIVES

Twenty to Thirty Thousand Men in Pittsburg District Quit Work as Resumption Comes.

MINE AND MILL ARE CRIPPLED

Disorders at McKee's Rocks Quelled by State Police After Thirty Men Are Injured.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 workmen—most miners, tin and sheet plate workers and members of various steel crafts—are on strike in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and west Virginia. A majority of the idle men are in the Pittsburg district. Except the strike at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company at McKee's Rocks, where rioting resulted in the shooting and beating of thirty persons, the strikes are orderly.

The conflict between capital and labor in the Pittsburg district is unique, coming, as it does, at a time of returning prosperity. Resumptions have been ordered in the mills and mines who have been without work for many months are being notified of their action. On the river bank is the greatest unrest of the workmen. Solutions of the causes leading up to the strike are varied. In several instances the men claim that their action is based on the question of their recent protests against illegalities, are offering them low wages and long hours. The officials in most conditions do not warrant higher remuneration at this time. In other instances are the alleged violation of the eight-hour workday, recognition of organized labor, the employers' over the use of so-called "safety" powder for mine blasting and the fact that company 14,000 miners employed in the mines in the Pittsburg district are out. The men claim various violations of their working agreement.

Steel workers, unorganized, to the number of about 3,500, are in conflict with the Pressed Steel Car Company. The men say the wages paid are too low. Rioting and threatened lies resulted during this strike, and further trouble is feared. The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers is engaged in a strike against the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. Over 7,000 men. It is estimated, are out. The trouble is over the "open-shop" policy recently declared by the company. Three thousand members of the Tin Plate Workers' Association on strike against the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at Newell, Ohio, have been out since April 1. The men quit work at midnight and the men will join the ranks of the Amalgamated Association.

Three thousand men employed by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at New Castle quit work to-day. The wage scale expires at midnight and the men will join the strike of the Amalgamated Association. It is said that the men have worked for months at sheet plants in different portions of the country, adding from 1,000 to 10,000 to the ranks of the strikers. The trouble is spreading to the independent sheet and tin plate plants, and from present indications there is apparently no hope of effort toward an adjustment.

NEBRASKA ELECTION LAW VOID

Superior Court at Lincoln Gives Decision in Test Case.

In Lincoln, Neb., the Superior Court handed down a decision declaring the Donohoe nonpartisan judiciary election law invalid. To the new law "The duty of the court holding that the act is void, the judgment of the District Court is affirmed. This means that the election of judges of the Supreme Court, district courts, regents of the State University, county judges, and county superintendents by use of a separate ballot cannot take place. The old law will continue to be in force. The objection of the court was to the provision requiring that for 1,000 names to be on a petition for judge, not more than 150 of which could come from one county. The decision was based on a hindrance to the free exercise of the franchise, and was regarded as unconstitutional of the State. Four of the six members sitting believed this provision formed the chief reason for the passage, and thus invalidated the whole act. The Lincoln court denied the provision denying the right of party conventions to nominate candidates, which was affirmed by the act was without force and void.

SAFE-CRACKERS ROB POST-OFFICE

Hunting, Ill., Strong Box Loaded Down with Money Is Cracked.

Safecrackers blew open the safe of the postoffice in Hunting, Ill., on the Wisconsin Central, some time in the night and carried off money and stamps. The robbery was a daring one, the interior of the postoffice being visible from the exterior. Postmaster E. H. Cook, of Hunting, was the first to discover the theft when he went to his drug store in the morning. The possibility of a robbery was in the back of the mind and the robbers had been thorough in their work. The safe was blown open recently, heard the sound of the explosion and ran the news number 11, the scene of discovery. The robbers stole a horse from the barn of John Kelly and drove about, there miles east, where they tied the animal. No further trace of them was found.

CHICAGO.

The usual lethargy of trade activity continue to reflect uncertainty strength and better disposition toward the future, with capacity in manufactures. Weather conditions favor the growing crops and marketings of farm products are well sustained, those of livestock are unsatisfactorily reviewed. The markets for breadstuffs remain quiet, but packing is more extended, and there is good absorption of provisions for both domestic and export consumption, thigh temperatures stimulated demand for season's idle needs in the leading retail lines and there is ample reduction of merchandise stocks here and at interior points.

Wholesale trade in the principal stapes promises to show expansion, orders come forward in large numbers, and the demand is strong in textiles, clothing, footwear, fuel products and furniture. Compared with this time last year, there is larger forewarding of goods to country stores, while current bookings indicate gain in delivery to the trade as the end of winter lines. High prices and reasonable apprehension of lower crops remain a formidable factor in agriculture, and this encourages more buying in the interior of finished products and farm needs.

THE CORPORATION TAX.

Means of Raising Revenue Is Which Champions of Big Business Object.

Many corporations continue to protest against the corporation tax. They propose to bring a test case to decide the constitutionality. This is the latest news from Washington.

Yet not a few of these same corporations were organized from a short time ago to quite a different purpose. They were urging a strict application of the Dingley tariff. They were pointing out quite properly its sufficient revenue. They were telling the administration to make good the deficit sure to result from tariff revision in some other field. They apparently didn't care what field. They left that to the administration.

The administration took the hint. It sought another field and brought forward the corporation tax. It estimated that this tax would fill the hole made by tariff reduction. Its course was natural and logical. Money had to be raised for government expenses. Somebody had to pay.

So the demand for tariff reduction is about to be answered—not fully but partly answered. The corporation tax is the measure of the reduction in so far as it goes. It is a remarkable measure. It is simple, immediate fact of the same moral to-day. We are not blind. We are arguing. Not only we and then on the other side are. We know the world around. We observe it.

There is no moral way of getting rich quickly. Now as always it is simply a question of the honest processes of the tariff and the corporation. The sooner that is learned the better for all of us.

Now we come to the man who has relied on one side of his mouth for years to tell what he is not. He is against the corporation tax is to reign himself to the fact that he is responsible for the conditions that make it unavoidable. It may not be a tax on his pride and prejudice. It may be a tax on his pocket. It may give them a chance to fight back. And that opportunity came with the formation of an enterprise, which is organized more for the benefit of the small investor and the consumer than it is for purely gainful ends. Already it has enrolled on its side 6,000 country merchants and many manufacturers, some of whom had grievances against the mail order houses. The latter buy immediately quantities of goods from manufacturers at very low prices. The first year the contract is made the manufacturer is happy and indulges in golden dreams. The next year the mail order house comes along and makes a yet bigger contract, but at a lower figure. In order to cheapen the cost of production the manufacturer has to take plant, pute in more machinery and greater capital in his business with the expectation that his profits will be made up in volume. He continue to expand year by year. It is then that the mail order house comes along and cuts down its power. It comes forward the third year with an offer to buy the manufacturer's entire product, but at prices that are about equal to cost of production, or at least so close that he leave no margin for risk or profit. If the manufacturer refuses he is told he can be replaced elsewhere and the manufacturer has to face the prospect of ruin. He is having a plant that is too large for his normal trade and which he is not fully equipped to fill to its fullest capacity. In most cases, he has gone to the limit of his credit, he has borrowed money. The result is that the manufacturer either goes into bankruptcy or he is forced into mail order concern's terms, which practically make him its servant to the end of his chapter.

How the Association Works.

Driven to desperation a year or so ago by the mail order proposition, some of the smaller merchants in the west got together and offered each other their individual stocks. They found it remarkable what good, live, attractive yellow line and what a great profit for first class latter. The special agents of the internal revenue bureau are at the bookout for them and catch some, but there is so much money in the business that it is worth while to take their place. With a 2 cent tax the incentive to fraud would largely disappear. The consumption of cellulose also, known to be safe, would be increased. The consumption of shoe white boxes are duped into believing in a larger would be decreased. The sooner that is learned the better for all of us.

Now we come to the man who has relied on one side of his mouth for years to tell what he is not. He is against the corporation tax is to reign himself to the fact that he is responsible for the conditions that make it unavoidable. It may not be a tax on his pride and prejudice. Organization for Protection.

The mail order houses have almost ruined the business of a good many manufacturers and country merchants and these manufacturers and country merchants are organizing to protect themselves. The result will give them a chance to fight back. And that opportunity came with the formation of an enterprise, which is organized more for the benefit of the small investor and the consumer than it is for purely gainful ends. Already it has enrolled on its side 6,000 country merchants and many manufacturers, some of whom had grievances against the mail order houses. Oleomargarine.

Secretary MacVeagh may ask Congress for a uniform tax of 2 cents a pound on oleomargarine. The administration is against the tax of 10 cents a pound now in force. He reasons that the revenue from the tax is small. The 10 cent tax is so high that unscrupulous men are continually tried to evade it. They sell inferior stuff, give it an attractive yellow hue and sell it at a great profit for first class butter. The special agents of the internal revenue bureau are at the bookout for them and catch some, but there is so much money in the business that it is worth while to take their place. With a 2 cent tax the incentive to fraud would largely disappear. The consumption of cellulose also, known to be safe, would be increased. Now we come to the man who has relied on one side of his mouth for years to tell what he is not. He is against the corporation tax is to reign himself to the fact that he is responsible for the conditions that make it unavoidable. It may not be a tax on his pride and prejudice. It may be a tax on his pocket. It may give them a chance to fight back. And that opportunity came with the formation of an enterprise, which is organized more for the benefit of the small investor and the consumer than it is for purely gainful ends. Already it has enrolled on its side 6,000 country merchants and many manufacturers, some of whom had grievances against the mail order houses. The latter buy immediately quantities of goods from manufacturers at very low prices. The first year the contract is made the manufacturer is happy and indulges in golden dreams. The next year the mail order house comes along and makes a yet bigger contract, but at a lower figure. In order to cheapen the cost of production the manufacturer has to take plant, pute in more machinery and greater capital in his business with the expectation that his profits will be made up in volume. He continue to expand year by year. It is then that the mail order house comes along and cuts down its power. It comes forward the third year with an offer to buy the manufacturer's entire product, but at prices that are about equal to cost of production, or at least so close that he leave no margin for risk or profit. If the manufacturer refuses he is told he can be replaced elsewhere and the manufacturer has to face the prospect of ruin. He is having a plant that is too large for his normal trade and which he is not fully equipped to fill to its fullest capacity. In most cases, he has gone to the limit of his credit, he has borrowed money. The result is that the manufacturer either goes into bankruptcy or he is forced into mail order concern's terms, which practically make him its servant to the end of his chapter.

INROADS OF THE BIG MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Merchandise Sold in This Way Said to Aggregate $200,000,000 Yearly.

INDUSTRY CENTERS IN CHICAGO

Thousands of Country Merchants and Manufacturers in Middle West Organize to Fight System.

There is to be war to the knife between the country stores in the Middle West and the owners of the "mail order business," which is centered in Chicago, and the battle will be a battle of giants. The mail order business has become a tremendous institution in Chicago two of these houses do a business aggregating $50,000,000 a year and it is said that the total of merchandise sold by mail in the United States yearly amounts to $200,000,000.

Chicago is the great center of this huge commercial industry. The mail order business of the mail order houses go to every corner of rural America. There is hardly a farmer, house or a woodchopper's cabin, no matter how remote, where one or two of these catalogues are not found. These catalogues are bulky tomes, almost as big as a family Bible. They weigh about five pounds apiece and cost their sponsors from 36 to 50 cents apiece. Some of the houses sends out 600,000 of them every year, and the other a few thousand less. The expense for paper, printing and printing is more than a million dollars for each.

Organizing for Protection.

The mail order houses have almost ruined the business of a good many country merchants and manufacturers and these manufacturers and country merchants are organizing to protect themselves. The result will give them a chance to fight back. And that opportunity came with the formation of an enterprise, which is organized more for the benefit of the small investor and the consumer than it is for purely gainful ends. Already it has enrolled on its side 6,000 country merchants and many manufacturers, some of whom had grievances against the mail order houses. The latter buy immediately quantities of goods from manufacturers at very low prices. The first year the contract is made the manufacturer is happy and indulges in golden dreams. The next year the mail order house comes along and makes a yet bigger contract, but at a lower figure. In order to cheapen the cost of production the manufacturer has to take plant, pute in more machinery and greater capital in his business with the expectation that his profits will be made up in volume. He continue to expand year by year. It is then that the mail order house comes along and cuts down its power. It comes forward the third year with an offer to buy the manufacturer's entire product, but at prices that are about equal to cost of production, or at least so close that he leave no margin for risk or profit. If the manufacturer refuses he is told he can be replaced elsewhere and the manufacturer has to face the prospect of ruin. He is having a plant that is too large for his normal trade and which he is not fully equipped to fill to its fullest capacity. The result is that the manufacturer either goes into bankruptcy or he is forced into mail order concern's terms, which practically make him its servant to the end of his chapter.

WILL ASK DEATH PENALTY.

Prosecutor Hoin's Four Responsibles for Murder of Banker Saylor.

State's Attorney John D. Dallisard in Waters, Ill., announced that he would ask the death penalty for all four defendants in the murder of Banker John Byron Saylor. Dr. W. B. Miller, Mrs. Lucy Saylor, John Grunden and Ira Grunden.

Mrs. Cora Miller, wife of the accused physician, who is in Wabash with a warrant for murder of Blairsville, Pa., has $250,000 back of her in her fight to free her husband. She repudiated a report that she had visited Mrs. Saylor in the Wabash jail, said she declared her undying hatred for her woman rival. Owing to Mrs. Miller's peculiar position in the case—that of a witness for her husband and against Mrs. Saylor—it became probable that there would be separate trials for Miller and the other defendants. Mrs. Saylor, her brother, Ira Grunden, and her father, John Grunden, will be tried for the murder of Banker Saylor, and Miller will be tried separately, it is believed, on the direct charge of murder.

With the opening of the south in Dallisard's back in which Saylor's papers were stored, evidence was brought to light that not only Prosecuting Attorney Dallisard but counsel Gulda, the 17-year-old daughter of the slain banker, is convinced of foul play and express the opinion that her father was foully murdered. Miss Saylor showed the community shortly after the killing by saying that the day before her friend of her mother and she was sure her father had been killed by a "gang of blackmailers." She stated that if her father had left her a letter it would have been in the desk in question.

Attorneys for Miller are said to be preparing a plea of insanity in behalf of their client.

MAN NO NICKEL LOSES $1,500

Burn After, "Counsel" Tells Sweetly

Hot Week's Manicurist Phone.

The lack of a nickel in one coin a telephone slot and the clumsiness of a manicurist cost Joseph Jelski, a junior councilman of Trenton, N. J., $1,500 when his home was destroyed by fire. Jelski's home was valued at $10 wickets at night and he hastened to a telephone booth in the neighborhood to summon a fire engine. Being told to drop a nickel into the slot he discovered he had none. He told the girl that it was a case of life and death. He insisted that the fire department could not be called up without the proper charge being paid. Jelski, loaded, charged and pounded his bale in vain. The exchange girl called another girl who lived in the city fire department, and in despair Jelski fled to another place, finally to arrive in time to see his home, for when the fire engine reached the place the flames had its contents were in ashes.

Broomes Arme schoolhouse was destroyed by fire in the midst of a heavy rainstorm, the general belief is that it was the work of an incendiary. The fire occurred at midnight Saturday, the loss was $500, and $900 insurance. The district has been involved in several court cases and at one time the teacher was egged.

East Jordan Herald: Dr. F. C. Warne this week sold his physician's outfit, consisting of office furniture, instruments and library to Dr. Robert A. Hisk of Pellston. The deal is made with the understanding that in case Dr. Warne should regain his health he will be at liberty to resume practice in East Jordan.

It looks as if the Rapid River Hustler was getting ready to suspend. We find as a lie in the Chicago Newspaper Union in which Ol' Rib asks for a situation in the following original style: "Ol' Rib' of the Hustler wants to sit, to supply dope or local matter for a good live country sheet anywhere on earth. Can do river the goods. Can help out in the shop should occasion demand. No boozer, cigarette fiend nor church member, and easy to get and keep."

Last Friday the state supreme court handed down a decision involving the title to the office of probate judge of Mackinac county. The board of county canvassers gave D. W. Murry a certificate of election after throwing out one precinct. His opponent, H. Lachance who was the republican candidate, commenced mandamus proceedings to gain possession of the office and Judge Shepherd sustained his contention. The case was then taken to the supreme court and Attorney Hally, who represented Murray, received word that the supreme court had reversed the decision of the lower court, giving Murray a clear title to the office.

Petoskey News: An old standing fight involving the government the G. R. & I. railroad, and some settlers in Springvale township, was settled yesterday, when 12 of them proved up on their claims. William C. Stewart, William T. Donahoe, Frank A. Hammond, John F. Hassett, L. H. Frye, Eli Smith Clark, Charles W. Miller, I. A. Fuchik, H. A. Forbush, William Forbush, Fred Hinds and Elias Lyons. The government won out in the long years of litigation with the railroad, who claimed ownership to the land occupied by the settlers, which final decision made the settlers eligible to homestead rights on the land, which they have improved to the extent of thousands of dollars. The length of their residence there ranges from seven to 23 years, and the settling of the fight in their favor is a great relief to them, as under the alternate decision they would have had to vacate their farms.

Fire at 1 o'clock last Sunday morning, caused damage to the wagon works of Caldwell & London, at Traverse City, to the estimated amount of $15,000. Though the origin of the fire is unknown, it is thought to have started from embers in the engine house. The blaze was discovered at 1 o'clock and quickly communicated to the wood working building, the blacksmith shop, and the stock room. The engine house, the wood working building and the stock building and contents were practically destroyed. The plant represented an investment of about $25,000 and is owned by Robert Caldwell and William London, who have operated it for 20 years. This is the first fire they have ever had. The entire insurance carried was $2,500. The blaze was under control at 2 o'clock. This is the second factory fire in Traverse City within a week.

Boyne City special: The police department is investigating the strange antics of a new religious sect here, which has headquarters in a chapel in the north part of the city. Residents of that section complain that the nightly services of the devotees are calculated to create continuous disturbance, and they have asked the police to stop the meetings or have them transferred outside the corporation limits. The new sect is known officially as "The Unknown Tongue." Its members go daily into a trance-like state, in which they are said to receive communications from heaven. They talk in strange tongues while in this state, and often shriek and shout while they bump their heads upon the floor of the chapel. The meetings are held nightly. The prosecuting attorney has ruled that the worship of the sect in its own way may not be interfered with by law unless it receives a point where it can be termed a real nuisance to the general public. The police are therefore gathering evidence instead of closing the chapel forthwith.

Traverse City Herald: The first wireless message ever sent from Traverse City was received by the Evening Press today, the message having been sent from the steamer Missouri last evening. A number of local people witnessed the demonstration at the invitation of Waverly Keeling, special representative of the United Wireless company which installed the apparatus on the Northern Michigan Transportation company's boats. Trouble was experienced in getting the message through last night owing to the fact that this city is far away from the nearest station and also because there was considerable static electricity in the air, due to the nearness of the thunder storm. The fact that is a landlocked harbor also had considerable to do with it, the wireless and land stations are high as the towers used for land stations and the instrument being but a one kilowatt wat machine. The message was sent from the steamer Missouri and was picked up by the steamer Manitou as the latter left Harbor Springs, then sent on to Manitowoc, back across the lake to Grand Haven and then to Grand Rapids. Before the message was sent to the Manitou, an attempt was made to get Manitowoc and although the operator could hear Manitowoc, because on the static in the air, he could not read him.

SAFE DEHORNING CHUTE.

Simple Device That Will Not Hurt the Animal.

An antiquity on the dehorning of cattle furnishes the following information on the construction of the chute for the operation:

Make the chute strong. Next make a plank table in front of the same about two feet wide, three feet long and two and one-half feet from the ground. Then prepare a square with an eight inch slide out of plank and hinge it to the table a few inches from the chute at right angles to the face of the same, so that it can move freely from one side to the other. For the hinge use two good pieces of strap iron, preferably wagon tire, and let each extend

A RAISED AND TAR SPREADER.

RAPS AND EARS FOR THE ANIMAL.

clear across each side of the width of the square. To make the hinge wrap the end of the tire around a bolt staple secured to the table by nuts between. Through the end of the tire opposite the hinge and about an inch from the top face of the square bore a hole large enough for an inch and a half bolt. You will then have two ropes attached to the top face of this square, and these are intended to pass over the neck of the animal and be secured by a lever at one end of the table. Another identical square is prepared, and this is set on the table facing the first one, but distant enough from it for the neck of an animal to be set between. The second square is braced firmly in a vertical position with blocks and steel braces. Two holes are bored through the table near the front side, through which a rope is passed to be placed over the nose of the animal. The head of the animal to be dehorned is held by positions by stationary square, against which the neck of the animal is bound by the hinged square. In this position there is no danger of an animal hurting itself, and the work can be done much quicker than if the head is less firmly held in position.

Farmer May Make Cigars.

At Harrisburg, Pa., after the chief leaf tobacco crop has been harvested inspitors are expected to announce the right of the farmer to manufacture cigars for home use or to sell the tobacco in a form other than as an authorized dealer or manufacturer. For the information of all such persons an explanation of the laws and regulations of the treasury department has been obtained from the office of the commissioner of internal revenue.

"Under existing laws," writes the commissioner, "a farmer or grower of tobacco has a right to sell leaf tobacco of his own growth and raising to any person in any quantity which may be desired, provided the condition of such leaf tobacco has not been changed in any manner from that in which it was cured on the farm. The manufacture of cigars in a small way by any person for his own use and consumption is permissible when the cigars are manufactured solely for the use of the person smoking them and are removed from the place of manufacture for consumption or sale. No taxes are required, nor is the person so manufacturing required to qualify as a manufacturer or make any reports.

"Unless the person intending to manufacture cigars as above desired should be a farmer or shall secure his stock of tobacco directly from the farmer by all other secret of supply would be closed to him by the requirement of the law, which provides that dealers in leaf tobacco shall sell only to other dealers and to manufacturers of tobacco or cigars or to such persons as are known to be purchasers of leaf tobacco for export."

farm. This grade of mare crosses very well with other breeds, such as Morgan.

I would prefer the Morgan or coach stallion, as his offspring will have more stamina, and will be taller, if it is taller, in the same time getting somewhere, while if the mare does not breed strongly after herself (I speak of this in the breeding of the colt) it is better in the long run, as the foal is more apt to grow order, and nearly every up to date business farmer wants a horse that is so that he can hitch up and drive from fifteen to twenty-five miles and not be half a day doing it and at the same time do as much work as the draft horse at ordinary farm labor.

Vagaries of Memory.

The vagaries of the old man's memory are indeed curious. Lord Houghton told Mr. Montemarsi (Grant Duff) that he had once been present when Lord Lansdowne and Dr. Lardnigbin were asked what was the most interesting thing that they remembered. "Oh, said Lardnigbin, "undoubtedly the day which I spent with Washington at Mount Vernon." "Oh," said Lansdowne, "undoubtedly the room which I spent with Burke at Beconsfield." Naturally they were asked to tell something of what had passed on occasions, but neither of them could remember anything whatever. There is such a thing as forgetfulness of the memory of good things with a dirty, as for instance, Almanzi's old—London Chronicle.

THE BROOD MARE.

Too Many Scrubs Used by the Farmers, Says a Horseman.

If a farmer is going to raise colts that will give him a substantial income on the right side of the ledger he must have a good grade of mares, as the stallion, no matter how great an individual or how well he is bred, cannot do it all, writes a horseman in Country Gentleman.

Having been connected with the breeding industry for fifteen years in the care and breeding of stallions for public service in a farming community I feel there is a tendency among a great number of farmers to use their scrubs for brood mares instead of the best they have, and in many cases the best are not good enough, but when a man has a good mare and then breeds a broken down cripple with about all of the "ornaments" that go with a broken down cripple, he is not doing his duty to the public, and he is not doing himself any good,

CHAPTER XX.

Wheaton came in from the next evening, clutching a copy of a Gazette extra in which a few sensational lines bespoke the latest rumor about the mysterious adventure of the Grand Parter. Within a fortnight he had received several warnings from his friends or striking his itinerary eastward. Stoyle was evidently in a state of fear for his safety, and as Wheaton had received brief notes from him couched in phrases of ambiguous warning, he had left word with a few friends in Kansas City, he scarcely knew why, that he was traveling on foot trains and therefore with money in his pocket.

He had just morning received a postal card, signed "V. W.," which bore a few taunting sentences in a handwriting which Wheaton thought he recognized. He sat for an instant speechless that Willis Wheaton, whom he had defeated at Grand Parter, one that he little the situation thus created as a friend had he found it odd, as was his way, it occurred to him that the Grand Parter gems he confessed to himself, the delay he would be rendered doubly the sense of gnawing vexatious crime had never been discharged. Wheaton had engaged to keep him away from Chicago and undertaken to pay him a certain gratuity or gratuities, but always he was in fear of being a nuisance, and this was made public. He was face to face with the crucial question of his conscience involved complicity in a crime. His duty lay clear before him, but he had been friends, the Partners, the women whom he knew best, and the one need in life if Stoyle were caught he would be sure to take revenge on him, and Wheaton knew that no article lies guilless be caught and sentenced to the state prison, his career would be at an end; he could not live in Chelsea; Edith Fox he would never see him again.

Wheaton sat in the parlor with eyes red from weeping. "Oh, have you no sense?" she cried to him. He laid her on his overcoat and held his hat in his hand. Her cheeks were flushed by the glow of tenderness which over him, but it was followed by a wave of terror. Stoyle went as she tried to tell her story.

"It is dreadful, Harry, dreadful! I'm to blame for all this." "But certainly no harm can come to the boy," he finally, "for he knows that I have not taken a dollar."

"But he isn't strong and father is still weak."

She threw herself in a chair and her tears broke forth afresh. Wheaton stood impotently watching her anguish. It was new and unknown emotion which a man experienced, which for the first time he saw tears in the eyes of the woman he loves. Stoyle sprang up suddenly.

"Hilary Wheaton!" she sobbed—"you be come back yet?"

"Nothing had been heard from them when I came up town." He still stood, watching her pitiously. "I hope you understand how sorry I am, how dreadful I feel about it." He walked over to her and she thought he meant to go. She had not heard what he said, but she thought he had been offering help.

"Oh, thank you! Everything is being done, I know. They will find him at night, won't they? They surely must!" she pleaded. Her father called her to his sickroom and she hurried away to him.

Wheaton's eyes followed her as she went weeping from the room, and he watched her, feeling that he might never see her again. He felt the poignancy of this hour's distress—of the misery brought upon this home's hitherto strong. The French clock on the mantel struck seven and then tinkled the three quarters thereafter. There were rooms in town on the minute he had sent them to his by the hour before. He stood as one dazed for a minute after she had vanished. He could hear Parter back in the house somewhere, and Evelyn's voice responding. The hundred strokes of the bell, the seven of the hour, the 15 minutes remained in the room, seemed upon him like a pall. He stared stupidly at the French clock on the mantel which had brought upon the place, and then he went out of the house and down the slate walk to the street, like a man in a dream.

While Wheaton was absent from home and home, the community was startled with excitement. Rumors for the Parters were circulated in every direction. The only thing was the slight inclination of Stoyle's disappearance, and had had recited her story to detectives and reporters, and had given the man into the hands of the law. Wheaton had walked with her to the door. She had gone to the police station, and had gone up to the curbs—the one that had indicated the exact spot where Mr. Parter's grandson. She remembered that he had said that he had recognized the man as he spoke, and there was something in the manner of his exit which had suggested to her, Perhaps he had only one eye—she did not know.

Harkins and Sutton, acting independently, had reached the place with speed and excitement, followed a slight clue that had been for countryward. The man had stopped at a little village ten miles away, and after dinning his country dinner in his own. Meanwhile another messenger had been sent to the place of the boy's disappearance. Inquiries had been made in a single messenger to a certain amount to the one of the liquor, the carbonic acid gas in soda water, the citric acid of the lemon, the sulphuric acid in the oil of vitriol, the prussic acid of the peach, the arsenic acid in the paris green, the strychnine in the potato bug, the morphine in the opium, the nicotine in the tobacco, the caffeine in the coffee, the theobromine in the chocolate, the tannic acid in the tea, the alcohol in the wine, the fusel oil in the whisky, the amylic acid in the brandy, the cocoanut oil in the rum, the glycerine in the port wine, the sugar of lead in the sherry, the gum in the mucilage, the starch in the paste, the alum in the baking powder, the lime in the water, the chalk in the milk, the sand in the sugar, the ashes in the coffee, the dirt in the pepper, the sawdust in the ginger, the red lead in the cayenne, the pyrites in the coal, the water in the milk, the water in the beer, the water everywhere, the water everywhere, the water everywhere

The Memory of a Joke

C. B. S. Conyne, of Chicago, is at the Belvedere. Mr. Conyne is a prominent Chicago business man, and an old friend of the writer.

He was a regular summer habitue of Charlevoix in the good old days, and generally spent a good portion of his midsummer leisure with Geo. W. Miller on the Jordan river.

When the steamship Manitou was launched at South Chicago in June about twelve years ago, the Sentinel scribe was there as a guest of the company. He was on his way from the Palmer House to the steamer Arthur Orr, which took the crowd to the launching, and was crossing Rush street bridge, when he ran smash into Mr. Conyne.

"How do you do, Mr.——," and, recognition was as well as we did, his name momentarily slipped from our memory. Of course the new moment the name came back to us with all its force and beauty, but the lapse of memory was fatal. With a withering look Mr. Conyne exclaimed,

"Go on now, you have got the wrong man." Then he disappeared in the throng, and those of the throng who witnessed the episode turned their attention to the scribe, with smiles and various sorts of comments, such as "that guy thought his man was a jay," etc.

The scribe passed on with the thought that possibly he was the jay, although he wore a new suit of clothes and a new fedora hat; and that was what fooled Conyne.

Late in July Conyne came up, and, as usual came down the street to greet his old friend. The greeting was as warm and sincere as of yore, but, after the greeting the scribe said:

"You recognize me now, do you, Mr. Conyne?"

"Why, certainly, why should I not recognize you?"

"Because you took me for a confidence man on Rush street bridge in Chicago last month. Have I changed much?"

"In way Conyne staggered against the building nearly three it out of plumb.

Well,—that was before Charlevoix went dry.

—Editor Hodine, one among the best writers in Missouri, is the author of the following lines: "Whatever you do, brother, don't get too good. There is a piety that is depressing, and which immediately breeds suspicion and distrust. Most every man has his faults and if our secret acts and thoughts, or even those things people know about us, but which we think they don't know about us, were held up to the public, we would shrink out to the circle, and see to hide our moral and spiritual nakedness. Some of us get drunk and that's bad; some of us are adulterers, and that's bad; some of us lie like dogs, and that's worse; some peddle vile talk, and that's worse; and some of us love money better than we do the truth, honor and goodness, and that's worse; some of us cheat, steal and dodge our taxes, and that's "worse" still, though among the elect it is sometimes considered a virtue. But the crowning sin of all this is a hard, unloving heart and soul without charity for the frailties of others, which rejoices when others are crushed and which attempts to hide its secret joy with smiling and pious depreciation. Men dislike such people, and God despises them. No, whatever you do, don't get too good.

Sees Mother Grow Young.

"It would be hard to overpraise the wonderful change in my mother since she began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick of Danforth, Me. "Although past 70 she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered untold misery from dyspepsia for 20 years. At last she could neither eat, drink nor sleep. Doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health. They invigorate all vital organs, cure Liver and Kidney troubles, induce sleep, impart strength and appetite. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.

—Traverse City Eagle: Daniel S. Payton, county clerk of Charlevoix county, was in the city Thursday, accompanied by A. L. Coulter, deputy revenue collector of Charlevoix, leaving Friday morning for Manistee to attend the meeting of the Northern Michigan Development Bureau. Mr. Payton called on County Clerk Walter while here and related numerous experiences that he had during the civil war. He was born and raised in Kentucky and is a true southern gentleman in manner and appearance and, while only a boy during the war was old enough to remember the struggle, as some of the important battles were fought in his neighborhood. His family were Union people and four of his family served on the Union side during the war, and he stated that all that saved their house and premises from destruction was the fact that his father was a Mason. This fact was discovered by Gen. Morgan when he raided that section and the house was spared from the torch and given protection in spite of the Union sympathies of its owner. Mr. Payton is active in the political and industrial life of this section and has held several important offices in Charlevoix county.
